Mrs. James Muldowney of West Third street died very suddenly in child birth at half-past nine o'clock this morning. Deceased was the mother of fifteen children, the oldest of whom is but 18 years of age. As soon as Mrs. Muldowney's death was announced friends hurried to the house to condole with afflicted family.

A notable wedding took place in Grace Episcopal Church, last evening. Charles W. Scribner, son of Mrs. William Scribner, was married to Miss Helen Elizabeth Vail, daughter of Mahlon Vail. The bridegroom is professor of chemical engineering in the Iowa State Agricultural College at Ames, Ia. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. E. M. Rodman and was very impressive to many participators. The full surpliced boy choir sang the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as they slowly marched down the centre aisle of the church to the altar. The bride, leaning on the arm of her venerable father, followed. At the altar the bridegroom, with his brother, Henry S. Scribner, professor of Greek at the Western University of Pennsylvania, as best man, awaited the party. The bridesmaids who attended the bride was Miss Mary Jo Myers and Miss Agnes Vail. The bride was dressed in a gown of white silk, with Medici collar and train. She wore a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet pea blossoms. The bridesmaids wore gowns of heliotrope silk trimmed with chiffon. They carried bouquets similar to the bride's. The ushers were Dr. Ellis W. Hodges, Joseph Lawrence Myers and Frederick Moore, of Plainfield; Arthur H. Scribner, of New York; George Henderson, of Philadelphia, and George Herbert Boyle, of Halifax, N. S. After the wedding ceremony a brilliant reception was given at the home of the bride's father, on Park avenue.

Whipped his Successor.

On Monday last one of the telegraph messenger boys was discharged for violating one of the rules. Another boy was employed in his stead. That angered the boy who had been discharged and he laid in wait for his successor. Yesterday afternoon he met him and after a few introductory remarks such as "scab", "rat," etc., he began to pummel him unmercifully. The police were notified and his arrest may follow.

Positions for Anderson and Tolley.

It is stated that ex-Comptroller Anderson and ex-Treasurer Tolley will in the near future be in charge of the Barge Office at Ellis Island Emigrant Station, in New York harbor. The appointment has not been made, but the promise of the Secretary of Treasury has been given, and it will be fulfilled at the proper time.

GRANTING DOCK PRIVILEGES.

The Hudson County Freeholders Delay Matters.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders met Monday to act upon applications for licenses to build docks. Among the applicants were Frank H. Hedden & Daughter, the Bayonne Improvement Company and the Mechanics Land and Building Company. Those asked for privileges to build wharves on the Newark Bay in the city of Bayonne, and it was necessary that a joint action be taken by the boards of this and Hudson county. These applications were first considered on Friday last, but the Hudson county men were not satisfied with the terms to which the Union County Freeholders agree upon, and which were the same as in the cases of the many privileges that have recently been granted.

On Friday afternoon no conclusion was reached respecting Hudson county grants, and an adjournment was continued to until yesterday. When the Freeholders met they were not granted licenses to the Bennett estate, and the Bowker Fertiliser Company. The effort to meet as a joint committee with the Hudson county men failed, however. The Hudson county legislators were in the city, however, and were canvassing all the afternoon in the Sheridan House.

The representatives of this county were forced to sit idly about awaiting the conclusion of the Hudson county men. The afternoon passed, and the patience of the Board of this county was almost exhausted, when one member of the Hudson county board presented himself long enough to form a quorum of the joint committee to arrange for an adjournment until yesterday morning at ten o'clock. Some of the Union county men were very indignant and so expressed themselves.

The Hudson county members still failed to materialize in the committee room at the appointed hour yesterday. Yesterday was the last opportunity the freeholders had to grant licenses, as the new law goes into effect to-day and hereafter the riparian commissioners will grant licenses. There are all sorts of rumors concerning the action of the Hudson county men, and it is alleged that they want to make exhorbitant charges against applicants.

About 11 o'clock the Hudson county men arrived, and the joint meeting was held, when the licenses were granted. In the afternoon the Union county Board took a carriage and went to view the sites for which applications has been granted.

One current report was that $4,500 was the sum the people who wanted pier privileges had been requested to hand over to the Hudson county men, but to all they replied that they were not yet ready to transact business.

Finally the current rumor was that the demand had been reduced to $3,000, but still no agreement was reached, and the interested people refused to pay such an exorbitant figure. The Hudson men at last sent a delegation to inform the Union county men that they were going home and would return in the morning if things looked favorable. They then entered coaches at the hotel and were driven to the station.

Freeholder West, of Union, denounced their action as being outrageous, and said that in self-respect and for the sake of their character the Union county members ought to refuse to transact any more business with the representatives from Hudson county.

The latter, for reasons best known to themselves, refused yesterday to change their minds, and they went to Elizabeth, and in ten minutes all the applications were granted that it had taken four days to agree upon. It was currently reported that it cost the interested parties over $200. The reason is all the haste, and the comments on the Hudson county members are anything but pleasant.

Mr. Lyman Won.

As reported in THE NEWS of yesterday the case of Charles Lyman vs. Levi Hetfield came up for trial before Justice Nash. Mr. Lyman claimed that Mr. Hetfield owed him a commission for leasing a store. Mr. Hetfield claimed he did not a refused to pay it. Mr. Lyman brought suit to recover his percentage and after hearing the testimony in the case Justice Nash rendered a decision of $187.50 in his favor, together with the costs of court. Mr. Hetfield's lawyer gave notice of appeal.

Arrested for Stealing Rides.

Special Policeman Mattox yesterday arrested Harry McClain for stealing rides on coal cars. When arraigned in court he pleaded guilty to the charge and a fine of two dollars was imposed. The railroad officials are determined to stop the practice of jumping on and off of coal cars, and have stationed detectives all along the line with instructions to arrest all trespassers.

THE TAXPAYERS PROTEST.

The City of New Brunswick Versus the County Townships.

The County Board of Assessors of Middlesex county met at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon. A protest on the part of the city of New Brunswick was made against the low assessments made by some of the townships.

The city last year increased its valuations over $4,000,000. The townships maintained the old figures, and the city was obliged to pay something like $30,000 more in taxes, without receiving therefrom any additional benefit.

This year some of the townships increased their figures, but in four or five cases the figures were conspicuously low. In Sayreville the total was only $687,000, though that township includes most of the big brick yards of the county and a number of rich brick lands.

There was also a protest against the valuations in North Brunswick, where the big Meyer Rubber Works are located.

South Amboy's figure were below what the Board itself fixed upon last year, when it was found necessary to revise the low figures of the assessors.

City Attorney Weigel, who appeared for the New Brunswick Common Council, urged that the Board revise the figures of some of the townships, and said that if such action were not taken he would be obliged to appeal to the State Board of Assessment against the valuations. This year the city's listed valuation is over $10,000,000, and it pays half the taxes of the county.

State Notes

The Cumberland Nail and Iron Company at Bridgeton has shut down its entire works for a time.

Howard Young, a colored servant at Congress Hall, Cape May, was drowned while bathing yesterday.

Rev. Dr. R. B. McNeill preached his farewell sermon at the Pearl street Baptist church in Bridgeton on Sunday, after a pastorate of over five years.

The police of Jersey City having refused to permit the Salvation Army to parade the streets, the Rev. Mr. Soudder, the pastor of the Tabernacle, has offered the army the use of his church next Sunday evening.

As Robert Owens, a workman employed at the Danielsonville quarries, near Belvidere, was stepping over a rope yesterday, the rope suddenly tightened. He lost his balance and fell to the bottom of the quarry, a distance of 100 feet, struck on his head and was killed instantly.

The Chamberlain Glass Manufacturing Company and the Clark Window Light Company, both of Bridgeton, will increase their capacities for the next season. Contracts have already been given out for the erection of a new factory building, which will be 200 feet by 50, a brick addition of thirty-six by eighty feet.

The health authorities of Trenton yesterday discovered the body of a child wrapped in an old quilt buried only fourteen inches deep in the Polish Cemetery. It is said that many children have been buried in this cemetery in a similar manner. The Health Board will make a thorough investigation, for which Jews say that it is their custom to bury unknown dead without coffins.

At the Third Presbyterian church in Elizabeth last night Frank Stiles Woodruff, of Linden, was ordained as a Presbyterian minister by the Presbytery of Newark. Rev. Dr. J. Garland Hammar, moderator of the Elizabeth Presbytery, presided, and the charge to the candidate was delivered by the Rev. Dr. James G. Dennis, of Belrat. The Rev. Dr. Gillespie, secretary of the Board of Home Missions, delivered the sermon.

Stephen Montgomery, night watchman of the Consolidated mills, near New Brunswick, lost his life Sunday night by a strange accident. Engineer Hall is the man in charge of the boilers at night. While Montgomery was passing the front of the boiler on his round of inspection, Hall had occasion to open the mud valve. The steam and water rushing out with great force broke the valve pipe loose, and a piece of the pipe struck Montgomery on the head, crushing his skull and causing instant death.

That White Stone.

Directly in front of Demarest's grocery store a white marble slab has been embedded in the sidewalk. For several months past a News reporter has noticed that a large number of girls who pass on the north side of the street gave the slab a wide birth. He wondered the reason and last night he saw a girl walk to the edge of the sidewalk so that she would not be compelled to step on the stone. An acquaintance asked her the reason why she was afraid to walk over the stone. She smiled and said "You may think it foolish, but we girls believe if we step on that white marble slab we will have bad luck. I know it is only a superstition, but nevertheless we cannot get it out of our heads."

Eight out of ten girls who pass the store have the same superstition.

A Sussex Snake Story.

The following incident is vouched for by the local papers as having transpired at Swartswood, Sussex county: The kitchen canary who presides over that portion of the household of William Hoover, on the James Roof farm, went out to gather the eggs one day last week and in one of the nests discovered eighteen young blacksnakes. With the true feminine instinct she yelled for help. Geo. Campbell killed the reptile for her. In measured five feet and four inches in length and was as big around as a man's double fist. He dissected the snake and found in its stomach a large china egg it had swallowed for genuine hen fruit. What a pain that snake must have had when he found out the mistake he had made.—Dover Iron Era.

N. J. DIVISION, L. A. W.

Monday night a regular quarterly meeting of the board of officers of the N. J. Division, L. A. W., was to have been held at the Elizabeth Wheelmen's club house, but there was not a quorum present, and the proceedings were entirely unofficial.

There was present Chief Consul Brown, Vice Consul Benedict, Secretary-Treasurer Pennell, F. L. C. Martin, A. A. Pope and F. C. Gilbert.

The question of running the State championship races was discussed and it was decided that they should be run at a race meet given under the auspices of the Asbury Park Wheelmen, probably on July 11.

A call was circulated for signatures for a constitutional convention and business meeting of the League to be held at Hartford, Conn., on September 7th and 8th. The call gives the purposes as follows:

The convention to consider amendments to the constitution and bylaws in regard (1) to the amateur question (2) the powers and duties of the several officers and committees of the league, and (3) cycle racing.

"And the business meeting to consider the question of the policy of a union between the league and any other association for any purpose whatever, and in this connection to revise the bylaws and amend them in conformity to the constitution as it may have been changed in the convention."

Treasurer Pennell had his annual report, and also his report of the finances of the recent meet in this city, ready, but they, of course, could not be received officially. The annual report was as follows:

Balance last report	$264.25
From A. Bassett, Sec. L. A. W.	854.00
From the sale of Road Books	90.41
From sale of theatre tickets, '91 Meet	249.75
From sale of banquet tickets '91 Meet	180.00
	$2,040.91
Balance expenses, 1890 meet	$ 51.5
Expenses racing men 1890 meet	140.90
Printing	178.45
Travelling expenses officers and members	75.10
Secretary, salary 9 months	75.00
Chief Consul, expenses of office	60.00
Incidental, expenses, postage, etc	102.68
Expenses of '91 meet	1,196.65
	$1,816.11
Balance on hand	224.80
	$2,040.91

The Meet report showed that the receipts for the official programme were $213, and that the expenses, $113.50; receipts for banquet $180, expenses $469.25; receipts for theatre party $240.75 disbursements $479.25; and disbursements for incidentals including badges, printing, etc., $126.75; making total receipts $633.75 and total expenditures $1,796.15, showing a net loss on the Meet of $562.40.

Messrs. W. H. Stauffer and H. S. Fulper audited the treasurer's books and found them in a highly creditable condition.

Vice Consul Benedict gave notice of an amendment to the constitution which shall give to the board authority to pay to representatives full expenses of attending meetings, instead of only car fare as heretofore.

The secretary reported the League renewals were up to the standard. At the last report, June 19, the membership was 800, and 300 applications have come in since, making the total membership in the State now 1,100 compared with 800 at this date a year ago.

It is probable that a special meeting of the Board will be called at Asbury Park early in August.

The Temple Builders.

The Temple Builders, a branch organization of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church, gave a sociable last evening in the church parlors at which time Mrs. Lucy S. Bainbridge, of the New York City Mission, gave a very interesting talk on "Darkest New York."

The evening was opened by a piano solo by W. E. MacClymont.

Mrs. Bainbridge was then introduced by Mr. David Lennox who made a short speech for the occasion; after Mrs. Bainbridge had finished her discourse Miss Bessie Read a piece, entitled the "Whistling Regiment." During her reading, when she came to the words "I will lay me down and die" instead of reading, Mr. Biglow and Mr. MacClymont whistled it, and in the middle of the piece a quartette composed of Messrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., first tenor; Sam. McCutcheo, second tenor; W. E. MacClymont, first bass and R. T. Barnes, second bass, sang a verse of Annie Laurie, and at the close the second verse was sung.

Refreshments were then served, and thus closed a very delightful time with the young missionaries.

"The Slums of New York."

Miss Bainbridge of New York lectured before the Young People's League at the First Baptist church last evening. She took for her subject "The Slums of New York." The lecture was listened to with intense interest by the large audience that was present. Miss Bainbridge is a fluent speaker and held the close attention of her audience throughout. At the conclusion of the lecture refreshments were served.

—Should Thursday prove stormy, the managers of the First Baptist church excursion to Belmar wish it announced that arrangements have been made with the railroad company for Friday. Thursday is the day, however, if fair.

A Freak of Nature.

A recent Branchville letter to the Newton Herald contains the following: The writer has had opportunity for seeing a great many freaks of nature, but never until last Saturday did he see a colt with four front legs. William Lindsley, living about one mile west of this village, had a colt dropped on that day without a vestige of fore legs. The colt is well formed otherwise, the fore shoulders being plump and full, with just a bump where the legs should come out, feeling as though they had been sawed off as close to the body as possible. Its health is good, but unfortunately it cannot stand to take its lacteal food, and the mother being cross and ugly disposed toward any one trying to help it feed, its health may be affected before it can be learned to drink. On Sunday following the birth of the colt a large number of people from the surrounding country, even from as far as Newton, visited Mr. Lindsley's place to see the freak, and he had all kinds of offers for it, and advice as to its care. If it can be raised it will undoubtedly adorn some museum or traveling curiosity show or menagerie. Later: The monstrosity died Tuesday afternoon."

The Fear of Lightning.

Few of the very many who are terrorized by thunder storms pause to consider how little loss of life is caused by lightning strokes. There are many more people drowned each year than are killed by lightning; there are many more people killed by railroad accidents than by lightning, and there are many more people killed by the varied accidents which prevail in even the best regulated communities, than by lightning. More are accidentally killed by fear of drowning; hundreds of thousands travel daily on railways without fear, and none take thought of the countless forms in which death comes by accident everywhere; but all more or less bow to fear of lightning that is not nearly so destructive of life as other sources of danger which give them little or no concern. There is danger in the thunder storm, however, and it is always wise to take every reasonable precaution against it. Keep away from trees during a storm, and there is always wisdom in closed doors and windows, and always foolhardy exposure in taking refuge under isolated trees during storms.—Philadelphia Times

Resuscitation by Oxygen.

Lieutenant Colonel Elsdale, of the British army, writes in The Nineteenth Century a paper on this subject that should attract the attention of the medical profession everywhere. It is well known that when a person is asphyxiated by gas or is drowned that the cause is, primarily, absence of oxygen in the lungs. Elsdale's idea is, briefly, that oxygen should be turned in a strong current into the lungs of such a subject, thus suddenly revivifying him and starting up again the circulation of pure blood.

The lieutenant colonel relates an incident from his army experience. One day a soldier engaged in emptying a war balloon filled with coal gas was overcome and fell to the ground, the heavy folds of the balloon enveloping him completely. The officers and men brought him into the open air as quick as possible. He seemed dead already. Elsdale remembered the oxygen used for making the oxyhydrogen light. There was a pressure of 1,000 pounds to the square inch on the tubes conducting it from the receiver. The nozzle of the tube was placed in the man's mouth and the gas turned on as lightly and slightly as possible. But a stream of the pure gas almost sufficient to burst a man's lungs was sent through him. He revived in a flash and caught the nozzle with his teeth, so that it was difficult to remove. That accomplished, however, it was marvelous the effect the stimulating draft had on the apparently dead man.

In a quarter of a minute from the time the gas was turned into his mouth the man was seized with such violent and convulsive paroxysms that his comrades had to hold him to prevent him from dashing himself to pieces. But half an hour afterward the supposed dead man walked as calmly back to his quarters as though he had not been to all intents and thirty minutes before. He was completely recovered.

The suggestions here thrown out are certainly worthy of all consideration. Many a person may be sayed who is apparently drowned, if the oxygen be applied in the method suggested in the paper. How to do it Elsdale describes, mentioning also the way to guard against oxygen explosions. He believes every mine ought to be fitted with the apparatus he describes. Patients overcome with choke damp in a mine or by carbonic acid from an old well can be resuscitated in the same way.

Speech Without Words.

Julian Hawthorne has hit on an idea that is worthy of his illustrious father. It is that civilized individuals have outgrown the means of communication by the talkee-talkee method, and need some other way of expressing their thoughts. Speech is clumsy, laborious and ill adapted to its end. The vowels express emotion naturally, but the consonants are mere artificial, arbitrary, meaningless sounds, like the printed alphabet, and are wholly inadequate to the wants of the race that is already here, saying nothing of the coming one. Therefore, says J. H., let us throw audible speech overboard and adopt some means of communication more worthy a race that is highly developed intellectually and psychologically.

Then language can no more be used to conceal thought. We shall speak mind to mind, soul to soul. The best part of this kind of communication would be that it would do away with lying. Mar may tell his friend a whopper by audible speech now, but if mind speaks to mind in the way Mr. Hawthorne suggests then the friend would read the other man's mind in a flash, and whopping lies of the most indifferent kind would be impossible. If the bell boy said you were not at home when your creditor called, the creditor would read by intuition the bell boy's mind and know it was not so. In short, if Mr. Hawthorne's method of talking mind to mind should come into fashion the foundations of society would be broken up. For this reason let us all hope it will not come in our time.

Two Ways of Communicating.

Two ways of communicating are suggested by the writer. One is the method of telepathy or mind reading, thought transference. Then the thoughts of every human being will be an open book to everybody else. The other method suggested is that of conversing by the expressions of the face. This method the writer prefers. We shall see the delicate nerves of the face, says Mr. Hawthorne, exercised as never before in one short month. Our faces will then grow beautifully mobile and expressive. But how we shall talk in the dark Mr. Hawthorne does not explain.

It was considered of enough importance to be telegraphed over the ocean that Gladstone's illness many days on worshippers called to see him were not treated just as other callers. It leaved the impression that they had to be in mourning costume before [illegible] while on every nine towns in the country [illegible] of over 2,000. Now there are twenty-two.

SHE SHOT AT SIX BOYS.

Peppered Like So Many Birds in a Tree.

ONE OF THE VICTIM'S LIFE UNSAFE.

His Eyes Were Put Out and He May Die or Become Insane—Mrs. Mary Forbes the Name of the Woman Who Used an Air Gun.

NEW YORK, July 1.—George Reiborn, the lad who lost the sight of one eye by being struck by a bullet from an air gun in the hands of Mrs. Mary Forbes, was not the only boy who suffered from the woman's strange impulses. There were five other youngsters in the branches of the tree on East One Hundred and Twenty-third street at the time that young Reiborn was shot, and all but one of them had previously felt the sting of a bullet.

Although the detectives could not find Mrs. Forbes when they went to her house, 161 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street, shortly after the shooting, they succeeded in arresting her later. She showed no emotion when arraigned before Justice Divver, although she wept when she was committed without bail.

His Eyes Destroyed.

The lad is at the home of his parents, 159 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street, suffering intense pain. He slept none on Friday night and kept his parents awake by his pitiful cries. The physician says the eye is destroyed, and is somewhat fearful that worse results may come. The bullet, which was of somewhat smaller than one of 22 caliber, struck just above the left eye, directly under the eyebrow, and worked downward under the eyelid toward the nose, where it was found and extracted.

He May Die.

The boy complained of intense pains all over his head. The front portion of the skull is very thin and brittle, and the doctor fears that the bone has been fractured and that the brain has been touched by the bullet. If such be the case the boy, if he lives, will become insane. His condition does not warrant an operation at present.

She Shot Them All.

The story of the shooting as told by John McManus, twelve years old, of 150 East One-Hundred and Twenty-third street, discloses the case in a much more serious light. There were six boys in the tree and Mrs. Forbes shot at each.

The boys are John Ridley, twelve years old, of 159 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street; William Riordon, sixteen years old, living on One Hundred and Ninety-first street, near First avenue; J. Kronenberg, nineteen years old, of 158 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street; Harry Johnson, twelve years old, of 155 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street; young McManus and Reiborn. The boys were scattered among the branches of a large maple tree, which stands in front of the house adjoining Mrs. Forbes' and about twenty feet from the woman's window.

He Thought a Bee Stung Him.

It was about 6 o'clock in the evening when the boys climbed into the tree. On a big limb sat Johnnie McManus, just below Reiborn. Ridley was perched on a branch of the tree, yelled with pain and fell from the branch to another, a distance of about ten feet. He explained that a bee had stung him on the hand. The skin from between his first and second fingers was slightly torn. Young Johnson then said that about five minutes later something struck him on the chest. Kronenberg also said that something had hit him.

She Had an Airgun.

Just then Reiborn felt a stinging sensation in his left cheek. He found his cheek was bleeding, and, looking up, saw Mrs. Forbes in the window with an airgun in her hands.

"Hey, you better look out; you just shot me!" he shouted.

Mrs. Forbes then deliberately pointed the gun at young Reiborn and shot him in the hand. According to McManus, she tossed an empty cartridge shell out of the window, left the window for a moment and returned. Young Reiborn was looking straight at her. She took deliberate aim and fired.

"Oh, I'm shot!" cried Reiborn, reeling backward. He was saved by young McManus from falling to the ground. Mrs. Forbes then disappeared from the window.

Mrs. Forbes is a tall, slim woman, with hard features. When in court she was informed of what a serious turn her victim might take if it were to come to other her in the least. Her husband is Edward Forbes, a bartender. She claims the boys were making a noise and that she was afraid her husband would be awakened. The boys say that Mrs. Forbes made a practice of shooting birds in that tree and that on last Sunday she killed two birds with the weapon.

DEATH IN THE FREEZER.

Three Persons Killed by Icecream at a Picnic.

BRUSHTON, July 1.—The ladies of the Christian church of Brushton, N. Y., gave the first icecream sociable of the season recently. Forty-three people, who ate of the icecream were poisoned. The pastor of the church and two ladies have died and all the others are in a critical condition.

Riding to Pikes Peak.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 1.—The Pikes Peak railway is now in successful operation. The first passenger train reached the summit at 6:35 last evening. The train consisted of an engine and one car, occupied by sixty-five people, mostly excursionists from Denver. The lower terminus of the line is 8,627 feet above sea level and the upper 14,147. The distance is nine miles, and the steepest grade is 25 per cent. on a rise of one in forty. On the return trip a slight snow squall was encountered, and on the summit the air was unpleasantly cool. The road is the most novel as well as the highest railroad in the world.

The South Is Booming.

CHARLESTON, July 1.—An elaborate review of the industrial progress of South Carolina appears in today's issue of The News and Courier. The amount of money expended, invested and proposed to be invested in the past six months on account of industrial establishments and of newly completed railway mileage is $17,570,000. Over a hundred miles of new railway lines have been opened, making the total of the state 3,300 miles. In 1880 only nine towns in the state had a population of over 2,000. Now there are twenty-two.

J. M. HILL EMBARRASSED.

The Well Known Theatrical Manager Reported in Trouble.

BOSTON, July 1.—J. M. Hill, the well known theatrical manager and lessee-manager of New York and Boston, has failed. Several attachments have been placed upon his property here. Mr. Hill is believed to be in New York, as a diligent search here failed to locate him. Several enterprises which have not turned out profitably are said to be the cause of the failure. Several people hazard the opinion that he will not be able to pay more than five cents on the dollar.

Falsely Denied at New York.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The report from Boston that J. M. Hill has failed is said here not to be true.

J. M. HILL.

As a matter of fact the trouble in Boston, however, is given. Mr. Hill, in addition to his theatrical interests, recently started a restaurant in Boston. This did not pay, and a week since he was obliged to raise by a mortgage $50,000 on his two New York theaters to take an attachment off his Boston restaurant. His small creditors are now beginning to press him, but he is having no difficulty, it is said, in meeting the demands. His large creditors are not bothering him. In addition to the poor investment in Boston, Mr. Hill is said to have lodged heavily for a friend who has now gone back on him. Mr. Hill states that he will be out of the woods and have all his debts paid by next January.

A STATESMAN OUT OF A JOB.

That Is What Lecturer John J. Ingalls Terms Himself.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—For the first time since he left public life ex-Senator Ingalls appeared in public last evening, making his debut as a lecturer upon the stage of the amphitheater of the National Chautauqua at Glen Echo. His talk was on the "Problems of Our Second Century." He paid his respects to those persons who want money to be free as the leaves in the forest in the autumn and who are alleged to be so anxious to have congress pay their debts. He deprecates the state of affairs which exists in which the 65,000 people in control one-half of all the accumulated wealth of the country, but he evidently did not see how this was to be helped.

He said that if all the wealth was divided so that each person received his per capita per year in six months some would be rolling in palace cars and some in baggage cars. Some would be on foot and others would be sitting in the fence corners watching the procession go by. He said that no legislation in the world could change the distinctions which exist between men, and added that if some people were rich and others were poor the fault lay with the Creator. He took an optimistic view of the contest between wealth and poverty, and said that out of the struggle would come broader liberty and greater opportunities for happiness. In the course of his lecture he referred to himself as a statesman out of a job—a remark which caused great laughter.

MORRIS' DAUGHTER WEDS.

She Is Now the Wife of Professor Hadley, of Yale.

NEW HAVEN, July 1.—Professor Arthur T. Hadley, Yale's political economist, and Miss Helen H., daughter of the Hon. Lucius B. Morris, the Democratic candidate for governor, were married at the home of Judge Morris last evening. The wedding was private. The ceremony was performed by President Dwight, of Yale, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Smyth, of Center church. The bride was attired in a beautiful white crepe de chine of most elaborate design, handsomely embroidered with pearl trimmings.

Professor and Mrs. Hadley will sail for Europe, where they will remain visiting many places of interest during Professor Hadley's summer vacation, returning home prior to the commencement of the fall term of Yale in September. The bride is most favorably known in this city, having been prominent in society and a general favorite in the society in which she moved. Professor Hadley has acquired a wide reputation as a professor of political science at Yale. He became prominent as a labor commissioner of this state.

Why McHenry's Remains Were Exhumed.

LONDON, July 1.—The exhumation of McHenry's body with a view to examination for poison was done for the reason that McHenry's life was insured for over £1,000,000 in various companies in England and America, and the companies, or some of them, suspect suicide by poison, which would void the policies. The friends of McHenry scout the idea of suicide, and are indignant at the publicity given to the case.

Did Mrs. Comstock Kill Larbig?

BROOKLYN, July 1.—The Brooklyn police are not putting much confidence in the stories told by young Darwin Meserole and Mrs. Dovie Comstock about Saturday night's tragedy. It has been learned that Larbig had taken out an insurance policy for $15,000 on his life in favor of Mrs. Comstock. It is said that the policy was issued four months before the murder. The theory is fast gaining adherents.

Hansen and Barnes Chosen.

HARRISBURG, July 1.—Herbert Welsh, of Philadelphia, having declined to serve as a member of the World's fair commission, Governor Pattison has appointed Colonel William Hasson, of Oil City, in his stead. William H. Barnes, of Pittsburg, was appointed a member of the same commission, vice Robert Pitcairn, also declined.

Rev. Dr. Palmer Dead.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—Rev. A. D. Palmer, D. D., a well known Baptist clergyman, died June 30, aged seventy-eight. His service in the ministry covered a period of sixty years. He was the father of A. M. Palmer, the well known New York theatrical manager.

They Signed at Last.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—After a conference, which ended after midnight, the iron manufacturers' committee of the western district signed the wage scale and the amalgamated association for the year, which begins today.

THE DEATH DRUM BEATS

Horrible Slaughter of Slaves in Darkest Africa.

TWO THOUSAND DIE AT ONE FEAST.

Men, Women and Children Slain by the Savage Wangaras—The Extinction of the Slave Trade Makes the Warfare More Merciless Even Than It Used to Be.

LONDON, July 1.—A letter just received from Sierra Leone says that the vigilant suppression of the slave trade along the coast and the consequent inability of the warlike races to dispose of their captives at a profit has caused a revival in the most horrible form of the rites of slaughter and bloodshed which formerly made every chief town of the interior a golgotha.

The Death Drum Often Heard.

Countenance, it is said, has again witnessed the killing of as many as 500 victims in one day, and the death drum is heard in the streets even more frequently than ever before the British Ashantee expedition, when it was hoped such scenes were put to an end forever. The savage Wangaras recently made a raid into Dagomba, completely devastating the villages and carrying off over 2,000 captives.

They Slew Two Thousand.

They were unable to get rid of the prisoners as a slave, and so held a sanguinary feast, which lasted for three days, in which every captive perished, not even children being spared. It is universally admitted in the settlements that the approaching extinction of the slave trade from central Africa is making warfare more merciless than it used to be.

Starvation in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 1.—Several cases of death from absolute starvation among the poorer classes have been covered up by the authorities here as being entirely attributable to disease. There is a systematic effort on the part of the authorities to misinterpret the misery that prevails owing to the high price of bread. Nearly every wage earning family keenly feels the situation, and the failure to institute much of the popularity which he earned by his advocacy of labor reform. The socialists are taking advantage of the general discontent to sow their doctrines broadcast, and expect to reap the harvest at the next election for the reichstag.

The Tin Plate Industry's Outlook.

LONDON, July 1.—The St. James' Gazette takes a gloomy view of the future of the tin plate industry in England. The Gazette says that the tin plate lookout is the most gloomy at the decline of a great British industry, and that the skilled workingmen will seek and find remunerative employment in America.

GLEASON AGAIN FIGHTING.

He Discloses Treasurer Nelson's Shoulder at Long Island City.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., July 1.—Mayor Patrick J. Gleason, of Long Island City, and Treasurer Nelson had a row last night, but the smaller man carried off the honors along with a dislocated arm, and will be able to hand down to his posterity the honor of having first wrenched the fatty chief magistrate in a muscular encounter.

The struggle was over a lot of affidavits sent in with a petition against the condemnation of the Fourth ward school building. It occurred at a meeting of the health board of Long Island city, and the mayor's opponent was Alfred H. Nelson, treasurer of the National Ice company of this city, who had appeared before the board as a citizen with the petition.

"I move you that the petition be received," exclaimed Mayor Gleason, on the presentation of these documents.

"Let me be heard for a moment on this petition," replied Nelson.

"Not a word!"

"I am a citizen and a taxpayer. I will be heard."

"We'll see about that." The big mayor jumped from his chair and ran to the door. He shouted for the janitor, who didn't come.

"I don't want any trouble," said Nelson. "Give me my papers and I will go."

"You don't get those papers again," exclaimed the mayor. Nelson grabbed for them. The mayor grabbed for him. There was a tussle. The ink bottle was overturned. The mayor escaped with the petition and affidavits. Dr. Little dressed his dislocated arm.

THE "GOVERNOR OF CONNECTICUT."

NEW HAVEN, July 1.—Governor Hill granted a requisition on the "governor of Connecticut" yesterday and Sheriff Haugh, of Plattsburg, N. Y., carried it to Morgan S. Bulkeley for approval. It asked for the arrest of Richard Abeles, of Plattsburg, who is wanted in that place for grand larceny. Abeles was found in this city at work and was taken to New York.

HARTFORD, July 1.—Morgan S. Bulkeley has been summoned to Washington as a witness in the appeal case of Gray vs. the state of Connecticut. Some of Mr. Bulkeley's friends claim that he will testify as "governor" and that this summons is a quasi-recognition of his title to that office by the United States supreme court.

Decadian Out of Politics.

BUFFALO, July 1.—Peter W. Drexilius, chairman of the Democratic county committee and assistant state dairy commissioner, resigned both positions and will hereafter be out of politics. Drexilius has been an active politician for fourteen years. George Zillig is spoken of as the new assistant dairy commissioner.

Bank Now Runs the Weather.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The transfer of the weather bureau to the agricultural department was completed today. All the property has been overlooked and transferred and 162 employes were discharged from the signal office. These men, however, will probably be reinstated by Secretary Rusk.

Yale's Big Freshman Class.

NEW HAVEN, July 1.—The incoming freshman class at Yale will number 311, an increase of 111 over last year. The total number applying for admission is 643, of which 511 have taken their final examinations.

Another Blow at Gordon Cumming.

SAYS CLUBS ARE TRUMP

Chairman Brice Believes Them a Great Power.

HIS MANIFESTO TO HIS PARTY.

Democrats Must Organize Like the Republicans. He Thinks, if They Wish to Make a Strong Fight in the Coming Campaign—Gardiner Well Pleased.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Senator Calvin S. Brice, chairman of the national Democratic committee, has written a letter of warning and advice to his fellow members of the national committee. The letter will be sent out from New York today, and the following is a summary of its contents, which embody advice in regard to the association of Democratic clubs and the necessity of the national committee co-operating with them. Senator Brice begins with the statement that the presidential contest is near at hand; that the Republicans are rapidly preparing for it, and that the Democrats cannot be too circumspect or too swift in arranging to meet them.

The plan of campaign of the Republicans, he says, is a colossal system of clubs to be maintained and supported by unlimited means drawn from the pockets of the beneficiaries of the monopoly policy.

How to Meet the Republicans.

This system, he urges, can only be met by an equally extensive system of voluntary Democratic clubs—that is, associations of the people in their several neighborhoods for the defense of their rights and interests against those who are bent on evil.

Mr. Brice says that the newly Democratic club has ever been the friend of liberty. The tendency at this time of the people of the United States to enroll themselves together in neighborhood associations of this character is one of the signs of political perils which confront them.

Clubs Will Make the Fight.

He thinks that the approaching struggle is to be one mainly between clubs, and it is greatly to be desired that a uniform and perfected system of Democratic clubs be thoroughly organized and in intimate association with each other, shall be established before the beginning of next year.

Mr. Brice says he has examined the plan of organization now in process of successful accomplishment by the National Association of Democratic clubs, and he feels it the duty of every member of the national executive committee to give the club association his most hearty support, and he urges each member of the national committee to co-operate with the association to the fullest extent.

A Necessary Work.

The work undertaken by the executive committee of the clubs is a beneficent one, say to be done, in Mr. Brice's opinion, and in his letter he states that an opportunity is now presented of having it accomplished by an efficient instrument at a minimum cost, and that distributed over so many localities as not to be a burden on any committee. Mr. Brice concludes the letter as follows:

"An important feature of the plan is the selection of correspondents in the several states. This now requires urgent attention in your state. I would therefore ask you to confer with the chairman of your state committee as soon as may be convenient and report your co-operation with the plan; also that you will accord all to your power to facilitate the organization in other ways that you may think best."

The Officers Gratified.

The national officers of the National Association of Democratic clubs are highly gratified with the recognition accorded it by Chairman Brice. He says there has occasionally been some misunderstanding between the association and various state committees. This difficulty is now established away and there is every indication of harmonious co-operation.

Secretary Gardiner Pleased.

Mr. Lawrence Gardiner, secretary of the national executive committee of clubs, is much pleased with the position taken by Mr. Brice. He has also received good news from New York. A letter received by him from the secretary of the state Democratic committee states that that association is prepared to co-operate fully with the association of clubs.

"We have always had more or less difficulty in New York," he said. "The state committee did not seem to understand the province of the association and conflicts sometimes arose. That is apply past now."

"How is the work of the clubs progressing?"

"Splendidly. There seems to be an idea that we are organizing clubs. Such is not the case. There is no necessity for the expense of organization. The people are ready and anxious to associate together and we are now aiming to provide officers for them through correspondence when we are securing in every county of the Union. There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the association very soon. It has not been decided where the meeting will be held, but it will be either in New York or Columbus, O., at the vice presidents of the state associations throughout the country are invited, and the convention will probably have a very important bearing on the plan of campaign."

They Would See the Hangman's Noose.

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 1.—Roudinot Crumpton, alias Bud Burris, was executed by the United States authorities in the Ballyard here for a murder committed in the Indian Territory in 1889. Crumpton attributed his downfall to whisky. He warned them present what they were at a glass of liquor to look in it and they would see there the hangman's noose.

OF INTEREST TO CATHOLICS.

Much Praise Given Bishops to Have Its Own Way.

BERLIN, July 1.—The full text of the second memorial presented by Herr Cahensley to the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Rampolla, has been published. If the holy see can be induced to follow out its recommendations and appoint a large number of German clergymen as bishops in the United States, the German influence on the Atlantic will be greatly increased. Here are some extracts from the memorial:

"It is proved by statistics spreaded that since 1820, Catholics left Europe for America during 1820. Of this number 278,000 went to the United States. Calculations based on these statistics go to show that Catholic immigrants and their children constitute in the United States one-fifth of the Catholic population. But the number of Catholics in that country scarcely exceeds 10,000,000. Catholicity therefore, has up to the present sustained a net loss of 10,000,000 in the American republic.

"The following are the chief causes of this, on the part of the Catholics: The want of sufficient protection for the priests during their voyage and on their arrival in America; the insufficiency of priests and parishes of their own for the Catholic nationalities in the country; the, often exuberant, exacted of the public schools; the insufficiency of societies, Catholic and national bodies of mutual aid, protection, etc., for the laboring classes; the want of direct representatives of the different nationalities of immigrants in the episcopate."

The memorial discusses at length these various causes of the diminution of Catholics, and then says:

"It is desired that concord and harmony should reign among the different nations that go to make up the church of the United States. The only way to attain this end is to give to every one of these nations bishops of their own, bishops belonging to each, who will represent their respective nation in the episcopal body, just as those nations are represented among the parochial clergy and among the faithful."

The memorial argues that the appointment of bishops for the different nations would bring them closer to the holy see, and thereby help the growth of the church.

BEN ALI SCORES A POINT.

NEW YORK, July 1.—There was one startling scene in the trial of Ameer Ben Ali, the alleged "Jack the Ripper," yesterday. The counsel for the defense scored their best point since the beginning of the case. The point was brought out by Fred B. Howe. Two convicts had been brought over from the Queens county penitentiary to testify that they had seen a knife in the possession of "Frenchy No. 1" during the time he was confined in the Jamaica (L. I.) jail.

This knife they swore was similar to the knife exhibited in court and used in the butchering of "Old Shakespeare." One of the convicts was Edward Smith. When Mr. House cross-examined him he got a bit confused. The wily lawyer took advantage of his confusion.

"Who asked you if you had seen the defendant have a knife?"

"Mr. White, the keeper, did so," Smith replied.

"Did he show you a picture of the knife in a newspaper before he spoke about his identification?"

"He did."

"Where was this defendant at that time?"

"He was in one of the rooms upstairs."

Mr. House stopped short and looked at the jury. They were eying the witness fiercely. "Let me see that room upstairs!" said Mr. House in a low but distinct voice, as he leaned over the railing and looked the witness in the eye.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Smith.

Lawyer House sat down. It was fully a minute before the people in the courtroom saw the full significance of the witness' statement. At the time the cut of the knife was printed in the papers "Frenchy" was under arrest. He was locked up in the Tombs. Smith either didn't know what he was talking about or else he lied.

LABOR MEN AT WAR.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Hugh Cavanaugh, of Cincinnati, and John Davis, of the executive council of the Knights of Labor, had a conference with Secretary Foster about the reappointment of seven plate printers recently removed by Colonel Meredith, chief of the bureau of engraving and printing. Arrangements were progressing for a settlement of all differences when a delegation representing the Federation of Labor, a rival order, called at the treasury department and objected strenuously to any concession being made to the Knights which would put their men ahead of members of the Federation already on the "chance" list of the bureau.

This new complication of the case made any further agreement impossible, and the secretary was compelled to leave the question pending until the labor organizations can settle the inside fight among themselves. T. V. Powderly, who arrived during the day, did not call on Secretary Foster.

Will Not Hold McKinley Responsible.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—A. W. Wright, of Toronto, a member of the national executive committee of the Knights of Labor, speaking of the action of the executive board at Chattanooga, said: "I think Mr. Powderly has never made overtures to anybody on the subject of politics. Our policy in Ohio this fall has not yet been determined. I think Mr. McKinley would assist us in the government printing office fight, but I see no way in which he could wield any influence, and we would certainly not hold him or Secretary Foster responsible for a state of affairs over which they have no control."

Corporal Bryant's Diagrams.

STATE CAMP, PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 1.—Sentence was pronounced last night at dress parade in the case of Corporal Alexander H. Bryant, of Company F, Thirty-second regiment, who was arrested by a corporal's guard at Annsville in an advanced state of inebriation. The sentence specifies that he is to be reduced to the ranks. He will therefore be released from arrest and return to duty with his company as a private.

Prince George at New Yorker.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Prince George of Greece arrived here last evening. He proceeded to the Brevoort house, where he will reside during his stay in the city. He was met at the Grand Central station by a large number of persons, including several members of the Russian and Greek legations.

ON THE DIAMOND.

"OLD ANSE'S" NARROW ESCAPE.

Recalled Gossip of Him Once a Man Who Once Played with Him—The Terrible Hayward—Duryea, the "Cyclone Pitcher," and How He Got Into the National League.

When the Chicago and New York teams met at the Polo grounds on Manhattan Island the other day the sun poured down with more than tropical heat, and only two or three players assembled to the heat. But the battle went on, despite catastrophes and calorie, until the deciding run had been batted in, the game was observed, night had departed, all save a few of those devotees to the game known as "crank."

They curiously watched the players leave the field, and noted with amazement that Adrian C. Anson, the iron duke of baseball, the mainstay of the Garden City club for years, lagged somewhat behind and seemed without that springiness of step and that defiant, unconquered mien which is always his after either victory or defeat.

At night the rumor spread about the hotels and sporting centers of Gotham that "Old Anse" had "come mighty near having a sunstroke," and many were the expressions of solicitude and sorrow thereat. But the effects of the terrific afternoon have now practically passed away, and the veteran still holds his own at first base or behind the bat.

"Old Anse" they call him nowadays, though he has yet to see his fortieth birthday. I can remember him—indeed, I played ball with him—when he was young Anse, ambitious, capable and freak-y, but not only with the springy vigor of youth, but with the sense of his own value as a ball tosser. He had just emerged from the obscurity of Marshalltown, Ia., to take a place in the once famous semi-professional club at Rockford, Ills., known as the Forest Citys.

It was at Rockford that he began his career as a first baseman. Al Spalding was the pitcher—the champion underhand twirler of the day. George King, now a bank cashier, stood behind the bat. Ross Barnes was the second baseman, and big hearted, bow legged, profane Bob Addy covered the shortstop's position.

Two of the fielders whom I recall were Fred Cone, now night manager of the Grand Pacific hotel at Chicago, and Adonis Sirrs, better recalled as the "terrible hayseed." Sirrs was the phenomenon of those days. He knew nothing of "headwork," but he had the strength of a giant. To please and astonish the rustics where the shoulders join the body are usually hollow. In Sirrs' case they were filled with muscle. The man could throw like a cannon, and had hands like bars covered with hide. No fly passed him, and his field record was generally errorless save in the matter of throwing. Often he uncorked the ball to the diamond it was always at lightning speed, and no one could tell whether the sphere would reach the catcher or go over the fair ground fence.

But it was at the bat that Sirrs won his name of the "terrible hayseed." He was not like Anson or Burns a sure base hitter, but when his club and the ball did meet the result was usually always a hit.

I mean now Harry Wright, the Philadelphia veteran, who then played center field for the Boston, climb a ten foot fence with Sirrs' drive and tell up a ball he expected to recover the sphere after it had collided with Sirrs' six pound bat.

Of all those old timers only Anson remains in active service. It is said that it is the custom of late years to style the man he employs "cubs." In one sense the term is applicable to Anson as he is constantly applied. I know of at least one "cub" who owns his advancement in professional baseball to the "old man's" judicious discipline. Some eight or nine years ago there rose noted as the "cyclone pitcher" of the Northwestern league. In an exhibition game at St. Paul, a few years ago, the Chicagos saw a pitcher of the kind who had things their own way.

"I want a place in the National league. You saw what I could do this afternoon. Of course I wish to succeed as a player on my own account. Besides that, any fame as a wrestler I may have is stuck on me and stock on the game. He has promised to deed me an improved farm of 240 acres if I do well during the next three years. Will you help me?"

"Yes," replied Anson.

And he did.

At present it looks as though the fight for the National league pennant lay between Chicago, Boston and New York, but the last of these three apparently has the poorest chance because of its pitching staff lack. So many of its members are crippled or on the sick list that those who retain their activity are worked nearly to death.

Providence will carry a while yet to the end of the season, and things may yet brighten up for the Giants, although matters are gloomy now. I believe Buck Ewing can hope again to be in good form. Boston, St. Louis and Baltimore remain to the fore in the Association, but Cincinnati and Brooklyn despite Kelly keeps his head and attends to business.

Some excellent records are being made by the clubs belonging to what are known as the minor leagues. In fact both baseball and the weather are now at their hottest. More emphatically than ever the game is the national pastime, and long may it hold its place. F. X. WHITE.

Joseph Jefferson's Son Married.

Joseph Warren Jefferson, youngest son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous comedian, was married the other day in New York to Miss Blanche Bender. Young Jefferson is only twenty-two years old, and has been on the stage for four years as Joseph Warren. The bride is three years younger. She is a cousin of Annie Ward Thayer, and appeared in the play of "The Highwayman," during the past season. She is unusually pretty, and has a voice which has brought her some success as a concert singer.

Madison Square Garden's Tower.

The tower on New York's Madison Square Garden will soon be completed. It will be 289 feet from the level of the observatory to the ground, and more than 400 feet from the top of the flagstaff. Owing to the fact that the Garden is located on high ground this will be the highest structure on Manhattan Island.

HARVARD'S HAMMER THROWER.

J. R. Finlay, a Colorado Boy with an Athletic Record.

One of the truly great strong men of Harvard is J. R. Finlay, who is a very clever all round athlete, but who excels particularly as a putter of the shot and a hammer thrower. Colorado Springs is Finlay's home, and he began his athletic career playing football in the booting air of Colorado. He entered Harvard in 1887, and soon attracted attention as a football player and as a thrower of heavy weights. He had not been at the university long before he could put the shot 36 feet.

J. R. FINLAY.

In 1888 he did good work at football, and became so expert an oarsman that he rowed on the Freshmen and Varsity crews in class races and against Harvard's old enemy, Yale. The following year he again rowed on the university crew and won the college sculling championship, which has since remained to his credit. Last year he played with the Varsity football eleven against Yale, and increased his distance as a shot putter to 36 feet. A little later he hurled the iron sphere 40 feet. In March, 1891, he began hammer throwing, and proved an expert that he now has to his credit a throw of 109 ft. 5 in., the best college record, and a performance that almost equals the world's record.

SHE CAN PLAY TENNIS.

Miss Mabel E. Cahill and Her Work with the Racquet.

About a year ago a bright young girl who had met and vanquished most of the female tennis players of the Emerald Isle shouldered her racquet and started to look for new worlds to conquer. Like many of her countrywomen and women, she came to America. Her name was Mabel E. Cahill, and it was not long before she was showing the natives how to play tennis and about tennis that they didn't know before. One of the first things she did was to win the challenge cup of the Orange (N. J.) Lawn Tennis club. On June 13, this year, she again captured the trophy. She is a little, active young woman, and her teeth flash and her eyes sparkle as she plays her opponents and lose them many a set. There are few women at present playing tennis who can hold their own with little Miss Cahill.

A Famous Polo Player.

The famous yachtsman and polo player, Foxhall A. Keene, is a son of the even more famous financier and turf patron, James R. Keene, whose great horse Foxhall won the FOXHALL KEENE AND WINGS.

Grand Prix at Paris, the Cambridgeshire and the Cesarewitch stakes in 1881. The famous horse was named after Foxhall Keene. Foxhall Keene is one of the most expert polo players of the Rockaway club. The game is probably the most dangerous one known. A fall from one's horse in a hot scrimmage may mean a broken neck; but Keene plays with rare daring, skill and good luck. Polo wounds rarely face to face. Finally he appears before Queen Elizabeth, suites for her and finds fame and fortune. The last scene is last at Stratford and shows his reconciliation with Anne Hathaway, whom he had neglected for another woman. An excellent scene is said to be laid in Paris, where, after a quarrel, a duel and the arrival of the watch.

A Boy Soprano.

It is said that a veritable musical prodigy has been discovered in Fort Livingston, Bryant, of Cedar Falls, Ia. His father is a lumber merchant, and has been his father for ten years. The boy's voice is singularly clear, and while he has scarcely been trained at all, he handles it with a skill that seems to promise mystery with Master Bryant. Already he has become quite a sensation a little while ago. Master Bryant will be given a thorough course of vocal culture at once.

WHEELING NEWS.

One of the promising bicyclists at Harvard is G. F. Taylor, of 1894, who can do his ten miles in a few seconds over 6 minutes.

The western wheelmen consider the Irvington-Millburn road race the grand contest of the year of that class. In America, while the western riders all say that the Pullman road race is the banner event. In view of this feeling the Pullman road race was open and gave $2,500 worth of prizes, as against the Irvington-Millburn's 57 starters and $600 worth of prizes; the western men would seem to have the best of the argument.

The Boston Herald thus at a western gentleman's popularity spelling by giving away a cemetery lot with each wheel sold, but, strange to say, the combination didn't work.

Agnita B. Rich, the New York A. C. flyer, believes that there are three men in America who will place the safety record at 2:00 for a mile before Aug. 1.

Scottish Prince.

The magnificent St. Bernard dog, Scottish Prince, recently imported to America by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Jr., is a grandson of the late J. K. Emmet's famous dog Pinkimmon. Prince is about 15 years old, and is nearly three feet tall at the shoulders. As he weighs 216 pounds he is probably the largest canine in existence. His shaggy coat is a beautiful bronze in color, with white and black shadings. He has a massive head, large, expressive eyes, and is truly a noble looking dog. He is by Prince Regent, out of Moss' Rose, and has defeated every opponent he has ever met.

His kennel companions are Aristocrat and Alicesta, and the trio are said to have cost Colonel Ruppert $12,000.

THE YACHT GLORIANA.

The New Forty-six Footer Has Proved Herself a Wonder.

When it comes to getting over the boom of the bridge deep in the water style there are few forty-six footers that can compare with E. D. Morgan's new yacht, the Gloriana. At the annual regatta of the Atlantic Yacht club near New York a short time ago she outsailed all her classmates and won the prize. She had a number of worthy opponents, including August Belmont's Nautilus and the Fly cutter Jessica, but they were all shown a clean pair of heels.

On June 18, two days later, the Gloriana again spread her snowy pinions in the annual regatta of the New York Yacht club, and ran away from every forty-six footer in the race. She again defeated the Jessica, Minesia, Nautilus and Ventura. As the Gloriana won her first victory in fair weather and her second in a rough sea, she is by no means a single weather boat.

Women in Australia.

Women appear to be making great progress in many directions in Australia, and it is not many years since a meeting was held there, the object and the social discussion which are the distinguishing characteristics of the sex that there made a field for speaker. Lady Stawell, the wife of a judge in Sydney, is the daughter of the late "Billy Dean," a convict, who in his day was celebrated, and who, long after he had become rich, was known as a man who upbraid his coachman without the latter's turning on him with, "Why, sir, I once saved your life long ago. You were reprieved only just in time."

A highly respected Australian, Mr. Healy, a memorial to whom was recently unveiled in the crypt of St. Paul's, London, was a convict's son and married a convict's daughter, and one of Sydney's leading lawyers is the son of a boy, now dead, who would cost as a Bond Street girl. The "ladies," by the way, who were shipped in the Lord Hawer, murdered the ship's doctor on the voyage. So that, taking one thing with another, considering how careful one has to be in one's talk and what blundering speeches men must be always making, it's not the prisoner women who are the worst in Australia.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Dangers of Belladonna.

Belladonna is said to have taken its name from the use formerly made of it by ladies to improve their complexions and make themselves prettier still. There is great danger attending its use for that purpose, however even than while a remedy, which is more frequently used with similar intent. A belladonna fiend is not often met with, but I have had some to treat, and the worst ill the former pleasure-loving to the terrible smell the breath acquires when the system becomes impregnated with the drug. The only remedy for belladonna poisoning, when it is only in infinitesimal doses, when it seems to have a decided effect.

As is the case with all drugs, it becomes necessary to increase the dose when the system becomes habituated to its use, and many a fiend will take more belladonna in a day than a disciple of Hahnemann would prescribe in a month. Before the horrible and horrible final result of the habit the fiend suffers untold agonies and becomes nervous to a degree bordering on insanity, while loss of appetite in the coldest weather like a man who has been running up a steep hill in August. I never met a man who was addicted to the habit, and most of the fiends are women.—Interview with a Doctor.

Good Rules for Women.

A distinguished professor of the College of Physicians and Surgeons gives the following as the law of perfect health, beauty and longevity for women: "Take a cold sponge bath every morning, eat a sparing breakfast of hot cakes, and on retiring at night drink a glass of milk if thin, or a cup of beef tea or broth if you are stout.

"Every night and morning take a warm sponge bath in water in which about a tablespoonful of salt to the basin has been dissolved. After the bath a brisk rub with a coarse towel, and exercise the muscles briskly with dumbbells or in any way you enjoy, breathing deeply and freely. Sleep nine hours at night and one in the middle of the day, and wear loose clothing."

—Yesterday in plate in America became a protected article and its manufacture a protected industry. This is the subject that has been exciting wild and angry comment in political organs for many days, but the result is not likely to seriously affect the quality of vacation weather or the watering place boarding house tariff any more than it will the price of liver and onions at home.—Ex.

"If You Didn't See It in 'The News' It Isn't So."

They get some queer starts over in Plainfield, the latest of which is the ghost of a cat. A few days ago an aged and much esteemed family cat was shot to put it out of its misery, but that cat has come back, and because it will not purr, yowl, eat fish or drink milk the family are stricken with remorse and terror, believing that they are haunted by the unjust ghost of the departed pet. This opens a prospect for a reign of terror unspeakable. What if all the cats that have met untimely ends should go into the ghost business.—New Brunswick Home News.

Made Suddenly Blind.

Wallace Ryno, son of Andrew Ryno, who lives at Willow Grove, has lost his eyesight. While playing with Richard Klassen in the fields a few days ago Klassen was switching the branches of a tree under which Ryno was standing with a small rod. Suddenly the stick broke. One end of it struck Ryno in the eye. The vitreous humor of the right eye oozed through the stinging wound, and the other eye was so badly injured that the sight is almost destroyed.

A large number of invitations have been issued by the members for this occasion and owing to the holiday a merry time is anticipated.

A Mad Dog Shot.

John Conover of this city yesterday shot a mad dog on Richmond street. The canine was a strange one in that vicinity and snapped at every object it saw. Several children who were playing near by had a narrow escape from being bitten and had it not been for the timely arrival of Mr. Conover they would in all probability have become victims of the rabid animal.

STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Thirty-eighth Annual Session at Asbury Park.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association opened at Asbury Park yesterday afternoon. It will continue for three days. Two hundred and fifty teachers were in attendance from all parts of the State.

Counsellor David Barrow, Jr., a member of the local Board of Education, made the address of welcome.

President E. H. Cook, of New Brunswick, responded for the Association. He then appointed the following committees:

On Finance—J. A. Whitlock, of Cape May; John Terhune, of Hackensack; John Sprigett, of Freehold; Richard Case, of Red Bank, and Prof. Case, of Trenton.

On Resolutions—Dr. S. A. Fayrand, of Newark; C. J. Majory, of East Orange; W. H. Bruce, of Trenton; C. E. Rose, of Plainfield, and Edgar Hoag, of Hackensack.

On Nominations—Principal J. M. Knieskern, of Asbury Park; Prof. S. V. Arrowsmith, of Keyport; W. L. Sweeney, Jersey City; E. K. Sexton, of Gloucester, and Superintendent Cooper, of Dover.

On Necrology—C. M. Davis, of Bloomfield; William Mulligan, of Woodbury; S. E. Mannens, of Camden; L. C. Woolley, of Trenton, and Miss M. L. Cottin, of Asbury Park.

At 3 o'clock Dr. L. Dennis, of Newark, read a paper on "The Effects of Tobacco on the Young."

The discussion that followed the reading of this paper was led by Dr. S. A. Fayrand, of Newark.

Miss Lillie A. Williams, of the State Normal School of Trenton, presented a paper on the "Relation of Science to the Elementary Schools." The discussion of the paper was participated in by Supt. C. Gregory, of Long Branch; Miss M. L. Cottin, of Asbury Park, and others.

The evening session was opened with a short business meeting.

W. T. Harris, the National Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C., made an address on "Education for Culture and for Business Vocations."

The afternoon session was given up almost wholly to the papers of Dr. L. Dennis, of Newark, and Miss Lillie A. Williams, of Trenton State Normal School. The topic of the former was: "The Effect of Tobacco on the Young."

He spoke especially of the now well-established facts in regard to physical culture and the total abstinence from tobacco for all who attain the highest degree of strength, endurance and skill. His statistics, showing that the tobacco users were in the majority in the lowest ranks and in the minority in the highest ranks of scholastic institutions were taken from Harvard, Princeton and Yale Universities. He referred to the decrease of the reproductive faculties caused by the use of tobacco at an early age.

The advantages of the use of tobacco, claimed by some people, Dr. Dennis classed in three groups. It quiets the nerves as a sedative. It prevents waste of muscular tissue and often sleep and relieves craving for food. "But who," said Dr. Dennis, "will claim that in any of these respects for the young." On discussion followed, as the time was consumed, and all agreed with the speaker's remarks.

ANGLO-SAXON NAMES THE BEST.

Margaret, Elizabeth, Matilda or Jane Better Than Mollie, Lizzie, Tillie or Jennie.

The habit of substituting diminutives for the real names of girls has in it nothing that is objectionable, but rather what is laudable, so long as the use of such condensation of fondness is confined within the family circle, or the medium of private correspondence. So long as loving appellative of the "Birdie" and "Lulu" and "Minn" and "Dode" found are kept only by the lips of friends, they possess a charm in their liquid softness to which no ear can fail to be susceptible, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

But when, as on the occasion of the breaking up of the public schools, such fond epithets are emptied out upon the community by the hundred and by the thousand, there is apt to be a surfeit of the sweetness. The effect on the reader who wades through the columns of lists in search of the little owner of the fair face that he knows and has an interest in, is like the effect of too copious consumption of honey. It clogs the appetite and has a tendency to cause satiety. In the midst of the multitudinous Mattie and Hattie and Nellie and Tillie and Minnie, and all of the rest of the syrupy tribe, one experiences a positive relief in coming upon a good, honest, old-fashioned Anglo-Saxon appellative like Sarah, Jane or Mary-Ann or Helen or Dorothy or Elizabeth. That was the sort of names by which our mothers and grandmothers and great-grandmothers were known—plain, home-spun names that have in them a rugged music to which the American ear has ceased to be attuned since the French novel and Ouida and Rhoda Broughton have come into possession.

Even in such copious doses as are administered at school commencements, however, the sentimental artificiality of the girls' names would be in a measure tolerable if it were to be used by girls while they are girls only, and were later, to adjust itself to the changed conditions of womanhood. But it is not so. Give but a glance at the names of the teachers published and you find hardly a Mary or Margaret or Elizabeth or Matilda or Jane Caroline among them. In their places every where almost appear Marie or Mollie, Maggie, Lizzie, Mattie or Tillie, Jennie and Carrie! In other words, the anachronism has been consummated of keeping up the designs of childhood far on into the age of womanhood. "Carrie" and "Mattie" are appropriate enough names probably for a woman to be known by in her domestic or family circle; they are about as appropriate for a woman as would be the short dress of a girl of ten on a mature spinster of forty.

Our school teachers should take warning from the experience of their sisters further North. The Boston School Board a little while ago, tired of the perpetual pet names under which the female teachers of the Hub wished to be known, adopted a resolution that no diminutive or pet name would ever be recognized by the board; and, although the school records a fair, or a storm at first, it has won its way to general favor, and no longer are the sober and sedate schoolmarms of those parts made ridiculous by styling themselves and being styled according to the language of the nursery.

BROKERS FINED A DOLLAR A RUN.

If They Twice Again go Faster Than a Walk They Will be Suspended.

Among the rules which the Floor Committee of the Stock Exchange are supposed to enforce is one forbidding members to run across the floor of the trading hall in business hours. But the rule has not been insisted upon for a very long time and it has been the custom for the brokers to run from one end from one crowd to another to execute their buying or selling orders.

The Floor Committee have evidently determined that the desuetude into which the eight-months rule had pleased shall not be innocuous. Yesterday Chairman A. G. Hodges, of the committee, sent a notice to Chairman Mitchell, of the Exchange, that the rule must be enforced, and Mr. Mitchell made an announcement to the effect from the rostrum before opening of business for the day. He was instructed to fine every member who moved across the floor at a faster gait than a walk.

But some of the members of the Exchange either forgot the warning or did not believe that the long abused rule would really be put into force, and the chairman was kept busy imposing fines of $1 each. Before the day was over no less than twenty-eight members had been fined for running. Among the earliest offenders were W. G. Dominick, partner of W. S. Dickerman, president of the Exchange; J. B. Dumont F. L. Eames of Plainfield, and both of whom are directing governors of the Exchange; Samuel Sedgwick, Brayton Ives, W. C. Niles, W. E. Travis, W. M. Patterson, C. Gatpicks, L. J. Cohn and other well known brokers.

The fine of the first offense is $1, for the second $5, and for the third the penalty is suspension.

—Mr. J. C. Allen of West Front streets today advertises something new in the line of tooth powder.

—Messrs. Marsh Bros. whose place of business has been at the corner of North avenue and Peace street since the formation of the firm will, remove to No. 21 North avenue to-morrow, to which place they will be pleased to receive their patronage. They are the superiority of their work getting a splendid trade and reputation. 3-2

THE HOUSEHOLD
ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS

When ex-Senator Joseph E. McDonald died the Democratic party lost one of its truest friends, and a lady whom Edwin Arnold pronounced the most beautiful woman he had ever seen, lost a model husband.

A live prince is he who is now visiting America—Prince George of Greece, who came to us by the Pacific route, and saved the life of the heir to the Russian throne just before he left Japan. George is 6 feet 7 inches high. If he is every inch a prince he must be a very fine fellow indeed.

L. F. Livingston, president of the Georgia Farmers' Alliance, visited Topeka, Kan., lately, and initiated the Kansas farmers into the Georgia Alliance methods. But he has views on the Union soldier pension business as follows: "I must take stronger ground against the infamous pension swindle, for I am lots of lazy, healthy bummers, able bodied, who should be at work on the farms, and would, were it not that they are supplied in idleness by a pension. They are no better than our ex-confederates, who are compelled to earn their living by manual labor, and are, therefore, a much more self respecting lot of fellows. Had our southern Alliance the power we would abrogate all pension laws. I am with fathers everywhere, and notably in Chicago, supposed to be Devoy's headquarters. The Sacco in Chicago settled the matter, and Redmond and O'Connor refused to shut their eyes any longer to the real state of affairs. When Redmond signed the denunciation of O'Kelly, and so left him in Harrison, he cried because of the plight he and his co-workers found themselves in through the mismanagement of their leader's tortured intelligence."

Mr. and Mrs. Parnell's Plans.

John O'Connor will now endeavor to negotiate with the National party in America, and will probably go to Ireland immediately to join Redmond, Parnell's closest adviser. Mr. and Mrs. Parnell will leave England about the middle of August for this country. They will remain here until the big city last year, and of these only thirty-five were of persons born in Switzerland. Arrivals at the port of New York from the little mountain rimmed republic number 8,000 a year.

The Swiss confederation will be 600 years old this year. Sept. 5, 6 and 7 will be celebrated the anniversary of the final throwing off of the Austrian yoke in 1291. It is a wonderful story, whether William Tell ever lived or not, the tale of how mountaineers who loved liberty banded together, a mere handful, and defeated the Austrian army. Mountain dwellers have ever loved liberty.

Besides being the oldest republic in the world, Switzerland is undoubtedly the best educated one. She has the best free schools of any nation. Here practically all the sons of workmen go to trade and technical school which has done so much for European industries. The Swiss are the best educated nation in existence, and this is why they make such desirable citizens in America. Americans must never forget that Louis Agassiz came to us from Switzerland.

The Monroe Doctrine in Hayti.

The New York Sun speaks the sentiments of every citizen of America in discussing the possibility of European interference in Haytian affairs, in case the negro republic shall prove unable to hold herself down. A statement was made in the Paris Siecle that European cabinets were discussing the expediency of taking such action to restore order in Hayti. That is how the European governments would probably word it, all the while that the fingers of some of them at least were itching to get a hold on the big and rich West Indian island. But the United States would certainly not permit that under any circumstances.

The Sun remarks:

It is not likely that the European governments of Hill will undertake any sort of intervention in Hayti, or interference with the domestic affairs of that island, upon any pretext whatever, without the countenance, consent and approval of the United States.

The Monroe doctrine is formulated for the information of the other hemisphere by President Monroe in 1823, covers this case and all others of its kind:

"With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered, and shall not interfere, but with the governments which have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and just principles, acknowledged, we could not view an interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition to the United States."

For several years there has been a great difference of opinion and conflict of historical evidence as to what the Monroe doctrine was. The fact is that the declaration was originally intended to be put upon the warning to holy alliance of all Europe by Great Britain and the United States that we would not allow 10,000,000 square miles of such a total area of the world to be occupied by them.

The real meaning of the Monroe doctrine as understood today in the United States, and as supported by the people, is not aggressive toward any European power, but is generally respected on the other side of the Atlantic, there is not the slightest danger of war.

It is therefore quite impossible that there should be any pronounced action on the part of the United States in the case of the proposed Hayti international affairs, with the United States would be ignored or even disregarded by individual powers, would carry its intervention or interference beyond the necessary for the protection of its own subjects or citizens.

It is the course of human events such a state of things would not arise, and it is the duty of the United States to do, and in the performance of its duty it would be sure of the support of a unified public sentiment.

PARNELL'S MEN QUARREL

Envoy O'Kelly Denounced by His Three Companions.

HIS ALLIANCE WITH JOHN DEVOY.

Harrison Has Sailed for Home with the Charges Against O'Kelly—Parnell Will Come Over and Make a Big Fight for His Leadership.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The four Parnellite delegates to this country, James O'Kelly, William Redmond, John O'Connor and Henry Harrison, had a bitter quarrel last week, and hence the sudden departure of Harrison, the young member of parliament from Tipperary, for his native land. Before he left he and Redmond and O'Connor presented to Mr. O'Kelly, and he bore away with him to Parnell a sealed packet containing their opinions of the man in whose charge they were sent to enlist sympathy here for the "uncrowned king" in Ireland.

The Cause of the Fight.

When the party arrived here several months ago Irishmen in this country were still undecided as to whether they would continue their support of Parnell. O'Kelly had been sent over by the leader of the majority with what is known as the John Devoy party. This meant the failure of the mission from the outset, but O'Kelly was stiffnecked and neither the advice of friends nor the dictatorial letters of his managers in New York and Brooklyn could force him from Devoy, who has been his life long personal friend.

Failure Met Them Everywhere.

Every time this country and the Irishmen in it better than anybody can tell me," said O'Kelly to one of his best friends, "and I'll go ahead." This was after the National League convention in Cincinnati, where it was resolved to take no action until after the convention of Irishmen in Baltimore in September. After that the party met with failure everywhere, and notably in Chicago, supposed to be Devoy's headquarters. The Sacco in Chicago settled the matter, and Redmond and O'Connor refused to shut their eyes any longer to the real state of affairs. When Redmond signed the denunciation of O'Kelly, and so left him in Harrison, he cried because of the plight he and his co-workers found themselves in through the mismanagement of their leader's tortured intelligence."

Mr. and Mrs. Parnell's Plans.

John O'Connor will now endeavor to negotiate with the National party in America, and will probably go to Ireland immediately to join Redmond, Parnell's closest adviser. Mr. and Mrs. Parnell will leave England about the middle of August for this country. They will remain here until the big city last year, and of these only thirty-five were of persons born in Switzerland. Arrivals at the port of New York from the little mountain rimmed republic number 8,000 a year.

They All Favored Parnell.

At Cincinnati the National Leaguers were all in favor of Parnell as a leader, a resolution to that effect being passed by a narrowly escaped being carried. O'Kelly attended that meeting and was apparently willing to abide by any decision that might be arrived at, but his subsequent action decided that nothing should be done till September he broke away, determined to succeed if Devoy and Dr. McCahey, of Philadelphia, who moved the Clan-na-Gael faction to champion Parnell. Their championship ruined them, and all the efforts of the party failed to secure a respectable meeting in any part of the country. In Jersey City even the election of Mayor Bulkley to the senate, but that body refused to act upon the nominations. The governor also appointed two county commissioners for each county. They are all Republicans.

IN THE WORLD OF LABOR.

Six Wendt-a Pulsters on Strike at Pittsburg—The New Scale.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—The boss painters of this city posted the new rules in their shops calling for a classification of wages and nine hours for a day's work. The union painters refused to be governed by the new rules and 600 men went out on a strike. The building trades strike is virtually at an end. The striking carpenters, from actual necessity, have been forced to surrender.

The United Mine Workers of the Fifth District held a convention here. The vote of the miners on the question of leaving the organization was announced. It was unanimously decided to stay in the union.

The Amalgamated association wage scale, as agreed upon contains the nine hour clause, which the manufacturers objected to.

Out at Norristown.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 2.—The puddlers and heaters employed in the rolling mills of James Hooven have struck on account of his refusal to sign the Amalgamated association scale.

The Pope's Refusal.

BALTIMORE, July 2.—When the dispatch from Rome stating that the pope would never concede to the demands made by Herr Cahensly for the protection of Catholic immigrants in so far as the appointment of national bishops is concerned was shown to Cardinal Gibbons he remarked that he was very glad to receive the news.

A Naval Officer Missing.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—Jefferson Brown, passed assistant engineer in the United States navy, has not been seen since June 23. The fact that Brown has a case for the disappearance is that Brown was rendered temporarily insane by an attack of the grip that he had had in New York.

Balmaceda's Candidate Elected.

COQUIMBO, June 28.—The new president of the government party has been elected. The provinces in South Chili, all under Balmaceda's control, voted on Saturday. As was a foregone conclusion Balmaceda's candidate, Vicuna, was chosen as his successor.

THE EMPEROR EN ROUTE

Welcomed at Amsterdam by the Regent Emma.

HE IS A HARD RULER TO HANDLE.

English Royalty in a Great Flutter Because the Kaiser Proposes to Come and Go on His Own and Not on Regular Schedule Time.

LONDON, July 2.—Amsterdam was the scene of great brilliancy last night and the Kaiser and his Empress, who witnessed the spectacle from the royal palace, expressed themselves as not only delightful but astonished. Dam square in front of the palace was splendidly illuminated, and the music of the military bands added to the charm of the scene. Altogether it was such a night as the old Dutch capital had not seen in many years. The meeting of the kaiser and of the regent, Queen Emma of Holland, was most cordial.

The route to the palace was crowded and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The festivities are being continued today.

A Very Independent Emperor.

All London is talking of the independence of the kaiser in refusing to be led about, according to the usual cut and dried programme. The kaiser has substantially sent word that if he is to be England's guest he must have the freedom of a guest and not have dates set down for him like a traveling actor. The arrangements for his visit on the Fourth of July, provided he does not take it into his head to run over on the third, and he will be welcomed at Sheerness by the Prince of England's fleet. He has an imperial retinue of thirty distinguished persons besides attendants, and in addition to testing the capacity of Windsor castle he invites a considerable number of his followers will be cared for at hotels.

Plans for His Reception.

The Dukes of Connaught and Edinburgh and the Duke of Clarence will meet the kaiser at Sheerness. The Prince of Wales will greet the kaiser on his arrival at Windsor. The Prince of Wales has had a long interview with the queen for the purpose of settling a number of perplexing questions of etiquette and precedence. It is said that the bothersome has been settled by the marriage of a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and that the kaiser is a hundred times more exacting and unreasonable than the Russian emperor, Nicholas, who made such trouble then.

Honoring Manipur's Heroines.

LONDON, July 2.—Mrs. F. St. Clair Grimwood, the widow of F. St. Clair Grimwood, the British resident at Manipur who lost his life during the recent massacre, had lunch with the queen by royal command yesterday. As a reward for her heroism during the Manipur affair Mrs. Grimwood was presented and decorated with the red cross. It is rumored that she is to receive the Victoria cross. Should the report prove true, she will have been the first woman upon whom this honor has been conferred.

Hartford and Hertford.

LONDON, July 2.—Minister Lincoln and Mrs. Lincoln were present yesterday at the opening of a bazar at Hertford by the duchess of Abercorn, the duchess of Hartford, Conn.; having largely contributed to the occasion. Mr. Lincoln dilated on the historic family connection between the two towns.

Ridiculed the Idea of Suicide.

LONDON, July 2.—Mrs. Henry Cox, sister of the late James McHenry, is indignant over the exhumation of her brother's body. In an interview at Liverpool she ridiculed the idea of suicide by poison.

A DUEL TO THE DEATH.

Winchester Rifle versus Pistol in an Alabama Town.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 2.—Dr. G. B. Crowe was shot and mortally wounded B. F. Glass, father of F. P. Glass, one of the proprietors of the Montgomery Advertiser, at Brierfield. The difficulty grew out of something Glass had said, and which he would not retract. Crowe went to Glass' house, and Glass told him not to enter. As Crowe advanced, and Glass fired on him with a Winchester rifle, Crowe answered with a pistol. Each man fired several shots.

The men were within fifteen feet of each other. Finally Glass fell, and Crowe walked away. One of the bullets entered Glass' abdomen. He is an old and much respected citizen. Crowe is only twenty-seven years of age.

He Laughed His Jaw Out.

NEW YORK, July 2.—William Read, a compositor lodging at 274 Bowery, was laughing at a prehistoric jest when he dislocated his jaw last evening. His smile was unset, after a painful delay of half an hour, by a physician at St. Vincent's hospital. Mr. Read's jaw is very weak, and he has had trouble with it before.

Clark Will Not Resign.

NEW HAVEN, July 2.—A director of the New York and New Haven railroad denies the report that President Clark, of that road, intended to resign and that Colonel W. H. Stevenson, of the Housatonic railroad, had been tendered the presidency.

Stonehead Not a Defaulter.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—W. H. Elton-head, lately the president of the Fidelity Storage company, denies the story that his son is a defaulter. He says the story is not wholly untrue, but to the last degree malicious.

Found Dead in the Park.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—Samson Simon, of the firm of Simon Bros. & Co., extensive cloak manufacturers of 624 Market street, was found dead in Fairmount park. His death is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

Welsh Tin Plate Workers to Resume.

LONDON, July 2.—The Welsh tin plate workers will resume work at half time on Monday next. This will reduce the production 800,000 boxes annually and prevent the registering of the American market.

His Skull Was Sawed Open.

BUFFALO, July 2.—Ernest Voight, seventeen years of age, had a head of hair cut in twain by a circular saw in the Buffalo Box factory. A gash eight inches long was cut in his skull. He will die.

Green Goods Man Caught.

TRENTON, July 2.—B. M. Devoe and Richard Roe, of Newark, N. J., were committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bail for using the United States mails for distributing green goods circulars.

IN THE POLITICAL WORLD.

The Iowa Republicans Renominate Governor Boies by Acclamation.

DES MOINES, July 2.—The Republicans have nominated the following ticket: For governor, B. G. Wheeler, of Pottawattamie; for lieutenant governor, Horace Van Houten, of Lucas; for supreme judge, S. M. Weaver; for superintendent of public instruction, O. H. Sabin; for railroad commissioner, F. C. Dawley.

The platform commends the administration of President Harrison and the last congress for the redemption of its pledges as to the revision of the tariff and for its work in behalf of liberal pensions; approves the coinage act; commends the commercial trade relations, declares that the party must be trusted to promulgate any plan of reform, Australian or otherwise, calculated to protect the purity of the ballot; commends the law to prevent contract labor; favors a liberal appropriation for the World's fair; arraigns the Democratic party for its failure to enact tariff reform in the south, while making a pretense of ballot reform in Iowa.

The past and present record of the party on the prohibition question is outlined in a long and strong plank. A. K. Hirchle, of Davenport, offered as a substitute a resolution favoring such a system of local option as will best subserve the public good, enforce prohibition and afford protection and prohibition to those communities desiring the same. The amendment was defeated by 107 to 951.

Minnesota Democrats Meet.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 2.—The State Democratic conference gathered here, with 190 leading politicians under their wings. The ostensible object of the gathering is to organize the club movement of the state and discuss campaign plans.

It is understood, however, that the conference will consider a scheme of fusion with the Alliance party on the electoral ticket in 1892. It is also hinted that the gathering will be anti-Cleveland and pro-Hill in sentiment.

Kentucky Wants Cleveland.

RICHMOND, July 2.—Governor Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky, is in the city. He is a strong Cleveland man. In an interview he said: "I want Cleveland. The masses of Kentucky are inclined in favor of free coinage of silver, but they are heartily and indefatigably for Cleveland as president. We believe that Mr. Cleveland's theory is simply a little wrong."

Plans of Maine Democrats.

BANGOR, Me., July 2.—The state Democratic committee has decided that those of the next campaign should be the tariff and the stand taken by the Republicans on prohibition.

SUICIDE AND ATTEMPTED MURDER.

A Lexander Weiss Kills Himself and Shoots a Woman.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The denouement of the mysterious disappearance of Alexander Weiss, the advertising agent of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, and Minnie Sieling, his companion, came in the morning in a furnished room house at 96 Third avenue. Weiss strangled, stabbed and shot the girl and then, locking the door, shot himself, ended his existence by putting a bullet into his brain.

The girl is still alive, but her condition is so serious that Surgeon J. B. Stone, of Bellevue hospital, where she was taken, is doubtful about her recovery.

The landlordess and Lena Trumpled and showed evidence of an awful struggle. Weiss had evidently fastened the rope around the girl's neck before she could defend herself and then tried to murder her. Jealousy caused the double crime.

The pair were lovers. They meant to die together, as farewell letters left by them plainly tell. But the tragic method of death planned by the man was too horrible for the woman. Her courage failed and she battled hard for her life.

Pennsylvania's World Fair Plans.

HARRISBURG, July 2.—Edwin H. Williams has been appointed to be commissioner of the *World's fair commission by Governor Pat*tison in place of George Burnham, of Philadelphia, who declined the appointment. Mr. Williams is a member of the commission by the election of Governor Pattison as president; Lieutenant Governor Waters, vice president; R. K. Wright, Allentown, secretary, and John S. Wurts, Philadelphia, treasurer. The style of the building to be erected was discussed, but no action was taken.

An Asbury Park Bank Closed.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 2.—The Asbury Park National bank has been closed under an order issued by Comptroller of the currency. Bank Examiner Stone found that the bank had been making bad loans and was doing an unprofitable business. The last report, May 6, showed the individual deposits to be $9,000. The bank figured conspicuously in the Simmons-Pell-Wallace failure and injunctions last March. The depositors will lose nothing.

Secretary Rusk's Appointments.

A BIG OCEAN'S INROADS.

The Pacific Forming the Colorado Desert Lake.

CAUSED BY A RECENT EARTHQUAKE

A Startling Theory Concerning the Wonderful Phenomenon in California—The Mysterious Lake Is Already of Vast Extent and Is Increasing in Size.

SAN JOSE, Cal., July 2.—The wonderful lake that has formed in the California desert is the result of an earthquake. Your correspondent has just returned from the scene of the great flood that covers many thousands of square miles of the alkali lands from three to eight feet deep. He had unusual opportunities to observe the water's ravages. Two terrific earthquake shocks shook all Southern California last Monday morning. They were first felt shortly before 3 o'clock. The motion was from southwest to northeast. Your correspondent with some Juma Indians had been hunting on the coast ranges of mountains just to the east and south of the great California.

On the night of the earthquake the party camped in a canyon midway between Salton, our nearest railroad point, and the shores of the Pacific ocean, about fifty miles distant from either.

Like a Cradle Rocking.

The earthquake was felt with fearful distinctness in the mountains. It was preceded by a blind rumbling, as of thunder, and then came a slow upheaving of the ground and a dropping back with a violent shock. A half dozen similar motions followed, each one more violent than the last, and succeeding each other so rapidly that the movement can be likened to nothing but the rocking of a cradle on an unseen floor. One of the Indian guides was made violently sick.

Water Mysteriously Appeared.

The canyon where the camp was pitched was a very dry place on Saturday evening, but at daylight, about one hour after the earthquake, water appeared everywhere on the ground as if a heavy rainfall had occurred. The water, however, had a brackish taste, showing that it could not have come from the clouds. One of the Indians after breakfast reported that some great changes had taken place in the appearance of the mountains, and pointing to the southwest there was seen a huge gorge, apparently fathomless and which, he said, was never seen there before.

All along the route toward Salton, which the party reached about midnight were indications of a violent upheaval and pools of water were seen in many places that before were known to be dry.

Water from the Pacific.

Nothing like the present flood was ever known, however, and no such quantity of water as now threatens to engulf the Salton lands could have come from the Colorado. The conclusion is inevitable, based upon the experiences in the mountains already related, that the water now steadily covering the low plain comes from the Pacific ocean through some gigantic opening in the coast range of mountains created by the earthquake of Sunday night.

Further proof of this may be found in the fact that the water now steadily encroaching on the salt plains has a seeming tidal motion from the southwest, the waves lapping directly against the southern side of the tracks of the Southern Pacific railroad.

Additional proof of the oceanic origin of this flow is found in the existence in the inland sea of a small smelt of a species found only in the waters of the Pacific.

Already a Great Sea.

There is now a prospect that the inpouring of water will not cease until the entire desert is covered. Already a vast inland lake has been formed and its area is being momentarily increased. What was formerly merely as a curiosity last Saturday has become one of the most wonderful natural phenomena recorded in modern history.

Already the extreme arms of the inland sea, which seemingly rose from the bowels of the earth, measures 104 miles. Thus far no serious damage has attended its growth, but unless its limits are soon reached considerable damage is sure to result, particularly to property of the Southern Pacific Railroad company. Another correspondent says the inland sea is 40 miles long by 12 broad, but only two or three feet in depth. The Colorado desert covers 8,000 square miles and extends about a hundred miles from the Colorado river to Seven Palms, on the Southern Pacific railroad. It is in San Diego county, the southernmost county of California.

WOMAN'S HOME

ABOUT EASTERN RUGS.

How to Clean Them and Spread Them So as to Make a Handsome Floor.

"People don't understand the care of oriental rugs," said a salesman to a large Broadway house where a party of women were looking at and discussing the relative merits of domestic and foreign floor coverings. "If it is not properly cleaned a well preserved rug, however beautiful, is not desirable."

"But I don't like the new oriental rugs and from an economical point of view they cannot be so thought of. I just delight in these lovely old bits, with their indistinguishable softness of coloring, and as I must study economy, will you please tell me how they should be cleaned?" said a woman whose love of beauty spoke in every detail of her modest and becoming attire.

"Take them out on the lawn and lay them face down; then with switches beat the dust from them, striking on the wrong side. Next sweep on the right side with long, regular strokes the way of the nap. Never sweep it the opposite way. Then go over again with a broom slightly dampened in clean water."

"Unfortunately," replied the lady, "living in a fifth story flat I have scarcely room to swing a cat, and the possessor of a lawn, Bridget has been in the habit of shaking them from the back window or from the fire escape."

"Then," said this salesman with a genius for housekeeping, "do the next best thing; if you cannot take them to a lawn or to the roof hang them on the valley from face down, and with a long switch beat and whip them as thoroughly as possible. When you bring them in have the kitchen floor thoroughly clean and sweep them well. Keep a new broom for the purpose. Shake a rug violently, letting all its weight depend from your grasp at each end, and it loosens the warp, and sooner or later weak spots become holes.

"There is everything, too, in the way you place your rugs in a room," went on this amiable mentor. "For instance, take this bit of five which you see just opposite us. Suppose you lay this Kazakeg, with its deep red and blacks against the light, and Anatolian, which looks like which colors glow almost like gems, with blue, green and gold in almost universality, in the corner of the drawing room, and this Carabagh, with its long, straight lines parallel with the lines of the room, in the opposite all in the center of the room, the table in front of the fire, and a richly carpeted floor. On the contrary, suppose you lay them in this way on your polished mahogany floor," and the shop man descended to lay down examples and obliquely, leaving little triangles of bare floor showing here and there, "the effect is

TENNIS AND YACHTING GOWNS.

Characteristic Features of This Season's Costumes for Outdoor Sports.

Shirt waists and blouses are an important feature in this season's tennis and yachting costumes, which latter are in many instances made in lighter colors than were those of last year. Homespuns, serges and flannels are the favored materials for the gowns, while the blouses and shirt waists are of washing silk, flannelette, twilled flannel or linen, as best suits the wearer's taste or purse. The fashion that permits the most popular materials are navy blue serge for the gown and white washing silk or linen for the shirt, worn under an open vest of the same.

BLOUSES FOR TENNIS AND BOATING.

The shirt waist shown in the cut is the latest thing in yachting costumes. It is made of orange twilled flannel; the front cuffs and collar are in silk striped delaine. The remaining figures in the cut give pleasing suggestions of blouses, suitable alike for tennis or boating. Two of these are made with side pockets and collars that turn over on the shoulders, while the third model is also given in this out-of-the-girdles and belts worn with tennis shirts and blouses, as well as of the variety of hats that are worn with outing costumes. The sailor hat is a popular style for yachting.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

"The News" for the Summer.

Parties leaving town for the Summer may have THE NEWS mailed to them without extra charge. The address will be changed as often as desired.

—The small boy will be in his glory to-morrow.

—The post office will close at 10 a. m., to-morrow.

—The National banks of this city will remain closed all day to-morrow.

—The Sunday evening sacred concerts at Hotel Netherwood are becoming quite popular.

—The Fourth of July is to be celebrated at Bound Brook in the old fashioned way.

—It is reported that a new weekly Democratic paper is soon to be issued at Bound Brook.

—The store of Doane & VanArsdale will be open until ten to-night and closed all day to-morrow.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association will deliver goods by wagons until nine o'clock to-night.

—In order to do honor to the occasion THE NEWS to-day issues its Fourth of July edition in red, white and blue.

—Chief Doane of the Fire Department has taken all necessary precautions to guard against fires on July 4th.

—A number of the members of the Plainfield Crescent League will indulge in a bicycle paced tournament this evening.

—The Knitting Mills will be open at the usual hour to-morrow morning. No goods will be delivered in the afternoon or evening.

—The members of Engine Company No. 2 will meet before Fourth of July during address from the Foreman to discuss matters.

—The new base ball grounds of the Plainfield Field Club are rapidly nearing completion. The grounds invite the public to inspect it.

—Thieves have been and were about the streets of the Western end of the city early on Wednesday morning.

—While drilling cars near Grant avenue Wednesday afternoon, drill engine No. 31, caused a coal car to collide with a freight car. Both cars were more or less damaged.

—The danger attending the drinking of large draughts of ice water in warm weather has been painfully illustrated the past few days by several deaths in different sections of the county.

—You should not dust your furniture with a feather duster; its like cleaning an egg cup by stirring the egg around. Use a cloth. If it is slightly oiled, so much the better for the woodwork.

—The tramp nuisance is growing, and our citizens have been so much annoyed of late by the impudence of the "fraternity," both male and female, that there is an urgent call for their arrest whenever they make their appearance.

—The State Board of Education is about to establish a system of agricultural education in the Normal, and also in the district schools of each county. Teachers will be required to pass an examination upon the above subject.

—If your hat lining colors your brow a yellowish or brownish tint, cut it out. A physician has traced raging headaches to poisonous coloring matter extracted by perspiration from the lining bands of hats absorbed through the open pores of the foreheads.

—The usual Summer contest been the deadly water-melon and the imprudent small boy has already lost his life by swallowing one of the seeds of this popular fruit. It takes more water-melon than this to disconcert the average youth.

—The New York World this morning had a pleasant cartoon and humorous article respecting Chief Carey. The picture represented him buring a saloon against the wishes of an angry saloon keeper, supposed to be Mr. Miller. The members of the combine who were in the saloon after legal hours are supposed to be behind the blind doors, in the dark—for, you know, it sin ways that are dark and tricks that are mean the Plainfield committee are peculiar.

—Evidence of the near approach of the silly season is furnished by the great increase in the number of bear, snake and other such stories on the rounds. One exchange contains stories about a hunter throwing powder in the wool of an attacking bear and a hunter shooting a flock of birds that he mistook for a flock of bullets fired by a confederate.

—In the vicinity of Bound Brook and for some miles each way, much interest is being aroused in the coming Democratic primaries. Candidates for Assembly and Freeholder are already in the field and [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] the [illegible] will be

Dr. Briggs' Defense.

Dr. Charles A. Briggs, emerging from the fiery ordeal through which he has just passed, writes in The North American Review a paper which is full of interest both to his friends and opponents. The article is entitled "The Theological Crisis."

Dr. Briggs thinks the Protestant church is at the beginning of a new reformation. The first reformation was when the Protestant church was founded at the time of Luther. Gradually religious fervor hardened into scholasticism and dogmatism, and a new reformation was needed, which came in the shape of Puritanism. The divine spirit being interpreted into words and creeds once more religious fire grew cold and the forms hardened into traditional dogma, in which the divine spirit, the Holy Comforter, whom the Christ sent when he left the world, found no lodgment. Then, called by the need of the hour, arose Wesley, Whitfield, Edwards and others, and quickened with their fiery enthusiasm the slowly dying religious spirit. Dr. Briggs believes that now the hour is ripe for sweeping out anew the cold, dry fabric of traditional dogmas and lasting in the spirit of Christ into the temples. This is to him the meaning of the present theological crisis. Theology has become incrusted with human traditional dogma.

He declares the seats of divine authority to be three, namely, the Bible, the church and the reason. The divine

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC MEETS

General H. W. Slocum Is to Be the Orator, and the Fourth of July Will Be Such a One as Buffalo Has Not Seen for Many a Day.

BUFFALO, July 3.—The city is filled with war scarred veterans of the Army of the Potomac. The twenty-second annual reunion of the society convened in the city today and the session will be continued tomorrow. Following the business meeting of the general society and the several corps societies will come excursions to Niagara, trips on the lakes and rivers, and a public meeting. Tomorrow will be the great day.

river village has been agog with excitement during the past few days owing to the recent outcome of family troubles in which a well known New York lawyer is intimately concerned. The legal gentleman in question is Ira Shafer, who has practiced successfully at the bar in the metropolis for many years. The incident in one in which Mr. Shafer is quite generally credited with having been horsewhipped by two or three ladies, one of whom is his sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Dewey.

The episode that has stirred the neighborhood here is one in which not only Mrs. Dewey and Mr. Shafer figured, but also the latter's wife and two or three of his fair daughters. They all took a hand whipped him it is said. The cause of the trouble was Shafer's refusal to pay certain large bills contracted by that woman in Poughkeepsie.

CLEVELAND VERSUS HILL.

A Breezy Incident at the Randall Club in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, July 3.—At a meeting of the Randall club last night the arrangements for the club's annual fete champetre on July 29 were completed. A motion was made by a member to invite ex-President Cleveland to be present on that occasion. An amendment was offered to include in the invitation the name of Governor Hill, of New York.

A storm of "noes" was the response, during which the club president with mock solemnity ruled the amendment out of order. When the question was called on the original motion a solitary "no" indicated the sentiment of western Pennsylvania Democrats. Invitations were then voted to Governor Campbell, of Ohio, and Governor Fleming, of West Virginia, as well as many other prominent Democrats.

Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The president has appointed the following named postmasters: Maine—C. C. White, of Orono, and N. C. Stowe, Dover. Pennsylvania—J. C. Hilbert, Lansdowne; W. A. POSTER ACCUSED BY POWDERLY.

The Knight Alleges That the Secretary Has Spoken Falsely.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—A statement relative to the controversy over the re-employment of the plate printers dropped from the rolls at the bureau of printing and engraving at Washington has been issued by General Master Workman Powderly. He says: "Up to this moment I have said a word publicly, but I feel that the statements charged to the secretary of the treasury merit some recognition and denial, since they are entirely and absolutely false. Secretary Windom, it is alleged, and he has not denied it, that the plate printers' trouble was not the subject of discussion at the meeting held at Mansfield between Senator Sherman, Major McKinley and himself.

"That matter was disposed of, I believe, at a subsequent interview, and I hold the proofs over the signatures of Major McKinley himself.

"On his return to Washington the secretary, urged the general workmen's foremen of this organization, Mr. Cavanagh, to come to Washington that the matter could be settled. The general worthy foreman complied with the request, and on June 20 Messrs. Devlin and Cavanagh called at the treasury department, saw Mr. Foster, and succeeded in an agreement to have the plate charged men to their places. In return went no further to write to one of them asking him to advise him whether he wished to be re-employed. He did better and signed the agreement entered into. In it is written in his own hand and over his own signature. We hold that letter as proof of what we say. The agreement was approved by Mr. Foster and Mr. Meredith. It was stated by Mr. Meredith that the agreement could be carried out without the displacement of any man in the department.

Mr. Powderly says that the whole matter was settled when the federation delegates, elected by Mr. Meredith, made their complaint.

"After a short interview with this committee Secretary Foster turned to Mr. Devlin, and, snatching some papers from his hand, said, 'If there is to be a fight with this organization or yours, I don't know but what I had better fight yours.' To that Mr. Devlin replied, 'If it is to be a fight I guess we can do a little of that ourselves.' Mr. Devlin then called his attention to the fact that he had concluded an agreement to settle the matter; that in that agreement no man, whether

GENERAL GRAHAM DISMISSED.

Governor Bulkley Has Relieved Him "for the Benefit of the Service."

HARTFORD, July 3.—Something of a sensation has been created in military circles by an order issued by Governor Bulkeley directing the dismissal of Brigadier General Graham, of the militia, from the military service of the state for the benefit of the service. The words "for the benefit of the service" are seldom used, and only in cases where the person whose services are being dispensed with has been guilty of some grave offense, such as dishonesty or drunkenness, hence the sensation. General Graham was relieved from the command of the militia about a year ago by Governor Bulkeley, who at that time gave him an honorable discharge. The senate reinstated him and renewed Colonel Thomas L. Watson, who was appointed by Governor Bulkeley.

The latter is again appointed to the position of brigadier general by Governor Bulkeley. This makes a direct issue between the governor and the senate as to their respective authorities.

Mrs. Morgan Stricken.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., July 3.—Mrs. George J. Morgan, of New York city, a near relative of J. Pierpont Morgan, received a paralytic stroke on the Berkshire Hills express last night while en route from New York to Lenox, where she was to have been the guest of the Frelinghuysens. She cannot live.

No American Rapid Apple.

SAULT STE MARIE, July 3.—Hoskins & Sons, of Buffalo, who have the contract for the new Canadian canal here, have been notified by the Canadian authorities that none but Canadians shall be permitted to be employed on the work. This throws out of employment over a hundred American dredgemen.

The Anarchists Warned.

LONDON, July 3.—The police authorities have warned the socialists and anarchists that if they intend any hostile manifestations upon the occasion of the visit of the emperor of Germany it may be well for them to know that the police are making elaborate preparations to check any such movements.

Mrs. Sheehan May Recover.

BUFFALO, July 3.—Mrs. Blanche Sheehan, wife of the Hon. W. F. Sheehan, was so seriously ill that physicians decided that an operation must be performed to save her life. The operation was successfully performed.

EDITOR M'KEAN SPEAKS

Why the Alleged Bardsley Confession Was Suppressed.

MERELY A SCANDALOUS ATTACK.

Reputable Persons Were Accused Upon No Better Authority Than Rumors and Hearsay—The Ledger's Editor Will Give the Statements to the Committee.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—The Public Ledger says editorially today: "As considerable interest has been manifested in a 'statement' by John Bardsley, erroneously described as a 'confession suppressed' by the Public Ledger, W. A. McKean, the editor-in-chief of this paper, has written a letter to the editor of The Inquirer. For public information we reproduce a copy of the letter in these columns, at the same time expressing the belief that the matter has been made to assume a prominence altogether out of proportion to its importance. It will be seen that no 'confession' by John Bardsley was 'suppressed' in The Ledger office, that a statement by him was received at this office; that it was promptly examined, and that the editor declined to publish it for precisely the same reasons that would have ruled it out if it had been an assault upon any respectable person, made by other men as unworthy of belief as John Bardsley and Gideon Marsh.

Not a Confession in Good Faith.

"If the statement had been a confession in good faith it would have been published or would have been so used as to promote the efforts of the Executive Committee of councils to track out all the ramifications of this Bardsley-Keystone bank villainy and to bring to the bar of the committee or the courts all the participants.

The Committee Can Have It.

"It will be seen also that if the committee should think it desirable that the editor of The Ledger should appear before it to testify he will do that on demand, and that if the committee should think it important that he shall produce the Bardsley statement he will do that and submit it with bowed head received the judgment of the court and was taken to prison soon after the sentence was imposed.

Marsh at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Gideon R. Marsh, the defaulting president of the Keystone bank of Philadelphia, has arrived here. It is thought that he will be arrested today.

TRAIN WRECKERS AT WORK.

They Used Dynamite to Blow Up the Steamboat Train.

HARTFORD, July 3.—Superintendent Davidson, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, went to Wilson's station and investigated the attempt to wreck the northbound steamboat train. The woods are said to be full of tramps and it is probable that they are the guilty parties. The escape of the train was little short of miraculous. A dynamite bomb injured the engine, but there was no wreck.

The dynamite bomb had been placed within eighteen inches of the edge of the quivers and under the east rail of the up track. The purpose was to throw the train from the track so that it would be hurled into the creek, fifteen feet below.

The culvert is about thirty feet wide. The railroad track was torn up for a considerable distance and the great granite capstone on the culvert's wall was cracked in a dozen different directions. The rock ballast was torn up badly.

Fortunately the locomotive was one of the heaviest on the road, and was not thrown over by the bomb. Any one of the ordinary passenger engines would have been upset. The passengers were unin-

The officials are unable to determine whether the motive of the wreckers was robbery or revenge. A tramp going down the track was arrested, but was subsequently released.

Attempt to Wreck a Pennsylvania Train.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 3.—Employes of the Pennsylvania railroad found large rocks on the main track west of here. The timely discovery probably averted a serious accident and loss of life. It is supposed the rocks were placed on the track to wreck a train.

Still Fighting the Clothiers.

PITTSBURG, July 3.—James Hughes, of the Garment Cutters' union, Rochester, N. Y., was in Pittsburg several days this week. The object of his visit seems to have been to get the Pittsburg clothing houses to withdraw their patronage from the Rochester clothing firms. All of the Pittsburg clothiers admit having seen Hughes.

THE WATER STILL RISING.

The Flood Is Not a New One. The Indians Frightened.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 3.—The water in the mysterious lake around Salton is still rising. It came in 200 feet in two days Monday and Tuesday, and 3,000 feet of the main track. If it continues to flow in as rapidly as it has been doing it will wash out the Southern Pacific track in three days. The depot master found was three feet deep and the shallowest fourteen inches.

The Indians are badly scared, and all the desert Indians have worked in the hills, and even those as high up as Banning are leaving for the mountains.

Years ago a similar flood came into Bermuda valley and old Cahuilla Indians that the Messiah said there would be a big flood by July 4; that all the whites will be swept away and only Indians saved. He said that Indians have worked in the hills, and would not have time to get away. All Indians are much excited, and even the most intelligent ones are going to Grayback mountain with their families today.

A special dispatch from Salton at 11 o'clock said the water was still rising, but not as rapidly as the day before. The residents of this city say that while the water is higher than ever known before the desert lake is not a new thing, and the abandoned Indian village was built on land three feet above the present flooding, but from the fact that the desert is uninhabited and no one ever ventures across it, it has not been noticed.

The Southern Pacific company sent out yesterday from Yuma an engineering party to investigate the appearance of the large body of water in the lake in the southwest of Salton. The water is now believed to come from the Colorado river.

CARRIE STOLE DIAMONDS.

She Wanted to Raise Money for Her Wedding.

PITTSBURG, July 3.—Miss Carrie Duff, the nineteen-year-old niece of Levi Bird Duff, a well known Pittsburg attorney, was arrested upon the streets of this city for stealing over $2,000 worth of diamonds from several of Pittsburg's leading jewelers within the past forty-eight hours. With her was arrested John G. Cameron, a well known young man, who is treasurer of the Metropolitan Fishing club. Investigation revealed that Miss Duff and Mr. Cameron were to be married last night. Mr. Cameron was short in his accounts and BAR HARBOR, Me., July 3.—Secretary Blaine is not so well, although he took his customary ride and a short walk. He is by no means a well man, and his bad spells last for a day or two, but there seems to be no reason why he should not be well and strong by autumn. Dr. Taylor, his physician, says he has no organic disorder and is rapidly recovering his usual health. He eats well, sleeps well and takes no medicine excepting simple remedies to regulate digestion. He has no trace of the paralytic affection from which he suffered three years ago. Mr. Blaine is despondent, and the principal benefit which his physician can render him is to encourage him. His sickness in New York was the result of overwork; combined with an attack of influenza.

Many people here believe, despite the statements of his physicians and the denials of the family, that Mr. Blaine is broken down and that he will never again engage in active life. It is evident, however, that every one that is now greatly improved since his arrival here.

Salmonella's Forces Worsted.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A dispatch from Iquique says that there has been fighting near Huasco. The following cable dispatch from the secretary of the insurgent congress, dated at Iquique, reaches Junin and Pacific cable, Paris call and speaks of a victory:

"The troops of the division (Salmonella) met the approach of our forces." Mr. Trumbull said the dispatch showed that Balmaceda could not count on the support of his soldiers, as his forces were evidently hereof those of the Congress party.

Phoebe's Friends Find Out.

CHICAGO, July 3.—There was a lively incident in the suit of Phoebe Couzins to retain the secretaryship of the board of lady managers of the World's fair in the afternoon in Judge Blodgett's court. Colonel Robert Roe, attorney for Miss Cousins, was just closing an eloquent appeal on behalf of his client when the applause of her lady friends became so offensive to Judge Blodgett that he ordered them all out of the room.

FOUR TO DIE NEXT WEEK

But the Legal Programme May Be Interfered With.

SLOCUM'S CHANCES SEEM SLIM.

He Wants to Die and His Counsel Has Given Up the Battle, but Sing Sing Officials Do Not Believe the Dynamo Will Be Worked.

New York, July 3.—In a quiet room in the south wing of Sing Sing prison six murders await the long delayed execution of the law with cheerfulness which bespeaks no great anticipation of its speedy coming. Four have been doomed to make the journey to the other world inside a week beginning with Monday next, but no effort has the date of the journey been changed that only one of them apprehends the carrying out the latest sentence.

The others have been told to hope for further time, and faith is strong within them.

Slocum Wants to Die.

James J. Slocum, the ex-baseball player, is the exception to the rule. He is the most hardened of the four, and he declares in a manner which leaves no doubt of his sincerity that if he has to be "done up" he prefers to have the "job" done quickly. He would rather have an end of things than endure the silence and self communion any longer.

Smiler Willing to Live.

Smiler, the Salvation Army man, is willing to live, and he believes that death is still a long way off. He is fat, cheerful and voluble, and sometimes breaks out into a lively song. Wood, the negro, is very emotional, and never cannot attend to all that the Rev. Father Creedon has to say to him. He says he is ready to go when the time comes.

Jaggie Said Enough to Kill.

As for Jaggie, the Jap, well it is hard to look upon him as a human being. His ignorance is appalling. His habits pass all belief.

The prison officials deride the story that he is insane. He is sane enough to kill, they say. He was an animal when first brought to the prison, and will die as the end of his days here will be.

Slocum Will Probably Go.

Since Mr. Browne assumed the warden ship of the prison the barrings rules of the new law have been more stringent to uphold. Solitary confinement and meager have been his stern command.

Even the Sisters of Charity who went to see Molineaux were denied admission until they had brought an order from the warden, and the guards have been enjoined, on pain of instant dismissal, not to breathe a word of the happenings within the condemned cells. Slocum's lawyer, George A. Hooper, had given up the battle yesterday. He was not inclined to play farther with the case in the courts and the public, and when asked if he would make any further effort to save his client he said that he would not.

Three Lawyers Will Fight.

Ambrose H. Purdy, the counsel for Smiler, declared that he was not yet ready to "lay down" on the case. He did not propose to allow the execution of Smiler next week, he said, but he refused to state what steps he should take. Lawyer R. J. Haire, counsel for Joseph Wood, is confidently awaiting word from Governor Hill telling him of a commutation of Wood's sentence. Unless it comes today Lawyer Haire will apply to one of the judges of the supreme court at Washington for a writ of error with a stay of execution.

Lawyer Roger M. Sherman, counsel for Jaggie, is out of town. It was said he had given up further efforts. Warden Browne was in Albany yesterday completing the arrangements for the executions, but his faith in their carelessness was as emphasized as that of the rest of the prison officials. Meanwhile business is brisk in the murder line, and the cells of the Tombs are filled with untried men of blood.

Killed Herself to Make Him Suffer.

BROOKLYN, July 3.—Mary Stingsteiter, a sixteen-year-old servant in the employ of Mrs. Louise R. Campbell, of 187 South Fourth street, Williamsburg, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart. She was suffering from a nervous dread, which was proved by the autopsy to have been unfounded. In a farewell letter to her father she said a man had wronged her and she would kill herself to make him suffer.

Members Want the Church Property.

PITTSBURG, July 3.—Although the Reformed Presbyterian congregations will follow their deposed pastors into the United Presbyterian fold, they do not propose to lose their church properties. The initial step in this respect is being taken by the congregation of the Rev. O. B. Milligan's church in the East End. The congregation will join the United Presbyterian church on July 12.

News from the Sea.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Steamer Victoria, from Hamburg, arrived at Quarantine this morning. She reports that on June 29 she passed the steamer Normannia, from Hamburg for New York, with her engines disabled.

Hanged Himself in His Cell.

CINCINNATI, July 3.—Samuel Sharkey, a telegraph operator thirty-eight years of age, and claiming to live in Ada, O., was arrested and placed in the Central police station. He seemed to be ill and refused to go to the hospital, and was held for safe keeping. Shortly afterward he was discovered hanging to the bars of his cell, having made a rope of his undershirt. He was cut down just in time to save his life.

Entertained by Judge Hilton.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The World's special from Saratoga Springs says that year after year Judge Hilton, of Saratoga, the colleague of the senior of opposite at his hotel. This year, however, Judge Hilton seems to have overlooked this rule of etiquette. He not only gave the best rooms in the Windsor hotel placed at the disposal of the judges as heretofore, but they were also corded all kinds of special privileges.

The Swallowed Fifty Cents.

SING SING, N. Y., July 3.—Ethel Tompkins, the seven-year-old daughter of Hall and Tompkins, was sent on an errand to a store in the village. On the way she picked a fifty cent silver piece in her mouth and swallowed it. The coin lodged in her throat, and Dr. T. J. Lane saved her from choking to death by forcing it into her stomach. The girl did not complain of any ill effects.

IN THE DAYS OF GOOD QUEEN BESS.

While the queen was at supper in the banquet hall, gentlemen and ladies were having a ball, and along with him another who had a tabletalk, which, after they had both knelt three times with the most magnificent reverence, he rose again like bells, and after kneeling again they both retired. Then came two others, one with the pot again, the other with a hallamay, a plate of bread; when they had knelt as the others had done and placed what was brought upon the table they also retired with the same ceremonies performed by the first. At last came an unmarried lady, who we were told was a countess, and along with her a married one, bearing a napkin and knife. These were first dipped in white silk, who, when she had prostrated herself three times in the most graceful manner, approached the table; rubbed the plates with bread and salt with as much awe as if the queen had been present.

When they had waited there a little while the yeomen of the guard entered, bareheaded, clothed in scarlet, with a golden rose upon their backs, bringing in at each turn a course of twenty-four dishes served in plate, some of it gilt. These dishes were received by a gentleman in the same order they were brought, and placed upon the table, while the lady taster gave to each of the guard a mouthful to eat of the particular dish he had brought for fear of any poison. During the time that this guard (which consisted of the tallest men and strongest that could be found in all England, being carefully selected for the purpose) was bringing dinner, twelve trumpets and two kettledrums made the hall ring for half an hour together. At the end of all this ceremonial a number of unmarried ladies appeared, who with particular solemnity lifted the meat off the table and conveyed it into the queen's inner and more private chamber, where after she had chosen for herself the first meat to the lo-

IMPORTANT CONSTELLATIONS.

Value of the Great Bear in Delineating the Pole Star—The Dipper.

The "Bear, or Charles' Wain," or the "Plow," the Ursa Major is popularly called, is of great value in locating the pole star, which is the star over the north pole, or the axis on which the earth revolves. The constellation is also here termed the "Dipper," and is very familiar to the eye. The two stars which form the three stars in the bear's tail, or the handle of the "plow," the others forming the body. Charles' Wain, or "Karl-Wagen," the German term for person's cart, is represented by the quadrangle forming the cart, and the other three stars are the horses.

The "Pointers" are the two end stars, and if a line is followed northward from them it will lead close to Polaris, the principal star in the same bear. This pole star is of a very great brightness, and pomp-out, almost isolated, with a pure luster. The names of the pointers are Dubhe and Merak. The star at the tail tip is Benetnash, then Mizar and Alioth. Megrez and Phad are the remaining pair. We append a rough outline of the bear for the information of those who have not yet noticed it.

The Lesser Bear is not so important as his elder brother as regards size, but he is very useful to astronomers. His resemble the Great Bear in appearance, but is smaller, and the positions of the stars are inverted. The little bear swings around the

ANOTHER CONSUMPTION CURE.

Dr. Gormain Sod's New Syrup of Trifolium Compound Advertised to Cure Consumption Absolutely.

Dr. Gormain Sod has a new remedy of wonderful power for the cure of coughs, colds and lung affections, according to The Lancet he made his remedy up for two, three or more hours daily in an ordinary tin pan, and then bottled it into small bottles. It is slowly administered a current of compressed air, which, having passed through a mixture of ammonia and concentrated lye, is saturated with the vapor of chemical ether. Although but two cases of phthisis have been submitted to this treatment, all of which were, with one exception, had reached the third stage of softening, and both had been declared in the sputa. The results obtained were rather remarkable, even in advanced cases, gain of weight and strength, full of new, healthy blood in a week or two, disappearance of hemoptysis, diminution of cough and expectoration, and cessation of dyspnea. It is claimed that the most obstinate cases of the malady to a purely local nature, all the general symptoms of the disappearing. If the treatment of the history of seven of his cases, all of which were relieved and some actually cured. The treatment has been efficacious in fatid bronchitis.

The Pursuit of Beauty.

"Proper breathing is the first art to cultivate in the pursuit of beauty." Thus affirms Dr. Lorine F. Hyrson, in an address to working girls, in which she states that the difference in appearance between one woman and another is more than anything else an affair of style. The chest must be enlarged by full, deep breathing, and not by muscular action from without. Inflate the lungs upward and outward, as if the inflation were about to lift the body off the ground. Hold the shoulders on a line with the hips, and stand so that the hips, chin, chest and toes come upon one line, the feet being turned out at an angle of 45 deg. It is wrong to make the general hygiene of the skin, while the second—a good expression—is best secured by the constant perfusion of tepid water through, over lower ones.

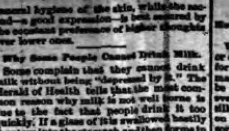
Why Some People Cannot Drink Milk.

Some complain that they cannot drink milk without being "nauseated by it." The Herald of Health tells that the most common reason why milk is not well borne is due to the fact that people drink it too quickly. If a glass of it is swallowed hastily it enters into the stomach and then forms in one solid, curdled mass, difficult of digestion. If, on the other hand, a little is taken at a time, and three minutes at least are occupied in drinking it, the curd is in the form of small flakes, by the gastric juice, while digestion is going on, instead of being in one large, solid mass, upon which the gastric juice can act but slowly. The milk in this case, it is seen in the form of a sponge, and in and out of the entire bulk the gastric juice can pass freely and perform its functions.



WEDDING RECEPTIONS.

As a large wedding reception the part played by the ushers is an important one. There should be several of them, and their duties are thus enumerated by The Art Interchange: "They stand at the door of entrance and conduct each person who arrives to the bridal party, mentioning the name as they do so. No guest goes up alone. This is more ceremonious, and is a relief to timid or retiring guests, who would have difficulty in making their way through the crowd alone. As soon as the person is presented, the usher returns to the door to other guests. Several ushers can be kept very busy in this way on large white favors they wear. As they are generally intimate friends of the bridegroom, they are given a seat at the bridal table as supper. The bridal party takes

DECORATIVE NOTES.

How to Make Charming Frames for Etchings and Other Useful Hints.

With China silk in pale pink, blue, cream or other delicate tint, a very pretty frame for pencil engravings or etchings can be made. The foundation of the frame may be flat, thin wood or heavy pasteboard, over which the silk is stretched. Cut the silk two inches larger each way than the size of the frame, but make a full puff in each world where the strips join.

An extremely attractive mantelcloth has a decoration of violets embroidered in the natural color and looking as if they had been scattered carelessly over the white cloth.

Large cushions are well filled, and an unused bed pillow of medium size can be converted into a handsome sofa cushion by making for it a cover of patchwork, elaborately worked over in fancy stitches. A favorite fashion is to throw a large square or length of any kind of silk, satin, brocade, sheets and plain cashmere. These squares make pretty presents for ladies. They are edged with lace and intended to throw over the shelf when using it bed.

One of the best of sponge bags is of butcher's linen, embroidered in linen floss or washing silk. It is fitted with a drawing-string and gathered up on a deep string.

Doilers are much used in shampooing on white linen and give a very appearance, when the ends are dressed out with a small, ornamental, unpleasant look, and it is a relief to turn to tasteful doilers, etc., worked with a simple outline pattern in one color only. In this case the design may be allowed to extend almost over the cloth. One of the easiest and best forms of outlining consists simply of backstitch. This is an old stitch revived, but few equal it in delicacy and effectiveness.

A Simple but Pretty Curtain.

The body of this curtain is of blue denim, the lighter side being used. The band is worked in outline on Bolton sheeting or unbleached muslin, with tinsel or blue Saxony thread, which has very much the effect of rope silk. The ribbon in the band should be rather a heavy one with a corded edge to prevent the stitches showing where it is sewed on. It should be sewed on, just gathering where needed to follow the design. The flowers may then be worked in in outline, putting the ribbon where it lies under the flowers.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," MONDAY, JULY 6, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

INJURED SATURDAY.

TWO MEN HURT BY THE PREMATURE DISCHARGE OF A CANNON.

For several years past the members of Engine Company No. 3, have been in possession of an old one-horned cannon. It has always been their custom to shoot it off on the morning and afternoon of the Fourth of July. Saturday was no exception to the rule.

During the afternoon while they were engaged shooting off the cannon in front of Alert Hose Company's house a serious accident occurred. Patrick McCourt, an employe of the Scott Printing Press Works, and Howard Wilson, Jr., a resident of West Fourth street, were among the most jubilant of the crowd present. The cannon had just been discharged. Harry Hartpence was acting in the capacity of vent protector and placed his thumb over the vent. McCourt and Wilson began the work of reloading for another discharge. At an unfortunate moment young Hartpence raised his thumb from the vent and a loud report was heard. At the same time two men ran bleeding into the house of Alert Hose Company.

It proved to be McCourt and Wilson and their hands were badly lacerated and burned.

The rumrod, which they were using at the time, struck a little girl named Feller on the arm, painfully injuring her. It also struck Mr. Frederick Dunn, of the firm of Barkalew & Dunn, on the leg, and then struck the telephone pole at the corner of Madison avenue and Front street and there it lodged.

Dr. Boone attended Miss Feller and then in company with Dr. Tomlinson attended to Messrs. McCourt and Wilson. Both men were suffering terribly. They were later conveyed to the Muhlenberg Hospital.

The attending physicians yesterday amputated two fingers on Mr. Wilson's left hand. They have not as yet amputated any of Mr. McCourt's fingers, but think it will be necessary to amputate the index finger and thumb on the left hand.

OTHER ACCIDENTS.

A boy, whose name we are unable to ascertain, shot himself in the hand with a bullet Saturday morning, while shooting a pistol off in the vicinity of the depot.

A young son of Mr. Hiram Voorhees of Duer street, North Plainfield, accidently shot himself in the right hand with a bullet from a revolver while he was discharging the weapon yesterday.

Maurice, twelve years old, son of Mr. J. B. Dumont, of Seventh street, ex-President of Common Council, and one of the governors of the New York Stock Exchange, was badly injured by the explosion of a cannon firecracker on Saturday night. Supposing that the fuse had gone out the boy picked it up and held it within a foot of his face. The enormous cracker, which held a pound of powder, exploded. It tore the boy's face frightfully and burned him badly. It is feared the boy will lose his eyesight, though he will get well.

LATER.

Dr. Endicott, the attending physician, informed us this afternoon that he thinks he will be able to save Master Dumont's eyes, although the boy has not as yet been able to open them.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Injured.

A runaway accident Saturday afternoon resulted in serious injury to Mr. and Mrs. George M. Fletcher, (nee Miss Ida Laing) of the city, at 797 Hancock street, Brooklyn. They were staying at the West End Hotel, in Asbury Park. They drove to Long Branch with Miss Laing of Plainfield, and Mr. Whykware, who also were guests of the West End Hotel.

Near the great iron pier the team became frightened at some fire-works. The horses ran on the sidewalk and the carriage was overturned. The four occupants were hurled out. Mrs. Fletcher had two ribs broken and his head cut. His wife received a bad cut on the head. Miss Laing and Mr. Whykware were cut and bruised. All were taken to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital.

LATER.

In answer to telephones from members of the family in this city, the following bulletin was received at two o'clock this afternoon:

Monmouth Memorial Hospital, Long Branch, July 6:

Mr. Fletcher fractured ribs, Mrs. Fletcher injured shoulder, Miss Laing not doing well. E. G. Parrot, Matron.

Heard Their Knives Clashing.

Thomas Beatty, of 600 Grand street, New York has been hiding in the woods in the southern outskirts of this city for the past few days. Every time any one has seen him he has cried out that people were after him with guns.

Capt. George W. Grant found him out, going through the tall grass in a field of Sherman and Grant avenues Friday. He explained that a gang of men were seeking his blood and that he could hear their knives clashing in the air. He was taken to the police station. His friends will be informed of his condition.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

A STORMY SESSION HELD FRIDAY EVENING.

But Little Business Transacted.—A War of Words on the Crushed Stone Question.—Mr. Wilson Will Hereafter Furnish the Stone for Macadamizing.—Other Business.

The Borough Council met in regular session Friday evening at eight o'clock. Mayor Place and Councilmen Buckle, Hegeman, Hummer and Sebring responded to roll call. Councilman Needham was absent.

The minutes of the two previous meetings were read and approved.

Mr. I. A. Smalley, in a communication agreed to furnish the borough with crushed stone at 98 cents per ton. The communication was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The monthly statement of Borough Magistrate Crossley was read. It showed that he had collected fines amounting to $21 during the month. The document was ordered filed.

The following claims were presented, referred to the proper committee and subsequently ordered paid:

Jasper H. Wilson	$75 00
Alert Hose Company	75 00
Thos. Hardgrove	40 20
W. L. Force & Bro	15 75
A. L. Smalley	497 31
The Edison Electric Light Co	330 00
Plainfield Gas Company	13 28
Job Coddington	4 25
Woolston & Buckle	75 00
P. Sender	7 00
F. Kellegher	7 25
T. Lindsey	15 30

Mr. Buckle from the Street Committee reported that the committee had had Willow avenue repaired, began the work of macadamizing Greenbrook road and also Somerset street. The report was ordered filed. Mr. Buckle offered a resolution to the effect that as Mr. A. I. Smalley had refused to furnish crushed stone according to his bid, the resolution accepting his bid be reconsidered and rescinded.

In support of his resolution Mr. Buckle said that the Street Committee had designated Messrs. Moore and Weiss to cart the stone from the crusher, and that Mr. Smalley had refused to furnish to them.

Mr. Sebring said there was a misunderstanding. Mr. Smalley thought that when the Council accepted his bid it was with the understanding that he should cart the stone. He accordingly engaged teams and men to cart it. It will look unbusinesslike if we now make a change."

Mr. Buckle said that "Mr. Smalley was not instructed by the Street Committee to engage teams, and that the Council has a right to engage Messrs. Moore and Weiss to cart the stone." Continuing he said "Mr. A. I. Smalley told me that he would not let Moore cart any stone from his crusher. It seemed to me as though Mr. Smalley took a great deal on his shoulders. He did not treat the committee right from the start. He placed us in an embarrassing position, and I do not think he is entitled to anymore consideration from this Council."

Mr. Hummer thought that whenever Mr. Smalley got his ideas in he became considerable responsibility. The Committee tried to reason with him without avail. We then purchased stone from Mr. Wilson and he has been furnishing us with it ever since.

Mr. Buckle said he did not consider the resolution binding, that if the Committee could purchase stone cheaper some where else, it was their privilege to do so.

Mr. Hegeman—"I don't see why there should be any controversy. When Smalley Bros. purchased the crusher they held out inducements to us and promised to furnish stone as cheap if not cheaper than heretofore. The prices are now higher than ever before. Last year it was 75 cents per ton for the stone with ten cents for weighing. When the Street Committee gave authority to some one else to cart the stone Mr. Smalley should not have brought in a personal grudge and refuse to deliver it to the men the Committee employed. I consider such an action of his part as a remarkable piece of impertinence. He expects us to go back on our duty and pay him whatever price he see's fit to charge. I think Mr. Buckle's resolution is only an act of justice.

The resolution was then adopted.

Mr. Buckle offered a resolution to the effect that the Committee on Streets be instructed to purchase the crushed stone to be used in macadamizing of Grandview avenue and Somerset street from Mr. Jasper H. Wilson.

Mr. Sebring thought it would be no more than right for the Committee to consider a lower bid.

Mr. Buckle replied that the committee had been localled. "If it is a question of money," he said "I would rather pay all the difference out of my own pocket than to have Mr. Smalley furnish us with stone after the way he has treated us."

Mr. Hegeman—"His action in this matter simply shows how far he would go in order to get the best of Council. I do not believe his bid was made with any honest intention. It was put in for a purpose and it should not be considered."

Mr. Sebring replied that Mr. Wilson had reduced his bid.

Mr. Hummer—"Mr. Smalley had an opportunity to furnish us with stone but refused to do it, and I don't think Council has any right to consider his bid."

Mr. Buckle's resolution was then adopted.

On motion of Mr. Hegeman Louis Sprague was appointed a special marshal.

On motion of Mr. Buckle the Western avenue extension was accepted by the Street Committee as a street.

A resolution authorizing the Street Committee to borrow $200 was adopted.

Mr. Buckle moved that the map and petition of Mr. Charles Hyde in reference to the Westervelt avenue extension be filed. It was so ordered.

Mr. Sebring said he did not approve of going to too much expense for fire protection on the Fourth of July. He said the foreman of the engine company had been consulted and made all arrangements without consulting the rest all and he wished to be recorded as being opposed to it.

Mr. Hegeman thought it was a late day to bring the matter up. He thought it should have been brought up before.

On motion of Mr. Hegeman Foreman Fairchild was given the privilege of the floor and explained that Council had passed a resolution authorizing him to make the necessary arrangements and that Councilman Smalley had instructed him to go ahead.

The meeting then adjourned.

Bitten by a Dog.

Saturday morning Mr. Alfred Everitt of Park avenue, while delivering meat on East Second street was bitten on the right leg by a dog. Dr. Davis cauterized the wound.

BASE BALL.

ONE GAME LOST AND THE OTHER WON.

A Poor Exhibition in the Morning.—Bonner Knocked Out.—The Afternoon Game Interesting.—Other Particulars.

The Crescents played two games of base ball on the Fourth of July. They lost the morning game by a score of 16 to 6 and won the afternoon game by a score of 13 to 6.

The morning game was not at all interesting. It took nearly two hours and a-half to finish it and before it was over a large number of spectators left the grand stand in disgust.

Holly and Cory, the new men, played, but their work did not come up to the expectations of their friends. They pitched a very good game. In the third inning Bonner, the catcher, had both thumbs dislocated by a foul tip. He then stopped playing and Jones took his place. In the sixth inning Bonner again took his position behind the bat and although he was suffering intense pain from the accident he met with, he caught an errorless game.

In the second inning the Crescents made a very pretty double play. Corey stopped a hot grounder, threw it to Lufberry and Lufberry then threw it to McIndoe on first base, thus retiring two men.

The score by inning was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Flushings	3	0	2	3	2	1	1	2	0	—16
Crescents	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	—6

THE AFTERNOON GAME.

In the afternoon the Flushings again crossed bats with the Crescents. There was a large crowd present and the exhibition was one of the best that has been witnessed on the Plainfield grounds for some time past.

"Charley" Hammill was put in the pitcher's box and he pitched a very fine game. Jones caught him to perfection.

The result was far different than in the morning, the Crescents succeeding in defeating the visitor by a score of 13 to 6.

The Roselle base ball team played a game with the Bicycle Club nine on the grounds of the latter on Park avenue Saturday afternoon and succeeded in defeating them by a score of 6 to 1.

Mr. Samuel Milliken has returned to his home on Central avenue from a pleasant stay at Atlantic City.

Messrs. A. G. Slevin of Franklin place and Duncan Morgan of East Front street spent the Fourth of July and Sunday at Point Pleasant, N. J.

Richard Poillon, the well-known ship and yacht builder, died on Saturday afternoon of heart failure at his residence, No. 98 East Thirty-Eighth street. Mr. Poillon was 74 years and four month year, but up to the beginning of May he had enjoyed rugged health. He was then attacked with la grippe and pneumonia followed, but his life was not despaired of until late Friday afternoon, when his heart was attacked. Richard Poillon came of an old French Huguenot family that has been engaged in ship building at the foot of Bridge street for over one hundred years. He himself had been a member of the firm since 1840. He was a trustee of the West Presbyterian church, a member of the Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, a director of the Brooklyn and New York Ferry Company, a member of the Huguenot Society and a member of the Board of Education. But as the builder of fast and successful yachts Mr. Poillon will be the most widely remembered. During the civil war he built several gunboats for the government, and in 1872 he furnished the machinery and engines with the first cruisers they had ever had built in foreign ship yards. In 1884 he turned his attention to yacht building, and constructed the schooner Sappho on lines which were entirely novel and original with him. The Sappho was sent to England and won several sensational victories, which established the name of Mr. Poillon as an expert ship builder in two hemispheres. From that day until the construction of the Corsair for Mr. Bush, the Brooklyn millionaire, a great majority of the most successful American yachts were constructed in the Poillon yards. The victory of the Corsair over the Dauntless in the transatlantic yacht race is well within the memory of all. Mr. Poillon leaves a widow and a large family. They are Richard H. Poillon, James O. Poillon, who will carry on the ship building business; Mrs. E. C. Farnum, of Plainfield; Mrs. J. S. S. Chilcott, of Jersey City, Charles O. Lyon and Miss M. A. Poillon.

Was the Horse Stolen?

A man named Judge, who claimed to hail from Two Bridges, complained to the police early Saturday morning that some one had stolen his horse and wagon which he had left standing on East Second street. The man was, apparently, under the influence of liquor and the police discredited his story.

FREEHOLDERS MEET.

The Publishers Charge Legal Rates for the County Collector's Report.

The county legislators have had occasion to meet so often during the past few weeks, that on the regular session occasion came around Thursday afternoon they had little to do beyond the consideration of a batch of bills and some routine transactions.

The committees reported. The committee appointed on the matter of the bridge on Prospect avenue, Plainfield, to cross the water way was too small, and recommended that a new iron bridge be constructed at a cost not to exceed $6,000. The recommendation was adopted.

The committee on the petition for a bridge at Jones' crossing in Cranford, reported a bridge river, stated that a bridge would open a large and desirable territory, and give a great benefit. They recommend that a low truss iron bridge be built at a cost not to exceed $6,000. The resolution was adopted.

On each desk a neatly bound volume of the laws of 1891 was placed by Collector Wood, and Mr. Jones offered a resolution of thanks to Mr. Wood. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Vanderbeek offered a resolution authorizing the Plainfield bridge committee to rebuild the present bridge over the Park avenue and Broadway bridges, at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each. The resolution was adopted.

Among the bills read were those sent in by the persons publishing the county collector's report, each for $185.10. The former Boards paid $100 to each paper. This year the law was passed by the Democratic legislature authorizes the papers publishing the laws to print the collector's report, and fixes the compensation at legal rates. The auditing committee refused to pass on the bills and the Board referred them to the legal committee and county attorney.

It is very probable the claims will have to be paid. Judge Magie, in Somerset county, decided that legal rates could be charged. The publishers will, however, be oblized to wait until the August meeting before the claims can be approved.

IT WAS ACCIDENT, NOT MURDER.

Brakeman Vreeland's Death to His Own Carelessness Probably.

The body of Garret G. Vreeland, who was found lying near the Pennsylvania Railroad station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at two o'clock Saturday morning, was taken to the home of his parents in this city last night. The funeral will occur from the residence of the deceased, No. 103 Monticello avenue, Jersey City, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Vreeland was a brakeman in the employ of the Central Railroad Company, and was one of the crew of the "Owl" passenger train due in this city from Philadelphia for New York at mid-night on Friday. Conductor McGee was in charge of the train. Every one on the train, the last on which there were no passengers, Conductor McGee says, saw and spoke to Vreeland in this car just before the train reached Trenton Junction. He was in the best of spirits and talked pleasantly with the conductor.

When the train reached Bound Brook, which is only a few miles east of Trenton Junction, Conductor McGee was handed a dispatch by the station-master. It was from the station-master at Trenton Junction informing him that Brakeman Vreeland had been found dead at that station.

Conductor McGee was dumbfounded. He had not missed the brakeman and thought there must be some mistake. He went through his train, but Vreeland could not be found. He then concluded that Vreeland must have fallen from the train just before it was brought to a stop at Trenton Junction.

There was a report that Brakeman Vreeland had been thrown from the train by a group of roughs with whom he had a quarrel. Conductor McGee says there is no truth in the report. He says there was no trouble on the train, and that Vreeland had had no quarrel with any of the passengers. He thinks that the brakeman had taken a short nap in the empty car and getting up in a hurry to get off the train at Trenton Junction rushed out on the platform and missing his footing fell off the car.

Vreeland was twenty-eight years old and had been in the employ of the Railroad Company for several years. The railroad officials say he was a careful man. He leaves a wife a three children.

A Policeman Injured.

The members of Engine Company No. 3 gave a picnic in Eureka Grove Friday evening. Although there were no incidents to disturb the peace on the grounds there were several persons very drunk. Special Policeman Kinney was doing duty there and about half-past twelve o'clock a gang of roughs, without any provocation whatever, jumped on him and beat him in a most unmanly way. He fought them off as best he could but there were too many of them for one officer to do and consequently they succeeded in getting the best of him. He escaped without any serious injury, however.

Several Small Fires.

A house and carriage place belonging to Mrs. William Connect was discovered to be afire at about one o'clock Saturday morning. The fire was extinguished in the roof before the flames were extinguished. No alarm was sounded.

The old barn on East Fifth street and the other on East Sixth street, were set afire by fireworks. The flames were extinguished before much damage resulted.

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

On his return from a westward journey Jay Gould remarked that he had never seen so promising an outlook for crops as on this trip.

The colored postoffice clerk who robbed the mails to get money to squander on "4-11-44" has given proof that he is capable of receiving the white man's highest civilization. If he had been let alone in his career that black man would have been a bank president before he died.

Nothing can be more useful in this country than the government agricultural stations, if the professors are appointed to places therein for real ability and not through political favoritism. The leading industry of the Union has been since its foundation the agricultural one, and in the last few years farmers have suffered enough to make them entitled to all the helpful knowledge they can get in their occupation. The experiment stations have a wide and worthy field in the finding of improved methods of planting and sowing, the increasing of the crop yield, etc. But when an agricultural professor sends out a bulletin containing a gross mistake in a horse's anatomy, and evidently makes the mistake through his eagerness to lug in a Greek word, it is time to make the agricultural professors pass the civil service examination. Again, when bulletins from the stations are sent out, containing what pretends to be an analysis of commercial fertilizers, and, in point of fact, contain only the advertisement of a company having a fertilizer for sale, the bulletin itself having been cooked up by the advertising company, it is time—well, it is time for the United States government to make an investigation, that's all." The agricultural stations are too important to be used either foolishly or fraudulently.

Scarce Farm Help.

The state board of agriculture in Massachusetts has performed a good service for that commonwealth in finding out and making public the truth about the supply of farm help. Agriculture has been coming up rapidly in Massachusetts lately on account of the change from general and grain farming to vegetable gardening and dairying. There would, therefore, naturally be increased demand for farm help.

The agricultural board issued a circular of inquiry to the counties and to various townships in Massachusetts. Sixty answers were received. It is notable that at the points whence the answers came good help was scarce and hard to get in all but seven instances. The tale of these cases is mentioned that farmers tried to get along with as little hired help as possible, and no answer was given to the query whether help was plentiful or otherwise. At West Tisbury labor was abundant, it is true, but it was because the Portuguese had invaded the sacred Yankee soil and filled the places which no longer knew the native born American farm hand. At Harvard it was reported that good help became harder to get every year. Emphasis was in the majority of instances laid on the words "first class," showing that here as elsewhere skill counts.

At Winchester "regiments of poor, ignorant and old men applied for work, not one in a hundred of whom could drive a horse." Still, even in such case a man who was determined to learn could get quickly the information necessary to make a successful farm hand.

A School of Journalism.

There can be no such thing. It is absurd to talk of it. The idea of a number of venerable fossils sitting upon their cushioned, cloistered chairs and teaching youth how to become journalists is enough to upset the dignity of any practical newspaper man.

The fact is journalism changes so much that even those who are in the swim all the time have hard work to keep up with it. If Horace Greeley himself were to come back to earth today he would have to learn the news paper business all over again, so much has it veered about even since his day. How much more depends on the business management of a paper that was the case then. The news in nearly all the papers is much the same. The telegraph has almost killed the correspondent, the editorial brain averages so nearly the same man for man, and competition has come so close to the cutthroat point in journalism, that the business manager of the paper is even more important than the fine editorial writer in insuring its success. The cranky individual who lets his ideas harden and his methods get into a rut is left behind in journalism by the time he is fifty years old, so fast does this one particular profession change. It is true that a journalist of seventy may keep young and frequently does, but unless he does he cannot run a paper today.

If college professors will train boys to write good grammar, and to put their meaning in the fewest, shortest words that will fully express the idea, the teachers will do all that can be done toward making the style of the coming journalist.

THE DEATH CHAIR WAITS

Sing Sing's Four Murderers to Die This Week.

THE DREAD TIME IS STILL SECRET.

James Slocum, Joseph Wood and Harris A. Smiler Are Anxious to Have the Horrible Suspense Ended—Jugiro the Japanese Is Not Resigned to His Fate.

SING SING, N. Y., July 6.—With the striking of the hour of 12 midnight began the week in which, according to the law of the state, Horace A. Smiler, James J. Slocum, Joseph Wood and Shibiok Jugiro are to die by electricity at Sing Sing prison. The only man who knows the day and the hour when the men will be taken to the death chair is Warden Brown. He has not given the slightest inkling of his intentions, nor has he even whispered who the first victim will be; but it is believed that one or more of the condemned men will die today.

The arrangements for the state killing are complete. Everything is ready. The big engine at the north end of the prison yard was in motion last night. The white of its fly wheel could be distinctly seen on the railroad track just outside the high wall. Puffs of steam were coming from the exhaust pipe with spiteful regularity.

In Perfect Working Order.

Electrician E. F. Davis made a final inspection of the dynamos and all the connections to the switchboard in the morning. He found everything in perfect working order. It needs but the touch of a lever to transfer the electric force to the chair in which the men are to die.

Guards were ordered on duty on the highway in front of the prison at noon. They marched up and down, and strangers were not allowed to pass them. Just below the south wall of the prison are three limekilns. A track leads from the high ground out upon the tops of the kilns. From this track the south yard of the prison and the buildings in which the tragedies are to be enacted can be plainly seen.

The Witnesses to Be Present.

Quite a number of Sing Sing people expected to go out on this track at midnight and gaze at the bleak walls, but even that privilege has been cut off. The road has been closed by a fence. Some boys had expected to climb the nearby telegraph poles, but that will not be permitted. The state is going to kill its condemned prisoners very privately.

The law says that twenty-seven persons can be admitted. Twenty-seven will in all probability be present. The number will be made up by the sheriff of New York or his representative, the district attorney of New York or his representative, the spiritual advisers of the unfortunate men, the medical experts, the post-mortem examiner, the physician of the prison and the guards selected by him.

The death chamber is a wooden structure 25 feet long and 14 feet wide, with a slightly sloping roof. The sides and walls are formed of common pine lumber 15 feet high, and the rear wall of the cell houses serves as the fourth wall. The room is divided into two rooms, one of which is the death chamber proper, the other the autopsy room. They are each about 18 by 14 feet. The one at the south is the death chamber, and from the south end of this room next to the warden's part of the prison wing a door opens into a long covered walk leading from the warden's residence into the chamber.

Through this walk will pass the twenty-seven men who are to witness the killing. It has been covered in order to prevent the convicts, who are at work in the fields overlooking the courtyard, from seeing any signs of the killing.

The Death Chair.

In the last of the rooms farthest from the door leading into the covered passageway are the death chair and the apparatus connected with it. The chair in every respect similar to the one in which Kemmler suffered such awful agony. It resembles nothing so much as one of the massive oaken dining chairs of early English days. The back is high and stiff. The arms extend straight out at right angles with the back from the top of the head piece, and a figure four of wood will slide up and down on its stem in the center of the topmost crosspiece in the back of the chair.

On the lower or horizontal piece of this figure 4 is a cup with a sponge in it. This is the positive electrode, and from it up through the remaining part of the figure 4 a hook above the chair curls a snake like piece of wire. This hook resembles the neck of a shower bath, and it curls around the head, then forward, then downward, until it disappears behind a closet door in the corner of the room.

The Executioner's Closet.

This closet is about six feet square and contains the switchboard, the various instruments used to measure the force of the electric current and the fatal switch, by which the executioner will also contain the executioner, who will enter through a door in the rear of the closet and remain concealed from view. The dynamo from which the fatal current will be derived is located in the north end of the prison, at least a quarter of a mile from the execution chamber.

The current will be conveyed through big copper wires over the house tops. The dynamo is similar in every respect to the one used in the Kemmler, but Warden Brown says it will be handled more skillfully than the other was. The wires have all been connected and tested. Nothing now remains to be done but to seat the victim in the chair, go through the terribly agonizing process of strapping him and turn the switch.

If All Works Well.

In the executions at Sing Sing it is the intention of the state's experts to apply the electric current in a manner different from that followed in the killing of Kemmler. At the Auburn execution death was produced by causing the current to pass through the body from the head to the base of the spine.

The positive electrode, consisting of a cup and sponge, was attached to the head, and the negative electrode was pressed closely against the bare skin at the base of the spine. In the Sing Sing executions the electrodes will be applied at the head, feet and on opposite leg and arm. When the murderer is in his chair and all is ready, the man at the switchboard will turn off the current from the volt meter and other indicators and turn the fatal switch. This will close the break in the wires, and if everything goes well, will give the victim an instantaneous death.

The Doomed Men.

Smiler felt better than any of the others Sunday, and he sang several hymns in an undertone. The Rev. Dr. S. W. Edgerton, the prison chaplain, visited Smiler early in the morning and prayed with him in his cell. Wood and Slocum, who have professed the Catholic faith, joined heartily in the "amens," although Smiler is a Protestant. Smiler told the chaplain that he was prepared to die and did not care how soon the hour came. Smiler has shown more regard for religion than any of the other murderers, and during the time he has been in Sing Sing has read the Bible on religious topics. He has also read the Bible through twice, and is so familiar with it that he can quote whole chapters without making a mistake.

The Rev. Father John B. Creed, assisted by the Rev. Father Lynch, celebrated mass in front of the cells of Wood and Slocum. They joined with great fervor in every "God bless you," and kissed the small crucifixes they held in their hands again and again.

The Nerves of Steel.

Wood and Slocum are strong men physically and have shown thus far that they have nerves of steel. They are much agitated, but will probably meet their death without showing any sign of fear. Wood is a Catholic. Lynch that as long as he had to die as a punishment for his crime he did not mind it. Wood's last death cause had asked God to forgive him for the sins he had committed in his life and he felt he could now die happy. He was sorrowful to him when he appeared for judgment.

Jugiro the Jap.

Jugiro has no religion. He does not believe in heaven or hell and thinks that death is the end of all. He has no religious excitement to buoy up his spirits, and Warden Brown thinks that he will not be able to face death upon pure moral courage. Jugiro will probably meet death at all, and he shudders and shrinks in his cell when it is mentioned. When night fell upon the prison yesterday the men showed more nervousness and excitement than they had ever shown before. They have not been told when they are going to be killed, but they know that it can be any time after midnight on Sunday.

The Medical Experts.

The medical experts selected are Professor Louis L. Lundy, of Columbia college; Dr. C. F. McDonald, of the state board of lunacy, and Dr. Alphonse Rockwell. Captain Charles Hilbert will run the dynamo. The name of the executioner has been kept secret. The warden took his family to Newburg yesterday, and they will remain away until after the execution. The warden has established a dead line on the north and south sides of the prison and no one will be allowed to cross it. The guards have received instructions to warn any seeking to cross that line, and to shoot if the warning is not heeded.

A Possible Stay for Wood.

SING SING, N. Y., July 6.—It has just been learned that Lawyer Fitz, counsel for Murderer Wood, has arrived in Sing Sing with a stay from Judge Lacombe. It is impossible to confirm the report as yet.

THE HORROR NEAR CHARLESTON.

Thirteen Were Killed and Half a Dozen May Die.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 6.—Hundreds of people left here down to the scene of the wreck and saw the spot where thirteen lives were crushed out and half a hundred bodies maimed and disfigured, when the Kanawha and Michigan train went through a trestle. Nothing that has ever occurred has cast such deep gloom over this city. Of the thirteen dead, none of the injured, but half a dozen of those injured are now in a critical condition and not expected to live. They are Mrs. R. S. Trusdow, of Huntington, Grand Chief of the Order of United American Mechanics, both of this city; William Ford, Mrs. Wall and D. Breed, of Point City, and James Blackwood, of Athens, O.

The train consisted of an engine, combined baggage, mail and express car and seven coaches. It was crowded with passengers, most of whom were laboring people out for a holiday in the country. The Order of United American Mechanics was en route to Point Pleasant the day, many of them accompanied by their wives. The train was passing over a trestle when there came a crash. The coaches rocked and shook, screams resounded and stout men turned pale with fear.

A moment more and a fearful plunge was made. The forward passenger car rolled down the approach to the trestle, turned completely and rested right side up ten feet below the track. The other cars rolled over the sides, turned bottom up and and fell twenty feet below the track. To add to the horror the rear track which remained on the track fell over on top of the car, killing every person there who was in that portion of the car. One dead body after another was pulled out through the window, most of them horribly mangled.

Following is a list of the killed: Colonel W. E. Fife, of Buffalo, W. Va.; T. N. Wilson, Gallipolis, O.; Charles Huffman, Blue Creek, W. Va.; L. C. Rose, Blue Creek, W. Va.; Jasper Daugherty, New Martinsville, W. Va.; Walter Welcher, Charleston; Mrs. Walter Welcher, Charleston; Ella O'Leary, Charleston; Amos Coulter, Red House, W. Va.; Orville Robinson, Midway, W. Va.; Thomas Tompkins, Kanawha and Michigan conductor, Middleport, O.; Polly Sullivan, Mason City; James White, Middleport, O.

Senator Dolph's Close Call.

LAGRANDE, Ore., July 6.—The Blue Mountain hotel at this place was burned. The guests had a very narrow escape. Among them were United States Senator Dolph and family. Mrs. Dolph lost a valuable diamond necklace and a gold watch. Before the fire could be extinguished four blocks were destroyed. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $80,000.

The Editors Were Bad.

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 6.—Editor John O'Connor, of The Daily News, and United States Commissioner Tunison had an altercation in front of the Merchants' hotel. Both men drew revolvers and fired at each other until they were emptied. After the smoke of the battle had cleared away it was found that Tunison had received a slight wound, while O'Connor was unhurt.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN DEAD.

Career of Abraham Lincoln's Associate and Friend.

HE WAS SLAVERY'S EARNEST FOE

Once a Democrat and Then a Republican—When He Was Elected to the Vice Presidency He Had Never Met Lincoln. Quietude of His Last Years.

BANGOR, Me., July 6.—Ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin died at 8:15 o'clock Saturday night, July 4. He was down town in the afternoon and went to the Tuesday club rooms, where he was playing pedro, when his head fell forward on his chest. He complained of feeling badly and soon lost consciousness. Soon Mrs. Hamlin, General Charles Hamlin, his son and his wife and other members were at his side. All was done for him in human power, but in vain, and he passed away peacefully.

Hannibal Hamlin's Career.

Hannibal Hamlin was born on a farm near Paris, Oxford county, Me., on Aug. 27, 1809. His father intended to give him a collegiate education, but died while the boy was going through a preparatory course. Thereat Hannibal returned home to take charge of the farm, and remained there until he was twenty-one years old. Then he went to town and learned the printer's trade, and while at work at the case took up the study of law, and was admitted to practice in Hampden, Penobscot county.

In 1836 he was elected as a Democrat to the state legislature, and was returned for four years. The second year of his service he was elected speaker of the house, and again in 1839 and 1840 he was honored in the same way.

The Harrison Campaign.

In 1840 he received the Democratic nomination for congress. It was during the exciting days of the Harrison campaign, and Hamlin stirred up the people of his district by discussing the issues of the time with his competitor at every place possible in his district. But he failed of election that time. In 1843 and again 1844, however, he succeeded.

In 1846 he had become so prominent in the state that he was chosen to serve out the unexpired term (four years) of Senator John Fairfield, who had died. He was elected for the full term in 1851, still as a Democrat, but in 1857 resigned because he had been elected governor of the state as a member of the recently born Republican party. In less than a month, on Feb. 3d, 1857, he resigned his office as governor because he had again been chosen a senator for the state.

It Was Lincoln and Hamlin.

In the convention that nominated Abraham Lincoln as the head of the Republican party, Hamlin was placed second on the ticket. On his election he resigned his office as a senator, and from March 4, 1861 to March 4, 1865 was vice president of the union. He was soon after appointed collector of the port of Boston, an office that he resigned a year later.

In 1869 he was again elected to the United States senate and served there until 1881, when he was sent as minister to Spain.

An Old Democrat Honored.

From 1861 to 1869 Mr. Hamlin acted as regent of the Smithsonian institution, and was again appointed to that post in 1870. That term lasted twelve years, during which time he became dean of the board.

Mr. Hamlin joined the Republican party because of the pro-slavery tendencies of his own party the fifties. He had always been an anti-slavery Democrat. It was he who offered what is now known to history as the Wilmot proviso in the Twenty-ninth congress. David Wilmot, the father of the measure, was temporarily absent when the opportunity for presenting the measure came up. It was then or never. A second's delay would have been fatal, but Hamlin got on his feet and the measure went through—115 to 106.

He Meets Lincoln.

After he had been elected vice president he went on to Chicago to meet Mr. Lincoln, and at the hotel found him in a room alone. Mr. Lincoln arose and said:

"Have we ever been introduced, Mr. Hamlin?"

"No sir, I think not," was the reply.

"Then I am sure of the impression, but I remember distinctly while I was in congress to have heard you make a speech in the senate. I was very much struck with that speech. You opposed slavery, as I did, with all—and for the reason that it was filled, chock up, with the very best of anti-slavery doctrine."

"Well, now," replied Hamlin, laughing, "that is very singular, for my first recollection of you is of having heard you make a speech in the house, a speech that was so full of good humor and sharp points that I, together with others of your auditors, was convulsed with laughter."

During the remainder of the life of Mr. Lincoln the two were close and confidential friends. The later years of Mr. Hamlin were passed at his old fashioned house at the corner of Fifth and Hammond streets, Bangor, which he had made his home early in the days of the war. It was completely surrounded by an orchard, bordered with evergreen hedges, with here and there an ustrimmed elm.

The house in the summer has the appearance of being in a veritable jungle. The exterior of the residence was severely plain, but the interior was charming. Every room bore evidence of the long public career of the ex-vice president, with its collections of books, curiosities and many relics of Washington and far away Spain.

A Quiet and Simple Life.

Mr. Hamlin's life was very quiet and simple. Last autumn he had had a few acres of land which he called his "farm," and the summer mornings found him constantly there. Nothing delighted him more than the exercise and recreation he obtained digging in the loamy soil of that property. He owned a cow for many years, and during his last term in the senate sensitive Bangorians received severe shocks by the sight of one of the country's most noted statesmen walking along the dusty roadway driving cattle, his own and his neighbors', from the pasture to the barns.

Elliott Still Has the Cup.

THE DATA AT SAN DIEGO.

The Recovery Has Created Excitement in the United States.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 6.—The Chilian transport Itata and the United States steamer Charleston have arrived in port. The Itata anchored in her former position near the wharf, while the Charleston remained outside and anchored opposite the Hotel Coronado, about a mile from the shore. The Itata had the Chilian flag and all her signal flags flying when she came into the harbor in honor of the national holiday. The Itata was at once boarded by revenue officers, and Hall took charge of several of the Charleston's officers. She also had on board her former sailing master, Captain Maunzen, and most of his former Chilian crew, but was commanded by a Chilian military officer named Tepede. An attorney to represent the insurgents was also on board.

The Itata and Charleston came direct from Iquique, being out twenty-three days. The Itata's machinery, which was said to have been purposely damaged by the insurgents, is said to have worked admirably until within the last two or three days of the journey. Arrangements were immediately made to transfer the vessel to the proper United States authorities. From one of the Itata's passengers it was learned that the Itata has on board the Charleston 3,000 ammunition taken from the schooner Robert and Minnie, and also the provisions bought at this port.

Captain Maunzen says that he is confident that the vessel will be kept the neutrality laws in any way, at least they had no intention of doing so, the "opposition," as the Congressional party is called in Chili, being very anxious to keep on friendly terms with this government. He said also that the Congressional party now has much the best of the contest, and that if it can maintain position, arms and provisions its early success is assured.

The officers and passengers on the Itata report some interesting incidents connected with the arrival of the steamer Iquique and her subsequent departure under convoy of the Charleston. They state that the demand of the Admiral Montt on the insurgent authorities for the surrender of the vessel was accompanied by the following message, "If you refuse and do not give her up peacefully I will seize every one of your ships and blockade every port on your coast." The insurgents quickly replied by turning over the vessel and cargo to the United States authorities. The commander of the Esmeralda, when he saw that the insurgents would surrender the Itata, on which he still was, dropped overboard and swam to the shore, where he was safe from pursuit. The insurgents did everything they could to delay the leaving of the vessel.

KILLED BY AN ELEPHANT.

A Little Boy Crushed Out of All Resemblance of Humanity.

DENVER, July 6.—In the afternoon an immense crowd gathered at Manhattan Beach, a resort near Denver, to witness a balloon ascension by a woman. There is a menagerie at the beach, and it had been advertised that a child would be taken for a ride on the back of an elephant. The elephant had made two trips, and was just returning to the animal house with eight children on its back, when the fun started up. The animal became frightened at the balloon and began trumpeting and running about making desperate efforts to get rid of its burden.

They all fell off and all escaped injury but one, a little boy named Johnny Eaton, the son of a railroad man, who was caught under the elephant and crushed out of all semblance to humanity. The keeper of the elephant then stuck a pitchfork into the animal's rear, and it was carried high in the air by the enraged brute. He, however, was not seriously hurt. By this time several other attendants had arrived and managed to secure the elephant with chains. The parents of the child killed are nearly frantic with grief.

GERMANS WHO SING.

NEWARK, N. J., July 6.—That the sengerfest now being held here will be one of the most successful of its kind ever held no one can doubt. The city is thronged with visitors and as early as 9 a. m. there were fully 20,000 persons at the park.

The event of the day was a grand rehearsal of the mass chorus of 4,300 voices in the fest hall. In the afternoon prize singing took place between the united singers of Newark, Philadelphia, Trenton, Baltimore, Troy and Trenton. At night the first regular fest concert was given, under the leadership of Director Frank Van der Stucken. There was a prelude from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," mass chorus, solos by Frau Marie Ritter Goetze and Lachner's festival hymn. "Hail Columbia" was also given by the mass chorus and orchestra.

HE WILL NOT PAY THEM.

But Acting Governor Bulkeley Says State Bills Will Be Settled.

HARTFORD, July 6.—Acting Governor Bulkeley was asked whether he was going to pay the bills which the state treasurer would not settle.

"I do not expect to pay the bills with my own money," he said. "I will not say what the money will come from. For what has been done up to July 1 the specific appropriation of 1889 holds good. After this there is no appropriation. These will be held over and when an order is presented from the controller, but not out of the state treasury. If Mr. Staub refuses to give the orders he takes the responsibility of depriving the state of the help they are entitled to. All expenses of the state will be paid some way, however."

The President at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, July 6.—President Harrison drove up to Cold Spring Sunday accompanied by Mrs. Dimmick and Mrs. Lieutenant Parker, and attended divine services at the historic old Presbyterian church. The sermon was preached from Revelations xix, 9, by Rev. Daniel Lawrence Dimmick, a relative of Mrs. Harrison. Crumbs were made to the crowns which are over the heads of those seeking earthly riches and emoluments.

Fears for Gladstone's Health.

LONDON, July 6.—The anxiety about Mr. Gladstone's health is somewhat allayed by the fact that he continues to maintain his strength. The Liberals are so anxious lest the effect of Mr. Gladstone's death may be to undermine his father's health that they are urging the leaders of the party to take every possible step to hasten the general elections.

Shot His Brother.

SARATOGA, July 6.—Frank Hulin, fourteen-old son of William A. Hulin, got a pistol from a drawer in a bureau to celebrate the Fourth. An older brother tried to get it away from him, when the pistol exploded, the ball striking Frank in the throat. He will die.

GUARDING THE EMPEROR

England Fears He May Be Insulted or Injured.

ANARCHISTS UNDER SURVEILLANCE

Germany Is Much Pleased at Great Britain's Hearty Welcome to the Kaiser, and the Meeting Is Believed to Be Pregnant with Political Significance.

LONDON, July 6.—The police are taking extraordinary precautions for the security of the kaiser. Several of the best detectives at Scotland Yard are watching at Windsor for any signs of anarchist plotting. There is no doubt that every foreigner in London known to have been identified with anarchy or socialism abroad is closely watched and followed by police officers on special detail. The Berlin detectives, who are here to look out for the kaiser, have given the London police valuable points as to the identity of refugees heretofore unsuspected of any connection with political plottings abroad and who had been supposed to be ordinary foreigners pursuing their trades peacefully, and who had come to England in order to improve their circumstances.

Fears of Insult.

There is, however, little apprehension that harm is meditated against the kaiser by any one. What is most feared is insult, and this the police are determined to prevent. In the present temper of the people, however, it would be dangerous for any one to insult the kaiser, as the multitude is enthusiastic for him. The kaiser and kaiserin are surrounded wherever they go by their glittering retinues, the profusion of gold lace, plumes and decorations throwing over the trappings of British royalty into the shade. The authorities are also much more careful than in the case of British royalty to keep the people at a distance. The kaiser and the kaiserin are, however, profusely polite, and have rather won the popular heart, already well inclined, by not being what Londoners call too foppish.

British Volunteers at Waterloo.

Secretary of War Stanhope has issued an appeal to employers to allow a holiday to their employes who belong to the Volunteers on Saturday next, in order that the meeting at Wimbledon for review by the kaiser may be on as impressive a scale as possible. The report that the kaiser had spoken deprecatingly of the English volunteers is positively denied, though the denial did not come soon enough to prevent a prominent Volunteer officer from remarking that if it had not been for the British Volunteers at Waterloo there would not have been much of a Germany left for the kaiser.

The Kaiser's Coolness.

There are many comments concerning the significance of the kaiser's coolness in greeting the Duke of Edinburgh on his arrival at Sheerness. While he showed great cordiality toward the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and the other royalties who were on hand to welcome him, he conferred only a formal shake of the hand upon the Duke of Edinburgh. It is believed that the emperor's treatment of the duke was due to the suspicion that the latter prompted the Duke of Coburg to assume an unfriendly attitude toward the German imperial government. It is also said that the kaiser attributes the lukewarmness of his reception in Russia to the hostile influence of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh.

The Emperor's Little Error.

The English naval officers who were present to welcome the emperor were amused at a blunder made by the imperial visitor on entering Sheerness harbor with his yacht in hoisting his flag as a British admiral at the fore instead of at the mainmast, where the imperial standard of Germany remained. The Prince of Wales rallied his nephew upon his novel departure in naval etiquette, whereupon the kaiser explained that he was having been under the impression that he had followed custom, whereof he is a rigid adherent.

In the evening Mme. Albani, assisted by the choir of the Chapel Royal of St. George, sang before the queen, the emperor and empress and other members of the royal family at the castle. In the afternoon the bands of the Second Light Guards and Scots Guards played selections on the east terrace of Windsor castle in presence of the queen, the empress and other members of the royal family. The emperor inspected the Second Light Guards and the Scots Guards at the Victoria barracks, Windsor.

Accompanying his majesty were their royal highnesses the Princes of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh, Connaught and Clarence. The royal party afterward attended divine service at Trinity church with the regiments. Rev. Arthur Robins referred to the leading lives of Christian record, mentioning General Grant, Count von Moltke, General Gordon and Father Damien.

Germany Is Pleased.

BERLIN, July 6.—The newspapers in this city express much gratification at the reception accorded to Emperor William in England, and emphasize the political importance of the character of his welcome.

Barsley Is Writing Something.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Since ex-Treasurer Bardsley's sentence he spends many hours in writing, but the prison officials have no idea of the nature of the subject which is being treated by him. He appears to employ much time and give great care to revising, and it is surmised that he has in preparation a supplemental statement for the public.

The Seaside Assembly.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—The eighth annual session of the Seaside assembly opened Sunday in the auditorium at Ayon-by-the-Sea. There was a large attendance. Rev. John Peters, of Atlantic City, delivered the opening address on the subject, "Christ in Song." Rev. Dr. Sing son, of La Crosse, Wis., also made an address.

Almost Beaten to Death.

ERIE, Pa., July 6.—Henry D. Young, a well known business man of this city and a Grand Army man, attended a picnic and while on his way home was attacked and beaten almost to death and robbed. He lived late in the night and rallied briefly to relate his story, but his recovery is not expected.

Ulling Charged with Murder.

STOUD, July 6.—Sedonia Ailing has been arrested for the murder of Mary who died at the hospital from injuries received in a row with Mrs. Ailing, latter's home on July 2.

A SLOW AT COMPERS.

Pittsburg Carpenters Who Have Deposed from the Presidency.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—The striking carpenters of this district are loading a bomb to fire at Mr. Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, at the next annual meeting of that order. At a session of the carpenters a petition was presented to Master Workman Dempsey requesting him to withdraw the carpenters from the Federation of Labor and to organize into an assembly of the Knights of Labor.

Enough carpenters, however, are to be left in the federation to create trouble for Mr. Gompers at the next meeting of that order, as the Pittsburg assembly has added to petition the federation to dispense with his services as president. This action of the Pittsburg district has been brought about by the fact that when President Gompers was here, previous to the eight hour strike, he advised the building trades to go about as the Federation of Labor was behind them. This it is alleged, turned out to be untrue, and the federation did not contribute one penny to the strikers; as a result of this the eight hour move collapsed utterly.

Grasshoppers Stopped the Train.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 6.—Last night grasshoppers stopped the Fort Scott & Memphis passenger train at Lyman, Colo., about fifty miles west of the Kansas line. They covered the track for a distance of about five miles and the wheels of the engine revolved helplessly. Another engine was procured at Lyman which pushed the train through the five mile column. It took two hours to accomplish the feat. The grasshoppers are not matured enough to rise.

The Christian Endeavor Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 6.—The tenth international convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in Minneapolis July 9 to 12. The delegates to this convention will come from every state in the Union, from Canada and from several of the European nations. The lowest estimate now placed on the number of outside Endeavorers who are to be in attendance is 15,000.

The Desert Lake Secret Solved.

SALTON, Colo., July 6.—The water has risen 1½ inches in the past twenty-four hours and in much faster. Since the source of the water has been definitely solved he coming from the Colorado river by way of New river, and it is known that the railroad track is in no danger, interest has subsided, and all that can be done is to await developments.

Mr. Blaine Improving Rapidly.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 6.—Secretary Blaine has improved wonderfully since coming here. That lame foot still troubles him, walking, however, painful, but otherwise he is a well man in every way. Mr. Blaine is good for years of life yet, and all predict he will go back to Washington in October a well man.

An Enemy Mother's Crime.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—Mrs. Harry Mimmer, of the South Side, while laboring under an attack of religious insanity, attempted to kill her eight-month-old babe by hitting it on the head with a hatchet. Mrs. Mimmer says her child was a second Christ and it was her duty to kill it. The baby cannot live.

GREAT HURDLERS.

America's World Beaters at This Specialty.

FLEET OF FOOT AS THE WILD DEER.

Something About James P. Lee, of Harvard; Herbert Mapes, of Columbia, and A. F. Copeland, the Cherry Diamond Wonder—Records Greatly Reduced of Late.

It is an inspiring sight to see several lithe limbed young athletes coming down the cinder path like the wind and mounting hurdle after hurdle with the agility of deer. The records in this specialty have been considerably reduced of late, and there is a fine corps of American hurdlers who are unsurpassed in speed by any hurdlers that ever rose to the bar. The world's record for the 120 yards event is 15 seconds, and three men in America have covered the distance in that time—A. F. Copeland, of the Manhattan A. C., Henry L. Williams, of Yale, and F. Ducharme, of the Detroit A. C. Another sensational performer who has come within one-fifth of a second of the world's record is Hubert Mapes, of Columbia college.

In the 220 yards hurdles the greatest performer living today or who ever lived is

HERBERT MAPES.

James P. Lee, of Harvard college, who made a new world's record of 24 4-5 seconds not long ago. Williams comes next with a record of 25 3-5 seconds. Ducharme's best feat is 25 4-5 seconds, and Copeland and Mapes can both cover the distance in a small fraction above 26 seconds. Ducharme is such a modest fellow he refuses to allow his picture to be published. He has not been hurdling long, and surprised every one by winning the A. A. U. championships for 1890 in both hurdle events.

Mapes is twenty-three years of age and weighs 140 pounds. His first notable performance was in 1889 when he covered the 120 yard hurdles in 15 3-5. As a hurdler Lee has been a world beater. He displayed remarkable aptitude for this specialty at his first attempt, and no one can touch Williams' record. His great work was clouded down at the Harvard-Yale football game last fall is still fresh in the public's memory. Despite his great work as an athlete he is only twenty-one years of age.

JAMES P. LEE.

A. F. Copeland's great feats are the 120 yards hurdles, 16 seconds, and the running broad jump, 23 ft. 8½ in., both of which are world's records. He has been a prominent figure in athletics for four years. In 1887, 1888, 1889 he was A. A. U. champion in the 220 yard hurdles and 120 yard championship in 1888.

EARLE H. EATON.

A Famous Amateur Oarsman.

One of the amateur oarsmen who will be heard from this year is Otis J. Stephens. He made his first appearance in athletics as a member of a tug-of-war team, but since then has devoted almost exclusively with the oars, and has become one of the best known of American amateurs. Most of his triumphs have been won as a member of the New York Athletic club. To enumerate them all would fill a column. His record in 1890 was: Won the singles and the H. R. A. regatta from E. J. Mulcahey, of Albany, and also the double scull race, with George Wein as partner; was defeated at the People's regatta, in Philadelphia, July 4, by E. J. Carney, and won the double with Weins. Those who was also with him when he won the double scull shell event at the Middle States regatta, at Newark, N. J., in August; with E. J. Gleason as partner he also won the N. Y. A. C. doubles early in the year. He is thirty-two years old, and six feet tall. His rowing weight is 150 pounds. This year he will take part in most of the principal events, and as he is in good form will probably place many new victories to his credit.

and sprinter. In his first race, May 14, 1890, he covered 220 yards in the phenomenally fast time for a novice in 24¾ seconds. In June, 1889, he entered his first and only A. A. U. championship, and won the 220 yards' run, defeating Sherrill. When Luther Cary broke the world's record in the west recently and equaled it a few days after, Lee was one of only 3 who ran 24 4-5. As a hurdler Lee has been a world beater. He displayed remarkable aptitude for this specialty at his first attempt, and no one can touch Williams' record. His great work was clouded down at the Harvard-Yale football game last fall is still fresh in the public's memory. Despite his great work as an athlete he is only twenty-one years of age.

"Rozy" and "Blue Jeans."

Dr. Edward Eggleston, the famous novelist, announces that he will bring suit against Joseph Arthur for infringement of copyright. The claim is that Mr. Arthur's play, "Blue Jeans," is plagiarized from the doctor's story of Indiana life, "Rozy," which was published in Scribner's Magazine in 1878, and had a large sale afterward in book form. Mr. Arthur emphatically denies that he drew on Dr. Eggleston's book for the inspiration of his play. If there are any similarities he attributes them to coincidence. In the meantime the author thinks that he has evidence which will enable him to stop performances of "Blue Jeans" and secure large damages for the use to which he alleges has already been made of his ideas.

Events in a Managerial Career.

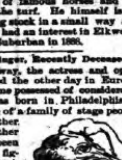
Mr. J. M. Hill, the genial and successful theatrical manager, is said to have encountered several somewhat exciting episodes lately. Not long ago it was telegraphed from a western city that Mr. Hill had, in a spirit of fun, choked a friend. The newspaper accounts said that Mr. Hill had all the fun, for the friend was almost choked to death. More recently the newspapers say that Mr. Hill, while shaking hands with an acquaintance in a New York restaurant, was assaulted by a woman with a hatpin, whereupon the manager, and as a result has a mighty sore eye. Mr. Hill denies this, however. He also denies the report that he is trying to dispose of his lease of the Standard theater in New York.

A Painter of Race Horses.

Probably the man who has made more good pictures of famous race horses than any one else in the United States, is Henry Stull. He has painted every race horse of note that has run during the past twelve or fifteen years, and has seen every race worth seeing in twenty years. He is thirty-seven years old and a bachelor. He was born in Canada. In his studio on Broadway, New York, are many interesting relics of big turf events, and he is full of reminiscences of famous horses and the noted men of the turf. He himself is an owner of racing stock in a small way and is said to have had an interest in Elkwood, who won the Suburban in 1886.

An Opera Singer, Recently Deceased.

Lillian Conway, the actress and opera singer who died the other day in Europe, was at one time possessed of considerable fame. She was born in Philadelphia in 1857, and came of a family of stage people, her father, mother and grandfather all having been well known figures in theatricals. She did worthy work in "Evangeline," "The Two Orphans," as a member of stock companies in Boston and Philadelphia, and traveled at different times with many opera companies, always singing leading roles. She married Charles Nicholas, a rich Philadelphia broker, in 1876, and retired from the stage. Afterward they separated, and she returned to her profession. She was a woman of great beauty and of almost eccentric generosity. Her disposition was somewhat erratic, and she several times figured prominently in sensational episodes. She left two children.



LILLIAN CONWAY.

BICYCLE BRIEFS.

The friends of Miss Mercy Powell and Mrs. Dalsen, two enthusiastic lady cyclists, are congratulating them. They were the only ladies to make the Philadelphia century run, and their performance is considered to be most remarkable.

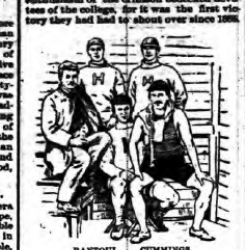
Charles Kluge will attempt to break the world's record for twenty-five miles before long. He is the holder of the American road record over the Larchmont course.

At the recent big parade of wheelmen in Brooklyn, riders under eighteen were barred and no decorations were allowed. So many disagreements over the meaning of different L. A. W. rules have arisen that a constitution committee will undoubtedly have to be called to settle them. At first it was thought that the national meeting at Detroit would see this call issued, but the executive committee of the L. A. W. has been unable to secure the necessary ten names from each division. It will have to come before long though.

HARVARD'S GREAT CREW.

It Dragged Yale's Colors Down in the Recent Yearly Race.

The recent race between the eight-oared crews of Harvard and Yale at New London, the other day, was the event of the year to the college boys. When Harvard won there was good excuse for the wild enthusiasm of the Cambridge hotheaded devotees of the college, for it was the first victory they had had to shout over since 1886.



RANTOUL. CUMMINGS. PERKINS. VAIL. LYMAN.

The eight-oared contests were inaugurated in 1876. Yale won the first. Then Harvard triumphed for three successive years, but had to bow to Yale in 1880 and 1881. The races of 1882 and 1883 were again won by Harvard. Yale found consolation in getting the race of 1884, but lost it when Harvard beat in 1885. Since then, however, until this year the record shows an unbroken list of victories for Yale. The Harvard boys have at last broken the spell, and are now confident that they will take the lead for a long time to come, which confidence is somewhat previous but very natural.

The Harvard crew, which is well pictured in the accompanying illustrations, was made up as follows: Bow, M. Newell, '94; age, 19; height, 5 ft. 8¼ in.; weight, 166 pounds. No. 2, T. N. Perkins, '91, captain; age, 21; height, 6 feet; weight, 164 pounds. No. 3, N. Rantoul, '92; age, 20; height 6 feet; weight, 167½ pounds. No. 4, F. Lyam, M. S.; age, 23; height, 5 ft. 11 in.; weight, 168 pounds. No. 5, C. Cummings, '92; age, 20; height, 6 ft. 1 in.; weight, 181 pounds. No. 6, D. R. Vail, '93; age, 21; height, 6 feet; weight, 180 pounds. No 7, G. A. Kelton, '93, age, 20; height, 6 feet; weight, 168 pounds. Stroke, J. G. Powers, '93, age, 22; height, 6 feet; weight, 157 pounds. Coxswain, H. M. Batelle, '92, age, 20; height, 119 pounds. Average weight, 172 pounds.

The race was over a four mile course, and was rowed in 21:29, Yale being 4 seconds behind. The best time ever made was 20:40 in 1888 by Yale.

The English Derby Winner.

Here is a picture of the great English race horse, Common, the noble animal that recently won the English Derby, and by his victory placed a good round sum to the credit of the Prince of Wales. As his name indicates Common is a very plain, ordinary looking horse, and would never win a prize at a beauty show, but when it comes to covering the ground rapidly Common shows up in the front rank every time.

While celebrating his winnings, it is said, the Prince of Wales offered Sir P. Johnstone $100,000 for Common. The offer was accepted, but next day the bargain was declared off.

Dolly Davis' Experience.

"It is an ill wind that blows no one good" must be a favorite proverb with Dolly Davis. She is the young woman for whom the body of a suicide near New York was recently mistaken. The resemblance was very striking, and Miss Davis gained some notoriety before it was finally decided that she was alive and that it was some one else who had killed herself. She had been connected with the stage in an unimportant way all her life, but the prospects of achieving distinction were not flattering up to the time that the dead woman was mistaken for her. This episode brought managers to her by the score, however. A woman who has received so much and such effective advertising is a theatrical treasure. And so the act of the unfortunate who drowned herself and her sorrows in the Hudson will bring to Miss Davis a good salary for a time at least and an opportunity to make for herself a name as an actress.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT AT ROME.

Heloise, a little American girl, ten years of age, writes as follows from Rome to St. Nicholas:

Perhaps you would like to hear something about the opening of parliament in Rome, which is a very fine affair. The king always opens parliament, and he, the queen and some of the court drive from the palace to the state house in the state carriages, which are splendid old fashioned coaches. The coachmen and footmen have on scarlet and gold liveries, with white silk stockings, powdered wigs and cocked hats. Three footmen stand behind, holding on to the straps. It is exactly like the pictures of Cinderella, except that the queen is in modern dress, of course. The king's carriage is drawn by six horses with white plumes on their heads and with splendid harness.

The sidewalks are packed with people, but two lines of soldiers keep all carriage away except those of the procession. When they get to the house of parliament, the king, in a fine uniform with a brass helmet and an immense white plume on it, gets out of his carriage and helps the queen out of hers, and then the people shout: Viva il Re! and Viva la Regina! Inside, the great parliament chamber is in the form of a semicircle; the king's throne is on the straight side of the wall. The deputies wear evening dress with white gloves. The queen and court ladies sit in a box high up on the right, the diplomatic corps in another large box on the left, and other people, who have tickets, in the gallery between. The king makes a speech, each deputy in turn takes the oath of allegiance, cheers the royal family, and it is over.

This year the king's sons, the Prince of Naples, and his nephew, the Duke of Aosta, both just twenty-one, took the oath, too, which everybody seemed to think very interesting. Then all march out in great state, the king and queen drive away slowly, eyeglasses, opera glasses and cameras point at them from all sides, soldiers present arms, and I begin to hear bands and dogs bark, and all go home to breakfast.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, JULY 7, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE TWENTY-SECOND SESSION HELD LAST EVENING.

Mr. Ackerman Protests Against the Further Waste of Public Money.—Mr. Ginna Thought the Street Committee Was Doing Business in a Rather Loose Way.—Corporation Council Marsh's Letter to the Water Works Company.—Other Business.

It was nearly half-past eight o'clock last evening when the City Council meeting was called to order. Besides the president, Councilmen Ackerman, Gallup, Ginna, Hetfield, Johnston, Moffett, Rushmore, See and Spangenberg responded to roll call. Councilman Roberts was absent.

The minutes of several previous meetings were read and approved.

Mr. J. R. Phillips and others petitioned for one or more electric lights on Front street, West of Clinton avenue. The petition was referred to the Committee on Public Lights, with power.

The Electric Light Company in a communication complained that the globes of a large number of street lights were being broken by mischievous boys.

Mr. Ginna thought that the company should make a complaint to the police and not the Council.

Mr. Hetfield moved that the document be laid on the table. The motion prevailed.

Several petitions for peddlers' licenses were read, referred to the Committee on Licenses and subsequently granted.

In a communication Captain of Police George A. Grant requested that $140 be appropriated for the purchase of cloth-ing and equipments for the police. The motion prevailed.

Chief Engineer Doane reported that Alert Hose Company had recently purchased a new carriage and he recommended that Council purchase 4800 feet of new hose.

On motion the Committee on Fire and Buildings were instructed to purchase 800 feet of new hose.

John Kirney was confirmed as a member of Engine Company No. 2, and Richard Agnew as a member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company.

The monthly statements of the collector and treasurer were presented and referred to the Finance Committee.

The report of the city clerk was read and referred to the Committee on Finance.

The annual report of the directors of the Public Library was read and ordered filed.

Mr. Hetfield from the Committee on Fire and Buildings recommended that a warrant for $95 be issued for the purchase of harness, etc., from Engine Company No. 2.

A motion to that effect prevailed.

Mr. Rushmore reported that the map for the proposed extension of Peace street had been completed, but that it was not as yet in the hands of the committee.

Mr. Ginna from the License Committee returned the application of James O'Neill for a license and stated that it did not conform with the law, as he had signers on it that had signed other applications within a year.

On motion of Mr. Moffett the petition was returned to Mr. O'Neill for correction.

Mr. Hetfield from the Police Committee reported that he did not favor Council paying a bill of five dollars for the removal of a dead horse, as he thought the bill should have been sent to the Board of Health.

A motion to present the bill to the Board of Health prevailed.

Mr. Ackerman inquired how much money had been expended on North avenue during the past month.

Street Commissioner Meeker said about $1600.

Mr. Ginna asked how much of the expenditure was the property owners to return. Mr. Smith said about $2,000.

Mr. Ginna said Council was spending money liberally and thought they should have some system of collecting it from the property owners. Continuing he said: "We spend the money and then have to struggle to get it back."

Mr. Ackerman offered a resolution to the effect that the City Treasurer be instructed to temporarily transfer $500 from the general fund to the Fire Department fund.

The resolution was adopted.

A resolution instructing the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow $3,000 for three months in anticipation of taxes, was adopted.

By resolution the Corporation Council was instructed to take measures to collect the money now due from property owners for the macadamizing of Plainfield avenue.

On motion of Mr. Moffett a committee of three was appointed to investigate the cases of rates for use of the City Assessor and Street Committee and report at the next meeting.

A resolution offered by Mr. Ginna to the effect that the blocks be removed from in front of Engine Company No. 2's house and a stone flagging substituted in their stead at a cost not to exceed $75, was adopted.

A letter from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh to President Frank Bergen of the Plainfield Water Supply Company informing him that the company was violating a city ordinance inasmuch as they did not properly repair the streets after they had laid their pipes, and if they did not obey the ordinance the city would take measures to compel them to, was read together with Mr. Bergen's reply, promising to remedy the matter as soon as possible.

On motion of Mr. Spangenberg the letters were ordered spread upon the minutes in full.

Mr. Ackerman offered a resolution to the effect that the Council pass the various claims with the proviso that they were not to be paid until the treasury was in funds.

Mr. Smith did not think it proper that such a resolution should be spread upon the minutes.

Mr. Ackerman saw no harm in the resolution, as he said that was the true state of affairs, and he did not propose to vote to pay $6,000 in bills when there was only $4,000 in the treasury.

Mr. Ginna said Council would not be justified in passing any claims unless there was money in the treasury to meet the warrants.

Mr. Moffett said if Councilman Ackerman's resolution was adopted Council could not order any claims paid that night.

Mr. Ackerman said we are providing for the payment of the claims by discounting a note of $5,000.

Mr. Smith was strongly opposed to having such a resolution spread upon the minutes.

Mr. Ackerman—"We want our record to be extremely clear. That's what I want. Mr. Marsh warned me early in the year not to order any warrants drawn to pay claims unless there was money in the treasury to meet them."

Mr. Hetfield did not think the resolution was offered in the right sense. He said it was beating about the bush.

Mr. Ackerman said that the Corporation Counsel had seen the resolution and that he said it covered the matter.

Mr. Moffett moved as an amendment that the City Clerk be instructed not to deliver any warrants until there were sufficient funds in the bank to meet them.

The amendment was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Gallup the ordinance authorizing the macadamizing of Arlington avenue was taken from the table and read for the third time.

Mr. Ackerman did not favor its passage because it did not provide for the collection of the money which the property owners had agreed to subscribe. He contended that the city could not collect them to pay if they saw fit not to do so, as there was nothing in the ordinance in reference to the paper on which the property owners, on that thoroughfare, had subscribed certain amounts. "And some day," he said, "we will go ahead and macadamize it and then a lot of people owning will refuse to pay the amounts they have subscribed."

Mr. Ginna said he thought it was a loose way of doing business. Continuing he said: "We have been doing considerable macadamizing and have trusted the property-owners and now there is no reason why they should not trust us and pay the amounts they subscribed before the work is begun. We do not know whether or not they are responsible for the amounts they subscribe."

After some further discussion the ordinance was adopted on its third reading and final passage.

The Auditing Committee reported all the bills correct and warrants were ordered drawn for the payment of the same.

The meeting then adjourned.

A Narrow Escape.

John Kiel, a hackman at the depot, had a narrow escape from being shot on the evening of July 4th. He was seated in his hack in front of the City Hotel, when some person unknown to him discharged a revolver. Fortunately the bullet struck one of the night lamps on the vehicle, had it not it would have surely struck Mr. Kiel. The lamp was badly shattered and the iron bar to which it is attached was bent by the bullet.

The ancients who believed that the sun was as smooth and spotless as a golden mirror would be unspeakably astonished if they could see it as it has appeared when viewed with telescopes during the past few weeks. Two large groups, or rather rows, of spots, which are yet visible near the centre of the disk, have exhibited to a wonderful degree the terrific effects of the explosive and cyclonic forces that are now, month by month, gathering greater energy upon the sun. Holes large enough to swallow up the earth with plenty of room to spare have been formed there in the night of the astronomer; shining bars have been shot across the dark chasms like bridges of fire; the twisted forms of the great flame-like phenomena which project hundreds of miles over the edges of the seeming inky black and bottomless pits have given evidence of the operation of a mighty whirling power, and the puncturing of the bright disk with crowds of comparatively small black holes in the neighborhood of the greater spots, has shown that over hundreds of thousands of square miles of the solar surface a tremendous rain of ejected matter has been falling back upon the blazing photosphere.

Yet the changes that these outbursts are able to effect in the solar light and heat bear so small a proportion to the whole radiative energy of the sun that it is still an open question whether the earth feels them to a perceptible degree or not. The only way when a sun turned out with such overwhelming might as was exhibited by the famous star in Cassiopeia in 1572, or by a star in Cygnus in 1876, or by a star in Andromeda in 1885, that the planets circling around it are swept with fire. There is no known reason to believe that our sun will behave in that manner, at least in our time, and so everybody can enjoy the marvellous spectacle of the sun-spots without apprehension for their consequence.

A STABBING AFFRAY.

Freeholder Allgair of Middlesex county was badly cut by some roughs at South River about three o'clock Sunday morning. Two Germans, workmen in the brick yards there, were in the street near Bissett's store, dashing about with a club, attacking everybody who came near them and terrifying the many. Then Mr. Allgair and his bar-keeper went out to quiet them. Each seized a man, and the one whom Mr. Allgair attacked turned on him, beating him about the head and escaping. The Freeholder went into the house, and then discovered that his assailant had used his knife as well as his club, and that he had been badly stabbed, receiving as ugly cut in the hand and a great gash, two and a half inches deep back of the shoulder. The wound is not a very serious one, but Dr. Rives was immediately called in to dress it. Mr. Allgair was out to-day.

Search was also made for the Germans, but both had disappeared. They are middle aged men of medium height, one having a mustache and the other no hair on his face. The older of the two had his head badly battered and it is bound up with a cloth. One carries a bundle in a handkerchief, and the other a bundle of clothing wrapped up in his coat.

The Job Mate Will Case.

The contest of the will of the late Job Mate was continued before Master-in-Chancery Herbert J. Knight yesterday morning.

Mr. Fenno, a niece of the testator, was the first witness called by the contestants. She testified that she was present at the death of Mr. Mate, and that Marsh drew up the will. She declared that Mr. Marsh was prompted by others than the testator in drawing up the provisions of the will, and that her uncle had but little to do with it.

She also swore that after the will had been read by the lawyer the latter asked if the testator agreed to all its conditions. The latter did not answer, because he had lapsed into unconsciousness. Notwithstanding, he was raised in the bed, a pen placed in his hands and his name was traced of the paper.

Mrs. Fenno acknowledged signing a paper certifying that the will was correctly made; but she repudiated it yesterday and swore that she was confused and did not know what she was doing.

PLAIN LESSONS FOR GIRLS.

Systematic Efforts to be Beautiful Insure Health.

Before one of the New York working girls' clubs Dr. Louise Fiske Bryson recently gave an address upon "Beauty as a Means of Health." While acknowledging the impossibility of any protracted happiness without virtue, and the maintenance of beauty's fine edge without goodness, the doctor affirmed that systematic efforts to be beautiful will insure a fair degree of health, and that happiness is the best safeguard against vice.

The different in appearance between one woman and another, it was stated, is more than anything else an affair of style—that beauty of beauties so hard to define and so easy to recognize, which makes the girl of no colored hair, features of indifferent turn, and lines none too perfect, infinity more attractive than other maids of faultless curves and unsurmerable strong points not cemented by this magic quality.

Style may be defined, for want of something better to express it, as an attractive manner of holding the body, a firm, graceful way of doing things and of moving about. It is the visible sign of inherent power and reserve force. It is the outcome of long, deep breaths and the use of many muscles. The prayer of the New York child, "Lord, make us very stylish," when viewed aright, is recognized as an aspiration based upon sound scientific principles and worthy of universal commendation.

Proper breathing is the first art to cultivate in the pursuit of beauty. The lungs have their own muscular power, and this should be exercised. The chest must be enlarged by full deep breathing, and not by muscular action from without. Inflate the lungs upward and outward, as if the inflation were about to lift the body off the ground.

Hold the shoulders on a line with the hips, and stand so that the hips, chin, chest and toe come upon one line, the feet being turned out at an angle of sixty degrees. It is wrong to make the body structure do most of the work in keeping the body upright. The muscles should hold it in position.

In walking, keep face and chest well over the advanced foot, and cultivate a free, firm, easy gait, without hard or jarring movements. It is impossible to stand or breathe aright if the feet are pinched. When correct posture and breathing are interferred with the circulation is impeded, and deleterious substances in the blood tend to make the complexion bad. This is one of the many evils of tight shoes.

To be well shod has a marked influence on style. The feet symbolize the body in their way as much as the hands. A well-fitting shoe that is a well-fitting shoe the human foot feels like a duck's foot in the mud. It is held firmly in place, but no where compressed. Nothing can exceed the vulgarity and hygienic wickedness of a shoe that is manifestly too tight.

Next to the search for style pure and simple as a means of health the care of the complexion and the cultivation of the right kind of expression are of great importance. The first is largely a matter of bathing and the general hygiene of the skin, while the second—a good expression—is best secured by the constant preference of higher thoughts over lower ones. This is the essence of intellectual living, and is fortunately within reach of us all.

—Jack Frost failed to pass his respects to the watermelon vines this year, and in consequence of this gratifying omission, there will be a big crop of melons.

—The members of Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrated the Fourth of July at New Market. In the afternoon there were athletic sports and in the evening fireworks.

—There were 226 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the week, against 227 in the preceding week and 193, 192, 149 and 141 in the corresponding weeks of 1890, 1889, 1888 and 1887 respectively. The total number of failures in the United States from January 1st to date is 6,175 against 5,508 in 1890.

—The committee on transportation who effected the arrangement for the steamer Myndert Starin for the Christian Endeavor excursion, July 14th, to Newburgh, wish to have it understood that this excursion is not for the use of a boat, and that it is to be under full control of the committee for that day. No stop will be made after leaving Jersey City until Newburgh is reached.

FOUR MURDERERS ELECTROCUTED.

The Current Applied Twice as in Kemmler's Case.

SING SING, N. Y., July 7th. (Special.)—Slocum, Smiler, Wood and Jugiro, the murderers, were electrocuted here this morning in the following order.

James J. Slocum, at 4.48 o'clock.
Harris A. Smiler, at 5.13½ o'clock.
Joseph Wood, at 5.38 o'clock.
Shibuya Jugiro, at 6.06 o'clock.

It is stated by witnesses of the electrocutions that in each case there was an apparent revival of the victim, as in Kemmler's case, and the current was turned on a second time.

The electrodes were not applied to the top of the men's skulls and the base of the spine as with Kemmler, but to the foreheads and the calves of the legs.

The current was kept on at least twenty seconds on the first application, with a power of 1,500 to 1,600 volts.

In spite of the fact that the sponges were kept wet, all the executed men were burned by the current, especially about the legs.

The physicians all agree that death was caused by the first contact, and that the apparent revival was merely the reflex muscular action.

All the witnesses who have spoken agree that death was instantaneous and painless, and that electrocution was proven to be a success.

City Clerk Cook Resigns.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 7th. (Special.)—At the meeting of Common Council last evening Mr. H. D. Cook tendered his resignation as city clerk. It was accepted. He asked for an expert accountant to examine his books. His request was granted, the cost not to exceed $50.

Trotting Saturday.

There were some interesting trotting events on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday afternoon. The programme was made up as follows:

THIRD EVENT.

Phillip Jenner's "Blanche Warwick," John Chandler's "J. C.," and J. H. Fosher's "Dynamite." "Blanche Warwick" won both heats. Time, 2.47 and 2.45. "J. C." came in second in the first heat and "Dynamite" in the second.

SECOND EVENT.

The second event was between Mr. Quinn's "Kitty Pilot," W. Johnson's "Marcanier," and J. H. Hayes' "Andy." "Kitty Pilot" won both heats. Time, 2.46¼ and 2.42½.

The race which was to have taken place between Mr. O. T. Waring's "Copeland" and Mr. Robert Fairburn's "Shamrock," was postponed.

Raising the Ferry House Roofs.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has a large force of men at work in Jersey City raising the roofs of the ferry-slips, preparatory to transferring passengers to the new double-deck ferry-boats by an overhead bridge from the new train-shed. This is a step towards the consummation of the plans for a monster ferry-house and waiting-room, work upon which will soon begin. When all is finished the Pennsylvania Railroad will have in Jersey City one of the finest passenger terminals in the country. The estimated cost of the work, including the track elevation, the new train-yard at Mount Pleasant and the mammoth train shed, is close upon $3,000,000. All will be finished within a year.

Those Hudson Freeholders.

The Hudson County papers have not a word to say in extenuation of the acts of their freeholders. But the Newark Journal, thoroughly Democratic, suggests probing the charges against them:

The transaction of the Hudson Freeholders in the joint occupation of the Essex, Union and Hudson boards in granting dock privileges on the Hackensack river and Newark bay, has an ugly look. The suspicion that these Freeholders, or some of them, extorted bribes for their votes seems reasonable in the light of their actions. The matters to be settled were very simple, and no delay was called for. The Essex and Union Freeholders acted promptly but the Hudson Freeholders held off while a go-between dickered with the applicants for the dock privileges. It is a pity that the charges against these men should not be probed to the hot torn

A Painful Accident.

Charles Van Middlesworth, an employe of the Pond Machine Tool Works, met with a painful accident yesterday morning. He was engaged around some of the machinery when his left hand was accidently caught in the belt and badly crushed. He was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital where the wound was dressed.

—The Crescents will cross bats with the Ridgewoods next Saturday afternoon.

—One of the young men who assisted Special Policeman Kinney at the picnic of Engine Company No. 2, Thursday evening, was fined $25 by City Judge Codington this morning.

Go In to Win.

In New York city alone are constantly 40,000 persons out of employment. In other cities the proportion is the same according to population. All these unfortunate individuals profess their anxiety to work, to toil for almost any price, that they may keep soul and body together. The sole reason why they do not work is they would have it believed, is because the world is against them and will not suffer them to earn an honest living.

Try them. Give them employment. It will be found that not one sewing woman in five can even run a decent seam. Not girl in ten of those who profess to do housework can kindle a fire properly. Of the men, not one carpenter in four can be trusted to perform a simple task in woodwork. Not one iron worker in four can do exactly what he professes to do. As large printing offices it is with great difficulty that satisfactory proof-readers are secured. Among stenographers and typewriters undoubtedly not one in twenty knows the proper construction of the English language, or enough of current events and literature to make a tolerable business letter writer. Probably a third of them are shaky in their spelling.

This is why three-fourths of the unemployed in America are out of work. They are out of work because they have not gone in with all their might to prepare themselves in the best way for what they had chosen. They did not go in to win. If one who has a task to do puts all his soul into it, and resolves that he will do it as well as it can be done no matter how simple it is, that person will not be long out of employment. The world has its soul vexed out of it because of slovenly work. Life is a burden to those who hire employes, because of things half done.

All depends on the spirit with which one starts in life. The winner selects his future occupation carefully.. He is bound down to no particular rut of success. He only knows that whatever task he has selected he is going to accomplish it as well as it is possible to do it, and that in the long run he is going to win. He may be out of employment. He may be forced to change his occupation. But he still knows that in him is good, faithful work; that there is a field for it somewhere, and it is his place to find that field. The winner is he who never does slovenly work and never lets himself run down.

The Prince of Wales.

The mother of the Prince of Wales is a woman of uncommon intellectual power. Probably not till after her death will it be known how much real influence she had in a quiet way in shaping for good the public affairs of her realm. Certainly at times she has displayed rare tact and sagacity in a manner that surprised her ministers. She is one of the most scholarly women of her time, too, and has good literary talents.

Prince Albert, father of the heir to the British throne, was remarkable for his shrewd common sense. He was greatly interested in agriculture, and many public enterprises of great value owe either their inception or encouragement to him. He originated the Crystal Palace World's fair. He was so moral as to have been considered rather Miss Nancyish by the fast set in England, but he went to his grave honored and lamented by the British nation, and without a stain on his memory.

The son of these two excellent and uncommon individuals will ascend the British throne—in the judgment of the people the more distant the day the better. What qualifications has Albert Edward to be at the head of a nation that thinks itself the leader of all civilization? Well, the Prince of Wales is good natured and has a pleasant, easy society manner. And he has so little of what western Americans call "gumption" that he will tell any secret, however dangerous, to a woman whom for the time being he is sweet on.

It is a proof of the wonderful security now enjoyed by ocean passengers that the steamer City of Richmond took fire when about half way across the sea going from New York to Liverpool and remained in a fire till she got in, and yet not a life was lost. The passengers were not even seriously alarmed. The fire broke out in the hold and burned silently till the ship reached Liverpool, damaging nothing beyond the part of the cargo where it first ignited. While the officers of the steamer could not extinguish the fire they did keep it under perfect control.

In a case which was pronounced genuine hydrophobia from a fat bite, the patient died, he is recorded and remembered, without any of the violent and tragic symptoms, such as barking, snapping, etc., with which popular superstition invests this terrible disease.

Once more the drowning season is on and in full blast for the unfortunates who never learned to swim.

In Illinois the bill entitling women to vote at all school elections is now a law.

THE DEATH CHAIR

KILLED AT AN EARLY HOUR

The First Man to Share Kemmler's Fate.

The Ex-Baseball Player Done to Death in the Early Morning.—A Report That All the Other Murderers Were Also Executed by Electricity Immediately After Slocum Had the Death Penalty.

SING SING, N. Y., July 7.—It is now believed that the four condemned men will die today some time. At 12:05 the warden had a long talk with the United Press correspondent in front of the prison.

"The men are all awake," he said. "I was just down to see them. They are very quiet, but they evidently know that something is coming."

Mr. Brown denied that Deputy Attorney General Hogan had brought any papers of an official character with him. "He brought himself and nothing else," said he. "The death warrants came here at the time the men were last sentenced. Let me see. That was June 2, I think. I have had them in my safe ever since."

All Four Would Die.

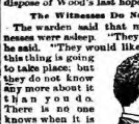
Mr. Brown said that no papers had been served on him in the Wood case. He said he had the opinion of the attorney general on the appeal put forward by Wood's lawyer as a claim for a stay of execution. He could not say what it was, but he said: "If no other papers are served on me before the execution you can say that all four men will be executed." This would seem to dispose of Wood's last hope.

The Witnesses Do Not Know.

The warden said that none of the witnesses were subpœ. "They are like you," he said. "They would like to know when this thing is going to take place; but they do not know any more about it than you do. There is no one knows when it is going to occur but me." The warden said that he did not know whether he would get any warning or not. He has not had any sleep since Saturday night. He sat up over the condemned men remains unchanged. Partridge and Baxter, who have kept the night watch for many months, were on duty in the condemned cells last night. They know nothing of the time set for the execution. Father Creedon and Father Lynch were in the prison at midnight as was Mr. Edgerton, the prison chaplain. They will join the condemned some time before the hour set for the execution. They will probably be the first to know of the hour is.



JOSEPH WOOD.

Hope for Wood.

At 1 a. m. Colonel Haire and George C. Hooper arrived from New York city. Haire is attorney for Wood and Hooper attorney for Slocum. They drove immediately to the prison. Mr. Haire had in his pocket a certified copy of the petition for habeas corpus filed by him with Judge Lacombe. Hooper had no papers with him. The guards stopped the two attorneys at the terrace until Head Keeper Connaughton came forward and gave Mr. Haire permission to enter and interview the warden. Haire soon left the building to find a notary public for the purpose of swearing to the petition. He returned with the same in support of his claim for a stay. The warden refused to make any statement until Haire's return.

The Witnesses at the Killing.

Twenty-two persons who will be present at the first killing were in Sing Sing prison last night. They were Dr. Carlos F. McDonald, president of the state board of charities; Professor L. B. Landy, of Columbia college, an eminent nerve specialist; Dr. Alphonse D. Rockwell, therapeutical expert, of Buffalo; Dr. Franklin Town send, an eminent practitioner, of Albany; Dr. Samuel B. Ward, of Albany, formerly Grover Cleveland's physician; Dr. R. H Southwick, the Buffalo dentist, who is the father of the law under which the killing will be done; Dr. Charles E. Daniels, of Buffalo, the post mortem examiner, who directed the autopsy on Kemmler's body; Deputy Attorney General Hogan, who will directly represent the state; Dr. Hiram Baker, of Sing Sing; Warden Charles Durston, of Auburn prison; Father Jeremiah Creedon and the Rev. Silas W. Edgerton, prison chaplains; Father Hogan assistant pastor of St. Augustine's church; Electrician E. F. Davis, who will throw the plant on the fatal hour; Warden William T. Brown, of Sing Sing prison, and seven deputies chosen from among the guards of the prison.

The brutal animal instincts that led Jugiro to murder Must Counsel have been awakened in the case that he will never go to the chair, but will kill himself. When trying to place him in a barber's chair to shave him he fought so that it had to be given up. It is thought he will try to kill the guards who take him. He thinks he is to be placed in the chair and torn to pieces. He has been brooding over the pictures in a magazine for a week and wherever a chair appears he has turned a leaf down.

He May Try Murder.

Some time ago Jugiro was taken to the barber to have his hair cut. He did not want to go. When he had gone in Jugiro fell upon him. Other guards came to the assistance of their companion. Then a battle began that showed how powerful Jugiro is. He threw the guards right and left. They used their clubs, but that did not quiet him. It took a dozen men to hold him until shackles were put on. Since then Jugiro has been morose and quarrelsome.

Certain officials of the prison say that Jugiro will try to kill the man who enters the cell to take him out.

Troubles of the Reporters.

From midnight until the warden arrived the newspaper men were permitted to occupy the front steps of the prison and the prison office. His son was in charge during that time. When the warden reached town himself he came at once to the jail. Five minutes after he had got inside Principal Keeper Connaughton came out, and in an apologetic way began to point out the beauties of the site across the street on the grass or the stone wall. Then the men with Winchesters came out and relieved the guards who had been on duty all night. From that time on the street was closed to the newspaper men. If a man stepped toward the middle of the street a rifle was pointed at him and he was ordered to "Go back! Go back!"

The guards were impudent. One named Baker, who comes from Newburg, the town where the warden comes from, in reply to a civil question asked by a man who had the right to the information he declined to answer.

"That's none of your business. Go back there. Ain't you got orders to keep off of here?"

The Warden Criticised.

The warden's interpretation of the law is receiving a good deal of comment just now. He says that because the law contains a clause that the papers shall not print facts, it is his duty to prevent them from getting the facts. His duty, he thinks, makes him a press dictator. He has even gone so far as to say he will not make public the names of the witnesses after the execution is over.

This means that he assumes he has the right to take human life and make every one take his word without any corroboration that it was done in a legal way.

The placing of his men with Winchester rifles to shoot down men who are doing their duty in a place where they have a right with every other citizen of the state to be caps the climax.

Conduct of the Murderers.

The day saw little difference in the bearing of the condemned men. They understand, or at least three of them, Wood, Smiler and Slocum do, that this is the first day of their last week of life, and they know that provide the guards in the wooden death chamber is but a few hours away. Yet their demeanor is not perceptibly changed.

Possibly they are a little more religiously inclined, but for the last few days all of them except the stalwart and stubborn Jap have given little heed to other things than their preparation for that one supreme instant before oblivion overtakes them. Of the three men who are ready for the coming of the mysterious bolt of death, Wood, the negro, is best prepared and is most confident. The religion which he professes seems to be the strongest in the false ring which marks so many of the professed conversions under such distressing circumstances. He says on meeting death at a specified time seems not to have been the great influencing motive in Wood's profession.

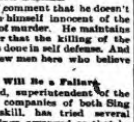
He says he does have embraced religion willingly and gladly at the very first opportunity. So the time at which he shall be called from his cell and asked to walk through that door to his death matters not much to Wood.

In Self Defense.

It is worthy of comment that he doesn't cease to proclaim himself innocent of the frightful charge of murder. He maintains as stoutly as ever that the killing of the Italian Ruffi was done in self defense. And there are not a few man here who believe him.

Thinks It Will Be a Failure.

N. B. Nostrand, superintendent of the electric lighting companies of both Sing Sing and Peekskill, has tried several times to have things arranged so that he can be present at the killing of the four men. He is an expert electrician, and has made a study of the effect of electricity on human beings. He would like to get into the prison as a scientist, but he will not be admitted. He has examined the entire electrical plant in Sing Sing prison.



JUGIRO.

"The boilers and engine are more powerful than those in use at Auburn," said Mr. Nostrand. "The dynamo is a perfect apparatus. It will generate 2,000 volts, and 2,000 volts will be shot into the men who sit in the chair. I do not think the killing will be a success.

"It is almost impossible to get a perfect contact. The sponges will be dried and possibly burned. I do not think death will be instantaneous in every case. If any one man has a weak heart and gets excited the chances are that he will die at the first shock. With the strong men—Jugiro and Wood—it will be different. They will not die easily. The electric current will have to be applied longer to them, and I believe trouble may be expected."

Mr. Nostrand says that he has one directly connected with an electric lighting company will be a witness to the killing.

REMEMBERED TOO WELL

A Diamond Thief Captured at the Astor House.

HE CAME BACK AFTER THE GEMS.

The Clerk Recognized Him When He Asked for the Box of Diamonds and Inspector Byrnes' Men Soon Had the Young Thief in Their Clutches.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A nice young man dressed in faultless style and showing by his bronzed face that he had been having a glorious time somewhere in the open air came to the Astor House last night and asked for a room. He smiled at the clerk in a familiar way and held out his hand like an old acquaintance. "Forgotten me, old man?" he said, cheerily. "Valdes—E. Valdes, you know. Had a room here last January. Ah! you remember."

Remember? The clerk been beamed with Forgotten Valdes—E. Val*des! The very thought* made the clerk grin all over. "Well, well," he said, when d'ye get back?"

He Left a Package.

"Just returned old man. Been to Europe. Skipped right over to the pond when I left you. By the way, I left a package here. Remember? Here's the check for it."

"Remember? well, I should smile. Ha! ha!" thought the clerk to himself, but he did not say so. He only thought it and smiled.

"Guess we can find it," he said. "How would y' like room 303. Same one y' had before, remember?"

"Front," called the clerk, and then to the colored boy, who responded: "Take the gentleman up to 303. I'll send the package up to you, Mr. Valdes."

He Called Inspector Byrnes.

When E. Valdes had disappeared up the corridor, the clerk pinched himself to make sure he was awake. Then he laughed. Then he called over a porter and said: "John, run up to police headquarters and tell Inspector Byrnes Mr. E. Valdes has come back." John did so, and came back in about an hour with two detectives, who were grinning from ear to ear. The clerk sent them up to 303. They knocked at the door.

"Come in," came languidly from within. The officers entered, and through a cloud of cigarette smoke saw E. Valdes.

"Got the package? Put it over there on the— Oh, beg pardon, gentlemen, I thought—well, what is it? What do you want?"

The detectives looked at him and the young man turned pale and his bronzed face looked ghastly. "No fooling," young man," said the detective. "Come along. You're wanted for diamond robbery."

The Story of His Crime.

Thereat E. Valdes nearly fainted, but they revived him and took him away a prisoner. A reporter called at the hotel just after this happened and found the clerk still grinning. The clerk was good humored.

"Best thing you ever heard," he said. "Do you remember E. Valdes, the young fellow who stole about $30,000 worth of diamonds last January? You know he came here and registered as E. Naldes, of St. Louis, and asked me to keep a package for him. He didn't go to his room that night, but took a steamer to Europe. A few days afterward we learned of the diamond robbery, and we found the missing diamonds in the package.

"Of course we returned them to their rightful owner, and kept an eye open for E. Valdes, but he did not come back until last night."

The diamonds belonged to Lewisohn & Co., diamond importers at 41 Maiden lane. The young man's name turned off was William C. Duncan, and he is a nephew of Congressman R. H. Whitelaw, of Cape Girardeau, Mo. He was a member of Talmage's church of the Tabernacle Men's Christian association in Brooklyn, and was secretary of the Elliot Dramatic association of the same city.

He is only twenty years old, though he looks a few years older. He was assistant salesman for Lewisohn & Co., and was often intrusted with large amounts of diamonds.

On Jan. 22 he left the store with $30,000 worth of stones in his possession, and he returned like a lost sheep with a cock and bull story about having delivered them to Howard & Co., Theodore B. Starr, Thomas Kirkpatrick and other big diamond dealers. He was promptly suspected, and then the theft came to light. He had not been heard from since.

TWELVE MORE VICTIMS.

A Report That the Havana Horror Was Larger.

ALLIANCE, O., July 7.—Sensational developments concerning the wreck on the Erie railroad at Ravenna last Friday will probably be made before Coroner Sherman, who also resumed his inquiry. Considerable excitement was occasioned this morning by a rumor that Conductor Boynton's report of the tickets sold showed that twelve people were yet unaccounted for, though some may have left without making themselves known. Conductor Boynton is firmly of the opinion that persons not yet known were entirely consumed in the fire, and that his son, who was the negligent flagman supposed to have been the cause of the wreck, was one of the victims.

Those who visited the wreck on Friday morning noticed pieces of burned flesh lying about the ruins. It is too small to be identified as belonging to any part of a human body. The bodies have all been taken away except that of the nurse who was killed in the sleeper. Her name was Miss Mamie Kennan, in the employ of Ignatius Kuget, of Cincinnati. The child she had with her was a little boy, instead of a girl, as reported. Sixteen bodies were taken to Corning, one to Brooklyn, N. Y., and one to Cincinnati.

Gossip from Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 7.—Attorney General Miller arrived in the afternoon as the guest of the president. Postmaster General Wanamaker arrived at the cottage. WEDDING BELLS AT WINDSOR.

Brilliant Marriage of Princess Louise and Prince Aribert.

LONDON, July 7.—The wedding of the Princess Louise was one of the most magnificent spectacles ever witnessed in Windsor. Multitudes from London and other places packed the town, and St. George's chapel was choked with the wedding guests, their brilliant attire forming a scene of splendor unequaled since the marriage of the late Prince Leopold in 1882. Guards of honor were mounted at the castle and at the chapel, and the road down Castle Hill was lined with guards.

First in the procession came the representatives of the princely house of Anhalt-Dessau. Then followed twelve carriages containing the kaiser, the kaiserin, the Prince and Princess of Wales, with the Princesses Victoria and Maud, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duke Connaught, Prince Henry and the Princess Beatrice of Battenberg, and Louise, Duchess of Fife. The third in the procession was the Prince Aribert, the bridegroom, and his attendants. Then came her majesty Queen Victoria, who was received with the utmost applause.

The bride, accompanied by her father, Prince Christian, and the young Prince Christian, her brother, followed the queen.

The dais in front of the altar was covered with a magnificent blue carpet, which rested the seats of velvet and gold for the members of the royal and imperial families.

The Prince of Wales escorted the German empress into the chapel. The empress wore a sea-green moire antique. They were preceded by the emperor escorting the Princess of Wales, whose bodice sparkled with German orders, and who wore a splendid parure of diamonds. Queen Victoria was attired in simple black, with a coronet of diamonds.

The bridegroom came next with his two brothers, Prince Frederic and Prince Edward. They were led to the altar by the royal chamberlain, and were soon followed by the bride, her father and her brother.

The bridal dress was of white, bordered by orange blossoms, the skirt draped with Honiton lace and the girdle with white flowers. The bridesmaids wore white silver ostrich plumes in their hair; their skirts were of white satin, with silver girdles. The archbishop of Canterbury officiated. The answers of the bride were indistinct.

It is reported tonight that the Duke Gunther, brother of the kaiserin, is paying assiduous court to the Princess Maud, daughter of the Prince of Wales, and that both the prince and the kaiser are favorable to a marriage of the pair should the latter be satisfied.

DREW ASKED TO RESIGN.

The Examiner Says His Bad Mistake Was Clearly an Accident.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Controller Lacey has written to Bank Examiner Drew requesting his resignation. No reply has been received from Drew. The correspondence between Controller Lacey and Drew has been made public. Under date of June 29 the controller asked Drew to explain why he had omitted state in his report of Jan. 24, 1891, that the Keystone bank owed the clearing house $544,851.46, and had deposited as security fifty pieces of its notes and bills amounting to $729,208.93, which assets were then held by the clearing house committee and were not in the custody of the bank.

The following day Drew replied: "I was confounded at the omission, and I can account for it only that, purposely not inquiring it in the space, I intended to include and explain it in my letter, which, it appears, I failed, to do, although the memoranda for my letter contained reference to the subject. In my later reports it was not omitted. The omission was clearly an accident, but was no less calculated greatly to offend. As stated in my letter of the 24th, I committed the error formal and incomplete in many respects, owing to the fact that many of the accounts were then, for some time afterward, undergoing verification, but notwithstanding these embarrassments the omission referred to should not have occurred, and would not have occurred, except by accident as stated. I need not add how greatly I regret the inadvertence."

On July 2 Controller Lacey said he had placed the matter in the hands of Secretary He adds: "As a result the conclusion was reached that so important an omission, after fifteen days investigation of the bank, is not consistent with the confidence which must necessarily be reposed by the department in the reports of those appointed to make examination of the national banks. By direction of the secretary I have therefore to request that you forward to this office your resignation as an examiner of national banks. I cannot close this communication without assuring you of my sincere regret that anything should have occurred which would render necessary the severing of your official relations with this bureau."

Philadelphia Wants Marsh.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—At the meeting of the Clearing House association both the Keystone and the Spring Garden National banks were dropped from membership. Mayor Fitler made public his letter to President Harrison, which accompanied a resolution of councils asking for government aid in arresting Marsh.

Close of the Saengerfest.

NEWARK, N. J., July 7.—Caledonian and Hayes parks were but little less crowded with singers and visitors than on the two previous days of the grand saengerfest. The evening concert consisted of an overture "Ruy Blas," from Mendelssohn; a grand chorus, "Glory to God," and the finale to an end. It has been decided to hold the next grand saengerfest in New York city.

The Waters Receding.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—At the Southern Pacific company headquarters it was positively stated that the water which has been flowing into Indio basin and the Colorado desert has not interfered with their line. The water continues to recede, and it is confidently stated that there will be no interruption to the traffic.

An Informer Rewarded.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Acting Secretary Nettleton has directed that S. C. Osborn, of New York city, be rewarded for informing on Henry Metz, of Palmyra, Ill., for violating the alien contract labor law. Mr. Metz was fined $1,000. The law provides that the informer shall receive 25 per cent. of the judgment recovered.

WRECKED BY THE WINDS

Ten Persons Killed by the Baton Rouge Cyclone.

CONVICTS WERE CRUSHED TO DEATH

A Portion of a Penitentiary and About Fifty Houses Were Blown Down and Many People Wounded—The Storm Swept Down Everything Before It.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 7.—Although the first reports of the cyclone in this city were somewhat exaggerated and stated that forty people had been killed this reliably proves to be bad enough, for the capital of Louisiana is almost in ruins and ten or more people were killed and many wounded. The cyclone struck the city at 6:30 a. m. Great damage was done to buildings in the eastern and southern portions of the city, and the governor's mansion was demolished. The large brick yard and factory with a wing of the three story brick building in the penitentiary known as the hospital and commissary with a pants factory on the upper floor was blown down and totally destroyed.

Ten Were Killed.

Forty persons were at work in the factory, and of these six were killed and twenty-two were wounded and horribly crushed. On the second floor was the hospital, where twenty-six persons were under medical treatment. Four of these were killed and fourteen seriously or fatally wounded. The alarm bells were rung and the fire department responded, and with citizens to the rescue of the unfortunates. The scene was one of awful horror. A violent rain was falling, but the men worked hard, and soon had the dead and injured out of the debris. The names of the killed are:

A List of the Dead.

Isaac McClelland, of Calcasieu parish; J. M. Wagoner, of Ouachita parish; Frederick Gage, of Ouachita; James Van Netter, of Nachitoches; John Gibson, of Orleans; Nathan Chauncey, of Red Feliciana; Henry Colenbach, of Orleans; Edward Buckner, of Caddo; William Willow, of Orleans; Boregard Hardon, of Bossitor.

Thirty-six Injured.

The wounded are: Louis V. Claire, M. J. Finnigan, Harry McKay, James Molle, John Duffy, John O'Leary, James Villere, Charles Bannister-gold, John Olsen, all white, of New Orleans; Jake Jones, James Jackson, Major White and William Gibson (colored), of New Orleans; Joseph Powell, C. M. Young, T. S. Stewart, Gus Black, A. L. Garnett, D. A. Campbell, Marion Perkins, Felix Richards, J. R. Hunter, Walter Douglass, John Daley, Frank Aaron, John Fariand, Moelle O'Neil and Alexander Worrell (white), from different parishes; Jerome Phillips, William Perry, Henry Dobson, Gerie Petterson, Robert Comanzz, Hannibal Allen and William Scott (colored). Total wounded, thirty-six, of whom six will probably not live, and seven others are in a very critical state.

Ex-Judge Ford Worked Gallantly.

The main building and the woman's department of the institution were uncovered and the walls badly cracked. The damage to the building is about $80,000. Ex-Judge Ford, convicted for complicity in the murder of Capt. Murphy, worked gallantly at rescuing the killed and wounded. He is clerk of the commissary department. The prisoners all acted in a praiseworthy manner and gave the guards no trouble. The loss to Steckly & Co. was wrecked on the river about five miles from Baton Rouge. All the upper works of the steamer were blown away, but the hull remains unsinkable hull floating in the river. The path of the storm was about 300 feet wide and nearly every house in its path was blown to atoms. A large proportion of the city several persons were injured by flying timbers.

Fifty Houses Destroyed.

Nearly fifty houses at least were unroofed or destroyed. J. H. Young and members of his family were seriously hurt by the collapse of their house on Charles street. Mrs. Cotton, wife and two daughters, living in a brick house on Main street, were injured by a falling building. Mrs. Cotton received a blow which wound on the back of her head and internal injuries.

The Path of the Storm.

The storm approached from a southwesterly direction and swept a path 300 feet or more in width diagonally across the city, leveling everything as it went.

The capitol and other state building were unharmed, as was also the business portion of the town on Main and Fero streets. The total damage done will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

A number of narrow escapes are reported. Charley Day was in his father's drug store when it collapsed, and although the room was turned upside down and the timbers twisted in every direction he escaped with a slight bruise on the forehead. Jacob Baum, Sr., and family were covered by the ruins of their house, but were rescued by friends.

A Cow Better than a Nag.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., July 7.—The preparations are now completed for a gigantic convention of homeseekers in this city next Saturday. The presence of over $200,000 cattle on the Cherokee strip has aroused the people. Jerry Simpson and Senator Peffer have promised to make addresses. The promoters of the meeting say the country must be settled at once or they will open it by force. A Texas longhorn cow has long enough been considered better than a poor man wanting a home.

Treasurer Adams' Arrest.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Henry C. Adams, treasurer of the Universalist Relief Fund for Disabled Officers of the Church, has been arrested in a civil suit for $17,000, which is the alleged amount of his deficit. The suit is brought at the instance of the board of trustees. Adams was committed. Counsel for Adams says the fund is all right and that there is simply a misunderstanding.

Attacked by Burglars.

READING, Pa., July 7.—Isaac Koch, a switchman at the Montello yards, Philadelphia & Reading Railroad station, was attacked by four men shortly after 1 a. m., shot at and clubbed into submission. They then began an attack on the safe. Meanwhile Koch's cries for assistance brought some neighbors and caused the burglars to beat a hasty retreat.

A Young Girl Abducted.

Well Known Pittsburg People in Trouble

PITTSBURG, July 7.—Informations have been made against A. L. Douthett, the secretary and treasurer of the Porter-Douthett company, for embezzlement, falsifying the books of the association, fraudulently converting money to his own use, altering the books, fraudulently applying money of the association and other demeanor in falsifying the books. In all there are eleven informations, and the sum involved is $13,700.

There is a sensation in the Allegheny church. Thomas Porter Brown, connected with Pittsburg and Allegheny families of wealth, and well known in the Fourth United Presbyterian church on the north side, is behind the bars awaiting a hearing on a charge of embezzlement. He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of Allegheny dry goods and carpet merchant.

The firm discovered that Brown had appropriated considerable money by making false returns of sales, receipting bills, etc. Brown admitted his guilt and seemed grateful for an opportunity to save his name. Startling discoveries after the statements were sent out on July 1 led to his arrest.

A DRESSMAKING CLASS.

A SCHOOL IN BROOKLYN WHERE GIRLS ARE TAUGHT TO SEW.

A Place to Learn How to Design and Make Pretty Costumes—The Practical Questions Where Teachers and Lecturers Receive Their Education.

Seeing a wealthy, traveled, elegant young woman recently, in a very pretty costume of her own designing and making in the school for dressmaking, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, led the writer to visit this department of the institute, as well as those in which millinery and cooking are taught.

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are visiting days.

There are three graded courses in the dressmaking department, which occupy three light, cheerful rooms of the upper part of the house; airy and sweet, and furnished with every requisite for good and perfect work. There are historical plates of costumes on the walls, blackboards for demonstrations of designs, exhibits of free hand drawing, long tables for cutting out work and comfortable chairs for workers.

As a preliminary instruction for the course stitchery in all its branches is taught. Picture to yourself some twenty-five stitchery young girls sitting at rows of desks, or little tables, facing a desk at one end of the room, where a teacher at the moment is giving a lecture on the proper method of making and inserting a gusset, an angular piece of cloth for strengthening some part of a garment.

It happens now to be a little bit of white muslin, which the teacher is manipulating, turning and twisting in her fingers, folding it in proper shape, turning down the corners, and showing where it should be gathered in the center, the whole dissertation being listened to with quick interest, and followed in each case by the pupils, each girl having her bit of cloth to experiment upon.

DRESSMAKING FROM COPY.

All the requirements of stitching are made upon materials, patches of cloth, furnished them by the school. Later, when the pupil is an adept in sewing, she makes undergarments with a degree of elegance equal to those made by the French nuns. She is now prepared to enter the lowest of the dressmaking rooms.

Her draughts are made from measurement for bosques or waists, which is demonstrated on the blackboard by the teacher, the pupil making a copy on brown paper, which is used as a pattern.

If the teacher finds the copy perfect the pupil cuts it in white cotton; it is basted and tried on. Here, too, the pupil is taught freehand drawing and to harmonize colors, as well as the beauty of proper lines. In another room the draping of a skirt and all the arts of finishing a costume are developed. Beautiful tea gowns, dinner and street dresses were basting in a case which had been made by the class, the materials having been furnished by the pupils, who had made each costume for herself or some friend with a slip of the mode, as the most reliable fashion books are consulted as to the style of these garments.

A design is made first for each costume, which is the work of the pupil, and painted in water colors. She may conventionalize her pattern from half a dozen fashion plates, or copy some one plate, and, if approved by the teacher, copy it in expensive or less costly materials. There is a harmony and beauty in these dresses which resemble the costumes made by the French modistes. An important feature of each of the courses is the talks on hygiene, and upon the selection of fabrics, and harmony of color and form in dress.

ALSO MILLINERY.

In the millinery department some very pretty materials were scattered on the long tables which were being made up by the class after the various designs for head adornments in vogue—bonnets, round hats, toques, etc.—some as light as gossamer wings and others of heavier materials. The first lessons are demonstrated in cotton flannel of light colors, but in the finishing room elegant materials are used. Here again the becoming is taught, nature's lines, the features, the coloring and harmonizing all together. This is, indeed, a fine art, and one which milliners rarely possess. Here, too, all the fine materials are the property of the pupils. The teachers are adepts in their trade. During the year 250 pupils have been in this department. Fifteen dollars is charged for three months' course for day scholars and nine dollars for the evening classes. About the same tuition is charged for instruction in dressmaking. There are also free classes in both kinds of instruction.

Neither of the classes is taught every day, as they are divided to accommodate all the pupils. In both classes are rich girls who learn these trades or arts through preference, girls of moderate means who learn how to make stylish garments at a moderate rate, and poor girls who are sent by some benevolent people to gain a means of honest livelihood. There are women of middle age and young girls who sit together at the long tables, each equally in earnest as to the manufacture of a bonnet.

There are so many visitors on visiting days, and they ask so many questions of the pupils, that a printed notice is conspicuously placed to inform strangers that such conversation is not allowed. The visitor here learns for the first time, perhaps, that a properly constructed, graceful bonnet or round hat is designed from classic lines, beginning with the form of a stylist.—E. E. Dickinson in New York Continent.

Women as Floriculturists.

"During the past five years," said a well known florist, "a number of women have taken to the cultivation of flowers as a business. The census bureau claims that there are over 900 floral establishments owned and managed by women. I know of my own are in the town within ten miles of this city. They are successful in raising flowers for the market, but in almost every case they are merely carrying on the business left them by husbands or other male relatives.

"One young German woman of Union Hill, the second wife of a well-to-do gardener who died shortly after marriage, took hold of the business and has built up an immense trade. She studies the market closely, and varies her stock in accordance with the demand, keeping always a little in advance of her competitors. Her energy and enterprise are remarkable and really account for her great success."—New York Telegram.

There are people who feel an interest in the great subject of the restoration to fallen man, and more particularly in the sin, or that lost possession, the prehensile toe. Miss Dowie, the Carpathian girl, describes a woman's foot finely: "A woman is handling around the room with her splendid bare feet. Every toe comes into play when the foot goes down, and is active and independent in a way that our insular toes are not, even when divested of their constraining boots."

How to Clean Furniture.

Rub with cotton waste dipped in boiled linseed oil; then rub clean and dry with a soft flannel cloth.

How to Mend Rubber Overshoes.

Rub the patch and shoe thoroughly with sharp sand paper. Smear both with liquid rubber five times, every time letting them dry. Do this once more, and before they dry apply the patch with pressure, and the shoe is mended. If liquid rubber is not obtainable dissolve small pieces of pure rubber (not vulcanized) in warm spirits of turpentine to the consistency of syrup.

How to Make Coffee.

There are numberless recipes for making a good cup of coffee, but perhaps the most delicious product of the bean can be obtained in this way: Take of freshly ground Java and Mocha, in equal parts, one ounce; pour over it sufficient cold water to thoroughly saturate the coffee; then add the white of one egg—together with the shell—and mix well together. This paste is now put into the coffee pot, and boiling water (about one quart) poured upon it. The pot is then placed over the fire, where it is allowed to boil for about half a minute, after which it is allowed to rest for five minutes. The coffee is then ready. It is clear as crystal, and the addition of a spoonful of thick cream, instead of hot milk, with sugar to the taste, makes a cup of coffee fit for the gods.

How to Prevent Cramps in the Legs.

A great many persons suffer from cramps in the calf of the leg at night time. Sometimes the pains are so severe that the leg is affected for several days afterward. A very simple preventive of this unpleasantness is to raise that part of the bed where the feet lie, so that they will rest a little higher than the head. That is all. Try it, you who are subject to nightly cramps.

How to Preserve Your Hat.

Many men believe that brushing a hat wears it out and quickly destroys the nap. This is a fallacy. The dust and dirt and grease are primarily responsible for hats quickly becoming shabby. Never put on your hat without brushing it with a soft brush (whisk brooms injure it), and when you lay it aside take care also that no dust remains upon it. Attend to these simple rules and your hats will last twice as long and look respectable even when they are nearly worn out.

Measure the shadow it casts on level ground. Then place a staff upright in the ground, measure its length above ground and the length of its shadow. Then form the proportion: As the shadow of the staff is to its height, so is the shadow of the pole or other perpendicular object to its height.

How to Destroy Bed Bugs.

Rub the joints of the bedsteads with equal parts of spirits of turpentine and kerosene oil. Where the insects are numerous the cracks of the surbase in the rooms should be treated in the same way.

How to Preserve Eggs.

To each pailful of water add two pints of fresh slaked lime and one pint of common salt and mix well. Fill a barrel half full with this fluid and put your eggs down in it any time after and before January. They will keep two years.

How it Feels to Drop 2,000 Feet.

One of the parachute jumpers compares the sensation to that of being upset in a river. They shoot down 500 feet before they realize they are loose from the balloon. Thereafter the remainder of the descent is easy. It does not jar until the ground is struck. In fact there is less jarring to the system than if one jumped off a six foot fence.

How to Disguise the Taste of Medicine.

A strong solution of extract of licorice destroys the disagreeable taste of aloes. Peppermint water disguises the nauseous taste of Epsom salts. Milk is a good shatter of the bitter taste of Peruvian bark, and cloves that of senna. Castor oil cannot be tasted if beaten and thoroughly mixed with the white of an egg. Another method of covering the nauseous taste of castor or cod liver oil is to put a tablespoonful of strained orange juice in a wine glass, pour the oil into the center of the juice, then squeeze a few drops of lemon juice upon the oil and rub some of the juice on the edge of the glass.

How to Clean Feathers.

Make a lather of soap and hot water and pearl ash and wash the feathers, squeezing them gently in it when lukewarm. Rinse in cold water, shaking well before, but not too near, the fire. Curl by drawing each fiber over the blunt edge of a fruit knife.

How to Make Sun Cholera Mixture.

This excellent mixture is made of tincture of capsicum, two ounces; tincture of camphor, two ounces; tincture of opium, two ounces; tincture of rhubarb, two ounces; tincture of peppermint, two ounces. The dose is a teaspoonful in water after each evacuation of the bowels.

How the Chinese Preserve Grapes.

They cut a circular piece out of a ripe pumpkin or gourd, making an aperture large enough to admit the hand. The interior is cleaned out, the ripe grapes placed inside and the cover replaced and pressed in firmly. The pumpkins are then put in a cool place, and the grapes retain their freshness for a long time. Careful selection of the pumpkin is requisite, the common field pumpkin, however, being well adapted for the purpose.

THE OLD HOME.

I stand into the old, old home,
With silent, solemn pace;
For the dwellings of my childhood days
Is now a haunted place.
And the voices of my youth
Round forth before my mind,
With shadowy fingers beckoning
To what is left behind.

I list for sounds where all is still,
For voices that are gone;
But I only hear my echoed tread
And the breeze's hollow moan.
I reach the door, but ghosts move
Amid the twilight gloom;
But I only see my shadow dark
Flung wide across the room.

And as I wander sadly on,
A thousand fancies throng;
I see my mother's angel face
That's vanished years ago.
I see the forms of those I loved,
Old friends of happier years;
And as I pass, my aching heart
Overflows in flooding tears.

Oh, home, old home—though art not here!
Thy shadow only stays;
Those met in these silent rooms,
These lone, deserted ways.
But where the friends of other days
Have gone I cannot tell;
Where smiling forms of those I loved
Are waiting—Home is there.

HE MADE BABY SLEEP.

How a Hard Hearted Man Declared War on a Screaming Infant and Won.

It is a paradoxical fact that the only persons who know exactly how children should be brought up are the people who never have any.

Now there is a reason for everything, especially for a paradox, and the reason which presents itself in this case is that the sentimentality indulged in by the overfond mother too often overbalances her good sense and good judgment.

There is a man in New York who had pranced around nights waiting on young household tyrants and catering to the foolish sentimentality of the mother till he was tired of it.

In vain he begged her to let the stout lunged scion of recent date cry it out when he roused the neighborhood in the middle of the night to promote entertainment for his benefit.

The foolish hearted mother feared the combat with a one-year-old despot, whose persistence she was familiar with. But when a man entertains an idea to the extent of turning it three or four times over in his mind you may look for results. The Sunday following the idea became a resolution.

Mr. Baby had been in the habit of being rocked to sleep for his daily nap—it was a favor he bestowed as a reward for the patience of the rocker—he slept when he couldn't longer prop his eyelids up. He was therefore very much amazed that Sunday after his mother had gone to church, when he was placed in bed, a bottle of milk put in his hand and he was told to go to sleep.

He swallowed the milk without stopping for breath, and then rose up and indulged in a vigorous howl. The man on the outside of the door believed in filling up the internal organism, so again he filled the bottle, and this time strapped the youthful enthusiast on his back on a pillow and left him. But after swallowing the second installment of lacteal refreshment the combatant began to come up—pillow and all—and while promenading about on the bed with some difficulty, sent up his voice in a mighty volume.

The father looked about to see that the windows were all secure. Then he went in and strapped another pillow on the front of the discomfort of the Sunday peace. By this time Mr. Baby perceived that war was declared. His stubby arms and legs struck out right and left, accompanied with muffled but vigorous howls. The clock moved along toward the hour for the mother to return. The man on the outside thought it was late. Certain facts presented themselves to his mind in a new light. He began to understand his wife's reluctance to the plan.

Then he went to the back of the house and blackened his shoes. He polished them very carefully, to consume as much time as possible, and when the doorbell rang he started guiltily, half expecting a vigilance committee from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The man had ceased, and when his wife entered he was calmly reading the paper, and there were only strangled sobs coming at regular intervals from the sleeping infant's throat to tell the tale. And she was a woman of comprehension, and she knew there had been a conflict.

Again that night a determined man repeated the contest of the morning—but it was a brief one—and before he went to his business the next morning he wrested a solemn vow from the mother that she would repeat the experiment at the hour for the nap.

The vanquished enemy of personal comfort gave one long, despairing note of surrender, and that was the last of it.

There is a great deal of sentimentality wasted on small children by sympathetic and foolish parents. That is the reason why old maids and bachelors and childless people really do know a great deal better how to bring up a child than its parents do.—New York Evening Sun.

About Packing.

Collect everything all over the house that belongs to you. Take everything out of closets and drawers, and put everything on the bed or where you can see it. Place heavy articles like books and boots at the bottom. Now fold neatly but rapidly all your clothes in shapes just the size of the trunk; and lay them in, pressing each down firmly. Sit on them if necessary. Do not leave room by wrapping up things in paper. Put nothing superfluous into your box, and reject whatever you have really done with. As the end draws near keep calm.

Do not get excited, and remember that as all your things came in that box they must go into it again. Remember your sponge, toothbrushes, etc., for it is absurd to have bags or cases for these things and take them away empty. Button your boots before locking your trunk unless you have a pocket buttoner. Otherwise you will have the trouble of unlocking it again to take out that excellent buttoning tool with a long handle.

Look around your room before leaving it, and even open the upper bureau drawer once more. This is a precaution, for you are sure you emptied it. Yet very often you find you have left something in it, perhaps your purse, which is useful in traveling. Delay them no longer, but go directly down stairs. Say goodby, and get into the wagon without exclaiming: "Oh, my umbrella! I left it up stairs. No; here it is in my hand!"—Susan Hale in Boston Globe.

Jem Smith has gone into training for his match with Ted Pritchard. The fight will be looked forward to with interest owing to the great disparity in weight between the men.

The Naughty Little Girl.

She is cunning, she is tricky
I am grossly grieved to tell,
And her hands are always sticky
With chocolate caramel;
Her daddy's fondness
Tell of many a frantic hurl,
She's the terror of her teachers,
That naughty little girl!

She dotes upon molasses,
And on the cookies them on my knees,
And she peppers my Havanas,
And she tangles the skeins of yarn for me;
And she steals into my study
And she turns my books a-whirl,
And her boots are always muddy—
That naughty little girl!

When she looks as she were dreaming
Of the angels in the air,
I know she's only scheming
How to slyly pull my hair;
Yet—why I can't discover—
I gather her tangled curl,
She's a darling and I love her—
That naughty little girl!
—Home Queen.

A Boy Went A-fishing.

The boy's fishing pole was fastened under the roof of a tree on the river bank the other day, and he was sitting in the sun playing with a dog.

"Fishing?" inquired a man passing along the road.

"Yep," answered the boy, as briefly.

"Nice dog you've got there. What's his name?"

"Fish."

"Fish? That's a queer name for a dog. What do you call him that for?"

"'Cause he won't bite."

Then the man proceeded on his way.

A Clever Cow.

I saw a curious thing one day when out walking with a friend. We were in the country and paused during our walk a number of large orchards. We noticed that the cows that were feeding in these orchards had learned to get fastened cows by a kind of bearing rein so they could nip the grass but could not raise their heads to eat the branches of the trees or the fruit thereon.

ONE WAY TO SHAKE AN APPLE TREE.

While we were looking we noticed a cow go up to an apple tree and wedge in the stem between her horns and neck and deliberately shake the tree, bringing down a shower of apples. This done, the clever cow and her companions ate the fruit and then she went to another tree and shook that, and so on. The common cow did all the shaking, and the funny thing was that she never attempted to shake an old, stiff tree, but always selected a young one that would shake easily.

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer this superior article, known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

The Naughty Little Girl.

She is cunning, she is tricky
I am grossly grieved to tell,
And her hands are always sticky
With chocolate caramel;
Her daddy's fondness
Tell of many a frantic hurl,
She's the terror of her teachers,
That naughty little girl!

She dotes upon molasses,
And on the cookies them on my knees,
And she peppers my Havanas,
And she tangles the skeins of yarn for me;
And she steals into my study
And she turns my books a-whirl,
And her boots are always muddy—
That naughty little girl!

When she looks as she were dreaming
Of the angels in the air,
I know she's only scheming
How to slyly pull my hair;
Yet—why I can't discover—
I gather her tangled curl,
She's a darling and I love her—
That naughty little girl!

A Boy Went A-fishing.

The boy's fishing pole was fastened under the roof of a tree on the river bank the other day, and he was sitting in the sun playing with a dog.

"Fishing?" inquired a man passing along the road.

"Yep," answered the boy, as briefly.

"Nice dog you've got there. What's his name?"

"Fish."

"Fish? That's a queer name for a dog. What do you call him that for?"

"'Cause he won't bite."

Then the man proceeded on his way.

A Clever Cow.

I saw a curious thing one day when out walking with a friend. We were in the country and paused during our walk a number of large orchards. We noticed that the cows that were feeding in these orchards had learned to get fastened cows by a kind of bearing rein so they could nip the grass but could not raise their heads to eat the branches of the trees or the fruit thereon.

ONE WAY TO SHAKE AN APPLE TREE.

While we were looking we noticed a cow go up to an apple tree and wedge in the stem between her horns and neck and deliberately shake the tree, bringing down a shower of apples. This done, the clever cow and her companions ate the fruit and then she went to another tree and shook that, and so on. The common cow did all the shaking, and the funny thing was that she never attempted to shake an old, stiff tree, but always selected a young one that would shake easily.

FREIGHT HOUSE BREAKING.

Cranford and Fanwood the Field of the Thieves' Action.

Burglars on Saturday night broke into the freight house at Cranford and carried off a quality of goods. Emboldened by success they journeyed to Fanwood and succeeded in burglarizing that house. The railroad police have a strong clue and will probably apprehend the thieves.

A Flower Thief.

A man who was passing along Craig place and Grove street at about half-past five o'clock yesterday morning reports that he saw a man in one of the yards on that thoroughfare stealing flowers by the wholesale. The three Judges of the Court of Common Pleas have signed the writ. After the argument decision granting a new trial will probably not be given until next February. In the meantime the prisoners will remain in jail at the county's expense.—Elizabeth Herald.

Did not Favor the Chautauqua Circle

At the annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association which was held at Asbury Park last week, Principal Charles E. Boss of the North Plainfield Public schools favored the development of connection to the latter, but thought the Chautauqua of the Reading Circle had not given the right course of study. Principal Ralston, of Asbury Park, defended the Circle, and believed the teacher should be well-read in current events, the literatures, and most progressive works of the day.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE.

Mr. Smalley's Explanation of the Borough Trouble.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—To ignore your report of the proceedings of the North Plainfield Council at their last meeting would lead the public to believe that I was unworthy of patronage from any source.

I wish to present the facts alone without comment. The Council by resolution accepted my bid for stone at the lowest, with directions from the Committee to deliver it. I engaged teams to do the work with the understanding that it should be for the second. Mr. Buckle had said that should the bids be a few cents apart only on the whole work, he should have the man who furnished the stone, deliver it. After I had delivered about 300 tons, Mr. Conover came to me and said Mr. Buckle wished me to have Mr. Moore cart the stone. I would not consent and explained my position to Mr. Buckle, and he then directed me to deliver as before.

When Hegeman spoke about the proposed change, Mr. Hummer, one of the Council, said: "I don't see how they can change this contract, there's a nigger in the fence or some thing is wrong. The Committee all understand it that way."

At the next Council meeting, both Messrs. Hummer and Buckle, whose word I considered good at all times, voted to change the carting to other hands. I would not discharge the men I had engaged to do the work and allow others to conduct my business, and on those grounds only did I refuse them stone. I call on any member of that Council to produce in evidence one word said by me that would insult any business man unless he wanted the chance to be as an excuse for his actions.

The truth about the matter is that influence was brought to bear on that Committee to have them break their verbal contract with me (all that was necessary in former years) and allow the management of that Committee to fall into other hands.

Mr. Hegeman last year bought 2d size stone for the Borough for $50., and then drew it to Council in July and said that they are higher than ever when the price is 90c. In regard to my last bid, it was offered to show the fallacy of their claim for economy and it did so to perfection. All amicably that has existed with parties connected was completed by them alone. I have always stood ready to fill my part of the contract.

I believe the public will know in due time the cause for such uncalled for actions.

A. I. SMALLEY.

SOMETHING ABOUT "SHOOTS."

As Related by a German Correspondent.

On account of the quaintness of the following story, we give it precedence over the regular account of the affair:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Yesterday evening, a singular scene could be witnessed not quite hundred miles about N. Plainfield.

Every thing appeared to be peaceful and quiet. Neighbors were chatting pleasantly with their supper digestion. But will, flops over and is gone.

Perhaps this advice to our fishermen to beware of catching big fish is "love's labor lost." As a matter of fact we have no knowledge that they ever do so, but the allegations and whisper as we feel justified in tooting the horn of alarm. Our disposition is to avert calamity where possible.

Mother-in-Law and Son Fight.

Another row occurred in the boulevard last evening. The participants were James Day and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Newman. The fracas attracted a large crowd of people. Policeman Cooney arrested Day, but he was released later in the evening, he furnishing bonds in the sum of $150 for trial to-day.

Day appeared before City Judge Codington, pleaded not guilty to the charge and furnished bonds for his appearance for trial Saturday morning.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

New Brunswick's Tax Rate Lowered.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 8th, 1891. (Special.)—The city authorities fixed the tax rate for the coming year to-day. It is 2.45. Last year it was 2.65. The rate would have been much lower had it not been that the city had to pay her share of the $25,000 worth of county bonds which the Freeholders have decided to pay off this year.

Killed by a Bicycle.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8th, (Special.)—The Rev. Dr. Wm. A Shubert, a retired Episcopal minister, who came here two years ago from New Jersey, was killed last night by being thrown violently to the ground by a bicycle. The old gentleman was carried to his home and died during the night. The bicyclist is under arrest.

WHY THEY'RE NOT RELEASED.

Paroled Convicts Still in the State Prison to Stay.

On June 16 the Court of Pardons met and paroled eight State prisoners, among whom were Daniel O'Connell sent for murder, from Morris county, in January, 1887, to serve a sentence of fifteen years. Of the eight, two only have been released. These were John Lang, sentenced from Essex county to seven years, for breaking, whose term expires in October next, and John Kehler, sentenced from the same county, to seven years, for assault and battery, whose term expires in December next. The others are detained and will, in all probability, serve out their terms.

A reporter called at the prison yesterday and inquired of Keeper Patterson why the paroled prisoners had not been released.

"Have you read the rules of parole adopted by the Board of Pardons?" He asked.

The visitor had read them and so stated.

"Well," continued the keeper, "then you know that they require me to certify that a prisoner to be paroled is a good prisoner and a proper person to be set at liberty."

"I do," was the response.

"I'll tell you how the matter stands," added the keeper. "We drew up a law here last Winter for the purpose of paroling prisoners in this State. It was drawn after the Ohio law, which is a very good one, and provided for the release of men convicted of the lesser grades of crime serving their first term in this State. It made no provision for the release of men convicted of felony, or those convicted of arson, highway robbery, or the more heinous offenses. I took the bill to Governor Abbett, and he pronounced it a good one, and suggested that Senator Werts introduce it. He did so, and it was duly introduced. One day I was in the Senate chamber and Senator Werts called me over to him saying: 'Here is a substitute for your bill: take it and read it.' I went into the lobby and read it carefully, and returned it, telling him that I was opposed to the substitute, but it went through and became a law.

"Under this law the rules of the Court of Pardons, with respect to paroles, were drawn up. I understood that a certificate as to a prisoner's fitness to be released was to precede the action of the Court of Pardons, but on the 16th of June the court paroled eight prisoners, and subsequently sent the papers to me to be subscribed. I simply refused to sign them, with the exception of the cases of Lang and Kehler, whose terms had about expired, for the reason that I do not think men convicted of their crimes are fit persons to be set at large upon the community. For instance, there was Daniel O'Connell, who committed a murder in Morristown. Another was a Camden man named Quinn, who is serving ten years for an assault and battery with intent to kill. Both crimes are penitent and who would probably embrace the opportunity to reform and become upright citizens."

"How about Haddock?" was asked of the Keeper.

"Well, there is a great deal of sympathy felt for Haddock. All the newspaper men and printers are interested in his case. He is not a criminal," continued the speaker, "and I personally certify that he was a proper person to be at large. Mr. Murphy will take him back and give him work, and return him to us immediately if he should violate the terms of his parole. To parole him would probably be to make a better man of him."

"I understand that an effort is to be made to have Myatt, who shot and killed James E. Cavanaugh, paroled?"

"I would not sign for him," said the Keeper, without a moment's hesitation. "There is an effort being made to have a murderer named O'Connor, who is serving thirty years here, paroled, but I will never sign with my co-operation. He has served several terms in various prisons, and is now serving a term for shooting an officer when the latter attempted to arrest him.

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

High license temperance is the kind now in fashion in Atlanta. The mayor has refused to permit beer licenses to be issued, and now every man who desires to sell malt liquors must take out the full license to sell whisky and liquors of all kinds. And the price of the whisky license is $1,000.

A college girl, and a Wellesley college girl at that, ought to have known better than to accept a strange woman's invitation to go home with her and stay all night, but that was what a girl from this famous school did not long since when her train was delayed by an accident. The woman took her to an infamous den, and it was only by great good fortune that she managed to make her escape, with a lesson that will last her her life. But she ought to have been taught that lesson before, either at home or at the college.

Country School Houses.

A wide awake Vermont school mistress, who made a fine success of her work, lost her health and left the profession. She then went into the poultry business and made a success of that too. The opinions of a woman who has done so well at this are entitled to respectful consideration, and she would be very apt to hit the nail on the head.

During her teaching career she observed that a school house in the country and in the small towns were often disreputably destitute of simple and necessary appliances, even sometimes of those wanted for cleanliness.

So, in one of her odd evenings, after the chickens had been fed and put to roost, she made a list of things that are most needed in the school houses indicated. She also spoke of the newspaper as the great educator of school children in a way that is to be commended to all teachers. We accept one humble part of the lady's compliment with thanks, and wish her hens may all turn into geese that lay golden eggs:

I will enumerate articles which I provided while teaching a country school: "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary," last maps of the United States, also a large map of Vermont and New Hampshire, reading and number charts for primary classes, a two foot rule for measuring, blackboard eraser, dustpan and dustcap, waste box and tongs, waste basket, wash basin and towel. I also prevailed upon the committee to arrange windows on opposite sides of the room, so that the upper sash could be opened for ventilation, there being no provision made for this important detail of the schoolroom.

I frequently read the current newspapers, which are grand educators, particularly in teaching children to be practical. I deem a newspaper a prime necessity for the schoolroom. It appears to me a good idea for a school to subscribe for a paper, especially a country school, where the pupils do not have access to a library, reading room, lyceum and, strange as it may seem, no papers are ever seen in some homes. When a scholar is graded from reading readily at sight, he will make very bad work of reading from a newspaper sometimes, but that is corrected by frequency. See all the pupils of a whole district, besides, a taste for good reading—no small item, I assure you.

An Ex-Criminal's Ideas of Crime.

A man who claims to be an ex-convict writes an article in the New York Herald on crime and the criminals which is interesting and instructive. It is true the reader has somehow an impression that the writer is not a criminal at all; rather some benevolent social philosopher expleiting his ideas; but for all that his paper is worth reading and considering. He signs his name "Jed Jukes," and Jed Jukes divides penitentiary convicts according as they strike his eye during the four terms in which he says he wore stripes and served the state. It is the result of Jed's observation that 90 per cent. of the criminals are so from poverty. Half the remaining 10 per cent. are either idiots or have some form of insanity. That disposes of 95 per cent. There remains only 5 per cent., and among these are included murderers and others whose brute passions carry them out of their reason, and the gentleman criminal, such as the bank cashier and the embezzler.

J. J. remarks further that after a man has followed a life of crime till he is twenty-five years old there is little hope of his reformation. For one thing, he rarely has any trade to fall back on; if he had he could scarcely get employment on account of the cry of "jailbird" that would pursue him to the uttermost parts of the earth. His stomach is hungry and will not down. He knows how he has filled it before and can fill it again; he feels callers to all the world, so what more easy than to glide back into the old crimes and be brought up at length with a round turn for another term in the penitentiary?

In the course of his life Jukes met two men for whom there was redemption, mere brutal, bloodthirsty ruffians. One of these after a mere song would have put a bullet through any one, even his own wife. He was such a criminal as we read about in the dime novels, and he employed his spare time in trying to make the younger convicts as bad as himself. "He was a bloodthirsty wretch and—what society had made him," says J. Jukes, which is hardly fair to society. He reforms the world and empty the prisons this convict philosopher says there is only one way, and that is to catch the children, all of them, and bring them up to honest, industrious, intelligent lives.

DEATH FROM A DYNAMO.

Sing Sing's Homicides All Easily Killed.

TWO SHOCKS FOR EACH MURDERER.

The Executions Pronounced a Great Success—The Men Died Instantly and Neither of Them Created a Scene When the Fatal Moment at Last Arrived.

SING SING, N. Y., July 8.—A white flag ran up the halyard of the flagpole at Sing Sing prison Tuesday. It clung to the pole a moment, then unfolded and spread to the breeze. A shudder ran through the watchers on the bluff near the prison, for the flag of truce proclaimed that Murderer James J. Slocum's battle with the deadly electric current was at an end and that Slocum's soul was before the maker for judgment. With aching eyes the watchers without the prison still regarded the gaunt pole. There were three more lives to be snuffed out; three more flags to flutter at the pole's top. Exactly half an hour later a blue flag creeping up the pole and mutely proclaimed that Harris A. Smiler had met the shock and died. Twenty-five minutes more were ticked off by the watch, then a crapelike emblem—a grewsome black flag —was outlined against the sky.

As Deadly as the Yellow Flag.

There was no skull and crossbones upon the black bunting, but it was as surely an emblem of death as ever floated from a pirate's ship. As the black flag was unfolded to the breeze the body of the negro mansiayer, Joseph Wood, reclined in Warden Brown's chair.

The black flag came down from the staff, but twenty-eight minutes later a blood red bit of bunting announced that the ghastly proceedings were over and that Ishuya Jugiro, the Japanese murderer, had also paid the death penalty. All the flags were about two and a half feet square. The wagien wanted to give the reporters some sign by which they would know when the work had been carried out. He selected the black flag for Wood because Wood was a black man. The bite flag was picked for Smiler at the suggestion of some one who called attention to the blue clothes he used to wear in the Salvation Army. The white flag was chosen because it was easy to see, and it was made the signal for Ball Player Slocum. The red flag was for Jugiro.

They All Died Instantly.

According to the statement of Dr. Rockwell, one of the witnesses, the execution was successful in every way. "The men went to the chair without trouble and death was instantaneous in each case. But the current was applied twice to each man so that there could be no possibility of his being still alive when his body was turned over to the physicians. There were none of the disagreeable sights at their executions that made the Kemmler affair so horrible.

The Killing of Slocum.

Slocum went bravely to the chair. He said nothing, and even assisted the physicians in getting his body in position.

The deputies were all old men, and much practice with the fastenings had made them expert, though this was the first occasion they had had to turn an current. They drew across his chest and under his arms the broad bands which were to hold his body in place. The moment that he felt it, and quickly harnessed his arms to those of the chair. His legs were also strapped tightly. Then the figure 4 was brought down and the man's left and fore head covered by a deadly band, and finally the electrodes were adjusted and the sponge tightly pressed his forehead and the bare calf of his leg.

Stolid as an Ox.

Dr. McDonald worked as coolly as if he was merely preparing to test the machine. He quick eye took in every detail. Once or twice in a low tone he gave some word of instruction.

The prisoner was as stolid as an ox.

Dr. Carlos F. Macdonald then took a long necked can, and poured some cold salt water on either sponge. Slocum whinced slightly, but uttered no sound. The night before the electrodes had been plunged into an insulated bucket of water, and in an incredibly short space of time had become as hot as boiling. It took thirty seconds to dry out a saturated sponge. Suddenly Dr. McDonald looked over toward his colleagues and gave a slight nod. Dr. Carlos Fox, who was standing near with a stop watch in one hand, a handker. chief in the other.

Dr. Rockwell nodded in return and he suddenly pressed the electric signal, and Davis, the electrician, standing at the switchboard three feet away, turned the little lever which shunted the current on to the line and the body of the murderer in the box behind. Slocum's hands were clinched. The twenty-four arc lights burned steadily for they took but an infinitesimal part of the tremendous current approximating 1,500 volts.

The Deadly Moment.

Who was the executioner? No one who knows will tell. But it was said to be a well known member of the prison staff, who should be present, but was invisible, as he turned the switch almost simultaneously with the other.

At once the body became rigid and the visible portions of the face grew crimson. The great straps just curbed with the strain. Their edges fairly cut into the flesh of the arms and legs, and it seemed as if the body would leap from the chair if it were not for the restraint imposed.

A sigh ran through the spectators and then—then they were looking on inanimate flesh, and the current which makes the whole world kin had fled forever. James Slocum was no more.

The deputies moved about and more the effect, exchanging notes. There were rubber mats under each for safety, but no one took any chance. The hand pulled in one of the mats and he said vulgar forms as he picked them. They studied it keenly, for it was a rarity and every fresh skull furnishes new revelations. The body still remained in Slocum's face, but it did have a pleasant under the spectators. A prayer had died a smile on his face.

Twenty-six more! They sped away swiftly, and two and two and at the end Electrician Davis stopped going to and from the switch and the current was limp body collapsed and shrunk, but was held by the unyielding straps. The death line showed in the lower part of the legs, for the physicians wished to get their data exact. For several seconds the doctors were very busy about the limp and flaccid form, taking note of every symptom. Then at a signal they stood back again and again the current was turned on. It had been agreed to give each man at least two contacts as soon as the fact of death assured to pond a permanent.

Not Like Kemmler.

The body shivered again as the lightning struck it, and then came a wheezing rush of air through the lips like that which followed the same shock when the electric battery is applied. That was all. Slocum was dead.

His had died, but not like Kemmler. He had not been turned or tortured, nor had he made a horror for spectators. The body was so limp that it would have fallen from ward when the straps were removed if it had not been caught. It was picked up and carried into the next room and laid out upon the operating table. Rev. Father Curtis, of Ossining, drew it later and was pledged to secrecy, said that it looked as natural as if the man was merely sleeping. There was a smile upon the face. No hair had been scorched upon the head.

There is an interesting fact connected with the experiments made Monday in the presence of the witnesses of Tuesday's execution. It has a bearing on the fearful inefficiency of the single contact. A horse was brought in to be killed. The dynamo was run up to the speed which will generate 1,500 to 1,600 volts, the force of the current which it had been determined would be turned into the bodies of the murderers. It was found, however, on account of the greater resistance of the animal, was twenty-eight seconds. It did not kill the horse. It seemed to have stunned him, and a second contact and a third were turned on before the work was completed. The necessity for two contacts in each of the electrocutions of Tuesday the engineer did not fix explanation in the experience with the horse.

Bound to Secrecy.

It is said that the warden read the death warrants to the condemned men shortly before midnight in the presence of some of his witnesses. They were certainly not read in the cells or in the death chamber. The witnesses of the electrocution signed an agreement that they would not reveal what occurred within the execution chamber. The warden told them that if they refused to sign they would not be admitted to the execution chamber.

Somewhat Like Kemmler's Case.

While Slocum's body was being removed the witnesses discussed earnestly the similarity which it bore to the Kemmler case, a similarity which seemed to relieve that first experiment of the accusation of bungling failure from which it had suffered in the minds of many since its details were published to the world.

The little time was spent in making preparations for the next execution. The second of the condemned men chosen was Smiler, the Salvation Army bigamist, who murdered one of his wives. To summon Slocum the warden had to pass the cell of Wood, but in front of all the condemned men's cells iron screens had been drawn, so that none of them knew before his time which of the others had been summoned.

Smiler's Nerve Was Good.

The warden passed around the screen and went in the cell and summoned Smiler. He came with calm step, courageously, supported by Rev. Edgerton on one side and Rev. Law on the other. He betrayed no fear as he faced the curious eyes of the witnesses in the execution chamber and looked for the first time on the death chair. Like his predecessor, Slocum, he entered without assistance. Simmons and seated himself, placing his hands on the arms of the chair and waiting for the attendants to bind him. He did not offer to make any final speech.

The attendants busied themselves with the straps again. Smiler sat calmly looking about until the bandage was drawn across his eyes. Again the straps and buckles were inspected, again approved. Again the white handkerchief fell, the electrician threw the switch and in a moment more the straps tightened under the straining of taut muscles as the electric current ran through the body. The condemn ned in this case was twenty seconds. The current measured some 1,500 volts. At the end of twenty seconds the current was turned off, and only for a minute. The chest of the man in the chair began to heave and the current was turned on once more, until, as in the case of Slocum, it burned the flesh. Then it was shut off again, and after a delay, which showed that there was no chance of a revival, the body was unstrapped and taken from the chair to the autopsy room adjoining.

Wood Came Willingly.

Wood was the third to be executed. He came willingly, accompanied by two priests, and went through the ordeal bravely with substantially the same results. The only difference in the arrangement of his case was the attachment of the negative electrode to the left leg instead of to the right. The first contact in Wood's case as in the others did not seem to be fatal, and it was twenty seconds, continued until the flesh was singed, to satisfy the physicians that the man was dead. In Kemmler's case the burning of the body was ascribed by many to the fact that the sponges at the electrodes were not well wetted. In all four cases Tuesday the sponges were wetted constantly and still the body was burned. The reason for this unhappy result will have to be sought elsewhere.

Jugiro Did Not Fight.

The fourth man to meet death was the Japanese, Jugiro. It had been expected that if any of the prisoners made resistance to the end it would be the quiet Jap that he would be. But the long term of his confinement had bowed Jugiro into tame submission. When the warden and the keepers came to the door of his cell he was seated on the floor. There was no bed in his room. He has always preferred to sit and sleep on the floor. At sight of the warden he sprung up as though he met the summons gladly and he followed his guards quietly. His was, perhaps, the most repulsive face that appeared at the witness room from the execution chair. It was distinctly brutal.

He was dressed like the others, in black coat and trousers, white shirt with collar and shirt and black tie. He took his place in the chair quietly, suffered the attendants to bind him without protest and stolidly awaited the shock. It came to him as to the other three with like results. The first contact did not destroy all appearance of life and then it burned the flesh. There was no doubt though of the death of the Jap when he was taken from chair. With the conclusion of the four executions Warden Brown had the witnesses back to his house, where after an hour's wait a second breakfast was served to them.

Some Interesting Opinions.

Here are some interesting opinions:

"I do not believe that it can be made a perfect success. It is almost impossible."—Westinghouse Electrician Nostrand before the execution.

"The system is now absolutely perfect, and has come to stay."—Dr. A. P. Southwick, the father of electrical executions.

"I have examined the heads of all four of the men, and can see a slighter trace of scorching exists."—Rev. Father Hogan, of Peekskill.

"Unconsciousness instant; death painless."—Dr. Carlos F. McDonald, physician in charge.

"The execution perfect. The men killed instantly. We must two shocks into each man. The first one killed and the second simply made the death captain."—Dr. L. P. Gerbyne, of Brooklyn.

"A success. Instant and absolutely painless. I came here opposed to electrical executions. Now I am converted."—Rev. Dr. Law, Tombs chaplain.

"Death more painless and instantaneous than any hanging."—Rev. Alphonso D. Rockwell.

"Nobody horrified. A prayer interrupted. Death came like the snapping of a twig."—Deputy Attorney General Hogan, of Albany.

"If any fanatic on the subject of electrocution had been present he would have been more than pleased with everything he saw."—Warden Brown, of Sing Sing.

"A great success. No longer a deterrent to crime."—Ex-Warden Brush.

"Death expeditious."—Coroner E. Oliver.

"The skin and flesh of the leg and the skin of the forehead began to smoke. Kemmler'sdeath repeated."—From a statement issued by the United States by an anonymous eye witness, supposed to be friendly to the Westinghouse Electric Lighting company.

W. I. Harris Is Dead.

WHO PAYS THE SALARIES?

A Story That the Ætna Life Is Behind Mr. Bulkeley.

HARTFORD, July 8.—State Attorney A. F. Eggleston, of this city, has received from the controller's office an order for his three months' pay, due June 30. Upon presentation at the treasurer's office payment was refused, but Mr. Eggleston was told that payment would be given for the order at the office of the Ætna Life Insurance company, of which Alexander Bulkeley is president. A clerk in the capitol, who presented the controller's order for his salary, was told that if he should bring the order it would be cashed at the Ætna Life.

These alleged facts seem to give confirmation to the rumor that the controller's orders for necessary expenses of the state, drawn upon appropriations which by the bookkeeping at the capitol are shown to be exhausted, will be made by the Ætna Life Insurance company. The officers of this company, of which Governor Bulkeley is president, seem to share the general confidence that the general assembly will eventually make a deficiency appropriation to cover these orders. But all such orders must first be approved by Acting Governor Bulkeley before the Ætna will cash them.

THE NAVAL MILITIA.

The National Guard of the Sea Hard at Work.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Fisher's Island has been selected as the place and July 22 as the date for the drills of the United States naval militia. Fisher's island is off the coast of Connecticut at the entrance to Long Island sound and is one of the most important points connected with the defense of the eastern approaches of New York from a naval attack. It was selected at the request of General Porter, and the navy department has sent the necessary instructions to Admiral Walker, command the squadron of evolution, directing his co-operation.

The Naval Militia at Work.

BOSTON, July 8.—The naval militia battalion has been assigned to the various ships of the white squadron, and under the direction of regular officers were drilled in gunnery and man-of-war work in general.

Lincoln Favored Hamlin.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Colonel Nicolay, at one time private secretary to President Lincoln, has sent the following telegram to the widow of the late ex-Vice President Hamlin:

WASHINGTON, July 7, 1891.

Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin, Bangor, Me.:

The editorial statement from the Philadelphia Times, which you sent me, is full of the most absurd patches, to the effect that President Lincoln opposed Mr. Hamlin's renomination. The real fact is entirely erroneous. Mr. Lincoln's personal feelings on the contrary were for Mr. Hamlin's renomination, and he frequently expressed to me, but he persistently withheld any opinion calculated to influence the convention for or against any candidate, as I have his written words to that effect, as fully set forth on pages 72 and 73, chapter 3, volume 9, of Abraham Lincoln—A History by Nicolay and Hay."

The Servia in Port Again.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The Cunard steamer Servia, which was disabled on Saturday night, arrived here last night. She was towed into port by the steamship Chester. The accident consisted in the breaking of the crank pin which totally disabled the engines. Prince George of Greece was today transferred to the city of New York, on which he will sail for England.

SENATOR QUAY SPEAKS.

His Answer to the Independents of Philadelphia.

HE SAYS THEY ARE ALL DEMOCRATS

He Alleges That He Does Not Know Bardsley, and Says That He Was Not Inimical to Ballot Reform and Other Legislation Mentioned by His Accusers.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—Senator Quay dropped into town rather unexpectedly. He was apparently in excellent humor, in spite of the broadside pointed into him the other day by the independents. When asked whether he had read the address he replied:

"Oh, yes, I have read it, and I would just like to say in the most empiatic manner that so far as it refers to me it is false from beginning to end. There isn't a word of truth in the charges. I deny every charge. They are as false as were those of last year. The gentlemen who signed this address are not Republicans. All of them voted for Pattison for governor.

"Many of them voted for Cleveland for president, and you will find among them a large number who are free traders, or whose sympathies are with the free traders. I can stand attacks coming from such democratic sources. Why, what do they charge?

The Charges Against Him.

"First, that there were some amendments proposed to the ballot reform bill that were undesirable. I declare most emphatically that I took no part whatever in the ballot reform legislation. I don't interfere in any way. Why should I? The Republican party is for ballot reform, and the party has kept its pledge. I did not attempt to defeat the passage of the bill or to alter it in any way.

"Again, these Democrats, calling themselves Republicans, charge the Republican party, and incidentally me, with the defeat of the sectional school bill, designed to purify and strengthen the public school system of Philadelphia. Why, I was in favor of the bill. It was a good one, and had I been interfering in any way I should not have supported it heartily.

He Doesn't Know Bardsley.

"And what of mentioning me in any way with the Bardsley business! It is ridiculous. Bardsley was not nominated by politicians; he was not a politicians' candidate. He was what forward as a representative of the business men. I have only a slight acquaintance with the man. I have seen him and that is all.

"I should not know him if I met him on the street. I never had any dealings with him. I know nothing whatever of him except as I have learned in the newspapers. These charges are as preposterous as they are false."

An Issue of the Coming Campaign.

"What do you think of the coming campaign?

"I think that an attempt will be made by the Democrats to nationalize the state election. It is not unlikely that they will try to drag the Bardsley business into politics and try to make an issue of it. They are already at work getting their subsidiary organizations into the organizations like the one which issued that address. But an issue like that must be as false as the charges themselves.

The Republican party and Bardsley.

"The Republican party and the politicians had nothing whatever to do with Bardsley and his defalcation. The crime committed by the municipal officers who took the office to make what he could out of it for himself. He did not do this with the aid of the Republican party or of its leaders, but for the Democratic party he was with them. He did not do it as a politician or as a Republican. He did it as Bardsley, and there is no significance whatever attached to it."

What will the Republican state convention do?

"I don't know. That is a matter for the delegates to settle among themselves. If they put up a good ticket it will be elected. I am taking no hand in the canvass and have no more knowledge of the situation than anybody else."

THE PHILADELPHIA MUDDLE.

Two Experts Appointed to Investigate It by the Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Assistant Secretary Nettleton has appointed Taylor Faunce and Lawrence E. Brown, of Philadelphia, special agents of the treasury department, to investigate the cases of the Keystone, Spring Garden, National banks, of Philadelphia. They were nominated by the mayor of Philadelphia as experts examiners in accordance with a suggestion by the treasury department.

What Will They Do with It?

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—There was a long and important conference at the city hall over the Bardsley investigation, between the members of the council committee and the city officials. The discussion, which was held with closed doors, resulted in determining to continue the inquisition, and the committee will meet in open session on Friday. It was admitted that the principal topic discussed was as to the advisability of making public the statement said to have been made by John Bardsley and which is now in the possession of Mr. McKean of The Ledger.

Smothered Under a Sand Bank.

DANBURY, Conn., July 8.—John Burt was loading a team with sand from a bank on South street when the bank caved in and he and his horses were buried. He extricated himself, but Mrs. Lutey, the mother of little Tommy Coleman missed her boy. A party of searchers finally went to the sand pank. After nearly two days digging they discovered the dead body of the boy.

Eight Hundred Men Out.

POTTSVILLE, July 8.—Eight hundred employes of the Pottsville Iron and Steel company, 800 in number, have gone on strike owing to the refusal of the president to sign the amalgamation scale. It is not likely that the trouble will be soon over, as both sides are standing firm.

NEW ALLIANCE SCHEME.

The Farmers' Plan to Hold Back Their Wheat.

IN THE NATURE OF A BIG STRIKE

They Are Trying to Get Ahead of the Wheat Gamblers—Nature Seems to Aid Them This Year—The Circular Issued to Members of the Organization.

CHICAGO, July 8.—A scheme has been devised by somebody within the Farmers' Alliance by which it is proposed to withhold this year's crop from market until the farmers can get their own price, or at least a price considerably above the average. The plan is unfolded in a circular of advice to all members of farmers' organizations in the United States. It suggests a great combination of the 6,000 farmers' organizations, and has the relative importance and force of an official order for a strike in the Federation of Labor of the Knight of Labor.

Details of the Scheme.

The circular will be sent to the members of all the farmers' organizations in the country. The chief points in the circular, which is very long, are the following:

"This year seems especially designed by Providence to help farming interests. The wheat crop promises to be good, the Eastern crops are worse than they ever have been. As the harvest of 1884, the largest we ever had, was 512,000,000 bushels, the last government report would indicate a crop of 500,000,000 bushels. The home consumption is certainly 350,000,000 bushels, which leaves us 150,000,000 bushels for export.

"This year we may have 18,000,000 more to spare, which will go to South America on account of the reciprocity treaties, and Europe will receive the average quantity of about 107,000,000 bushels.

Legislation Too Slow.

"Under such circumstances it is certain that the true value of wheat is greater than ever before, and it is astonishing that speculators should dare to bet on low prices. It is, however, more than probable that after the bulk of the farmer's harvest is in the elevators the speculator would come to the conclusion that, in view of the situation, wheat should be considered cheap at two dollars a bushel, and he would earn the money which the farmer is entitled to. The way of legislation is too slow to save this crop from being sacrificed at ridiculously low prices.

The New Remedy.

"There is another remedy, simple, effective, and entirely within the farmer's control. The stocks of wheat and flour are hardly large enough to supply the wants of this country until the new crop comes in. The temporary safety of the speculator depends on an early crop and a rush into market. Resolve, for instance, that in view of the condition of the world's crop a minimum price of $1.25 for wheat in New York is moderate and conservative, and that members of the Alliance pledge themselved not to market their wheat at lower prices, unless they are under contract, and that they will use their best efforts with friends and neighbors outside of the organization also, to act on the same resolution.

"Resolve also that the state Alliance form a committee which shall keep itself posted in the markets of the world's markets, and from time to time notify the farmers of changes taking place, and advise them upon the minimum prices that they may reasonably insist upon.

Like a Strike.

"This action would be similar to a strike, but with this difference: The workingman loses money every day the strike lasts, while the farmer will not lose anything, and if some should be inconvenienced for a few weeks for ready cash, they will surely not be poorer by it."

The Ratcatcher Dead.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Harry Jennings, practical ratcatcher and insect destroyer, is dead, aged seventy years. For forty years past he has been waging an incessant warfare against rats, bugs and all sorts of vermin. It is said that he amassed a fortune of $50,000. All the big hotels and many of the warehouses and business establishments engaged his services regularly.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 8.—George S. Harris, senior member of the firm of George S. LOOK OUT FOR VESUVIUS.

NAPLES, July 8.—The eruption at Vesuvius is increasing. A strong earthquake shock was felt last evening at Frosinone, province of Campobasso. The villagers on the slope of Mount Vesuvius are leaving their homes and their vineyards, fearing that one of the greatest eruptions in the history of the mountain is impending. The earthquake shocks that have always preceded destructive outbursts of the volcano have been felt in several parts of Italy, and of late in close proximity to the mountain. The authorities of Naples are keeping a close watch for signs of increasing danger, and visitors have been warned not to approach too near the crater and to avoid the path of the lava.

Since the death of a Brazilian journalist a few days ago by falling into the crater several travelers have shown a morbid desire to gaze into the pit of mouthen lava in which the unfortunate man disappeared. In such cases should another fatal accident occur the guide, the prefect of police has stated, will be prosecuted. It is the opinion of Italian scientists that the earthquake afflicting the peninsula will increase in violence until Vesuvius breaks out in a serious eruption, and that then the earthquake visitations will for the present subside.

A LEAP FOR LIBERTY.

DARING ESCAPE OF FOUR UNION PRISONERS NEAR CHARLESTON.

Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

N the morning of October 5, 1864, a party of 600 captive Union officers were put on board of a train of box cars to be transported from the Mount Pleasant jail yard in Charleston, to prison quarters at Columbia. Among the number was Capt. J. Madison Drake, of the Ninth New Jersey volunteers, who had been a prisoner of war five months and an inmate during that time of three different prisons—Libby, Macon, Ga., and Charleston. Although he had been foiled in many attempts to escape he resolved on one more effort, and having had a little warning of the trip to Columbia was prepared for any emergency that would favor the enterprise. The story of his adventures, in breaking guard near Charleston and reaching Knoxville, Tenn., after forty days of wandering, is told in the history of the Ninth New Jersey, recently published.

Drake induced three fellow prisoners to join him, Capt. H. H. Todd, Eighth New Jersey; Capt. J. E. Lewis, Eleventh Connecticut, and Capt. Alfred Grant, Nineteenth Wisconsin. When the train was crawling slowly on toward Columbia the bold projector of the scheme managed to remove the gun caps from the nipples of the muskets of the guards on the car on where the four friends were, and as soon as dusk came on the party at a signal took their daring leap. They landed in a cypress swamp at Congaree river, and found themselves waist deep in water and mud. A volley of shots from all the guards followed the flight of the four, but no was hurt, as the train was running under good headway. A night and a day were passed in the swamp, and although the barking of dogs and shouting of men indicated that pursuers had been sent out, the runaways were not disturbed. The second night a bright new moon arose, and they started on a systematic journey toward the Union lines in Tennessee.

Before leaving Charleston one of the party had found a detailed map of South Carolina and with this guide a course had been studied out. They decided to hug the swamps and woods by day and at night use the fields and roads, and spend as little time as possible in sleep until the mountains of North Carolina were reached. Their chief guidemark in South Carolina was the Wateree river. On the morning of the second day the fugitives struck a high road, and a midnight tramp took them were within twenty-seven miles of Columbia. Alarmed at this discovery they hastened toward the river and were soon further harrowed by the sight of a negro, apparently in pursuit. They then took to the swamp and remained all day in hiding. With some difficulty they got out of the jungle at nightfall and shortly came across

At the end of a week their rations had all been consumed, and even their cooking utensils had been lost in a stampede that occurred one morning when a party of horsemen surprised them at breakfast. The wild food of nature—grapes, persimmons, red berries and raw corn from the stalks—soon produced grawer evils than hunger, and in desperation the wanderers began to think of a foot to the exhaustion of all else. Capt. Drake says that in these straits they heartily yearned for the government "hard tack" and the contractor's beef they had so often anathematized on the march and in camp.

But fortune will favor the bold, and one night, as they halted on a roadside to debate whether it should be a quest for bread or for a road to liberty, a dark form came shambling along the road, and in the moonlight they saw at a distance that it was an old negro with a basket on his arm. Without ceremony the famished men crowded around the old man, and finding that he had in his basket a number of corn breads they seized it and began to devour it ravenously. After a time the situation was explained, and when the negro learned who the highwaymen were he supplied a quantity of meal and salt and sent them on their way mentally resolved to cultivate acquaintance with colored folks as often as possible.

Not until several hundred miles had been placed between their fainting feet and Charleston did the hapless fugitives feel a sense of freedom. Often their fears and alarms were causeless, but they suffered loss of vitality all the same. Sometimes seeming misfortunes proved to be blessings. One night a pack of dogs chased them into a crowded village and they took refuge in a graveyard vault. There Capt. Drake found a copy of a local newspaper, warning the people to be on guard for escaped Union prisoners. The escaped prisoners themselves got the benefit of the hint. At another time some Confederate cavalrymen chased them on the high road and they escaped by getting into a dense woods where the horses couldn't follow. While wandering about they fell in with a loyal mountaineer, who took them to his home, fed them and directed them to other Unionists.

On reaching the vicinity of Morgantown, N. C., they attempted to avoid it by a wide detour, because it was a rendezvous for Confederate cavalry. While making their way cautiously through a piece of pine woods they ran onto a mounted Confederate officer, from whose notice there was no escape. All hands came to a halt. The Confederate looked the hapless fugitives over, and without making any explanation or comment, wheeled his horse and rode off in the other direction. They would be after on the other side of the Catawba river, where rushing waters were within hearing, and then dashed their wives to find a boat for each flag. They failed to find the boat and the natural resources from discovery, but on launching the river closely they soon found traces of crossing, and landed in a spot where they were welcomed and succored by loyal inhabitants. Many of the men and girls in the mountains were of the class known as "tyers out," refugees from the Confederate army and fugitive conscripts. A hundred or more of these men were persuaded to join Drake's party on their tramp toward the Union lines. By the time they reached the Catawba river the squad numbered one hundred and twenty-one. The prospects of the runaway prisoners began to brighten. But they were not yet at the woods by a long ways, as the next picture will show.

Striking and significant episodes are often most remembered and related in after years, and a narrative of the kind personally seems made up of streaks of luck, so that the hard lines are obliterated and one almost fancies such an adventure would be a pastime. The pen could record the literal bloodmarks, the groans of pain, the sighs of the weary and fainting heart, the gnawings of hunger, the sudden alarms and paroxysms of fear, and the thousand and one daily and hourly experiences of such a secret journey, the sth of envy would not follow that recital of them columns. Most people would lay the story down and conclude that a week's camping out by a mountain lake or along a babbling brook was rough enough for all purposes. It is amusing and even inspiring to light upon such incidents as the wide eyed negro and his vanishing "yam," the street potato find, the pursuers chasing the fugitives into the hands of friends and the chivalrous "Johnny Reb" warning them to cross a river to safer ground.

Meanwhile there are gaps to be filled in. Drake had been five months in prison before he started on the journey. His single shirt was threadbare from its six months' wear; his blouse was in tatters, and his trousers only reached down to his knees. His boots had given out on the tramp and been abandoned, and he was barefooted and bareheaded as well. The party had reached the mountain region between North Carolina and Tennessee, and the cold, stormy weather of winter was upon them. Two days after the company of "tyers out" joined they awoke in a mountain cabin to find the ground covered with six inches of snow. Drake says that his heart sank within him when he looked out on that snow, but it was not through misgivings about venturing out in it with his ragged, limping feet. No, he was afraid the new recruits would find some excuse for delay—as in truth they did—which would mean risk of discovery and recapture.

To get home was a passion that made the heart bound, and after months and months were now for the time horrors to be borne but not avoided. The journey was resumed in spite of the storm.

When the fugitives drew near the Union lines the danger of capture increased, for a cordon of mountain rangers patrolled the region to head off any fugitives who might get that far on their journey homeward. The mountains were simply barren wastes, the few cabins had to be shunned, and the only food to be had was the scanty fare which the "tyers out" brought down. In the uplands the poor fellows were hounded by "rangers," and in the valleys mounted Confederates dashed about on all sides.

At length the party reached the vicinity of Bull's gap, a railroad gorge through the mountains and guarded by Union troops as an outpost of Knoxville. The chief scout announced that the gap was fifteen miles from the line of the hill, whence it was first sighted, and that once reached the refugees would be safe. The news stimulated the men anew, and they started down the mountain with their eyes riveted on the gap for fear, as Drake says, it would take wings and flee. Alas! alas! The unexpected happens in war if nowhere else.

Gaps don't always take wings and flee, but the ubiquitous Gen. Breckinridge, with an army at his back, fell like a thunderbolt upon the Union outpost at the gap, defeated and routed the entire force and hurled them backward at mounted double quick pace toward Knoxville; and the fugitives, who had found the gap the way of the yearning eyed, broken bodied pilgrims. Think of it; at the end of those terrible weeks of endurance and suffering to find a hostile army springing across the path at a bound, and its scouts and patrols beating every byway and bush in the region for the luckless strays of the fleeing enemy.

A young woman of the mountains volunteered to steer toward the gap and bring back word how matters stood. She simply learned that Breckinridge was sweeping the country of Union troops and marching upon Knoxville.

At the same time it was discovered that a band of Confederate partisans were on the trail of the fugitives, and to escape this new danger they found comparative shelter in a ravine. Two of the men who escaped from the car with Drake, Capts. Todd and Grant, ventured out to obtain rations, which were sadly needed, as they were all living on dry corn. During the night mounted men attacked bivouac and the refugees scattered, every man for himself. Drake struck out wildly, having no guide but the firing of the assailants, and determined to get as far as possible from that. He ran and stumbled until he was compelled to halt and quilt a stab from his heel, and then for a moment a sense of his awful situation overpowered him with despair.

Yesterday so near the realization of his wearisome hopes and then suddenly cast adrift, alone in a strange region, with enemies all about him—the situation staring him in the face. In this plight some of the party found him, and with the fresh vitality of these spirited mountaineers to encourage and sustain him he set out again for the Union picket lines, up the Holston river. At the end of a week they fell in with a cavalry patrol and were once more under the protection of the stars and stripes.

How to Judge Character by Finger Nails.

Very pale nails indicate much infirmity of the flesh and liability to persecution by neighbors and friends. Nails growing into the flesh at the points or sides are indicative of injurious loves. White marks on the nails foretoken misfortune. Pale or leaf colored nails betoken melancholy. Broad nails belong to those of gentle, timid, bashful natures. Lovers of knowledge and liberal sentiments have round nails. People with narrow nails are ambitious and quarrelsome. Small nails belong to small minded, obstinate and conceited people, while choleric, mantial men have red and spotted nails.

How to Test Gilt.

Apply bichloride of copper, which makes a brown spot on alloy, but produces no effect on a surface of gold.

How to Remove Clinkers from Stoves.

Put half a peck of oyster shells on top of a bright fire. Repeat when clinkers show signs of forming.

How to Wash Colored Calicoes.

After washing and rinsing the garments dip them in a pail of rain water in which five cents' worth of sugar of lead has been dissolved. Wring out promptly.

How to Relieve a Fainting Person.

If the face is pale lay the patient flat on the back and raise the feet a little. If the face is red raise the patient to a sitting or easy reclining posture. The pale face indicates that there is too little blood in the head; the red that there is too much. It is necessary also to be careful that a "black or blue" face is not mistaken for a pale one, for this dark hue indicates venous congestion, and in such a case the patient should be raised.

How to Protect Trees from Insects.

A paste of one part powdered chloride of lime and a half part of some fatty matter placed in a narrow band around the trunk will prevent insects from creeping up the trees. Even rats, mice, cockroaches and crickets flee from it.

How a Woman Should Exercise.

A woman who has paid great attention to this important subject says water and air are the best tonics and beautifiers. For bathing purposes she recommends long mittens made from Turkish toweling. At night the mittens should be put in a washbowl of water in which a little fine salt has been dissolved. On rising in the morning wring out the mittens, put them on and rub the whole body briskly. Dry on a towel, not too coarse, and dress quickly. Then go out of doors, if only for five minutes.

Walking is the best exercise. If you cannot walk half a mile at first, walk a quarter, and keep on stretching the distance until you can walk three or four miles without fatigue. Fresh air will put a good color in the face, and when the health is good and the blood circulates freely the nerves will be all right.

How a Passion Is Gratified.

Printed instructions and forms can be obtained free by applying to the commissioner of pensions, Washington. The company and regiment in which the claimant served, the name of the commanding officer, and dates of enlistment and discharge must be set forth in the application. In many cases similar information must be given in regard to the vessel upon which the claimant served. Declaration must be made before a court of record, and his identity shown by the testimony of two credible witnesses. The nature of the evidence required to sustain the claim will be indicated to the claimant upon the filing of his declaration at Washington.

How to Keep Meat Fresh in Summer.

Meat can be kept very nicely for a week or two by covering it with sour milk or buttermilk and placing it in a cool cellar. The bone or fat need not be removed. Rinse well before using.

How to Remove Paint Stains.

When the stains are dry they should be softened with butter and lard, and are then easily removed by turpentine and soap. Benzine, alcohol or turpentine will readily remove fresh paint stains, and chloroform will remove stains after everything else fails. Common turpentine often leaves a stain of its own on silk. This can be taken out by alcohol applied with a sponge.

Multiply the number of cubic feet by 4⅘ and point off one decimal place. The result will be the answer in bushels.

How to Write on the Train.

This is one of those simple things which few people know of. If you are in a Pullman car, get a pillow from the porter, put it on your lap and place your writing materials on it. The elasticity of the pillow will insure smoothness. Where a pillow cannot be obtained use your coat.

How to Lacquer Brass.

When brasses of any kind become stained and worn they can readily be lacquered in the following way: Get one ounce tumeric (ground) and two drachms each of saffron and Spanish arnatto; mix them in a bottle with a pint of rectified spirits of wine. Place the mixture in a moderate heat for two or three days. Then strain and add two ounces of good seedlac, roughly powdered; shake until the lac is dissolved. Again strain and it is fit for use. If a deep orange lacquer is required add more arnatto, if a bright yellow decrease the quantity. Warm the brass (after cleaning it) and apply the lacquer with a brush, warm until thoroughly dry and it is done.

A WOMAN'S FOIBLE.

She Will Not Admit the Tightness of Dress or of Shoes.

There are two things which a woman cannot endure for a minute to be told. One of these is that the dress is tight, and the other is that she wears too small a shoe. To the first accusation she replies by an indignant denial, and then she draws in her breath and puts her hand up under her waist to convince you that you have been telling a dreadful lie. She then goes on to say that she would wear a corset three inches smaller than the one she has on with perfect ease. When any one suggests that her shoe is too tight she also gets indignant, and then she draws her foot upon a hassock, bends over and grasps it to show there are at least two inches of shoe not occupied at all. Of course it is a trick, but the one who looks on is bound to be convinced.

A little story that was told by a boot and shoe salesman the other day illustrates these peculiar points of women. A lady entering the store complained that the shoes she had on hurt her feet and asked what the trouble was.

"Because your shoes are too small for you," promptly replied the salesman.

"Indeed they are not; they are a size larger than I usually wear."

"Notwithstanding that, they are too small," repeated the practical young man. Upon which the lady turned and walked out of the store in a huff, so much as looking at the unfortunate salesman.

"I wonder what is the matter with her?" he said.

"You have no need to ask that," replied his employer. "You will never become a success in the shoe business until you learn that you must never, under any circumstances, tell a woman that her shoe is too small. Tell her that it is the wrong shape or that it is badly cut or that it is not her style—anything except the truth. Women are too wise to be told the truth about their shoes."

This weakness is not entirely confined to the feminine portion of humanity. The chiropodists say that quite as many men as women come to them with corns and bunions and crooked toes. Some of the most skilful manipulators of the feet claim that the so called common sense shoe is not much of an improvement upon the narrow, high heeled French gaiter, against which so much has been said; one pair as far to one extreme as the other does to another.

Very few feet are perfectly flat and very few toes are perfectly square. A shoe should be made to fit the foot, and if there is the least tendency to enlargement of the joints of the great toe or a narrow shoe should be worn, always taking care that it is quite long enough. A shoe that fits closely across the ball of the foot keeps it from spreading, and the length will allow the toes to lie perfectly flat. A deformed foot is one of the most hideous things in nature. Harriet Hosmer, the sculptor, would, when she was in Rome with a plan of rectified spirits of wine. Place the mixture in a moderate heat for two or three days. Then strain and add two ounces of good seedlac, roughly powdered; shake until the lac is dissolved. Again strain and it is fit for use. If a deep orange lacquer is required add more arnatto, if a bright yellow decrease the quantity. Warm the brass (after cleaning it) and apply the lacquer with a brush, warm until thoroughly dry and it is done.

An evening sociable was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bolsterli on East Second street last evening. It was given in honor of Miss Louise Olsson, a New York young lady. A very enjoyable evening was spent, dancing being one of the features of the occasion. Among those present were the following: Mr. George Strayer and lady, Mr. John Taylor and lady, Mr. Thomas Scully and lady, Mr. A. Seals and lady, Mr. G. Woolley and lady, Mr. Benjamin Crane and lady, the Misses Minnie Bolsterli, Margaret Sheppard, Carrie Weaver, Sadie Searing, Dolly Bolsterli, Louise Olsson, Messrs. Frederick Smith, A. J. Everitt, Wm. Austen, T. A. Kurtzahs, Jr., J. E. Woolley, J. Vail, Allie Apgar, Joseph Mullin, Mrs. Rosenring, Mrs. King and others.

HAD A JIMMY.

And James Masterson was Returned to Jail.

James Masterson, formerly a resident of Elizabeth, was a prisoner in police court at that place yesterday morning charged with having a burglar's tool in his possession. Masterson's home is in Newark. Several days ago he was arrested for stealing a ride on a coal train of the Central Railroad in Plainfield. When arrested there was found in his possession a burglar's jimmy. Masterson was committed to jail for ten days for riding on the cars.

His term expired yesterday. In the meantime Detective John M. C. Marsh, of the Central Railroad, made complaint against Masterson for having the burglar tools, and when he left the county jail it was to be immediately rearrested.

In police court he said he found the jimmy on the railroad track. He was recommitted to jail.

DID THEY ELOPE?

A SOUTH PLAINFIELD FARMER'S WIFE IS MISSING.

He Claims That She Eloped with a Minister, and That the Latter Deserted His Family—She Returned and Took the Furniture.—The Farmer Seeks an Attachment. Other Details.

Mr. George W. Tappen of South Plainfield went to City Judge Codington's office yesterday afternoon to secure a writ of attachment on a load of furniture which was at that time standing in front of the City Hotel.

Mr. Tappen was very much excited and told the Judge's clerk and a News reporter the following story:

"Three weeks ago my wife deserted me. She eloped with an Englishman, who claimed to be a minister, and who preached the Gospel in a church at Skillman, a village on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad. He lived with his wife and child at South Plainfield and visited my house frequently to talk religion to myself and wife. He appeared to be a very nice gentleman, and we welcomed him warmly. Three weeks ago my wife left me, and upon inquiry I learned that the minister was also missing. I afterwards learned that they had departed together, and were living as man and wife in a house at Summit. The minister had but recently married a young girl from this vicinity and she is now a mother. Previous to his departure he told her that he had previously married a woman in England and that she was now on her way to this country and consequently he would be compelled to depart for other quarters. That information shocked the woman so badly that she has been confined to her bed ever since. My wife returned home Tuesday evening and appeared to be very penitent. She remained all night, but yesterday morning she procured a truck from Mr. John Yose of Plainfield and began moving the household effects. I protested, but she said she was only having them removed to a friend's house who resides nearby. I then permitted the man to remove the furniture. When I saw what they proposed doing I immediately came to Plainfield and this is the result."

The reporter asked him if he owned the furniture.

"Well, I think I do he replied. It was my money that paid for it."

"But," continued the reporter, "why then did you permit your wife to have it removed after the manner in which you claimed she treated you?"

"Well," he replied, "some time ago I signed over all my property to her, thinking that she was faithful to me, and then again there were many men around they frightened me."

By what name is the minister, who you claim eloped with your wife known?

"They call him the Rev. George McComber."

It may be incidentally mentioned that Mr. Tappen appeared to be an honest hard working farmer. He is apparently about fifty years of age and seemed very much depressed over his wife's supposed duplicity. He said he trusted her in every way and that every dollar he secured was entrusted to her.

Mr. Tappen was advised by a lawyer to have the truckman, who carted away his goods, arrested but he did not feel inclined to do so. The goods are still in the possession of Mr. Yose and are housed in a barn in the rear of the City Hotel.

To Sue for Damages.

The Misses Taylor of West Fourth street are about to bring suit against Wm. Sthen of this city for damages. Mr. Sthen resides in the house in which they live. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago while they, in company with two friends were seated on the rear porch of their residence the stoop, which was badly decayed gave away and all were precipitated into a cellar-way and more or less injured. One young man named Sheline had his skull fractured. Mr. Stine, it is said, paid all doctor bills, but this does not satisfy the persons who were injured and they threaten a suit for damages.

The Report Exaggerated.

The report of the accident which happened to the Four-in-Hand Club of Rahway, N. J., on July 4 was exaggerated. The facts are said to be as follows: Mr. Gibbs was lying a Roman candle directly across the road as the four-in-hand approached, and the sparks frightening the leaders they swerved sharply across the telegraph pole striking a small tree about four inches in diameter, and both pole and tree were broken. This was the only damage that was done, and the ladies remained quietly seated until the extent of the damage was ascertained.

Sunday Was an Off Day for Fish.

Four well-known sports from this city, drove over to Scawaren, starting from here at four a. m., on Sunday, and spent the day angling for weak-fish. The fish, however, were strong enough to swim out into Raritan bay, and thus elude the skill and keen wits of the fisherman, who arrived home about five o'clock in the afternoon, without having getting a bite. The sports started out with less than a thousand yards of fishing tackle, and about six dollars worth of bait. When they returned they did not even have a fish story to tell—something quite unusual for Plainfield fishermen.

JUDGE RICE PRESIDED.

Three Defendants Plead in the Special Sessions.

Yesterday morning the Union County Court of Special Sessions convened at the usual hour. In the absence of Judge McCormick the session was presided over by Judge Rice of Middlesex county. There were several matters in the Orphans' Court that occupied the attention of the court, and on motion of Prosecutor Marsh defendants were arraigned in the criminal branch as follows:

Francisco Curero, the Italian, who is accused of stealing $15 from the pockets of a room mate in a boarding house on Amity street, pleaded not guilty. His trial will take place on Wednesday next.

Barney Travis charged with assault and battery pleaded not guilty, and furnished bail for trial in the October term.

John Hasting charged with assault and battery, pleaded not guilty, and Prosecutor Marsh said he was willing that the prisoners recognizance be accepted. The court so ordered it and Hasting was released under $200 bail.

Alleged Thief Caught.

During Sunday night someone entered the Somerset House and carried away the pool balls and about a dozen silver spoons. Yesterday Landlord Taylor of the Taylor Hotel, Dunellen, went to Somerville and reported to Proprietor VanArsdale that a man by the name of Ingalls as Lewis K. Ingalls of New York went to his place on Monday and took his leave without paying his bill. Mr. Taylor, immediately upon hearing of his departure, gave chase and overtook his man near Plainfield. When unbridled as a "beat" he offered to give the pool balls in payment for his board, but this Mr. Taylor refused, and carried the gentleman back to his hotel, where it was learned he had been at the Somerset. He was placed under arrest and Mr. Taylar went to Somerville. Mr. VanArsdale engaged Officer Crow and sent him after the man. When he returned with his prisoner the pool balls were identified and the man taken before Justice Stephen and held for the next term of court.

Mr. VanArsdale says that Ingalls went to the Somerset about a week ago, stayed two days and a half and went away without paying his board. The man says he is an uncle of the missing contractor, Bird G. Brewer.

Monkeys as Coin Testers.

The Washington Post publishes the following Summer story: "It is said that the white elephant of Siam are in request among the Siamese as cashiers in their counting houses. Vast quantities of base coins are known to be in circulation in Siam, and according to advices from that scorched-up, little Oriental kingdom, no living human can discriminate between the good and bad coinage with as much accuracy as these apes. These monkey cashiers possess the faculty of distinguishing the rude Siamese counterfeits in such an extraordinary degree that no trained banker can compete with them in their unique avocation. In playing his trade, the ape cashier meditatively puts each coin presented to him in his mouth and tests it with grave deterpmination. From teeth to fore seconds is all the time intelligent animal requires in making up his decision. If the coin is all right it is carefully deposited in the proper receptacle; if base it is thrown violently to the floor, while the coin tester makes known his displeasure at being presented with a counterfeit by giving vent to much angry chattering.

Fields on Fire.

A fire consumed a quantity of grass on the place of Urias Hoagland, in Hillsborough township, on Sunday night. Mr. Hoagland was obliged to get out his team and plow around the field.

Tuesday morning a locomotive spark (as he supposed) set fire to J. H. Lord's field of sprout, cut and in shocks, and a number of acres were burned over.

Sheriff Codington and James Teu Eyck, who were returning from Bound Brook, jumped off the train, which happened to be running slowly, and rendered timely aid in saving about one acre of the grain.

The Port Reading Road.

Counselor James L. Griggs searched 49 titles for the Port Reading Railroad company and had 21 condemnations of land. The company have secured all right of way to the terminus, on the Sound near Sawaren.

Work on this line is progressing rapidly night and day, and it is the intention to have trains running regularly by January 1st, next.

Plenty of Work.

The commission to revise, simplify and consolidate the laws in relation to towns, townships and villages, with a view to having the same re-enacted, if desired, finds a lot of work on its hands. Hon. George E. Pace, one of the members, says the duties will require four days a week for the next six months. There is a mass of these laws on the statute books.

Crushed His Foot.

John Teeple, a resident of South Plainfield, met with a painful accident Tuesday afternoon. He was assisting in the erection of the new coal chute at the place and with several others was in the act of raising one of the large spiles, when the log slipped and struck him on the right foot, badly crushing it. A physician dressed his wounds.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

R. B. Purcell Instantly Killed.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 9th. (Special.)—R. B. Purcell, a printer, of Newark, walked out on the railroad bridge to the second arch, over Water street, at five o'clock last evening. He was struck by a coal train and instantly killed. His body was thrown off the track, alighting on the nest of telegraph wires, where it hung above the street half an hour, until taken down by linemen.

THE ADVANTAGES OF CENTRAL NEW JERSEY.

Our Excellent System of Rapid Transit Appreciated in New York and Brooklyn.

The Brooklyn Eagle of last Sunday said what is of special force since it is against the interests of Brooklyn and New York city decidedly, and in favor of Central New Jersey and our excellent system of Rapid Transit and the low rents here in Central New Jersey as follows:

"The easier access to the city is made the more people we shall have residing here. As the matter now stands it ought to get many who are making their home in New Jersey. These people will not go uptown in New York for several reasons. One is the rents are too high. Although hundreds, if not thousands of flats, apartments and tenements are vacant; another, the rapid transit facilities in New York are not sufficient at present to handle many more people, even were they anxious to make their home in Harlem. With upper New York practically closed and Brooklyn becoming inaccessible on account of the life and death struggle to cross the bridge during rush hour, what is the result? Merely this—The overflow population goes to Jersey. Especially on the line of the Jersey Central there are dozens of well settled and healthy by former residents of Brooklyn, or by people who would gladly live in Brooklyn were they given an opportunity to get there."

St. George's Club.

As previously announced in THE NEWS the St. George's Cricket Club were taken to Paterson in Conover's stage on Monday morning to play against the Paterson Cricket Club at Eastside park. The game was well contested by the Plainfield Club and the visitors were complimented by the Paterson Club as being one of the strongest team that have met this season. This was regarded as being no light compliment on the ability of our cricketers considering that the Paterson Club have not been defeated this season and have played against all the leading clubs in New York and vicinity. The St. George's hope to do still better at the return match which will be played on their grounds on August 16th.

A bicycle and a horse and buggy collided on Commercial row yesterday. The bicycle struck the horse broadside, and both he and rider went over like a man in the theatre was simply astounded, and, as the wheelman, who was upon the horse for his pains, remounted and rode off, asked, "What was that?"

There Are Heroes Still.

Is the world full of selfishness and meanness, and are there no more heroes and no more lofty courage or self denying generosity? Young Frederick Brokaw, the Princeton athlete, the beloved of his father and mother and of scores of friends, a beautiful youth, at the threshold of a manhood as full of promise as that of a young prince or king, gave up his splendid life at Long Branch to save that of a simple Irish serving maid. Three servant girls, ignorant of the danger of the treacherous undertow, ventured too far and were caught by its deadly suction. They screamed for help, and then young Brokaw, aware that he might be going to his own death, sprang to their aid.

He was a fine swimmer, but the breakers caught him, washed over him and filled his lungs with water. His brave head showed once and again gleaming through the cruel white foam. The last time he turned his face toward the boat approaching to the rescue he shouted loud enough for the rowers to hear: "I'm exhausted! Save the girl!" Then another fearful breaker dashed over them both, and when the glorious face appeared to mortal sight again it was cold and white in death. Women, do you say there is no chivalry left in the heart of man toward woman? Is there no more the heroism that will give its life for another? There is. Aye, thank God, there are still in the breast of both as there ever was in the world.

European Alliances.

"Europe is peace!" says the emperor of Germany to his subjects. And he then drinks bumper after bumper of German beer and remarks that it is a thirsty day. "Peace is assured in Europe," says Premier Rudini in a speech to the Italian senate. Then Rudini congratulates his fellow countryman that Austria, Germany and Italy have renewed the triple alliance, the "Dreibund," for six years more. Nay, we are given to understand that the triple alliance is really a quadruple alliance, for England is a silent partner in the agreement which Austria, Germany and Italy have made to defend one another against the aggressions of France and Russia.

The triple alliance began in 1879. In the beginning it was only a double alliance, and Bismarck was the founder of it. Bismarck, by his diplomacy at the Berlin conference, defeated Russia in her designs on Turkish territory, even after she had entitled herself to a fair share of it by hard fighting and victory on the field of battle. Then Bismarck, fearing the far reaching revenges of the Russian, persuaded Austria to enter into an alliance, offensive and defensive, against the government of the czar. Next Italy was persuaded by promises and threats to enter into the alliance, and it became consequently the Dreibund. Thus diplomacy and statesmanship, so called, forced the people of Italy to stand side by side in alliance with their old time and bitterly hated enemy the Austrian. They have never forgiven their rulers for that alliance to this day, and will not in our time. Germany felt uneasy as to France, too, so France was watched on one side and Russia on the other.

But what does it mean, this triple alliance, which began in 1879, lasted six years, came to an end and has been renewed for another six years? Let us see. It means that Germany, Austria and Italy must together maintain an armed force of 5,140,000, that being the strength of the combined standing armies of the three powers. Behold these three, then, on one side of the fence. On the other side stand Russia and France with their combined armies of 4,800,000 men. So they stand, snarling and showing their teeth, like dogs ready to fly at one another's throats, hating one another, jealous of one another, watching one another. Meantime Russia is steadily, silently, like a thief in the night, pushing her way resistlessly into the south and east in Asia. Meantime, too, these fearful standing armies are slowly eating out the heart of Europe, paralyzing her industries, destroying all fruits of the civilization of peace. But Europe is at peace, they say.

Oh, yes. Europe is peace.

SMILER'S BODY BURNED.

A Reporter's View of the Dead Murderer's Face.

IT WAS HORRIBLY DISFIGURED.

But for All That Those Who Were Present at the Execution Claim That Smiler Suffered No Pain and Died the Instant the Current Struck Him.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The body of Smiler, the murderer who was done to death by electricity at Sing Sing Tuesday morning, was seen by a reporter last evening at Hulberg's undertaking shop, 365 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. Smiler was the only one of the four murderers whose body was claimed by his friends. The bodies of the other three men never passed out of the possession of the state. They were not seen by anybody but the witnesses of the execution and the prison officials. This was the first man to die by electricity whose body had passed out of possession of the state and into public view.

After Mrs. Smiler, the dead man's first wife, with her sister-in-law, had looked at the corpse, Undertaker Hulberg conducted the reporter to the cellar, where the body lay in an ordinary redwood coffin. Nothing but the face of the dead man could be seen, but that bore plainly the evidences of the terrible death which he had met.

The Body Horribly Burned.

The eyes had been burned away, the cheeks and the lower part of the face were covered with blood-red scars which the electric fluid had left, the bridge of the nose had been burned clear to the bone, and the forehead had been singed till there was nothing left to show where they had been.

There was no mark of a surgeon's knife or of a physician's instrument about the face, neck or head of the dead man, and the terrible disfiguration which he had undergone seemed clearly the result of the impact of the electric agent. The places where the fatal electrodes had been pressed against Smiler's forehead were plainly apparent.

The Attempt a Failure.

On each temple of the dead man there was a distinct round imprint a little larger than a silver dollar. It seemed as if some hard, smooth substance had been screwed or tightly pressed against his forehead.

The mark that was left was similar to that made by the lining of a tight hat after being worn a long time. Over the right temple disk on that side had been nearly the center of the forehead than on the other side. On both the right and left temples these round marks which were probably made by the electrodes were plainly visible under the strong light which Undertaker Hulberg's lamp cast upon the dead man's features. If, however, these marks were made by metal electrodes intended to pass electricity into the head at that point, it almost seemed as if the attempt had ended in failure.

Like a Flash of Lightning.

The black and blue marks on the forehead, where the metal disks had pressed, were irregular in shape. The part of the forehead, however, had the skin been injured. It has been suggested in this connection that when powerful electric currents pass into the body they burn and tear the skin and produce a bloody surface, which makes the contact more perfect. From the appearance of Smiler's face it seemed as if the electric fluid had escaped from the electrode, and had covered the man's face like a flash of lightning, burning out the eyes and scorching the cheeks.

The most striking marks about his head were the wide, distinct, bloodred burns on the face. One of these, as it had been made with a redhot iron. That on the right side was about three-quarters of an inch wide and a little over six inches long, and as the dead man's face was perfectly white its course was clearly marked. It began under the right eye at the upper corner, and then ran from the under the eyelid, and ran in a straight line diagonally down the face to the inside of the cheekbone.

How the Electrode Rested.

In marked contrast with the burn on Smiler's right cheek was that upon the left. This was much longer and broader. It looked as though the slice had been cut out of the man's cheek by a redhot poker.

Taken in conjunction with these two broad scars on either cheek, the nose of the dead man presented a significant appearance. The center of electrical disturbance appeared to have been dip in the upper part of the nose, below the forehead and above the central bridge. Here apparently part of the electrode had rested, although the greater part of it had been intended that the current should enter anywhere but at the forehead.

The Bones Plainly Visible.

In no other way could the phenomena be explained except on the ground that the electric fluid formed a center of its own outside the electrode and radiated from the upper part of the nose. This was burned clear to the bone.

The flesh was all brown and shrivelled up and for a space as large as fifty cent piece the current seemed to have concentrated in its intensity. Under the burned and hardened skin the bone of the nose could be plainly seen. Particular marks of the electrode on either side of the forehead were two to four inches away from the junction of the nose with the frontal bone and strikingly different in color. One was faint blue and black, with a smooth uninjured skin. The other was browned and hardened. No piece of the fatal electric machinery which shocked Smiler to his death was intended to project the current into any other part of his face than that on the forehead.

The forehead alone was to receive the current from the pole of the battery connecting through the life sponge with that at the leg. Yet, in addition to the scars on the face, where the fluid had probably passed with a flash, there was a distinct mark as the arrow as the lower part of the chin. This was a small, round abrasion a little smaller than a one cent piece.

The Brain Not Examined.

The Herald claims that Smiler's brain was not examined by the physicians at the autopsy and consequently they are not able to state the cause of the death as required by law.

Warden Brown Talks.

SING SING, N. Y. July 9.—"I have positively refused to make any statement since the executions," said Warden Brown to a reporter, "but I will say that it is my belief that any discoloration of Smiler's face is an after effect. The men died the instant they were struck by the current. That ends the matter as far as I am concerned. The law was carried out in every particular.

"I can say positively that there was no torture, that there was no burning of flesh, that there was no disgraceful scene, while the men were in the death chamber. After that they were in the surgeons' hands. Their conclusions will be officially announced in a short time. As these men lay on the table waiting for the surgeons' knife there was no appearance of the disfigurement spoken of.

There Were No Scars Then.

"It is only natural that a young man full of vitality, whose life is taken so forcibly without shedding a drop of blood, would undoubtedly show some signs of the terrible struggle. Men who have been hanged turn black in the face. Smiler was killed thirty-six hours ago. He was not embalmed, and the doctors had their turn at him. I am not offering any excuse, but it stands to reason that he should show some signs of decomposing.

"There were no scars when I saw him. I know nothing of the body after the surgeons finished, for I did not go to see it."

Prison Doctor Barber Speaks.

Dr. Hiram Barber, the prison physician, who had charge of the autopsy, said that any report of a burned face or leg was an exaggeration.

"The men were all killed at once and not burned at all. Smiler has been dead so long that he may show signs of decomposition."

"Do you believe the executions were successful?"

"There is no question about that. The men died the instant they were touched by the fluid. It acted like magic, and is, in my opinion, the best method for capital punishment."

Father Hogan Saw No Burns.

Rev. Father Hogan, who was at the jail on execution day, said: "I do not believe that Smiler was burned in the chair. I saw the four bodies and took particular notice of Slocum, who lay near the end of the table. There was not a mark on his face and his body was also free from any sign that would indicate he had been killed. Smiler was a couple of yards away, but there were no marks on him, or at least I did not notice any, and I am quite certain that I would have seen them if there were any. My opinion is that the discoloration was the result of a terrible charge of electricity on a full blooded man, and that it did not show until hours after the man was dead."

Blisters Would Be Raised.

ALBANY, July 9.—Dr. Samuel B. Ward, one of the official physicians at the execution, said when asked about the burning of Smiler:

"I am pledged to secrecy. As it is, I can only repeat most emphatically that death was instantaneous and painless, or as nearly painless as it is possible for death to be. As for any marks on the body of Smiler I will say that it is by no means an uncommon thing for blisters to be raised upon the skin by the application of a current of electricity.

"Now, suppose the flash of one of those men was burned; I say, what of it? I tell you frankly and honestly that death was instantaneous. From the instant that the electric current was first applied every one of those men was unconscious. He was not dead until the heart had permanently ceased to beat, but the heart in every case ceased to beat in one-fifth of the time that it takes to kill a man by hanging.

But He Was Dead.

"He was dead to all sensation the instant that the current struck him.

"The appearance of all four was not as repulsive as the corpse of one man who had been hanged. The disfigurement, if you wish to call it that, was not so great. When a man is hanged his corpse is not a pretty thing to look upon, but there was nothing repulsive in the appearance of any of these men. It is hardly reasonable to suppose that any man could receive such a current of electricity as was applied to those men and show no trace of it upon the skin."

SUICIDE IN A SEWER.

Novel Method of Self Destruction at New York.

NEW YORK, July 9.—A novel method of shuffling off this mortal coil developed in this city at 8:30 last evening when an unknown man about twenty-eight years of age committed suicide by plunging head foremost into a sewer through the manhole at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue.

Search was made for the body, but it was not found, having probably been washed out with the rive. The search was resumed today.

The Middle States Regatta.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The officers in charge of the rowing regatta for the championship of the middle states at Newark, N. J., have decided to have the events, including trial heats, on Saturday. The officials believe that by starting promptly at 9 a. m. and running off an event at each succeeding half hour they can complete the programme before dark. J. E. Murphy, of the Institute club of Newark, has been appointed judge of the course.

He Played Poker.

MERIDEN, Conn., July 9.—George B. Tuttle, traveling salesman for Warner & Co., of Hartford, clothiers, has been missing from his home in this city since last Thursday. He ran two clothing clubs here and took in about $2,000. He had deposited all of this in the bank but drew it out some time ago. It is said that he lost heavily playing poker.

Rochester's Club in Bad Shape.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9.—President Charles White, of the Eastern league, is here to see if there is any possible way of reviving interest in the national game. Twenty-five of the thirty-eight shares of the club are assigned to President White as trustee and he will look after the club. Charles Norton was signed as manager.

Adjuster McCargo Arrested.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9.—James McCargo, of Medina, N. Y., adjuster of the Equitable Life association, of Rochester, has been arrested in Medina on a warrant charging him with forgery in the second degree by feloniously forging the name of P. D. Dowd to an instrument and upon a check for $300.

A Newspaper Denounced.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The board of trustees of the New York Life Insurance company have passed resolutions denouncing the articles published in the New York Times reflecting upon the officers and trustees of the company as false and malicious.

He Will Send the Japs Back.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The treasury department is informed that Mr. Wolff, of Chicago, who imported two Japanese to push jinrickshaws in the public park, had failed to return the Japanese to Japan at his own expense.

FIGHT ON A FERRYBOAT.

Dr. Fuller Blacked Ex-Judge Holme's Eye.

A DIVORCE CASE WAS THE CAUSE.

The Physician Claimed That His Opponent Had Ruined His Home and Stolen the Affections of His Wife—The Courts Had Declared Holme Innocent.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Ex-Judge Leicester Holme, until recently Mayor Grant's secretary, was spat upon and beaten in a Long Island City ferryboat last evening by Dr. Fraser C. Fuller. In Dr. Fuller's recent suit against his beautiful and rich young wife ex-Judge Holme was co-respondent, but was declared not guilty by the court.

"You're the scoundrel I've been looking for for some time."

These words, uttered by Dr. Fuller, a man of commanding appearance, and quickly followed by other equally strong expressions and exciting incidents, caused a great commotion on the ladies' side of the ferryboat Rockaway as it was leaving its slip at Thirty-fourth street for Long Island City.

Spat in His Face.

Among the last to step aboard just as the deckhands closed the gates was Dr. Fuller.

As he was walking rapidly through the cabin Dr. Fuller suddenly stopped, glared fiercely at ex-Judge Holme, who had a seat between two ladies, and then he spoke to him. As the insulting words ex-Judge Holme arose from his seat and advanced toward Dr. Fuller, at the same time lifting his right hand as if to strike the doctor. Before he could strike, however, Dr. Fuller deliberately spat in his face and again hurled the words, "You're the scoundrel I'm looking for." Ex-Judge Holme in a voice which caused the occupants of the cabin and the crowd outside to rush toward them.

A Righthander in the Face.

Again ex-Judge Holme attempted to strike the doctor. The latter, however, amid the shrieks of the women and the shouts of the men, coolly dropped his bag, grasped his cane and umbrella, and with a stinging righthander straight from the shoulder stuck ex-Judge Holme full in the face, causing him to reel and almost fall.

Notwithstanding the efforts of some of the men to hold Dr. Fuller and shield ex-Judge Holme from further blows, the doctor succeeded in getting in two more stunning blows with each hand. Then the deckhands rushed in and interfered, and ex-Judge Holme was driven out of the way.

"Scoundrel and Blackguard."

Dr. Fuller, standing at his full height, shook his clinched fist at the disappearing ex-co-respondent and said in a voice of thunder:

"That is ex-Judge Leicester Holme; he's a scoundrel and a blackguard."

Somebody called the doctor's attention to the fact that there were ladies present and that his actions had caused them much annoyance and distress. The excited doctor at once doffed his hat and, bowing to the ladies, said in most pathetic tones: "I beg your pardon and apologize to you, ladies, for the scene my actions have caused, but I could not help it. That man won my wife from me and ruined my home and life."

During the fracas the excitement among the passengers was intense. One of them, Mr. D. I. Jones, of Long Island City, loudly called to the crowd to give the scoundrel a fair show, while one young lady, with tears in her eyes, begged the doctor not to hit ex-Judge Holme so hard.

Holme Did Not Accept.

Before he passed out of the cabin Dr. Fuller turned around, and, pointing to the spot where the man he had just whipped was standing, in the shadow of a man of large size, he shouted "Come out here, you cur, and I'll pitch you into the river, you scoundrel. Deflied as it is with the filth of the old factories, its waters are too clear for such a vile thing as you are."

Ex-Judge Holme did not accept the invitation, and as by this time the boat had reached the slip at Long Island City, the passengers, still greatly excited, rushed from the deck to the railway station. Dr. Fuller waited at the ferry gate until the passengers had left the boat, intending to give ex-Judge Holme the opportunity of having him arrested or taking a further thrashing. He failed to catch the ex-judge, however, who must have passed out through the waiting room.

Holme Was Exonerated.

Dr. Fuller's suit for divorce was very sensational, the high social and financial standing and wealth of all concerned and the circumstances surrounding the marriage and subsequent life of husband and wife. He is one of the best known of the younger physicians in the city. He was married to a Miss Hastings, sixteen years ago, and they have had a little over a year Dr. Fuller began suit for divorce, naming ex-Judge Leicester Holme as co-respondent. The report of Referee Stetson, which was filed recently, declared that the charges made by Dr. Fuller had not been proved and exonerated ex-Judge Holme. In the fight Holme's eye was blackened.

Accidentally Shot His Wife.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Mrs. Jessie Judd, forty-four years old, was accidentally shot and perhaps fatally wounded, by her husband, John B. Judd, dealer in sporting goods at 1,364 Broadway. Mr. Judd was putting in a box of revolvers, and as he packed each revolver in a box he snapped the trigger mechanism. Mrs. Judd was standing close by her husband when there was a loud report and Mrs. Judd exclaimed, "I am shot!" and fell to the floor. She exonerated her husband, but he was arrested.

Was Fix Robbed?

ROSPOTY, N. Y., July 9.—The remains of the man found adrift in the Hudson river off Ulster landing Sunday were identified today as those of Rudolph Fix, a German saloon keeper of Syracuse. When he left home he had bonds valued at $8,000 in his possession. As these are now missing it is thought he was robbed, and becoming crazed by his loss leaped from the steamboat Dean Richmond.

Shot the Girl and Himself.

NEW YORK, July 9.—About noon Ferdinand Reichert fired a pistol at Annie Douglas, wounding her in the neck and wrist, and turning the pistol upon himself lodged three bullets in his own head. Reichert's wounds are fatal, but the girl may recover. The shooting occurred at 20 Division street. Reichert was drunk and became angered at the girl because she sent him on an errand.

THE EMPEROR IN PERIL.

LONDON, July 9.—The lives of the German emperor and other royalties were endangered by an incident which occurred at the review of the Eton volunteers, and which was kept secret. The emperor at the time referred to was watching the evolutions of the boys with great interest, and he stood chatting with the Prince of Wales and others directly in front of the line.

Finally the command to fire was given, which was followed by an explosion from a solitary gun. All the harmless of all the other guns simply clicked, as was intended.

It was explained that one boy had put in a blank cartridge by mistake; but it is also asserted that it was a ball cartridge which the lad had carelessly left in his gun a week before after target firing. All the officers present hastened to assure the emperor that it was only a blank cartridge.

The emperor, smiling, was unmoved, but on returning home it is reported that he said he was certain that it was no blank cartridge, because he heard the whizz of the bullet distinctly.

The arrival of the kaiser and kaiserin in London was witnessed by a vast throng of people. They came accompanied by their superiors and the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh. The crowd repeatedly cheered the prince and the kaiser, who politely returned the salutations.

The performance at the Covent Garden Opera House last night in honor of the *kaiser is said to have been the finest specta*cle of the kind ever witnessed in London.

A report comes from Windsor that one of the wellborn attaches in the suite of the kaiser have given serious offense by their impertinence to two women belonging to respectable resident families.

On several occasions the foreigners have taken the liberty to bow, and even to speak to women to whom they had been given no introduction. This has caused no little ill feeling. It is said that two stalwart Englishmen, related to a young lady who had been thus insulted, were in search last evening to give a severe thumping to the offender should they happen to see him.

PUNISHING THE ITATA.

Her Master Will Be Fined $300 and Her Officers Severely Dealt With.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The secretary of the treasury has accepted the offer of the Pacific Mail Steamship company to pay the fine of the navigation laws in having cleared from San Diego without the necessary permit. This settlement, however, has no bearing on the other charges against the officers of this vessel, to wit: Kidnaping a federal officer and violating the neutrality laws.

Secretary Tom Stanton Miller stated that the decision of Judge Ross in the Robert and Minnie case at San Diego, Cal., as he understands it, simply holds that the vessel cannot be confiscated.

He had received no official notice of the decision. The case against the persons on board the Robert and Minnie would, he said, be proceeded with at once. The decision would not, he said, affect the government's course in the case of the Itata.

Marshal Gard Has Her.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 9.—United States Marshal Gard has taken charge of the Itata in pursuance of instructions received from United States District Attorney Cole. The vessel will be libeled on the charge of violating the neutrality laws.

Morris, president of the Girard Life Insurance Annuity and Trust company, have also been directed to appear. H. H. Yard, who is now under arrest for conspiracy with Bardsley to loan public funds to the Keystone, is to give testimony on the same day in relation to the city's deposits in the Keystone bank and other matters incident to Bardsley's misappropriation of bonds and Warrants.

In response to the request of Assistant Secretary Nettleton, of the treasury department, Taylor Faunce and Lawrence Brown, the experts loaned by the navy, were sent to Washington for instructions.

Parnell's Defeat at Carlow.

DUBLIN, July 9.—The Carlow election has been a surprise on account of the extent of the majority against Parnell's candidate. The Parnellites had not by any means expect success. Parnell declares that he will continue the struggle, and that the Mc Carthy-Dillon party cannot defeat him. They expect that he will take himself out of the way. Parnell attributes the result to the ignorance of the voters and the influence of the priests.

The President to Go Blackfishing.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Admiral H. T. Blake, of the revenue cutter Hamilton, has sailed for Cape May Point, where the cutter will take aboard President Harrison and go blackfishing across Delaware. The president has heard so many stories of the wonderful sport afforded by the bluefish in the deep sea fishermen's paradise of Anglesea that he has been anxious to try his luck.

He Will Get $50,000 a Year.

Obsequies of Ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin.

EDITOR M'CLURE SCORES NICOLAY

His Recollection His Previous Assertion Which Was Contradicted by Lincoln's Biographer That the Martyr President Did Not Favor Hamlin for a Second Term.

BANGOR, Me., July 9.—The remains of ex-Vice President Hamlin were interred in the afternoon in Mount Hope cemetery. The funeral was one of the largest and most impressive ever held in this state. All of the public buildings and many private and business houses were draped in mourning, and during the afternoon, at the time of the funeral and the passage of the funeral cortege, all business houses were closed, and every one united in paying tribute to the distinguished dead. At 10:30 a. m. the body was escorted from Mr. Hamlin's late residence to the Unitarian church by a guard of honor from the local Grand Army post, at which place the body lay in state from the time of its arrival until 2 p. m., and was viewed by thousands of people who came from all sections of the state.

Many Well Known Men Present.

The decorations at the church were very beautiful. The floral offerings were profuse, and came from men distinguished in official life as well as from private citizens. At 2 o'clock a special train arrived in the city from Portland and Augusta, which brought a number of Governor Burleigh, members of the executive council, members of the loyal legion,

HANNIBAL HAMLIN.

President Libby of the senate and many others. Senator Frye and many other distinguished citizens arrived on regular trains. The funeral services were held at 3:30 o'clock at the Unitarian church. The edifice was filled almost to overflowing. The services, which were conducted by Rev. S. C. Beach, pastor of the church, were brief, but impressive. The pallbearers were Hon. S. F. Humphrey, Senator Hale, Hon. A. C. Routelle, Philo A. Strickland, L. J. Morse and W. S. Deering.

The Nicolay-McClure Controversy.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—The Times today contains a vigorous editorial by Colonel A. K. McClure, in which he says: "The ignorance exhibited by John G. Nicolay in his published telegram to the widow of ex-Vice President Hamlin is equaled only by his arrogance in assuming to speak for Abraham Lincoln in matters about which Mr. Nicolay was never consulted, and of which he had no more knowledge than any other routine clerk about the White House. I do not believe that Mr. Nicolay has pushed into a dispute that must lead to the clear establishment of the exact truth as to the defeat of Hamlin in 1864. It will surely greatly impair, if not destroy, Nicolay's hitherto generally accepted claim to accuracy as the biographer of Lincoln; but he can complain of none but himself.

He Was Lincoln's Confidante.

"I saw Abraham Lincoln at all hours of the day and night during his presidential service, and he has himself abundantly testified to the confidence that existed between us. Having had the direction of his battle in the pivotal states of the Union, he doubtless accorded me more credit than I merited. In all of the many grave political emergencies arising from the new and often appalling duties imposed by internecine war, I was one of those called in by the inner councils of Abraham Lincoln. And no man ever met or heard of John G. Nicolay in such councils. He was a good mechanical and routine clerk; he was utterly inefficient as the secretary of the president; his removal was earnestly pressed upon Lincoln on more than one occasion because of his utter want of tact and fitness to his trust, and only the proverbial kindness of Lincoln saved him from dismissal. His, biography of Lincoln is intolerable as a connected history of the public acts of the Lincoln administration, but there is not a chapter or page in the inner personal attributes of the man that is not burdened with unpardonable errors.

Why Lincoln Preferred Johnson.

"I now repeat that, in obedience to a telegraphic request from President Lincoln I visited Washington at White House the day before the Baltimore convention of 1864. At that interview Mr. Lincoln unreservedly stated why the nomination of a well known southern man like Andrew Johnson, who had been congressman, governor and senator by the favor of his state, would not only nationalize the Republican party and the government, but would greatly lessen the grave peril of the recognition of the Confederacy by England and France. He believed that the election to the vice presidency of a representative statesman from an insurgent state that had been restored to the Union would disarm the enemies of the Republic abroad.

"No intimation, no trace of prejudice against Mr. Hamlin was exhibited, and I well knew that no such consideration could have influenced Mr. Lincoln in such an emergency. But he believed that a great public achievement could be obtained by the election of Johnson, and I returned to Baltimore to work and vote for Johnson, although against all my personal predilections in the matter.

The Nicolay Telegram Denounced.

"Mr. Nicolay's publit telegram to Mrs. Hamlin saying that the foregoing statement is 'entirely erroneous' is an impudent as it is false, and the correctness of my statement is not even inferentially contradicted by Nicolay's quotation from Lincoln. On the contrary, Nicolay's statement, given in his history proves simply that Nicolay was dress parading at Baltimore and knew nothing of the president's purposes.

"The convention was a Lincoln body pure and simple, and no man could have been put on the ticket with Lincoln who was not known to be his choice. It was not proclaimed, but it was in the air, and pretty much everybody but John G. Nicolay scented and bowed to it. Of the few men who enjoyed Mr. Lincoln's complete confidence Charles A. Dana was conspicuous, and his statement is as creditable testimony as could now be given on the subject, and logically tells of Johnson's 'selection by Lincoln' for the vice presidency in 1864."

MRS. THOMPSON INSANE.

She Is a Well Known Philanthropist of Connecticut.

KANSAS CITY, July 9.—Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, the noted philanthropist of Stamford, Conn., has been adjudged insane in the probate court.

Mrs. Thompson is well known all over the United States. She has probably given away to charitable societies more than any other woman in America. She will be remembered as the friend of abolition during the late war.

She presented to congress the famous picture "Emancipation," painted by Frank Carpenter. She is over seventy years old, and for the past few years has been partially paralyzed and unable to articulate distinctly. Mrs. Thompson has about $50,000 worth of property in Kansas City in the hands of David McCoach, and in order to get this in the hands of a curetor the proceedings here were instituted.

The proceedings were instituted by Mrs. Thompson's relatives in Connecticut and by Mr. N. C. Downs, an attorney, who was appointed her conservator in that state. Depositions of Mrs. Thompson's sister and nephew were read, which indicated that she was not only incapable of attending to business but was violently insane.

A Wonderful Mirage at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9.—A mirage surpassing in distinctness anything of the kind ever here in many years was witnessed in the morning from the tower of Power's building. Lake Ontario appeared to be less than half a mile distant, and St. Michael's church, which is a mile and a half away to the northeast, seemed to be less than a quarter of a mile off. Beyond the lake the shore of Canada appeared plainly in view. Along the shore a railroad train composed of gravel cars was seen moving.

THE ENTRANCING WOMAN.

One needs only a slight experience in general society to discover that taste has separate necessities in different individuals, and that beauty, wit, "style," a gift for light conversation, depth of mind have each their admirers, a fact that sets the ones on the outside of the especial circumstance to wondering how the same people may be in the particular woman to "draw."

Is there a woman who is universally entrancing? Is there one who commands worship swift and entire—a worship impatient of reasoning, that submits to no authority but that of insight?

If there is we must naturally conclude that she possesses something that appeals to more than one side of human nature, and that does not mean that she has that diplomacy that in the beginning is perhaps nothing more than the desire to please the many, but which often degenerates into positive insincerity, but rather that unconscious touch upon her kind that comes from a very necessity of her being.

Sorrow and joy are at the extremes of human experience, and the woman who stands with the cruder stretching sympathetic hands toward either condition must be the one who is essentially charming. Like Tennyson's "Rare, pale Margaret," she stands "between the rainbow and the sun."

This woman of the sweet confiding nature, who is thrilled with the delights of life, upon whom is bashed all the beauty and grace in nature and yet who bears about her evidences that the storms have raged and the very center of her soul, and that she has taken the hand of many a sufferer, to descend in sympathy to the deepest grave of affliction, is an enchantress. She is the one to whom the young come with their enthusiasm and youthful fears and hopes; indeed, so perennial are the springs of renewal within her nature that in the passage of the years time seems to have refused to make its sign upon her, and yet the middle aged and the old recognize in her a friend and helper.

To her the knightliness of the manliest manhood bows and offers protection. Perhaps all men naturally are susceptible to appeals to the strength of their arm and to their bravery of soul, and this something in a woman's eye half revealed, this touch of sadness, few of the stronger sex are able to resist.

Such a woman is beyond the art of the copyist. Spend their efforts as they may in trying to reproduce the fascinating effects, women who envy her are never able to get a true copy. Sometimes they imagine that the secret may be found in a tone of the voice, or, again, in a glance of the eye, or in the pose of the figure, but in the effort to adopt these to their own personality they meet failure even before the first trial of their experiment is made public.

But the entrancing woman pays her price, in a sense, for her power. The rainbow that is lovely in beauty in the sight of the many to delight, cheer and inspire them was formed through the mist of her tears, and when the darkness colors fade away some term to behold the lonely figure that stands amid the clearing mists.—Mary E. Baldwin in Harper's Bazar.

Some Hygienic Potato.

There are a few general principles to observe in the hygiene of a house that it might be well to impress upon young housekeepers, although the observance of which is not due to want of knowledge so much as want of care. Every mother should see by personal supervision that each member of the family becomes habituated to sleep with the window more or less open according to the season. If there are stationary basins in the rooms, or in the adjoining bathroom, she should enjoin the constant and free use of disinfectants. If any one is obliged to sleep in a room with such a basin a good plan is to throw a damp towel over it before going to bed.

Overheating the house, too, with young children is especially to be guarded against, as it is very apt to cause colds and croup. Watch the daily bath carefully; many cannot stand the daily plunge without ill effect, who would do very well benefited by sponging and vigorous rubbing with a coarse towel. For those who dread the cold the following is a delightful way of taking one's bath comfortably tub:

Stand in hot water deep enough to cover the ankles, fill a basin with cold water, sponge off the body rapidly and rub well, especially getting on warm flannels before drying the feet. In this way the most delicate person will not experience any chill. The great point is the rapidity with which the bath is done, the whole bath should not exceed two minutes. We close these suggestions by a quotation from still another eminent doctor who has written a great deal on this very subject: "I cannot overrate the necessity for plenty of fresh air and sunshine and perfect cleanliness," he says, "both in the house and about the person, and it is only when these primary rules of hygiene are fully carried out that we can hope to keep the health which is given us."—New York Tribune.

One Merry Little Woman.

There is in this city a merry little woman who never is obliged to ask twice when she wants anything. She is one of the meek women who never dare to have an original opinion, or to indorse one unless husband has first indorsed it. She says what she thinks, but even if it is a criticism it is given with such good nature that no one can take offense. Very often things do not go to suit her, but she has the good sense to realize that scolding or complaining or whining will not help matters.

If she is too angry to laugh she keeps still until she can control herself. If very angry she shuts herself up in her room alone for a few moments. She says that an angry woman seems to her to be so repulsive an object that she cannot bear to have those whom she loves best see her in any such character. She never seems to command, and her husband imagines that he always has his own way. She never disputes his point, yet they both know her best know that there are few questions that are not settled to her entire satisfaction.

She will appear young when the scolding women of her age are considered old, and she will always have sandalfuence for good where they have no influence at all.—Housekeepers' Weekly.

A Model Housewife.

In the first place she is the most thoroughly cheerful and happy looking woman you will meet in a day's travel; and although she is thirty-five years old, the down's look thirty. This is because she never allows the petty cares of housekeeping to worry her and put those wearing lines in her face. Time and a time, never undertaking the error of undertaking a dozen duties at once.

This model housewife keeps a scrupulously neat house, but no room is ever kept sacrificed for the sake of appearance. She has neither too much furniture nor too much bric-a-brac. She dresses tastefully and neatly but plainly.

This very sensible woman is a loving wife and agreeable companion to her husband. She knows how to save time, and thus finds opportunity to read, and is able to discuss topics of interest with her husband in the evening by the fireside. She is a gentle mother to her little ones, but when she says "No" she keeps her word. She is never impatient with the baby when he is sleepy and clings to her dress. Instead of spanking him she takes the tired little form in her arms and rocks it to sleep.

Her husband is not wealthy and she does not strain the last nerve to dress as well as her more wealthy neighbors, but her taste is so correct that these same neighbors envy her stylish appearance. She is also a good neighbor and she does not gossip. If there is sickness she is willing to aid the suffering, and she does not forget the old and poor in the neighborhood.—Annie Smith in Housewife.

The Abuse of "Baby."

New born babes in particular are the helpless victims of and ignorance which has crystallized into divers "old wives' notions." The little one's skin is noticed to be of a yellowish color; he has the jaundice, and must be dosed immediately and liberally with saffron tea. The gratuitous assumption is made that he has come into the world hungry, and his delicate little stomach is filled up with molasses and water, sweetened milk, etc., while the food that was naturally intended for him is poured down off with a breast pump and thrown away.

Now it should always be remembered that a new born babe is a strict physiological condition. He needs no food other than that which nature has provided. His skin is always of a different color from that which it will assume later on. Being a new born infant is inexcusable. It has killed thousands. The little bag which some oldtime nurses used to carry about with them, full of all kinds of herbs, oils and other notions, is an abomination. Unhappily, it is not yet wholly obsolete. It will be well for humanity when we learn that the less nature is interfered with the better.

A good principle in dealing with all classes of patients until the doctor comes is embodied in the old saying, "When in doubt what to do, don't go and do it."—Babyhood.

An Experiment.

A little story is afloat about what some call the fresh of a wealthy New York woman, and some dignify it by a more respectful name. It appears that, either through liking for extime honored German custom, or for some such whim and invention, it has occurred to this society leader to put her daughter, who has just left a fashionable boarding school, in a position to learn certain domestic accomplishments respected in tradition, such as cooking and mending. For this purpose she has installed her in the house of an old friend, dear to her since her own school days, but whose husband is the counterpart in real life of the country clergyman in fiction, possessed of a few dollars and many children.

No servant is kept in this establishment, and the wish of the society woman is that, for the time being, her daughter shall be her old friend's help, using the word with the honorable significance it formerly had in New England. What will be the issue of this experiment is a question a number of other girls are asking. It is not in any way likely to set a fashion, and yet it might, for the story as told includes several references about the jewelry and travel trifles offered to sugar coat the pill of twelve months of dusting, murdering and bread making.—New York Recorder.

Being a Sister to Him.

A brother, who is unable by his sister to be gentle and considerate of her feelings, is not apt to forget his duty toward some one else's sister when he shall take such to his own will home. His tenderness and sympathies have no power. She should have the same regard for the neatness of her dress at the breakfast table before her brother as she has at supper before the brother of some other girl. She should be as kind and careful in her conversation to him as she is to the friend of her own to whom home with him. Young men very often judge a girl by her sisterly qualities.

"I knew she would make a loving wife from the way she treated her brother when, as a little woman, I was apparently snobservant," said a friend of mine recently, when I asked what guided him in his choice of a wife. "All me what kind of a sister she is, and I will tell you what kind of a wife she will be," is a common saying among men. Many a man has measured a girl's character by that standard, and many a man is doing it today.—Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Busy Woman.

The other day the wife of a well known New York author was found in her kitchen with her arms bared and her pretty hands engaged in washing dishes.

"Doing one's own work or hiring it done," said this energetic little lady, "is no longer six of one and half a dozen of the other. The best way is to do your work yourself. Without exception I have worked harder when I have had a servant than I have when alone."

She attends to her own marketing and carries home the smaller articles because trades people are late in delivering orders. She copies all of her author's manuscript in her legible hand, and that this task is no sinecure a callous spot on her middle finger attests. Society makes many demands on her because of her own and her husband's position, and she was due at a 4 o'clock reception, a dinner at 6 and a theater party at 8. Her evening dress of pink crepe was the product of her own hands.—New York Letter.

Treatment of Slight Wounds.

In the treatment of wounds we must attend to three rules: First, stanch the bleeding; secondly, put the injured part under the most favorable conditions for healing to occur; thirdly, prevent any more than excessive inflammatory action from setting in, and avoid blood poisoning.

If the cut is a small one a very little pressure will stop the bleeding, such as a strip of a piece of rag tied moderately tight round the part. If larger a piece of soft rag or lint must be folded up, made into a pad, pressed on the bleeding part and tied there.

In large wounds, and where blood is coming out in small jets with every beat of the heart, the finger must be firmly pressed on the part for some time, until a clot is formed and blocks it up. If a very large blood vessel has been cut and there is danger of the person bleeding to death, the blood flow of blood to the heart must be nearly stopped. This will be old friend's help, using the word with the honorable significance it formerly had in New England. What will be the issue of this experiment is a question a number of other girls are asking. It is not in any way likely to set a fashion, and yet it might, for the story as told includes several references about the jewelry and travel trifles offered to sugar coat the pill of twelve months of dusting, murdering and bread making.—New York Recorder.

A Product of Civilization.

Hysteria is clearly a product of civilization. Nothing that in the least resembles it has ever been discovered among heathen peoples.

It is a disease of the imagination and is developed with it.

The worst cases are those persons who have highly strung nervous organizations, who are emotional and impulsive without being well balanced.

A well balanced mind is a high sounding phrase and seems to mean a great deal, but in reality it means only self control. To be the ruler of one's self is the key to the situation, and the one and only cure for hysteria.—Margaret Manton in New York Herald.

A Bank Where Women Trade.

The Fifth Avenue bank carries over 5,000 accounts on its books more than 3,000 of which are in the names of women. No sane in the country carries such a preponderance of women's accounts. To accommodate this interesting class of customers the bank has established a separate department for the ladies. The Forty-fourth street side of the bank is devoted entirely to them, and ladies can transact their business without coming into contact with the customers of the other sex. A handsome parlor for the use of ladies is also provided.—New York World.

Crumpets.

Crumpets are made with light bread dough and are delicious if properly baked. Take a pint of dough that has stood over night to rise and work into it two tablespoonsful of melted butter. When thoroughly kneaded add two or three eggs. If liked sweet, add a cupful of sugar. Many bake these in muffin rings, but a crumpet should be thinner and larger than a muffin and pans may be bought especially for the purpose.

An Excellent Eye Wash.

Many persons whose eyes do not trouble them at other times find that after using them at night they ache and sometimes are watery. Such sufferers will be glad to know that for tired, aching and weeping eyes, nothing from alcoholic application or other cause, a comforting and safe wash may be made from the purest obtainable water. Into a two ounce vial of water put half a teaspoonful of essence of peppermint, and having shaken well apply to the eyes to find if it be too strong, and if so increase the proportion of water and try it again. It should produce for a moment a slight warmth, the after effect being agreeable, cooling and healing. Apply all litmus with soft, clean muslin, this renewed on each application. Dressmakers and other persons working at night have found relief in this remedy.—New York Evangelist.

Mrs. Russell's Bonnets.

Mrs. Edwin Russell, the woman who teaches people how to sit down and get up correctly and is an expert as a judge of female beauty, wears the most marvelous and delightful little bonnets ever seen. They are usually of steel, copper, gold or pearl passementerie; have no strings or trimming, but fit the head just as did those beautiful little caps worn by the Florentine ladies. It has been a fad among Mrs. Russell's friends that very lately her husband sent her a new bonnet in a letter! A marvelous necklace in Mrs. Russell's possession came from the land of the Sphinx, and is a thin chain of gold, pendent from which are square turquoises, etched with gold. The turquoises are a quiet rather than a glaring blue, and for that reason are extremely becoming.—New York Sun.

Treatment of Slight Wounds.

In the treatment of wounds we must attend to three rules: First, stanch the bleeding; secondly, put the injured part under the most favorable conditions for healing to occur; thirdly, prevent any more than excessive inflammatory action from setting in, and avoid blood poisoning.

If the cut is a small one a very little pressure will stop the bleeding, such as a strip of a piece of rag tied moderately tight round the part. If larger a piece of soft rag or lint must be folded up, made into a pad, pressed on the bleeding part and tied there.

In large wounds, and where blood is coming out in small jets with every beat of the heart, the finger must be firmly pressed on the part for some time, until a

NEW LINGERIE.

Dainty Tea Jackets, Petticoats and Nightgowns That Delight Women of Fashion.

First in the lingerie department comes the dainty tea jackets, two of which we talk for description. One in pale pink surah, forming a close fitting jacket, with deep shoulder cape, all of Valenciennes lace and pink silk insertions, finished off with a profusion of lace tied with pink bows. Another in pale blue, finely tucked from bust to waist in points, meeting down the center, with yoke, cuffs and waistband of lace threaded with narrow gold braid, finished off in bows and ends. Pretty summer dressing gowns are in colored cotton crepes trimmed with gold braid, also in flowered flannels with woolen girdles.

TWO STYLES OF NIGHTDRESS.

The fine evening Nainsook petticoats have as many as seven flounces of lace on them, and the silk ones are daintily flounced and tucked. Some of the black silk ones, for day wear, have a flounce of shot silk, with black lace over. For day wear are also made petticoats of bright plaided silks, with a ruffles of the same in some cases; in others loose flounces appear. Then there are petticoats in plain, soft silks of dainty color, with rows of insertion threaded with ribbon.

The variety in nightgowns is great. Many are remarkable for their exquisite work, the dotting all hand wrought, the tiny a part veining appearing between the plaits, the collars turning down from the neck and making a cascade down the front, which, turn it where you will, falls in graceful folds. Others have been trimmed with the finest Irish guipure, which is practically everlasting wear, and others again after the Mother Hubbard order.

The newest knickerbockers are cut wide in the leg: some are gathered at the knee on ribbons threaded through bands of insertion; others are trimmed with frills of lace, folded somewhat full and curved upward toward the top of the knee, where they culminate in a bow of ribbon. In the illustration are shown two styles of knickerbockers. In the front of one appear insertions of torchon lace and embroidery.

THAT AWFUL RUNAWAY

SAD ENDING OF AN INTENDED PLEASURE DRIVE.

Mr. Fletcher's Ribs Fractured, Mrs. Fletcher and Her Sister, Miss Lizzie Laing, and Mr. Whykware, Terribly Cut and Bruised, and Probably Disfigured for Life.

Mr. Eugene M. Laine of Park avenue has returned from a visit to Long Branch, whither he went to see Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fletcher of Brooklyn. Mr. George Whykware of Rutherford Park, and Miss Lizzie Laing of Plainfield, who were injured in a runaway at Long Branch on July 4th.

The first intelligence after the accident gave the friends the impression that the party had only been slightly injured, and they were expected home after recovering from the shock. Later, through word from Hon. Jacob Kirkner, President of the Plainfield Board of Education, whose son had joined the excursion party, the family realized that something more serious had happened, and that the nature of the injuries had been withheld to avoid any more alarm than was thought desirable. Mr. Laing, who is an older brother, hurried to the scene West. His mother accompanied him. Notwithstanding that they had grave apprehensions they did not expect to behold such a terrible sight.

After their arrival at Long Branch they hastened to the place where the accident occurred, were, and learned the story of the accident.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher were stopping at the West End Hotel. The couple were married but two months ago, to this city. Mrs. Fletcher was formerly Miss Ella Laing. Her sister, Miss Lizzie Laing of West Fourth street, this city, and her escort, Mr. Whykware, of Rutherford Park, were stopping at Norwood Hall.

About four o'clock the party of four started out for a drive from the West End Hotel. A man in a carriage in front was carelessly backing his horse, and the wheel rubbed against one of the horses behind attached to the conveyance having the Fletcher party, and that is supposed to have started the team. The hopes ran down Ocean avenue and turned toward the iron pier. In turning the conveyance was upset, and the occupants were thrown out head foremost with great violence.

All four were knock into unconsciousness, and lay bleeding profusely. Spectators supposed they been all killed so terrible had been the force of their fall.

Medical aid was promptly at hand. It was discovered that Mr. Fletcher was the most seriously hurt and he was hurried to Memorial Hospital, Long Branch. The other three were conveyed to their respective hotels. On the way Mr. Whykware lost so much blood that the physician said he would have died, if he had had much further to go.

A more careful medical examination revealed the injuries to be very severe, if they do not in Mr. Fletcher's case prove fatal.

Three of Mr. Fletcher's ribs have been fractured. One fractured rib pierced the pleural, that is the side of the body where the ribs are located. The physicians have grave apprehensions that pleuro-pneumonia will set in, and in that case there will be no hope for the patient's recovery. Wednesday morning his temperature was 104.

Mrs. Fletcher had been thrown upon a bicycle, which broke the force of her fall and saved her head from striking full force on the curb. But for that circumstances she would in all probability have been instantly killed by the fall. The bicycle which had been standing at the curb a moment before was totally demolished by contact with the conveyance. One of the wire spokes pierced Mrs. Fletcher's cheek, passing clear through it and into her gum. She was also very much scratched and bruised about the face and body, in some places the flesh being fairly dug out.

Miss Lizzie Laing has one front tooth broken off, and a portion of the upper part of her lip torn out to such an extent, that the physicians believe it will be necessary to put several stitches up it to draw it together enough to heal. The entire left side of her face from the center of her forehead and nose to her ear is so terribly lacerated as to appear one raw mass of quivering flesh. She is also badly cut and bruised about the body. The parents and her sister were were literally torn into shreds, as if they had been through a threshing machine.

Mr. Whykware had a gash in his neck four inches long, and quite deep, running lengthwise, and had seen his throat and his jugular vein. It was from this that he almost bled to death. His ankle was badly sprained. There was a mark on his forehead as if he had been struck with a hammer, his nose and cheek were terribly gashed and two teeth were broken off, while one arm was skinned from his elbow to his wrist.

Mr. E. M. Laing says that he would never have recognized his sister Lizzie had he met her unexpectedly, except by her dress, so badly had she been disfigured.

Her face is swollen so much that she can take no food except liquids administered to her through a glass tube, which is inserted in the right side of her mouth.

When his mother started this morning to see if she could be removed today to the home of her parents in this city, Mrs. Fletcher desires to remain near her husband, to nurse him as much as she is able to.

"Altogether" said a physician to Mr. Laing Wednesday, "I have never seen a runaway accident here which did as much injury and yet was not fatal."

REV. MR. DILL ARRESTED

THE MOFFETT BOYS ARE AFTER HIM FOR ALLEGED PERJURY.

Interviews with People About Stirling Throw Some New Light Upon the Recent Church Difficulties in the Pretty Little Town.—Mr. Dill is Not Popular, to Say the Least.

Ex-Sheriff Coe, of Morris County, drove over from Morristown to Stirling yesterday, armed with a warrant for the arrest of the Rev. A. Cushing Dill. Mr. Dill's recent troubles have been fully told in these columns.

The warrant was issued by Justice Clift, of Morristown, upon the complaint of William E. Moffett, of Basking Ridge, through his counsel, Senator George Werts, of Morristown. The warrant charges Mr. Dill with perjury. This new trouble is simply a continuation of an old grievance between the pastor and his flock. After the recent attack upon him by some of the young men of the vicinity, which Mr. Dill resisted with a pistol, he went before a justice and swore out a warrant for the arrest of William E. Moffett and Frank Moffett. The former of the two resides at Basking Ridge and the latter with is father, C. B. Moffett, at Stirling. The boys are cousins.

Soon after the warrant was issued Mr. Dill sought the Justice and asked to have the case abandoned. The Justice declined to do so and told the clergyman that he was too late. The warrant had been given out to be served with despatch.

Mr. Dill returned to Stirling and didn't quite know what to do. People told him he had made an error in not locating his game before pulling the trigger. The Moffett boys in the mean time were impatient and went to Morristown to give themselves up. Mr. C. B. Moffett went their security and they were released.

The Moffetts retained Counsellor George Werts, and following his advice, went before Justice Clift and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Dill on a charge of perjury. The warrant was handed to ex-Sheriff Coe and he went to Stirling on Wednesday night to serve it. Mr. Dill was not to be found. Coe drove over again yesterday morning. Mr. Dill was still absent. He had gone to spend the night with one of the members of his friend, Mr. Newman. There the ex-Sheriff found him, served the warrant and took him to Morristown.

Mr. Dill could not be found at either Stirling or Millington. The reporter was informed that his friend Mr. Newman would become his bondsman.

The reporter interviewed G. B. Moffett, father of one of the accused young men and uncle of the other. Mr. Moffett is one of the leading supporters of the church. Everything said is one of the most highly respected citizens of the place. In spite of all that has happened in connection with Mr. Dill and his flock Mr. Moffett was inclined to be very charitable in his expression of opinion, and at the same time he was indignant, at the action Mr. Dill has taken.

Mr. Dill's term as pastor expired the last Sunday in June. On that occasion he preached a farewell sermon, and it is said since that time he has arisen in church and sung a solo.

Mr. Dill is not going to leave Stirling. Since he has been deposed he has been holding temperance meetings and having a quiet time all to himself. The old lady with whom he has been boarding, as has already been stated, is going to make him her heir, and he is as calm and happy (as he stated himself in his parting sermon) as a honey bee in a clover-field.

Mr. Dill gave bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance at court.

Base Ball.

The Crescents will cross bats with the celebrated Ridgewoods to-morrow. The Ridgewoods played here on Decoration Day and each team won one game.

The Cuban Giants "put up a good game and say they are ready to play any team composed of players under sixteen years of age. They are contesting with the Unions this afternoon.

The State Board of Medical Examiners yesterday began operations on a class of fifty-one candidates anxious to practise in this State. The examination is held at the State House Trenton, and will be continued to-morrow. The medical examiners are Dr. William Perry Watson, Dr. R. G. Wagoner, Dr. G. W. Brown, Dr. W. L. Newell, Dr. A. H. Worthington, Dr. A. K. Baldwin, Dr. Eugene Telzer, Dr. D. R. Atwell and Dr. A. Nebelacker.

A Lamp Explosion.

At about eight o'clock last evening a kerosene lamp exploded in John Clark's peanut stand at the corner of Front and Somerset streets. The lamp was thrown into the street and the flames were extinguished before much damage resulted.

—To-morrow the Presbyterian excursion postponed on the account of the weather goes to Asbury Park as elsewhere advertised. It promises to be a very fine day.

THE COMER-TAPPEN CASE.

George Tappen is one of the New Jersey Tappens, a family that traces its line back over a century. When he married —it was twenty years ago last Sunday— he was 28 years old and a strong and handsome man. His wife was eight years his junior, and she was handsome, too. She is a daughter of one of an old family, and the relatives of both were scattered all over the neighborhood. They lived happily together for ten years, and three children were born to them.

After the fourth year a relative died and left Mr. Tappen $7,000, with which he bought a farm and built and furnished a cozy home. When the third child was born Mr. Tappen, in a moment of supreme joy, transferred all his property, absolutely, to his wife, but everything went on as before. Mr. Tappen is quiet and easy going. His wife is a bustling, shrewd little woman, fun loving and bright.

After the tenth year of their married life all began to change. Mrs. Tappen grew tired of her husband, and Mr. Tappen learned to fear his wife. They dragged along in this way for eight years.

About two years ago George Washington Cogdon became religious. He was a Mason and married and lived with his wife and child within ten minutes' walk of the Tappen home. He was 25 years old then, and a handsome jovial man, whom everybody liked. He was a Methodist minister, and lived in the neighborhood only a short time. At first he would refer to religion and religious subjects only in a distant way, but after a while it would become the chief topic of his conversation. Then he would go around among the neighbors, call one house to another, and dine and talk religion. At the same time he studied for the ministry.

In April last Mr. Comer was appointed to a church at Amwell, a neighboring village, and soon after commenced, and Mr. Tappen has not seen him since.

The day before yesterday Mrs. Tappen said to her husband:

"George, I'm going to leave you. I'll take the children with me."

Mr. Tappen coughed and sputtered and looked bewildered, and then he sat still and looked on while his wife packed up the furniture. Presently a truck came to the door and three strapping big men entered the farm house and began to carry out the furniture. After a while another man came and said he was a constable from New Brunswick.

"These goods belong to your wife," he said to Mr. Tappen, "and she has a perfect right to remove them. You'd better not interfere."

Mr. Tappen never dreamed of interfering. When Mrs. Tappen said she was going to do a thing she did it, and that was all there was about it. Finally everything was on the truck, and the house was left empty. Then Mrs. Tappen said good-bye to her husband, took her two daughters by the hand and walked off.

When Mr. Tappen recovered from his stupor he entered the house and went through the few bare rooms, and in a corner of the attic he found the thoroughness with which his wife had cleaned out the place. In one of the rooms he found this letter:

"ANWELL, N. J., April 20, 1891.

"Dear Pet:—I cannot tell you how lonesome I feel. I don't like to here for a cent, but suppose I must stay here a year, anyhow, as I was sent here by the Conference. I preached my Sunday sermon yesterday. I am going to start a Sunday school next Sunday. I shall be at the home of Mr. Breese at Neshanic next week, during the afternoon of Monday, April 27, 1891, as I am back by the 2d of May to preach. It will be a long time, for I am very sick alone. I left you. Never did I feel so unfit to stand in the pulpit as I did on that Sunday. The people here want me to bring my wife and five to the parsonage, but I have told them that I cannot do that. I know we happy we could be here or anywhere else, together. This separation from you seems more than I can bear. Pray for me, Mamie, and don't forget to be at Frank's on Sunday. It would kill me to come so near to you and not see you. Now, dear, don't work too hard and kill yourself. Remember that I want you soon. With much love from your loving friend,

"REV. G. W. COMER."

Then followed three lines of stars, each one of which represented a kiss, and below was written: "And many more if I was with you, and you know it."

Mr. Tappen read this over and over again. Then he went and told all the neighbors about it. Later in the afternoon he found that his wife had left the two girls at a neighbor's house and had disappeared. He milked the cows himself that night, and had to borrow a pail from one of the neighbors, as already told. Then he went out in the fields and hay field and mowed industriously, sometimes looking at the stars, sometimes crying. And he became weary of it all, and retired to bed at 11 o'clock. Then he went to sleep on the kitchen floor, with a horse blanket as a covering.

Yesterday the man came with a truck, and said that Mrs. Tappen had sent him to fetch her cows and all the hay that was in the barn. In an instant Mr. Tappen was in arms. He said:

"Great God, no, quick, or I'll lick you. She can have the furniture if she wants, but she doesn't get the cows."

The man thought Mr. Tappen says he is going to see if he cannot recover his furniture.

Tappen came to Plainfield to secure the goods, as stated in THE NEWS of yesterday, but learned that he was powerless to do so because all his property is in his wife's name. He consulted Wm. Brisben Walker, a New Brunswick lawyer, and he has instituted proceedings to have the deed of transfer by which the property was made over to Mrs. Tappen's name annulled.

When asked last night where he thought his wife was Tappen said he believed she was with Comer, although no one had seen them disappear together.

"I will sue my property back and then if my wife will believe herself I would like to have her to return," he said. "I am ready to forgive her, but I do not want her to take away property inherited by me."

Mrs. Comer refused to say anything about the matter yesterday, she said her husband had left her, and also didn't want him back and that was the end of it.

This is the substance of a lecture delivered in Washington before the Catholic University of America. The Washington Star says at the time: "The lecture was in some respects a remarkable effort in the boldness with which he brought his views to bear upon laymen their responsibility for many of the social difficulties that beset our civilization. No such speaking has been heard upon a platform under similar circumstances, and for this reason as well as because of the food for thought to every one interested in the welfare and prosperity of his race and the government under which we live, an extended report of the lecture is given." —What is there about an old cannon that makes it so extremely popular on Fourth of July? New cannon are very much safer, much more easily managed, and much more satisfactory. But the old cannon are almost always resurrected, and the usual results are premature discharges, limbs lost, lives taken or other casualties that are not so great. The Fourth of July will be a safe one for instance in Plainfield, with an old "one horn" cannon. Two firemen were maimed for life by a premature explosion. This city, too, has had its accidents. There may be something patriotic in letting an old cannon roar to-day as it roared against the British in 1776, but the excitement does not compensate for the loss of life and limb. It is about time that the old cannon were retired to peaceful and noiseless ovcupancy of a snug corner in the arsenal, there to remain for all time.—Elizabeth Journal.

—For several weeks past several of the merchants along West Front street have been playing practical jokes on one another. The victim in Mr. William Rogers, of the firm of Rogers Bros., the shoe dealers. Bill is a good sport, and an innocent looking letter postmarked Somerville. It was signed by a lady acquaintance and requested him to call on her that evening. Last evening "Billy," dressed in his best suit of clothes took the 7:30 train. In response to his ring at the bell her mother came to the door. He inquired for Lizzie but was informed that Lizzie had left for the seashore several days before. "Billy" produced the letter, saw that it had been posted that morning and then looked puzzled. He finally concluded that his friends had been fooling him, and instead of becoming angry he laughed and acknowledged that they had gotten the best of him. He is now however endeavoring to find out who it was that sent the letter.

A Good Plan.

For the first time in history women are taking an active official interest in the preparation for a World's fair. Some of the ideas of the ladies on the board of managers are characterized by a practical common sense that is admirable. One of their projects is to have intelligent women to act as guides through the intricacies of the exposition. There will be French and German guides among them; young women, and they will be well instructed in the displays of the great show as well as in the dangerous ways of that naughty city where the fair is to be held.

The best achievement of these women managers so far, however, is probably the interest they are arousing in the exposition among working girls' clubs throughout the country. These girls are to acquaint themselves with American history before the exposition opens, and become familiar especially with the products of their own country and its great resources. They will also learn about the products and resources of the other American republics. Finally each girl will be encouraged to lay aside a small sum weekly to enable either herself or some member or members of the club to visit the fair.

This plan ought to be imitated by all working men and women. If all cannot go to the exposition, then one or two members of a club can do so. There is generosity enough certainly and fraternity enough among working people to send delegates from their societies to the fair. Persons who are good writers and talkers, observant and with retentive memories, should be selected. These can take notes of all they see, and on their return write descriptions of it and entertain their fellow members with reading the story on club nights. It is an excellent plan, that of having one or two members of a club be eyes and ears for all.

Diminished Birth Rates.

Those who were inclined to grumble and be disappointed that the population of this country only showed up some 63,500,000 instead of the 65,000,000 we had all counted on, should heed some facts prepared by Dr. Hollerith for the American Statistical association. The doctor finds from careful calculation that the birth rate in this country is steadily diminishing; it having decreased fully 20 per cent. in the past twenty years.

Thereupon the croakers point us to ancient Rome, to infidel France and to every sort of a Sodom and Gomorrah of a country to show us that we of this greatest republic the world has ever known are already on the downward road to destruction and extinction. Far from it! The fact is that as a country becomes more highly civilized the birth-rate increases up to a certain degree, then diminishes. The most prosperous and thrifty nation in Europe, the country that always has money to lend, is France, that barely holds her own in population. The diminishment in quantity is apt to be made up in quality. Where there are not so many children born the parents have more time, strength and means to devote to those they have.

Besides that, it does not take a very profound philosopher to go among the slums of a city and conclude that there are plenty of children already, such as they are. Those knowing of the thousands of persons always out of employment in city and country will be rather apt to tell you that there are people enough in the world already.

If Horace Greeley were living today he would change his renowned advice and now say, "Go south, young man, and grow up with the country." The most promising field for manufactures and industries of many kinds is in the former slave states. There has been nothing in history to exceed the industrial growth of certain portions of the south in the past five years. The new south, redeemed, regenerated, rich, populous and powerful, stands forth splendid and beautiful to the view of all with opportunities for plucky and industrious people. For the first time in the history of America Pennsylvania finds herself passed and distanced as an iron state. Alabama now produces annually more iron ore than Pennsylvania. We thought we were a great people in 1870, and that we had uncommonly rich iron mines; yet today the south alone makes more pig iron than the whole country did in 1870. Fact. The British iron manufacturers who made a tour of this country a year or two ago when their society met here prophesied that the south was soon to become the iron producing centre of the world. The prophecy has come true already.

By the time there are several hundred more large and business failures maybe people will learn to take some interest in the affairs of concerns in which they have invested their money. It is a fact that the transaction of stock company business is universally left to one or two persons.

ENGLAND HAS GONE WILD!

She Cannot Do Too Much for the Kaiser.

BUT FRANCE DOES NOT LIKE IT.

A Deadly Blow Struck at the Chilian Insurgents by Her Courts—Editor Labouchere Says Lord Salisbury Wants the French Republic to Be a Failure.

LONDON, July 10.—The garden party given by the Prince of Wales at Marlborough house in honor of the kaiser, was a most brilliant affair. The gardens were dotted with tents, and the splendid uniforms, the beautiful women and the flowers and plants in bloom presented a fairy like appearance. The bands of the Grenadier Guards and the Prussian Royal Dragoons furnished the music. The kaiser and kaiserin, the Prince and Princess of Anhalt, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Christian and many others were present.

The Kaiser Enjoyed It.

The occasion was enjoyed by the kaiser with more evident pleasure than he had previously shown. He came in arm in arm with the Princess of Wales, while the Prince of Wales escorted the empress. The kaiser had a genial word for everybody.

Arrival of Queen Victoria.

Queen Victoria, who was present, wore a black dress with white tablier, a white lace shawl and a white bonnet trimmed with small feathers. As soon as the queen arrived the assemblage opened out, forming an avenue through which the queen walked toward the Prince and Princess of Wales, who were advancing to meet her.

The kaiser, who assisted the queen to alight from her carriage, accompanied her to a seat. After refreshments the imperial and royal personages strolled through the grounds. The queen returned to Windsor at 7:30.

The Kaiser on Slavery.

In receiving the anti-slavery deputation, the kaiser said that he had been deeply impressed by the accounts which Major Wissman had given him of the desolation caused by the slave hunters.

He had been informed that villages which two years before had been prosperous and densely populated were found utterly devastated, and with not a man left alive after the slave hunter had passed that way. He was glad that the united fleets of England and Germany had already checked the export of slaves, but he feared that in the interior the slave trade would not be suppressed without further severe struggles with the slave hunters.

Singing for the Kaiser.

Last evening the kaiser and kaiserin dined with Lord Londonderry and a distinguished company at Londonderry's residence in Park lane. The concert at Albert hall, after the dinner, was a grand affair. The kaiser, kaiserin, the grand duke of Hesse, the Prince of Wales, and other members of the royal family were present. The kaiser, the prince, and other royalties rode in state to the hall and were applauded with enthusiasm, as on the occasion of the previous night. For the time London seems carried away with the kaiser. During the progress of the hall, while the crowd was breaking out in enthusiastic plaudits, some of them thought they heard a hiss from a foreign looking individual in a peaked cap and blouse. The fellow, who had the appearance of a French workingman, was seized by stalwart arms, and would have been badly knocked about but for the interference of a policeman in citizen's clothes, who was in the crowd.

They Made the Frenchman Cheer.

As it was, the Frenchman was made to take off his cap and cry to Marianne, as he could not get his tongue around the word he was let off on crying "Vive l'emperor!" The crowd was not violent, but evidently determined not to permit any insult to the kaiser. The singers included Albani, Nordica, Belle Cole, Edward Lloyd and the Choral society. The kaiser wore the uniform of a British admiral. The kaiserin had on a dress of cardinal silk, with a dazzling tara of diamonds. At the conclusion of the "Kaiser's March" the audience rose and cheered the imperial visitors and the kaiser and kaiserin bowed repeatedly.

French Journals Rejoice.

The French newspapers are enthusiastic over the refusal of French operatic singers to take part in the gala performance in honor of the kaiser and kaiserin. This action is extolled as the height of patriotism and the performers are promised the esteem of their countrymen as compensation for declining to put

STORIES ABOUT BLAINE.

They Differ Greatly as to His Condition.

IS HIS CASE A DESPERATE ONE?

One Correspondent Says the Secretary's Doctors Have No Hope of His Recovery and Another Tells of Hip Making Calls at Eight O'clock at Night.

St. Louis, July 10.—A staff correspondent of the Republic, who was sent to Bar Harbor to ascertain the condition of Mr. Blaine, sends his newspaper the following: Judge G. Blaine, according to the most reliable reports available, is nearing the end of his eventful and exciting life. His family and friends are doing their best to keep his condition from the public, and the doctors attending him are pledged to secrecy. In spite of the most strenuous efforts, however, the state of the secretary's mental and physical health is gradually becoming known.

He is a victim of Bright's disease of the kidneys, together with a complication of serious disorders. Added to his physical pains and penalties, his mind is in a state of collapse, and in his lucid moments he has no hope of recovery.

They Would Not Know Him.

The Blaine mansion is the finest in Bar Harbor. The carriageway leads up to a side door that is sheltered from public view by a large fence. Through this door Mr. Blaine is tenderly lifted every fine day, placed in a carriage and driven for a mile or two in the country.

When driving, no matter how warm the weather, he is wrapped in an overcoat, his neck is enveloped in shawls, and pillows support his back and feet. Those who knew Mr. Blaine a couple of years ago, or even a year ago, would scarcely recognize him if they saw him leaning back in his carriage, supported by his wife or daughter. There is a death pallor on his face; there are deep, black circles under his eyes; he is very thin and haggard; his eyes are glassy and dull. He seems to be always shivering, as if chilled. He is not able to stand alone; in fact, it is doubtful if he could sit on a chair without assistance.

The Doctors Say Nothing.

There are six doctors in regular attendance on Mr. Blaine. Four of them are residents of Bar Harbor, one is from Augusta and another from Boston. The latter, a prominent practitioner, has been an inmate of the Blaine house for the past two days. The doctors refuse to say anything concerning Mr. Blaine's condition. From other sources, but entirely reliable, your correspondent learns that the doctors have agreed that Mr. Blaine's life cannot be prolonged much longer. He may live for a few months, and may pass away within a few weeks. That he can ever resume public life no one in Bar Harbor for a moment thinks.

A Very Popular Man.

Is It as Bad as This?

He has not partaken of any solid food for more than a month. He is dieted on milk and whisky and has no appetite whatever. It is the opinion of his doctors that he may survive for two months more, but they would not be surprised if he passed away at any time. That the brilliant career of the best beloved Republican in the United States is drawing to a close there is no longer a doubt.

Quite Another Story.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 10.—Mr. Blaine is still a very sick man. But the triumph of his strong will over his physical ailments will always remain as the most interesting historical feature of his case. No man can recover from an illness quicker than he.

This was one of his grand days. He ordered his team harnessed in the "cut under" at 11 o'clock, and in company with Dr. J. Madison Taylor, his private physician, Mr. Blaine drove out the Cornliche road to Hull's Cove, then eastward a couple of miles to the Ovens.

Making a Visit in the Evening.

These are the cliffs which the water has hollowed out into shallow caverns. Everybody goes to see them. They are five minutes' walk from the road and the secretary and his physician walked briskly about the rocks above the caves for half an hour. Mr. Blaine was in good spirits. He re-entered his carriage without assistance. He drove out last night at 8 o'clock to visit Mr. Barney, one of his neighbors, on Rock Ledge.

General De Peyster Sued for Divorce.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 10.—The announcement that the wife of General J. Watts De Peyster had begun suit for separation from her husband created much surprise here. The complaint has not yet been written, but it probably will be this week. The couple have been married for fifty years. The wife's story charges cruel and inhuman treatment. The general's side of the story has not yet been heard, but it is reported that his answer to the complaint will be a general denial.

Rev. Mr. Bissell Dead.

HAMPTON, Conn., July 10.—The death is announced in India of Rev. Mr. Bissell, secretary of the Marratha mission in that country. He was seventy years old and had labored as a missionary in India for forty years. He leaves four sons, all of whom are clergymen. One of his sons, who lives here, will take his father's post in India.

A Drug Clerk's Bad Mistake.

ROSBOUT, N. Y., July 10.—The mistake of a drug clerk at Downs nearly cost Mrs. Augustus Redmund her life. The woman sent for some valerian to relieve her heart trouble and the drug clerk sent her belladonna instead, of which she took a large dose. After much labor the physicians managed to save her life.

To Honor Grover Cleveland.

SANDWICH, Mass., July 10.—An enthusiastic meeting of citizens, irrespective of party, was held last night to make arrangements for a reception to be tendered ex-President Cleveland by the people of Barnstable county, at Sandwich, July 28. All the state officials and other prominent persons are to be invited.

Phoebe Cousins Defeated.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The suit of Phoebe Cousins against the World's fair commission and Mr. Lady involving $10,000 has been decided by Judge Blodgett. Miss Cousins was defeated at every point. Judge Blodgett decided that Miss Cousins' position as secretary of the board of lady managers, from which she was dismissed and sought reinstatement, was merely that of a clerk or employe, and the services of the secretary could be dispensed with at the will of the board.

Ex-Secretary Whitney Sued.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney has filed an answer in the circuit court in the case of Dermody vs. Whitney. Ormsby is suing Mr. Whitney for $50,000 for false imprisonment and injury to his reputation. On Sept. 6, 1893, Ormsby, who was then an ensign in the navy, pleaded ill health, went to Los Angeles without permission and was arrested. A court martial resulted in his dismissal from the service.

Why Elliott Shot Osborn.

COLUMBUS, O., July 10.—Bill Elliott testified in his own behalf. He said that on meeting Osborn on High street he detected that the latter was drawing a revolver. "At the same time," continued Elliott, "he fired at me from his hip, and I, having drawn my revolver, fired twice in return." Elliott denied vehemently that he ran behind two women and fired over their shoulders. Also that he called to his brother to kill Osborn.

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Small Talk of the National Game by W. I. Harris.

THE COLTS ARE COLTS NO LONGER

Chicago's Team in the East—How the New York Giants Have Braced Up. How the Association Is Pulling Along. Those Who Bet on the Game.

It is about time that the term Anson's colts should be dropped entirely. It is a misfit and the use of it reflects discredit upon every team they win a game from. As a matter of fact he has only one player this season who never played in the League before—that is Dahlen. I do not know how old he is, but I do know that he has been playing ball for a couple of years, and is probably a colt of the Hatfield order, although apparently a much better player than Hatfield, because he has some nerve. Hatfield has none that is of any use to him when he is playing ball. Dahlen is in League parlance a colt. Stein and Luby are in their second year, and as both have been very successful they can scarcely be called colts. The others of the team are sturdy old timers, although most of them are young men, but it is the rule rather than the exception that all ball players of repute are young men. The term colt as applied to the Chicago team is a misnomer.

The "Old Man" has swooped down upon the east and, while his team has been a money maker, it has not proved quite the terror anticipated. The best he could do in Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia was to break even, and his reception in New York was still warmer, the Giants winning the first game in great style.

The Chicago having stood up the eastern pitchers a little, the next series with each team will be apt to be more interesting. The Chicago held their own, though in good shape, and are still imposing and dangerous candidates for the pennant.

The Bostons have greatly improved and have worked up to a solid game. The indications are that they will stay there. As a ten year's resident of Boston I hope they will, and beat Chicago and Philadelphia often enough to let the Giants win the championship. The Boston pitchers seem to be coming back into form again, and the result is shown by an increase in the number of games won and the consequent increase in percentage. They are hard pressed by the Brooklyn champions, and no one can say where any team will be at the close of any week's play.

There never was a National League circuit with such well balanced teams as those of this season in playing strength. A few consecutive games won or lost by any team making a great change in the standing. For instance, June 12 the Brooklyns had won 31 games and lost 22, and were in fourth place; the New Yorks had a record of 26-16, and were in first place. It will be seen that a few defeats by New York and a winning streak of six or eight games by Brooklyn would bring them pretty close together.

That the National league attracts most of the public attention is very evident from the fact that from seven to ten thousand people daily attend their games, and on Saturdays and holidays the attendance runs up to figures that, as a general thing, are not credited. Yet they are as near right as it is possible to get them.

The American association teams are playing good ball, but the only real drawing cards are Boston and Baltimore. The attendance at other places is largely exaggerated. Were it not for Sunday games the Association could not live and pay its present high salaries. For instance, June 11 only 300 people witnessed the game between Columbus and Cincinnati, played at Cincinnati, and there was no opposition.

Among the accidents in baseball recently there was not one more sad than that suffered by John Sharrott, the promising young pitcher of the New York team. Sharrott injured his shoulder, or bruised it, for two days that that was the nature of the accident. It turned out upon careful examination that his arm was broken near the shoulder. The boy's neglect in not getting proper attention will probably cause his retirement for the rest of the season. It will be a great loss to the Giants, for the youngster was playing great ball and improving all the time.

The Brooklyn champions have at last got a move toward the front. Ward is pretty sure to make a tremendous struggle to retain the flag in Brooklyn. I am told by New York sporting men of both parties that the betting is not all money is still being wagered—at odds, of course—that Brooklyn will win the championship. The betting is confined mostly to the bookmakers. These men are not satisfied with their track experience during the day, and make baseball bets as a sort of evening amusement.

One of the most assiduous men of the class I write about is Jimmy Adams, a bright young man, who by virtue of his talents ought to be in better business. He and John Kelly are continually booking baseball bets. Jimmy is a talkative crank who sees as many games as he can, frequently neglecting business for baseball. He does not do a great deal of shouting for any team but Brooklyn. Jimmy is in his way quite a philosopher. When he has a run of bad luck at the track he reasons as he explained once to me:

"I play an honest game at the track. I have nothing to do with jobs, so when the jobs get too frequent and I find it impossible to make a winning book unless I stand in with the gang, I simply go and have a little pleasure at the ball games."

Jimmy is a young man, and a great crank on baseball and baseball literature.

W. I. HARRIS.

BASEBALL BREVITIES.

A hot fight is being waged at Cincinnati against the Sunday ball players. "King Kel" has been arrested several times.

Amos Rusie, the great pitcher of the New York team, is not old enough to vote. The fact does not seem to interfere with his curves, however. Rusie gets $500 per month.

Jack Remsen, of Ottawa, has been playing ball since 1869, and he thus discounts "old man" Anson by one year as the oldest player in the business.

John M. Ward was quite a pitcher in the early days of his career as a baseball player and before he made a world wide reputation as a shortstop.

HONOR

HER ONLY FAULT.

She can fix her hair in fashion, and her manner's rather dashing, and her dainty little shoes are just in style.
She talks French and German, and expound upon a sermon, and set a person crazy with her smile.
In the issues that are esthetic, and in mixing face cosmetic, they say she has no equal anywhere.
And in choosing tutti frutti, she enhances much her beauty, and the settings in her teeth are very rare.
She can thump a grand piano, and can sing in great crescendo, and her style of elocution's very trim.
She has college education, is the pride of her relation, but she still persists in saying, "It is him."

—Oil City Blizzard.

Echoes of the Fourth.

One great problem is how small boys managed to get such big burns on the Fourth.

Miss Spry—Jane hates the smell of powder. Miss Envious—And yet she has it near her all the time.

A Boomerang—Cobwigger—Did Johnnie fire that cannon of his? Erown—No; the cannon fired Johnnie.

A Veteran—Cabbage—I have smelled powder, sir, Cabbage—On the battlefield? Cabbage—No, sir; on the fourth of July.—Judge.

He Was a Brute.

He was upstairs rummaging around looking for a clean shirt when he heard his wife scream.

"Come down stairs quick," she yelled.

"Well, wait till I get a shirt" he yelled back. "I can't find one high nor low. Where in thunder are they?"

"Oh, John," she wailed, "let the shirt go and come down here quick, the baby's swallowed a collar button."

"Confound that baby" he growled, throwing a cog around his shoulders. "I wonder if the shirt's gone with the collar button."—Detroit Free Press.

Love at First Sight.

Friend—So yours was a case of love at first sight?

Mrs. Gethberg—Yes, indeed. I fell desperately in love with my dear husband the moment I set eyes upon him. I remember it as distinctly as if it were yesterday. I was walking with papa on the parade at Brighton, when suddenly papa stopped, and, pointing him out, said, "There, my dear, is a man worth £30,000 a year."—London Tit-Bits.

Wedding Pleasantries.

The Bavarian peasants drink a great deal, are quite witty, and are never so happy as when they are fighting with each other. A story is told of two Bavarian peasants meeting on the road and holding the following conversation:—

"Were you at the wedding last night?"

"Indeed I was. It was the nicest wedding we have had this season. Why, even the bride took a hand in the fight."—Texas Siftings.

Giving Him Pole Plays.

Judge Lynch—Have you anything to say, prisoner, why sentence of death should not be carried out on you?

Prisoner—Merely this—that I am not guilty.

Judge Lynch—Well, we can't accept that plea, but you'll have a chance to offer it in a higher court, in about five minutes. Let him swing, Bill!"—Munsey's Weekly.

A Practical Lesson.

"You young scoundrel," said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the neck. "I'll show you how you ought to treat your mother!"

And he gave him several bangs on the ears, and shook him till his hair began to fall out.—Philadelphia Times.

Cheap Sweets.

"What sweet things you say to me," she twittered.

"Yes," he rejoined, in a business like tone, "sugar's cheap now."—Washington Star.

Wise in His Generation.

The Lady: Jack, why don't you write a book, or paint a picture, or do something clever?

The Gentleman: Because I selected a millionaire for a father, and I think that was clever enough to last a lifetime.—Life.

He Was Willing.

Miss Scadds (to the minister)—Mr. Hunker and I are going on a ramble. Will you join us?

Rev. Dr. Thirdly (who caught only the last sentence)—With pleasure. Do you wish the ceremony performed in the church?—Judge.

The Mystery Unraveled.

Simpson—I wonder what kind of a line it is that Judkins uses when he goes fishing. It always breaks just as he is landing the "biggest fish you ever saw."

Snifter—It's nothing but "yarn."—Detroit Free Press.

His Only Chance.

"You talk a great deal in your sleep, John," said Mrs. Henpeck.

"I'm the only chance I get," said John, meekly.—N. Y. Herald.

A Warning to Lovers.

A fellow who always walks when he goes to see his girl is apt to become beaulegged.—Buffalo Express.

SWEAT DROPS.

Love never sends a substitute.

Some men will keep everything but their distance.

Dogs and men both have their pants, but dogs sometimes have fits besides.

People who are always insisting on some other kind of weather are getting it this year.

The husband must be awful ugly whose wife don't tell him he's "real good looking" on pay day.

While a woman seldom understands herself, let her alone for seeing clear through any other woman.—Burlington Hawkeye.

AROUND THE THRONES.

The Czar of Russia wears a full beard and never permits himself to be shaved from fear of assassination.

The Prince of Wales' imposing figure has grown so bulky that he avoids putting on a uniform unless the occasion absolutely demands it.

The King of Ashantee has 3,333 wives. That is just 3,332 more than any king of a shanty is entitled to, luckily for the wives. Detroit Free Press.

Tsuda Sanzo, the Japanese policeman who attempted recently to assassinate the Czarevitz, has been sentenced to life imprisonment with hard labor.

JOKES OF JUVENILES.

Force of habit. Ethel (who has been sent upstairs to be punished); For what I am about to receive, may I be truly thankful!

"I feel it just as much, my dear little boy," said papa after he had spanked Billykins.

"Y-yes," sobbed Billykins. "B-but n-not in the s-s-same p-p-place."—Life.

Teacher: Tommy, can't you give me a sentence in which "but" is a conjunction? Tommy: Yes, the goat butt the boy. Butt is a conjunction, and connects the boy with the goat.—Baltimore American.

"Now," said the teacher, who had been trying to instill her class with a love of nature, "which of the seasons do you like best? Johnny may answer." And Johnny promptly answered, "The baseball season."—Washington Post.

Mamma—"You naughty girl! You've eaten every cookey there was on the plate. I told you you might have three." Little Edith—"Yes; but you didn't tell me which three. So I had to eat all to be sure to get the right ones."—Boston Transcript.

Little Annie had been having trouble with her lessons, and had turned for assistance to her big brother. He did the sums for her, handed her the paper, and resumed his readings. She was soon back at his side, however, and he inquired:

"What's the matter—aren't they all right?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. They are ever so nice, but won't you please look for my mistakes in, so that teacher will think I did it?"—Washington Post.

CONDENSED SMILES.

"That man makes me sick." "Why?" "He always disagrees with me."—Ex.

There is one thing which always gives weight to a fisherman, and that is—the scales.—Brooklyn Eagle.

It seems like a pasteboard that the person who is of the smallest calibre is generally the greatest bore.—Yale Record.

A woman in Missouri was shaved clean by lightning one day last week. That's just our luck. We poor men have to go to the barber shops and take our chances.

Judge—I understand that you prefer charges against this man? Grocer—No, sir, I prefer cash, and that's what I had him brought here for.—Yonkers Statesman.

"You don't pay proper attention to the children," remarked the mother to the father severely. "Didn't little Arthur get gone and bitten his tongue again."—German Squib.

Wilkins—Don't you think it strange that some Chicago property is worth as much as $5,000 a foot? Bilkins (sarcastically)—Have you ever seen a Chicago foot?—Harvard Lampoon.

A Missouri paper tells of a man who "let his mules bark and kill a tree, for which he was fined $100." A man who allows mules to bark ought to be fined to the limit of the law.

She (trustingly)—Am I the only girl you ever loved, Jack? Jack—Why—yes—certainly, my dear—that is to say—the only girl I ever loved as I love you, my darling.—Somerville Journal.

FOR THE COOK.

To Drop Eggs—Let go of them.

An Inexpensive Dish—Buy a five-cent plate.

One-Two-Three Cake—One egg, two flour, three bounce.

Hash—Chop up everything, add some ready mixed paint, then throw it away.

Soft-Boiled Eggs—Put a setting of eggs into a kettle of hot water at 6:57, let them boil until the clock strikes; serve on half-shell.

Pound Cake—Mix up some flour and things, put them in a dish, bake for a while, then screw in the handle and commence to pound.

Clear Soup—Take two pints of water, wash them thoroughly on both sides, pour into a dish or something, and stir around the kitchen until tired.

Ice Cream—Dry a piece in the sun, stir in some cold cream or vaseline, fan it until it freezes, garnish with Christmas greens. This should be served with the soup.

To Remove Stains—To remove fruit stains from a table-cloth, saturate the cloth in benzine, kerosene and coal-oil, sprinkle with gunpowder; apply a lighted match.

Plum Pie—Get some dough, hammer out a front and back breadth. Line a dish with silesia, put in a veneering of dough, fill the dish with Brummet's cough drops, put on the top crust, feather-stitch around the edges and bake in a tinker's furnace.

Calves' Foot Jelly—Get trusted for a Chicago calf—they have the largest feet—cut off the calf, which can be used for making hash or chicken salad; wash the feet, thicken with glue, add a few molasses, strain through a cane-seated chair, pour it into a blue bowl with red pictures on it, set in the shade to get tough. Then send it to a sick friend.

Chicago Pie—Line a pie plate with puff paste—see page 3,275—put in your lemons, build a lattice work over the top and bake three weeks.—Berkshire News.

How to Transplant Large Shade Trees.

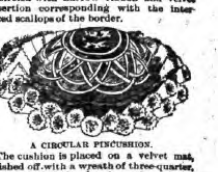
In the autumn, before the frost comes on, dig a trench around the tree and cut the roots, but not too near the tree. Remove in the winter when the ground is frozen. Raise the tree with the frozen earth adhering to the roots. The whole mass is easily raised with levers on to a strong sled, when it can be drawn erect by horses or oxen. Trees moved in this way will grow in the spring.

How to Cleanse the Mouth.

There are few things more unpleasant than foul breath. This occurs in its most offensive form from decayed teeth and from mucus adhering to the walls of the mouth and throat, which has been decomposed by the gases and acids of the system. A simple and effective way to remedy this is to drop a few crystals of permanganate of potash into a tumbler of water, and gargle the throat and rinse the mouth well with it after each meal, or before going to bed and in the morning. This solution is a perfect deodorizer of all organic decay, and penetrating the offensive odor arising from the decaying particles of food which remain in the cavities of or between the teeth, etc. It is harmless.

A Novel Design for a Pincushion.

The cover of this ornamental cushion is in white embroidery with lace edging, over a gay colored foundation. The medallion in the center is decorated with a spray of flowers in silk embroidery and encircled with narrow ribbon and velvet insertion corresponding with the interlaced scallops of the border.



A CIRCULAR PINCUSHION.

The cushion is placed on a velvet mat, finished off with a wreath of three-quarter, horned shaped blossoms in various shades of silk, ranging from dark garnet to faint pink. The inside is filled with projecting pistils in black horse hair, the tips of which are dipped into gum arabic and then dusted with silver or bronze powder.

Quitter for Sewing Machines.

A very useful addition to the sewing machine has appeared in the shape of a quitting frame. The device can be easily adjusted to hold a quilt in convenient position for being worked on, and so that it can be readily adapted to the feed of any sewing machine. The frame supporting the quilt may be brought in an instant into any desired position, the suspended frame moving freely and the device permitting of such arrangement in connection with a sewing machine that the feed of the machine will draw the quilt and frame through it. The device can be adapted to all sizes of machines and for the quilting of any desired pattern.—New York Tele-

BITTEN BY A MAD DOG.

A Plainfielder's Wrist Badly Lacerated by a Rabid Canine.

Edward McCann, a plumber, whose home is on West Third street, this city, but who is employed at Bound Brook, was bitten on the left wrist by a mad dog, while walking along the streets of that borough yesterday afternoon. The wrist was badly lacerated by the canine's teeth. A physician cauterized the wounds and Mr. McCann came to his home in this city. The rabid dog was shot but not until it had bitten several other animals.

The young man again went to Bound Brook this morning to consult his physician as to whether or not it will be necessary for him to go under the Pasteur treatment. The result of the consultation is not known.

Work of the Epworth League.

The Epworth League Convention of the Elizabeth district met in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Cranford, on Thursday afternoon and evening. There were present 120 delegates from New Jersey and New York. The Rev. A. L. Brice, of Elizabeth occupied the chair. The devotional exercises were led by the Rev. Mr. Randolph. The address of welcome was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Judd and the response by the Rev. A. Graves, of Metuchen.

Twenty Epworth leaguers reported the result of their Christian and literary work. The Rev. Charles E. Little, of Fort Richmond, S. I., spoke on the third Epworth League. Five minute addresses were given by the Revs. G. H. Bonsall, of Roselle; F. S. Simmons, of Raritan; J. H. Henry, of Finesville, and W. B. Trumbower, of Somerville, on the work the League has accomplished during the last year and its prospects for the future.

The Rev. J. H. Johnson of Elizabeth read a practical and suggestive paper on the relation of the Epworth League to the quarterly conference.

At the evening session the Rev. Mr. Graves led a service of song. The Rev. F. A. Mason, of Bound Brook, gave a stirring address on the best methods of conducting the League work. R. B. Doherty, Ph. D., of Westfield, delivered the closing address, after which the Convention adjourned. The place of next meeting has not been determined.

Fell Under the Car Wheels.

William Lear, aged seventy years, a well-known resident of Elizabeth, who lives at 217 Palmer street, met with a sad affliction yesterday. He went to Newark to visit his son Charles, who lives on Campbell street, and returned on the Pennsylvania Railroad train that reaches Elizabeth at 3:20 p. m. As the train reached the Union Depot the conductor shouted "All out for Elizabeth!" and the old man, thinking the train had stopped, left his seat and walked off the platform. The train was still in motion and he fell under the wheels of the car, which cut off his left legs. He was removed to the City Hospital.

Two of the Injured Brought Home.

Miss Lizzie Laing and Mr. Whykware, two of the persons who were injured in the runaway accident at Long Branch, the week ago to-day, were brought to this city on Wednesday, and are now at the home of Mrs. Laing on West Fourth street. They are reported as doing as well as can be expected. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher are still at the hospital in Long Branch. On the day the accident occurred, while Mrs. Fletcher was being carried into a nearby drug store, in an unconscious condition, some thief stole the gold chain which encircled her neck.

THE GROCERS MEET.

Matters Transacted at the State Meeting Yesterday.

The eighth semi-annual meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of this State was held Wednesday at the West End Hotel, Asbury Park. Seventy-five delegates were present. President George W. Rockafeller, of this city presided. The President, in his semi-annual report, recommended the appointing of secretaries in all local auxiliaries to facilitate the work of the State body.

Mr. Meyers, of the Hudson County Merchants, Protective Association, gave a history of his organization. He presented a petition from it asking for admission into the State Association. The request was granted.

Mr. Meyers recommended that the State Association publish the list of delinquent debtors instead of having it published by the local auxiliaries.

The Legislative Committee was instructed to have a bill framed to be called the "Wife's Property" bill, by which property could be held under the law for necessities furnished the house. The Association hopes to get this bill through the next Legislature.

FIREMEN TO MEET.

The Annual Convention and Tournament to be Held at Atlantic City

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Firemen's State Association will be held at Atlantic City on Wednesday, September 30, and Thursday, October 1. Brown, secretary, of the State Association, and comprising a sub-committee of the Executive committee of that body, have been to Atlantic City and made all the necessary arrangements for the convention. They had pleasant and satisfactory conferences with the local committee, and before they left perfected all the necessary preliminaries.

The meeting of the State Association will naturally invite a large delegation of visitors from all parts of the State, which, added to the attractions of the tournament, will insure the presence of a large number of people.

Dunellen's Fire Department.

[From the Bound Brook Chronicle.]

On an old faded yellow envelope, which has been carefully preserved in Joseph Maier's safe for a number of years, is inscribed "For the Dunellen Fire Department. 94.38. July 20, 1885." Mr. Maier was interviewed and related the following story regarding its origin, which may be of interest to our readers:

In the Summer of '78 a number of citizens assembled at Sam Applegate's blacksmith shop and organized what they afterward called the Dunellen Fire Department. At this meeting Sam Pope, now deceased, was elected President, Sam VanArsdale Vice President, James Pope, Secretary, and Jos. Maier, Treasurer.

The sum of $4.38 was realized at this meeting, which was handed to the Treasurer to place in the Plainfield Savings Bank. Mr. Maier not having occasion to go to town for a few days, placed the money in an envelope and put it in his safe. Two days afterward the bank failed, and at the next meeting it was proposed that the Treasurer hold all moneys until such time as when needed. No more was collected at any subsequent meeting, so this old envelope contains the original amount subscribed. On the Fourth of July following the fire company rigged up a ladder truck by taking the large wheels of two carts and placing thereon all the ladders that could be found in the place at that time. Below the ladders were strung a line of pails of various colors. The truck thus rigged was trimmed with the stars and stripes. During this celebration, preceded by horsemen and a drum corps and followed by the fire company pulling their elaborate truck, paraded through the entire town. After this the apparatus was stored in the blacksmith shop. This was the first step taken into service during fires, as the wheels were all owned by individuals who needed them for working purposes, so when not in use for parading the truck was part of someone's farm wagon or perhaps doing good service in another line.

The first factor that placed the idea of organizing a fire department in the heads of these pioneer Dunellenes was the great fire which occurred on July 5th, 1884, when the entire business portion of the town was burned. On the site where now stands the row of beautiful brick stores, opposite the depot, there stood four frame stores. Chas. S. Pope, now deceased, occupied the one where E. Runyon's store now is and had the post office there. This was the largest general store in the place. The other three were occupied by Isaac H. Dunn, flour and feed, James Phillips, boots and shoes, and P. W. Brakeley, drugs. These stores were entirely burned down and very little in them was saved. During the two years following several smaller fires occurred, in fact so frequently that it led to the organization of a fire company in the town, which was afterwards allowed to disband for lack of interest and support by the citizens.

Dunellen has been very fortunate in the past, regarding the few fires which she has had, but this does not say that she will always enjoy the same blessing. The houses are being built closer together year by year, and should a fire break out in a building centrally located, and fanned by such a breeze as we had on the Fourth, it would sweep away block after block.

Bound Brook still contains many marks of the great fire she had a few years ago. One can see here and there the foundation of some building which met its fate on that memorable day. But they are a people who are up and doing. They now have not only a well organized department, but one equipped with a first-class truck and two hose carts. Dunellen must follow this example, if she wishes to protect herself. A fire comes like a thief in the night at a most unexpected hour, and in the words of the old saying "a stitch in time" might save the whole town.

COMER'S WIFE IS AFTER HIM.

In the Meantime Old Farmer Tappen is Living on the Bounty of His Neighbors.

Mrs. Comer, wife of the Rev. George Vickery Comer, the Methodist minister for whom George Tappen, of South Plainfield, says his wife deserted him on Wednesday, taking with her all the household furniture, is on the warpath. A mysterious man, whom no one seems to know, yesterday called, and after a little conversation with her she dressed and went to the South Plainfield railroad station. She told no one where she was going or why, but simply said she intended "to take a hand in the matter."

At nine o'clock last night she had not returned. The same man called upon Tappen and Tappen, too, went away, but said he was going to have the couple arrested if they were not together. This is not probable, however, for Mrs. Tappen is now at the house of a cousin in Metuchen.

Mr. Tappen, too, has failed to return by nine o'clock last night. Tappen was left by his wife in very destitute circumstances. He is now an old man, without a cent in his pocket. He has no household goods, no property of any sort, and is living entirely on the bounty of his neighbors.

Literary Notes.

In the August number of Demorest's Family Magazine, one of the leading articles is a game of base ball all played out on paper by means of beautifully executed illustrations with explicit descriptions of each move. Those who have attempted to explain the game of base ball to a sister, wife, or wife-to-be, know what an almost hopeless task it was. Now here is the whole thing as clearly and clearly portrayed that after reading it a woman will be as anxious as any one of the other sex to see a match, and she will never again say, "Well! what is there in base ball, anyhow?" The article will save explanation, and shows enterprise in this progressive magazine. Always attractive. The August number contains over two hundred fine illustrations, including a beautiful water-color of "Swallows." It is published by W. Jennings Demorest, at 15 East Fourteenth street, New York. Price, 20 cents. Local newsdealers supply it.

Life in the open air and adventures afloat and ashore make up a large part of the Cosmopolitan Magazine's contents for July. Trout fishing in the Laurentides, the Diamond Fields of South Africa, Ostrich Farming in California, and Country Life in Honduras, are descriptive titles of some of these profusely illustrated open air papers. In addition, Elizabeth Bisland describes London Charities in a paper illustrated from picturesque photographs and character sketches; C. C. Waddle tells the history of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; James Grant Wilson writes of the stirring days following Lincoln's Cabinet and General Custer, the boy heroes of the war and navy of the Union; and Albert W. Stevens describes the world's progress in the building of submarine war vessels. All these papers are handsomely illustrated from original sources and in the one on trout fishing, will be recognized the features of an ex-President of the United States. The history of embroidery forms the subject of a beautifully illustrated article by Alida G. Radcliffe. There is a thrilling story of renunciation and self-sacrifice by Ellen Miller Berry, entitled at the Ban of San Marko, for which Charles Howard Johnson has furnished the illustrations, while A. B. Wenzell has made the drawings for Prof. Boyesen's novelette, The Mirth of Pain, of which the last chapters are given. Next month the Cosmopolitan promises to print the opening chapters of a new novel by Charles Reyes, which she entitles "According to St. John" and which is said to be the best work from her pen.

For a State W. C. T. U. Building.

At a meeting yesterday of the executive committee of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Cassen Grove a plan for a building which it is proposed to put up on the State Fair grounds was approved and a committee was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Tomlinson, of Plainfield; Mrs. E. A. Mickle, Millville; Miss Mary Osborne, Middletown; Mrs. L. Dennis Chester, and Mrs. E. C. Greenman, Boonton. The building will be a resort for the members of the White Ribbon Army, and also a depot for temperance literature. Arrangements were made for the annual State convention, which will be held at Salem, October 20-24. The New Jersey Union will be represented at the annual convention of the Nationa Temperance Society, to be held at Saratoga on July 15, by Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark; Mrs. Abbie Lavitt, Nineland; Mrs. I Demorest, Mrs. E. C. Greenman, Mrs. J. E. Humphries, of Woodstown, and Mrs. Rebecca Patterson, Salem.

To prevent a horse pawing in the stall make a frame four feet long, and of width to nearly reach the floor. On top of the manger frame which it is suspended, allowing it to reach within about ten inches of the floor; board up the rack or frame so as he cannot get his feet over the lower bar, which is made of a round stick two inches in diameter. When he paws he will set the frame in motion and cause it to strike his shins, which will so disgust him that he will give up the habit.

The Baker Mine at Mine Hill, Morristown, employing between fifty and 100 men, was shut down yesterday. The original vein ran in a large one, but this said the ore contained too much phosphorus to be profitable. The prospects at the Dickerson Mine are also said to be bad. The closing of this mine would be disastrous to the community.

Charles Freeman, a colored boy fourteen years old, was committed to the Hackensack jail yesterday by Justice Heath in a high-handed way. Freeman Hires and Mrs. Ann Devine, both of Hackensack, appeared before the Justice with their son Freeman Hires, Jr., aged twelve, and John Devine, aged eleven. They said that Freeman had robbed their sons of small amounts, varying from twenty-five to eighty cents, at different times, under threats of severe beatings. The boys swore to affidavits in the matter. The boy was locked up to stand trial at the September term of court.

The Necktie Fad,

[From Table Talk.]

The dear girls have developed a new fad, on the sentimental order, and it is one that is being warmly encouraged by those of their admirers who have penchants for pretty necktie stock. The object of these fellows to do to add choicely to their necktie stock is to compliment judiciously the dainty new crepe and silk gowns of their fair friends. The pleased girls immediately carry a quarter of a yard of the dress stuff to a tie manufacturer—haberdasher the Anglicized ones call him—and have made a scarf or tie, patterned after the ones their admirers customarily wear. They donate this tie, which is, of course, different from that on the counters, stipulating firmly, however, that it must never be worn on the same occasion that the dress is donned that would be to express it in the girl's own words, "too great a give-away."

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

Interest on the public debt for the fiscal year ending with June, 1892, will amount to $22,000,000. For the year just closed it was $23,000,000.

Fixing the line between middle age and old age, Kate Gannett Wells says that as long as one has strength to work he is still middle aged, no matter what his years may be.

This is what The Christian Union says about it: "Your great railroad corporations own a sixth of all the capital of community. They own its highways. Controlling transportation they control the prices of food and fuel. A nation whose food and fuel are owned by its kings is as free as Egypt when Joseph was prime minister. What are you going to do about it?"

In St. Louis a mortgage for $50,000,000 has been filed by the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad company. The mortgage is drawn in favor of a New York company and has 100 years to run, with interest at 4 per cent. This stupendous mortgage is no more in this day of great enterprises than the same number of thousands would have been seventy-five years ago. When that mortgage comes due hardly anybody will be living that was in the world when the document was recorded. Most of the population of the globe will have been changed three times over, twice in any case, even if life lengthens out as it is expected to do in the next century. There will certainly be not many of the present European governments and dynasties in existence then. There may not even be any United States.

The mutually protective customs league into which Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Austria-Hungary have entered is not aimed at mutual self-protection so much as at helping themselves and their own manufacturers by mutually injuring other nations, notably the United States. Whether they can keep it up remains to be seen. It will probably share the fate of so many of the trusts that are started to control prices and rule the world in certain articles, and fall through. It is interesting to note, however, the tendency to league nations that is exhibited in our time. From individuals the impulse has extended to nations under the name of "reciprocity." In the present instance, even if all the European countries should unite in a customs league, the republics of America can do the same, and stand together and show Europe that America, too, can do her part in the "reciprocity" line.

Progress in Electricity.

Electricity is often spoken of as existing under two forms, dynamic and static. The dynamic is that which flows; the static is that which exists without the power of traveling, as some writer has expressed it. Professor Nikola Tesla has made remarkable advance in utilizing this static electricity. If his discoveries can be deepened on a revolution may shortly be brought in the whole field of electric industries.

Professor Tesla claims, for one thing, that he can make an incandescent lamp with only one wire and no carbon filament at all. By means of the mastery he has gained over static electricity he finds that no circuit is necessary in electric lighting. One wire passes from the main line of the electric current, so to speak, through the lamp. The branch wires run off like side lines on a railway and need no return track. Moreover, the carbon filament itself is replaced by a single solid block of carbon. Into this block the electricity passes and makes it glow brilliantly, and that is all there is of it. What the change from the troublesome, costly carbon filament to the simple carbon block without any return current means will be best known to electricians.

Furthermore, the new electric light current will be harmless. There being no circuit to be completed, there will be no danger. Professor Tesla passed through his body, in presence of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, a current 250 times as strong as that required to kill without its having the slightest effect on him. The secret of this performance consisted in transforming dynamic electricity into static.

Another achievement of Professor Tesla is to be noted. He not only does away with the carbon filament, but even with the incandescent lamp itself. If two large bright metal plates fixed opposite each other to be connected with the terminal wire of a dynamo and the current turned on immediately there is created between them an electrostatic field. If in this electrostatic field is placed a glass tube, from which the air has been exhausted, the tube will immediately glow with light enough to illuminate a room, although it is entirely disconnected with the plates. The plates may be set near the opposite walls of a room and then the space can be illuminated by placing the tubes anywhere in the room. Perhaps here is the electric light of the future.

BARDSLEY'S STORY OUT.

He Makes Some Grave Charges Against Wanamaker.

WHICH ARE PROMPTLY DENIED.

The "Confession" Charges That Mr. Wanamaker Knowingly Held the Overissued Keystone Bank Stock and Demanded $100,000 for It.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The Bardsley investigating committee held another session in the afternoon, at which Postmaster General Wanamaker attended and testified concerning his transaction with the Keystone bank, and the statement made by ex-City Treasurer John Bardsley to Editor McWade, of The Ledger, was for the first time made public. It proved to be an interview between McWade and Bardsley on two different occasions at the prison. In it Bardsley again went over the story of the Keystone bank, and stoutly maintained that he put the $695,000 in the bank, but did not know what became of it any more than he believed that President Marsh got it. Bardsley said that Bank Examiner Drew had been a heavy borrower from the Keystone bank and was completely under Lucas' and Marsh's thumb.

A Charge Against Wanamaker.

In regard to John Wanamaker, Bardsley said that Marsh told him that he knowingly held overissued shares of bank stock, and demanded $100,000 for not exposing it. Bardsley refused, resigning the bank. Bardsley then said that he advised Marsh to engage counsel and make a demand on Wanamaker for the over issue shares, as he was in a critical position in holding them. Marsh retained Mayer Sulzberger and John G. Johnson as his counsel, and they made a demand on Wanamaker, which he refused. Wanamaker's proposition was that the Lucas estate should pay him $30,000, Marsh $25,000 and the Girard Trust Company $45,000. They were then notified Mr. Wanamaker that if the fraudulent shares were not delivered to them by a specified date they would resort to legal measures to get them.

Wanamaker Made a Threat.

The shares were then turned over without delay. Wanamaker made a threat that he would see Controller Lacey in Washington and have the bank closed before they expected it. "In March, 1890," said Bardsley. "Marsh came to me and said Wanamaker wanted $200,000 at once. Marsh told him he couldn't have that amount on hand, and Wanamaker told him where he could get it. Two days later Marsh came to me, saying that Wanamaker was persistent and must have the money. I loaned him the money and Wanamaker got it."

Philadelphia Editors Accused.

Bardsley also talked a great deal about his connection in the past with several prominent Philadelphians, and blamed them for the stand they had taken against him. He is quoted as saying that Mr. McWade with having spoken of Colonel McClure, of The Times, and William Singerly, of The Record, in a "very severe manner."

"When I was a candidate for city treasurer I called on Colonel McClure and told him everything in my past life, and said that if he would say so I would withdraw. He said, 'Go ahead. The Times will be for you.' But he weakened afterward. You remember the scheme to get the gas works from the city? Well, McClure was in that. McClure was to get a big block of the stock for his advocacy in his paper, and was not to pay a cent for it. McClure was also in a number of other schemes."

Hugh Mullen's $500.

Regarding the payment of $500 to Hugh Mullen, Bardsley said: "The mayor wanted Mullen appointed mercantile appraiser and William L. Singerly wanted Richard J. Lennon appointed to the same place. After a while I learned that Singerly was pushing Albert H. Crawford for the place, and Crawford was the auditor general's man for the place.

"Martin and Porter and all of Quay's people were working for Crawford, and the result was that overtures were made to Singerly to draw Lennon out of the fight. He was promised that if Lennon was taken out $100,000 of state money would be placed on deposit in the Chestnut Street bank. This went done. Lennon was taken out of the fight, and the $100,000 is in the bank now. Crawford got the place, and Mayor Fitler got angry at what he claimed to be a deal in advance. Bardsley then paid Hugh Mullen $500 to redeem the promise to the mayor."

Yard Got What He Wanted.

H. H. Yard, he said, got a great deal of the Keystone bank money. He was in the pool with Lucas and Marsh, and Marsh allowed him to overdraw his account $90,000, even when the run on the bank was going on.

"Widener and Elkins, the traction magnates," he said, "never sold him any traction stock. They never dealings whatever with him." McWade also asked Bardsley if Judge Wilson had ever borrowed money from him as city treasurer. He said not, and on being asked what judges had borrowed money he answered in a whisper, "Finletter and Ashman." The money, he said, was simply in advance on their salaries, they did not know whether he was lending them state moneys, city moneys or his own.

The reason of the statement was simply a long story of Bardsley's troubles given in his own words, with numerous comments, all of which contained no new facts.

Yard Would Not Appear.

H. H. Yard, who was then called, did not appear, but a communication was received from his counsel stating that his case had been appealed to the supreme court. The committee voted to instruct the city solicitor to take measures to compel Yard to obey the order of the lower court and appear before the committee.

Mr. Wanamaker's Statement.

Postmaster General Wanamaker, who had entered the room while Bardsley's statement was being read, then stepped forward and requested that he be allowed to testify. "I have," said he, "been anxious to appear ever since the question was raised regarding the stock of which I previously testified."

In answer to questions, he said that his interest in the Keystone bank arose out of his acquaintance with President Lucas and his connection with the young merchants. He stated that he never pledged the overissued stock after he was told it was an overissue, and it was not of his hands at the time. He did not know H. H. Yard and had never met Mr. Lucas but once, and that was at an interview about the overissued stock. He was asked to give an account of what transpired between him and Marsh at Washington and did so, saying matters came to a climax when Marsh was accompanied by Bardsley to Mr. Wade that he had threatened to close the bank unless he was paid for the overissued stock and that Lawyers Sulzberger and Johnson had formed him to retain $30,000, Mr. Wanamaker said it was absolutely false.

Bardsley Accused of Fabrication.

Granville R. Haines and Samuel B. Huey were brought to Washington to see him about the overissued stock, and he told them that they must settle for it and that if they did not, in justice to himself, he should hand the controller of the currency. After the bank closed he gave up the stock. Bardsley's statement that Marsh obtained from him $90,000 for Yard was denied by Marsh. It was also absolutely untrue and without the slightest foundation, and invited the committee to inspect his books.

More Stock in the Wanamaker's Name.

Mr. Wanamaker was then informed by a member of the committee that during their examination of the stock book of the Keystone bank they had found 1,200 shares of stock in his name in addition to the 2,515 shares which he testified had been given by Lucas to use as collateral for those he had purchased of the Lucas estate. That some of those shares had been at one time in his name he did not state, as he had not used them in any operation.

Always Kept Enough Stock.

In regard to the stock which had been found in his name, 625 shares of it, Mr. Wanamaker said was held by Irvin & Toland, Bardsley's attorneys. This reduced it to 2,575 shares of stock. Of these five blocks of 200 shares each were dated March 3, 1888, and while issued in his name he paid for the stock only when called on and endorsed by him and they could never have been used. Of these shares he had absolutely no knowledge. The next lot, five blocks of 200 shares each, was dated four weeks earlier, Feb. 3, 1888. He was a director in the Girard Trust company, and Lucas came to him and asked him to obtain a few shares of stock in which as "I have been just foolish enough," said Mr. Wanamaker, "all my life to do those things, and I got the money on the stock and then found a favorable time afterward it was paid off by the Lucas estate, and they got the stock back."

Placed in His Name.

Mr. Wanamaker also presented the committee with a letter from John C. Lucas, dated May 28, 1888, inclosing a check to pay the interest on this loan. "Of the five blocks of 200 shares each," said Mr. Wanamaker, "my impression is that Mr. Lucas 43 first intended to ask for a larger loan, and so issued them. It was never used. They were a mere form and have been without my indorsement. I know of no other stock, but I remember that ten years ago, when Lucas was securing control of the bank, he came to me and said he did not want people to know who certain stock belonged to, and for a time he placed some in my name."

"In regard to certificate 450, which was transferred by H. H. Yard to Scudder & Durham, of Trenton, that is a part of the stock of the Lucas estate that the Girard Trust company was secured, and after the Lucas estate got it back it was very likely passed over to Yard again to raise money on."

Mr. Wanamaker then again went over at some length the transaction in Reading in which John C. Lucas was a partner, and said that after the settlement was made President Marsh admitted in the presence of three witnesses that the Lucas estate owed him $100,000. In closing his testimony Mr. Wanamaker read letters from Controller Lacey and Assistant Secretary Nettleton to show that he had never influenced or delayed the appointment for an instant of a receiver for the Keystone bank.

FIRST PLACE OR NONE.

Ex-Governor Gray Is Not a Candidate for Vice President.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Evening World says: Ex-Governor Scott Gray, of the Shelbyville (Ind.) Democrat, which paper for some time past has announced Hill and Gray as a presidential ticket for 1892, is now in this city. Gray claims to have the authority of Governor Hill for publishing his name as that of a presidential aspirant. He says that he came here as the authorized agent of ex-Governor Gray to ascertain what Hill's intentions were, and that the latter told him he was in the race and would be to the New York convention. Governor Hill also told him, he says, to have the Indiana delegation instructed for Gray.

Gray Wants the Presidency.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 11.—In an interview Governor Gray denies the New York dispatch which says that Scott Ray was authorized by him to visit Governor Hill and find out his intentions regarding the presidency. He says he will be not a candidate for vice president, and intimates that he will run for the first place and will not take the second.

Sued by an Actress.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mabel Sterling, an actress, has brought suit against the proprietors of the Manhattan Beach hotel at Coney Island, claiming $50,000 damages to her reputation, the defendants having ordered her to leave the hotel, alleging that she was not of good character. Miss Sterling declares that in event of her winning the suit she will devote the money recovered to charities.

The Clarks Were Convicted.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—Ambrose Fitzsimmons, with Mr. and Mrs. Clark as accessories, was found guilty of receiving Schmidly's jewelry store in Hempstead last January. The stolen goods were found in the Clarks' house. They were well to do and have always borne a good reputation here. Their arrest caused quite a social sensation.

Over Fifty Families Arrested.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., July 11.—Indian Agent Dwight and the Chickasaw militia have arrested and placed in camp over fifty families (whites) charged with being intruders, and will be put across the Red river into Texas today, with orders not to return to the Indian territory under heavy penalties.

A Carnival on Wheels.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 11.—There was a meeting of the wheelmen here, by which every business house in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove was represented on floats. The carnival, which was the most unique ever witnessed on the coast, was witnessed by a large number of people.

LONG ISLAND'S BANDIT.

He Lived in Two Caves Near Islip.

HUNTED BY A POSSE OF CITIZENS.

The Story of Cowboy Richardson and His Alleged Robberies—Did He Intend to Kidnap His Wife and Carry Her Off to His Lair?

ISLIP, L. I., July 11.—Nearly 200 men armed with shotguns, rifles and revolvers scoured the woods north of this place during the day and searched Saxton's swamp, a mile and a half away, for Tom Richardson, cowboy, robber and bandit. Two caves have been discovered cunningly constructed in the sandy scrub oak land between here and Brentwood, in which he has concealed the booty of numerous robberies and in one of which, it is supposed, he meant to cage his wife after he succeeded in abducting her. Tom went to Texas, where his life was an adventurous life. This at least was the story he told when he returned somewhat over a year ago, wearing pantaloons of leather, long hair, and a sombrero. He cut quite a figure in Islip.

He could pierce a dime at 100 feet. He took well with the girls and he married the pretty daughter of Police Justice Waller, of Bay Shore.

Married for Revenge.

Then he was made a constable, but he got frightfully into debt and treated his wife so badly that she ran away from him four months after marriage. Justice Waller kicked him out of the house. It is said then that he swore revenge and that he would have his wife in spite of every obstacle.

One Cave Discovered.

He disappeared, and soon thereafter there began in Islip, Brentwood and neighboring towns a succession of robberies and thefts which worried the community greatly. They were generally of a similar nature, and seemed as often to be provoked by hunger as by greed. A reward of $1,750 was offered for the thieves.

The other day Lot Benjamin, a fisherman, and Alexander Coombs, a laborer, made a discovery in the woods which astonished the neighborhood. They were huckleberrying in an open piece of land half way between Islip and Brentwood when they found a fireplace with potatoes and peas boiling. Further investigation later in the sand on the part of a posse unearthed a hollow wooden tray three feet square. Under this an opening of the same size was discovered, dug downward for four feet and then shooting backward and downward into a black underground cave. The passage was boarded to hold up the sandy walls. Thinking he had found the robbers' lair, one of the men threw a match into the cave.

"Come out of that, you wretches! Come quick. Call out, for I'm going to shoot."

He Fired Into the Hole.

There was no response, so he fired down into the hole. Immediately another man shouted: "Look here! The stumps are smoking." He pointed to an old pine stump a few feet away in the direction in which the underground passage pointed. Men attacked the stump and pulled it to pieces. It was no stump, but a cunning arrangement of bark and moss around four tin pipes which arose from the sand. A little smoke came from the pipes, but they proved afterward to be the smoke from Josser's revolver.

Still thinking men were below, Deputy Sheriff Benjamin and William Jones lowered themselves into the pit and crawled through the passage. It was so narrow that they could just push their way through. There was no one within. There was a bed inside. Some dresses hung around the walls, some bits of stolen property, some salted chickens, hams and pieces of beef, and some papers and letters.

The Cave Swallowed Him.

On a piece of paper was written "Tom and Fannie." Fannie was the name of Tom Richardson's sister. This discovery created a deal of excitement in the neighborhood. An attempt was made to keep quiet the known fact that the occupant had been Tom Richardson, but the very appearance of Benjamin and Jones with Joseph Marvin saw Richardson. Marvin was at the cave with several townsfolk examining the place.

Richardson had evidently been away on some excursion, for he apparently suspected nothing. He wore an old Prince Albert coat and a heavy false beard, but Marvin and the men with him recognized him instantly.

The man instantly disappeared, and the most faithful search failed to discover him.

To Catch the Robber.

They spread the report of his appearance. Immediately a posse was formed to catch the robber. The vicinity of the underground retreat was carefully guarded night and day, other parties searched the wild country for other details of the robber. At last a second cave was uncovered. It is within two miles of the first one and it is said to be near Islip. Richardson's country place, to the east from Islip, and not far from the Central Islip road. This cave was discovered on Monday by Joseph Marvin. The men who made it have built on precisely the same plans as the other. In both ventilation was insured by a system of tin tubes. The ends emerging from the sand were covered with moss and dry bushes.

The new cave was roomy, and had evidently required long and hard work to tunnel. There were no heaps of sand to be found in the neighborhood, a fact which indicates the pains the bandit took to conceal this new retreat. It was furnished in luxuriant style. There were sheets hung around the walls to keep out the damp. The floor was laid with rugs. There was a bed and bedding and all the appointments of a comfortable home. There was china in the pantry and silverware. It was evidently furnished for a long occupancy. There was also here much of the booty known to have been stolen from the fine country homes along the shore.

Was He Insane?

The most significant thing in this strange residence was a chain securely fastened to a stake firmly driven into the ground. What did Richardson want of this fine underground residence? is what the discoverers asked themselves. For what purpose was the chain put there? They consulted Justice Waller and the opinion of the authorities now is that Richardson intended this place as the home of his wife, and that he meant to take her there by force.

Whether he meant to keep her prisoner there and force her to share his bandit life with him for an extended time can only be conjectured. Several times Richardson has been seen, but he was never near enough for a shot. The search will go on until he is brought in dead or alive. The Islip folks are in earnest.

EDITOR PORTER REPLIES

He Denies the Allegations of Ex-Judge Harrison.

NEW HAVEN, July 11.—The open letter of ex-Judge Lynde Harrison, of New Haven, to Representative Porter, of Pomfret, editor of the Hartford Post, which was printed in The World, has created a profound sensation. Concerning the letter Mr. Porter said: "The letter makes a grievous charge against me, and those who do not know me personally may be willing to credit it, but I am not a politician looking for office. I am a newspaper man.

"I have never done anything that I cannot stand by and substantiate fully. When Mr. Harrison says that he was invited to share in the deliberations of the committee he is right. He was invited to give his opinion the same as Mr. Buck or Mr. Cass or Mr. Robinson or Mr. Cole was. As for Governor Bulkeley, he never saw the report. The committee purposely avoided meeting in his room to prevent a misunderstanding. Of all men he knew the least about it, and was apparently the most interested.

"Mr. Harrison held very conservative views, others held very liberal views. We did not follow the suggestions of the former, because we did not see fit to do so. We considered all sides and heard suggestions from all the party leaders. I never saw a more fair minded and liberal committee. Every injustice has been done me personally, which will of course be made the most of by my political opponents. But I try not to think of that. My business is of being party to a tricky political job of the meanest kind. I am willing to take my oath today that all the work of that committee was perfectly straightforward and honorable."

Senator Fox, of this city, the Democratic leader in the senate, has prepared a resolution which will be introduced by the strength of Judge Harrison's letter to the senate at its next meeting calling for an investigation into the charges Judge Harrison makes.

PUTERBAUGH'S DEADLY PISTOL.

He Shoots His Wife and Four Children and Kills Himself.

OMAHA, July 11.—A special from Ellis, Neb., says: Mrs. Dr. Allen, of Beatrice, went to Denver to visit her daughter, Mrs. John H. Puterbaugh, a farmer, living one and a half miles from there. Repeated knocks at the door failing to obtain a response, Dr. Allen forced open a portible sight met her eyes. On the floor lay her brother with a bullet hole through his head and an empty revolver lying beside his dead hand. Mrs. Allen ran for her driver and the two made further investigation. On a bed lay Mrs. Puterbaugh dead. Beside the wife and mother lay the dead body of the baby, two years old. Up stairs in another room lay the dead body of Puterbaugh's ten-year-old son. Up stairs were found the dead bodies of his two daughters, aged thirteen and fifteen years.

Each one had been shot through the head and evidently while all but Puterbaugh were asleep. It is believed that Puterbaugh himself committed the terrible deed, probably in a fit of insanity. He was a well to do farmer, without any known trouble. No reason for the cowardly motive that can be ascribed for the deed. One son, aged seventeen years, was saved from the slaughter by being absent from home at the time. An inquest is being held.

THE EMPEROR'S LONDON VISIT.

He Is Counting on Important Political Results.

LONDON, July 11.—Emperor William made a triumphal passage from Buckingham palace to Guildhall, where he received an address from the lord mayor of the city of London and made a speech emphasizing his wish for peace. At the Duke of Cambridge's dinner the emperor showed that he was counting on important political results from his visit to London.

The emperor made a franker reference to the topic of the day, Salisbury's failure arising from his cordial public welcome in this city than probably Lord Salisbury liked to hear. Only an echo of the imperial words has yet reached us, but the official circle present, yet the words, in some form, will soon find an outlet. There are increasing fears that the emperor includes all the political results of his visit shall be of momentous consequence.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Master Workman Powderly has written an open letter to Secretary of the Treasury Foster of about five columns in length in regard to the discharge of the seven Knights of Labor from the bureau of engraving and printing. The first column is devoted almost entirely to personal vituperation of the secretary.

To Do Up Thin Draperies.

The art muslins and thin silks used in getting up pretty rooms nowadays have a fashion of losing their freshness very early. A lady far removed from professional cleaners experimented with some muslins to see whether they might be washed or not, and found that some of the reds, yellows and terra cottas did fairly well. She says: If any one likes to try they should make a soapy lather with good pearlin, when lukewarm thoroughly wash and shake the muslin in it. Rinse it quickly in clear water with a little salt in it; then roll in a large soft towel and squeeze out the water. Have some irons ready, iron out the material at once while wet on the wrong side, and hang it when done near the fire to complete drying. The muslin will then be slightly stiffened, but not too much. This applies to the patterned art muslins, not the cheap whole colored ones.

A Rich Lemonade.

The Confectioners' Journal is authority for the following: Peel off the yellow rinds from one dozen bright, fresh lemons, taking care that none of the rind is detached but the yellow zest—that portion in which the oils are placed containing the essential oil of the fruit. Put these rinds into an earthern vessel, and pour over them one pint of boiling water; cover and set aside in a warm situation to infuse. Express the juice from two dozen lemons, strain it into a porcelain bowl and add two pounds of fine white sugar, three quarts of water and the infusion from the peels. Stir all well together until the sugar is dissolved; now sample, and if required, add more acid or more sugar; take care not to have it too watery; make it rich with plenty of fruit and sugar.

Eczema from the Virginia Creeper.

A medical journal relates a number of unmistakable cases of eczema produced from gathering leaves of the Virginia creeper. The effect, rash, heat and irritation of the skin is the same as that caused by ivy on some persons.

ELOPERS CALLED BACK.

The Romantic Adventures of a Boy and a Girl.

THEY BOTH RODE ON THE BUMPERS.

After a Series of Remarkable Experiences They Were Arrested in an Ohio Town and Returned to Their Parents in Pittsburg—Too Young to Marry.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—True lovers of long, for years never had a more romantic and trying escapade than Wesley B. Moseley and Miss Jessie Steadman, of Allegheny, who have just been brought back from Alliance, O. She has her sixteenth birthday anniversary to celebrate yet, while he is not old enough to vote. He has been escorting her to and from school for months and making himself agreeable at picnics and parties. Miss Steadman is the daughter of W. R. Steadman, a well known business man, while Moseley is the son of a widow. Both moved in good society. Their folks thought they were too young to wed, but the lovers thought otherwise.

To Fool Their Parents.

Of their escapade young Moseley said: "We went to Sewickly on Tuesday to attend a picnic. We had previously planned to go to Buffalo by the Lake Erie road and there get married. I sent a telegram back saying we had gone to Jamestown, but this was done to throw the folks off the track. We expected to cross the Ohio and take a train at Conapolis, but could get no one to ferry us over.

They Rode on the Bumpers.

"When the Chicago express came along with nothing but mail and express cars, I asked the conductor to take us to Beaver, where we could catch the Lake Erie train. He refused. I offered him $50 to take us down, but it would not go. We crawled on the bumpers of the first car.

"The girl had on a light challis dress, and I put my light overcoat on her to protect her from the night air. She looked like a boy. In this way we rode to Alliance, O.

"There an officer arrested us, but let us go again. We did not want to stop there, as we could not get married in Ohio. We tried to board the train again and were arrested by a train detective. He also let us go after we gave him a hard luck story. I told him my companion was my brother. I don't see why he did not discover the mistake, as my overcoat only reached to Miss Steadman's knees.

The Girl Escaped.

"We remained all night at a hotel, and next morning, while trying to get out of town, were arrested and taken before the mayor. We were detained in the mayor's office all evening, when Chief of Police Stacey took me to a hotel and the mayor took the girl to his home.

"About 12:30 o'clock that night I went around to the mayor's house and gave a whistle that Miss Steadman understood. She opened the window, crawled on a tin gutter and slung to an awning, which she attempted to slide down, when it broke and fell with a crash. I caught her in my arms. We then started across the field and got on a road which I thought would take us to the Erie and Pittsburg depot, with the hope of reaching Cumberland, Md. The girl got all wet in the fields, and she went into a farmhouse to dry her clothes.

Given Away by the Coat.

"The old farmer, seeing the girl with a man's coat on, knew that something was wrong and told the police. We had just sat down under a tree to rest when the mayor and chief of police came up in a carriage and took us back to town, where we met the girl's father and my brother and were sent home. What I regret is the false reports flying now between us, but on my honor there was not and I am sorry if the public think so."

Miss Steadman could not be seen today. She and her mother are both ill of nervous prostration, growing out of the romantic affair. It is thought the loving pair will be allowed to marry shortly.

THE BLAINES DENY IT.

Emmons Blaine Calls the St. Louis Story Sheer Nonsense.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 11.—Members of the Blaine family are emphatic in their denial of the report printed in a western paper to the effect that the secretary was sinking rapidly and that the doctors had no hope. Emmons Blaine laughed heartily when shown the dispatch and characterized it as sheer nonsense. He said that any one could see that it was utterly false by Mr. Blaine's appearance.

The secretary was out riding as usual and that he is constantly improving is apparent to all observers. He dismounts from his carriage without assistance, while his eyes are regaining their brightness and his cheeks their color. There is every reason to believe that he will resume his official duties next fall.

Baby McKee as a Fisherman.

CAPE MAY, July 11.—President Harrison and party, comprising the guests of the summer White House, were out to the fishing banks all day on the revenue cutter Hamilton. Five hundred handsome black bass were tropins of their skill. The president caught forty-six, Mrs. Harrison thirty-seven and Master Ben McKee landed six and started the engine of the cutter. On arriving at the fishing banks a salute was given by a black fishing party already there.

Three Were Drowned.

CLEVELAND, July 11.—The Miles Park Sunday school, of this city, gave a picnic at Oak Point, a Lake Erie summer resort. John Henderson took Isabel Henderson, aged seven; Ella Henderson, aged twelve; John Stackman, aged thirty-two, and Lillie Chenoweth, aged twelve, out in a skiff for a pleasure ride. A big wave broke over the boat, overturning it. All were drowned except the elder Henderson.

Fighting Jay Gould.

NEW YORK, July 11.—A mass meeting of citizens was held in Battery park last night to protest against the occupation of any portion of the park by the elevated railroad. Strong resolutions were adopted, and a committee of 100 was appointed to wait upon the park commissioners to ask them to revoke the permit to occupy the park which the elevated railroad now possesses.

Norfolk Has a Navy Scandal.

NORFOLK, Va., July 11.—A big sensation was created at the navy yard by the arrest of Paymaster's Clerk Van Vranken, of the general storehouse, and H. W. Coston, a clerical employe of the same establishment, on the charge of stealing considerable metal and other goods from the government valued at $10,000. Both men are leaders in high society in this section.

GOOD HEALTH

ABOUT SUNSTROKE.

Some of Its Causes and Measures for Its Prevention.

Among probable causes of sunstroke enumerated by The Lancet are the presence of stagnant atmosphere, excess in diet, as tending to retard tissue change, pulmonary oppression by clothing with consequent mal aeration, great physical exhaustion with cardiac fatigue, and free consumption, even in moderate amount, of alcoholic liquors during hot weather. The habitual wearing of somewhat loose, porous cloth (as, for instance, during per spiration and assisting the removal of its products, will also contribute materially toward the reduction of the general temperature. It is needful to keep in view the extreme sensitiveness of the cerebro spinal nerve centers, especially those of the medulla. The means by which protection can best be accomplished call for a brief notice. Among these may be mentioned the adoption of the familiar white veil behind and over the head, the interposition of a wet white linen cloth between head and hat and the effectual ventilation of the latter.

Drinks for Thirst in Fever.

To allay the thirst engendered by the fever in influenza, where wine is allowed, there are few things better than siphons of champagne, says an English writer on dietetics.

Milk for grown folk, at all events, will always be more acceptable when mixed with seltzer, soda or other effervescent water, in the proportion of one part water to two of milk.

Tamarind water (made by boiling two ounces of tamarinds with one quarter pound of stoned raisins in three pints of water for an hour and then straining it). Or black currant jelly as a cooling drink (for which boil two tablespoonfuls of black currant jam in a quart of water; then cover it and let it simmer gently for half an hour, when it must be strained, brought again to boiling point, and lastly poured boiling on to a teaspoonful of arrowroot previously rubbed smooth in a little cold water, the whole being stirred all the time the boiling liquid is being added and used when cold) will be found most acceptable.

Fruit drinks, and fruit when permitted, are much appreciated; but in severe cases, where with children, especially the lips and mouth are often much swollen and very sore, grapes should be stoned and skinned before given to the patient.

The Best Half of Life.

The best half of life is in front of the man of forty, if he be anything of a man, says The Hospital. The work he will do will be done with the best of his powers, and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered peace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and wonderful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and ever-ascending heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes every year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

ETIQUETTE MORNING POST

ANSWERING INVITATIONS.

The Approved Formula for a Formal Note of Regret—The Fenelled Visiting Card.

Although the custom of sending a visiting card with the word "regret" pencilled upon it has often been characterized as ill bred and discourteous, it is still indulged to a considerable extent, says Good Housekeeping, which adds that there are occasions when the cold visiting card (always free from pencilling) may be sent with perfect propriety—not at breakfast, however. Where a formal regret is desired the following is the approved formula:

"Mrs. Jones regrets that a previous engagement will deprive her of the pleasure of accepting the polite invitation of Mrs. Smith for Thursday morning, June the tenth."

The phrase, "a previous engagement," in social parlance suffices, according to the authority quoted, to include any circumstances which prevents the acceptance of an invitation, whether it be illness in the household or the arrival of guests, and it is not considered necessary to particularize in one's note of regret. A social visit paid at an early hour in the day will afford the opportunity for offering such explanation as may be deemed needful.

The Courtesy Due to Friends.

Making friends is easy to the girl who is bright and happy, whose society gives pleasure and who is genial. But keeping them demands more than this, and a sensible writer has thus summed up the other requirements, most of which are mere matters of good social form:

To keep a friend don't get too intimate with her. Have your own thoughts and permit her to have hers.

Do not demand too much of her in the way of confidence. And do not be too aggressive, wanting to know why she hasn't done this, and why she doesn't think as you do.

If her style of dress is not beautiful, don't tell her; it will only offend her, because deep in her heart she is convinced that she knows a great deal more about it than any one else.

Do not find fault with a friend's friend, and do not expect to be the only one given a corner in her heart.

Be as considerate of her feelings as if she were a stranger, and remember that politeness is an everyday garment, and not one intended only for holidays. To sum up in a sentence, preserve the courtesy of the beginning to keep the friendship to the end.

AERIAL SPIDERS.

A Description of Flying Spiders Which Spin Their Webs to a Balloon of Fibers.

Popular Science News calls attention to an interesting description of the aerial or balloon spiders, which, spinning their web in a tassel, or balloon of fibers, rise into the air and are sometimes wafted immense distances by the wind, such as the seeds of dandelions or thistles are scattered over the land by the feathery plumes with which they are provided. The studies of careful observers have shown the way in which these little balloons are made. The spider climbs to the top of a shrub or some other elevated position, to avoid collision with surrounding objects, and spins a thread, which as it is formed rises into the air, probably lifted up by the current of heated air ascending from the ground. After the first thread reaches the length of a foot or two the spider cuts it off, and attaching it to some neighboring object proceeds to spin another. The process is repeated until a sufficient number have been formed to give sufficient buoyancy to carry the spider on her proposed journey, when gathering them together she ties them, and is wafted by the currents of air for many miles. These flying spiders have been observed at a height of 2,000 feet, and it is believed that their journeys often exceed 100 miles.

At the right in the cut is represented a spider spinning the threads to form the balloon. At the left is shown a spider with a balloon completed and floating in the air. At the top is seen a tuft of threads left by a spider after the completion of the journey.

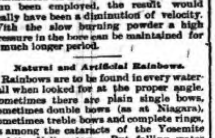
The cause of the buoyancy of these little spider web balloons is not thoroughly understood. Apparently the separate threads are charged with electricity as soon as formed, and thus repel each other, to form a light, bulky plume, instead of adhering together in a heavy mass. Their buoyancy is most probably due to the currents of heated air which surround them, and, in fact, the fibers themselves would become sufficiently heated by the sun's rays to warm the surrounding air and create an ascending current. It has been noticed that the spiders only take their aerial journeys on bright, sunny days, and that the shadow of a passing cloud, or the cutting off of the sun's rays by an artificial screen, causes the threads to droop and collapse.

The New Slow Burning Powder.

Guns have lately been built longer in order to get the full advantage of the slow burning powder which is now being used. This combination of gun and slower powder gives a higher velocity, which means in effect not only a longer range but also greater penetrative power and destructive energy on the part of the shot. With the old powder the shot received merely a sharp, short blow—that is to say, the powder suddenly developed a very high pressure, which fell as soon as the shot commenced its movement—and had a long gun been employed, the result would really have been a diminution of velocity. With the slow burning powder a high pressure in the bore can be maintained for a much longer period.

Natural and Artificial Rainbows.

Rainbows are to be found in every waterfall when looked for at the proper angle. Sometimes there are plain single bows, sometimes double bows (as at Niagara), sometimes treble bows and complete rings, as among the cataracts of the Yosemite and the Yellowstone. But falling water is not essential for their production. According to Mr. Froude, there is a rainbow every night and morning over the island of St. Lucia, in the West Indies. And rainbows can be made in the laboratory.



ARTIFICIAL MAKING OF A RAINBOW.

In the cut here reproduced from Golden Days is illustrated one of the simplest methods of artificially making a rainbow. The sun's light is admitted through the hole in the shutter, and reflected from the water bottle on to a screen. This simple experiment can of course be readily performed at home by the most youthful of scientists.

A Homemade Microphone.

A member of the Chemists' association of London recently described how those who are disposed to amuse themselves in this way can make an instrument which will render audible the footsteps of a fly. The little apparatus consists of a box with a sheet of straw paper stretched on its upper part. Two cashpins, separated by a morsel of wood and connected with the two circuit wires, are fastened to it, and a carbon pencil, placed crosswise between the two, is kept in this position by a groove made in the latter. A very weak battery is then sufficient to set the instrument at work, and when the fly walks over the sheet of paper it produces vibrations strong enough to react energetically on an ordinary telephone.

Phospho boric glass for microscopes is a new kind of optical glass, which contains phosphoric acid and boracic acid, and is designed especially for the construction of object glasses. According to The Photographic News, it is asserted that by means of this new glass, lately produced in Germany, an object possessing no more than the ordinary 1-800th part of a millimeter can be distinctly recognized.

CURIOSITY SHOP

A FAIRY TALE OF SCIENCE.

The Originator of the Deadly Upas Tree of Java and Other Fanciful Inventions.

Perhaps the deftest artist in this department of fabrication was George Stevens, the Shakespearean commentator, says The Nineteenth Century. Animated by an impish spirit of mischief, to which jealousy of rival antiquaries may have lent a spice of malice, he industriously devised cunning snares for their feet. He would, for example, disseminate fictitious illustrations of Shakespeare's text in order that Malone, who was his chief butt, might be entrapped into adopting them and give him the gratification of correcting the blunder in his next edition. Under the pseudonyms of Collins and Amner he would insert paragraphs in the daily press purporting to be curious extracts from rare books, copies of which no one who wished to verify the passages ever succeeded in discovering. Among these curiosities was the romantic story (that has found its way into Todd's "Life of Milton") of the poet's having been seen asleep under a tree by a lady who beguiled some moments of his beauty and placed in his hand some impassioned verses of Guarini, which, when he awoke, so fired his fancy that he made a journey to Italy in the hope of tracing her. Another was the story of the deadly upas tree of Java, which long obtained credit as one of the fairy tales of science.

Incident in the Life of Jenny Lind.

It was the grandmother who was the first to detect the musical gifts of the child, and this detection led a profound impression on the child herself, as if she, too, then first made a discovery of what was in her. The story formed her earliest distinct memory. Coming from the country to the town she was struck by the music of the military bugles that daily passed through the street; and one day, when she fancied herself alone in the house, she crept to the piano on which her half sister used to practice her music, and, with one finger, strummed out for herself the fanfare which she had caught from the soldiers. But the grandmother was at hand, and hearing the music called out the name of the half sister, whom she supposed it to be, and little Jenny, in terror of being found out, hid under the square piano; she was so small that she fitted in perfectly, and the grandmother, getting no answer to her calls, came in to look and presently discovered her, and dragged her out and was astonished and said, "Child, was that you?" And many, in after years, have confessed; but the grandmother looked at her deeply and in silence, and when the mother came back she told her (and it made "Mad" words, the child will bring you help." And after that the neighbors used to be called in to hear her play. As she told the story in after years she would reproduce most vividly the frightened look of the child creeping away to hide, and the significant look of the thunderstruck grandmother as she took in that it was "Mad" words, the child will bring you help." And after that the neighbors used to be called in to hear her play. As she told the story in after years she would reproduce most vividly the frightened look of the child creeping away to hide, and the significant look of the thunderstruck grandmother as she took in that it was "Mad" the tiny creature of three years old who had played the tune. She never forgot the historic fanfare.

A Will in the Pulpit.

The dignified Paley, preaching to a select audience which numbered Pitt, the prime minister, and a host of eager place hunters hungry for the loaves and fishes of preferment, could not resist an irresistible temptation of playing at his audience, and after giving out his text, "There is a lad here that hath five barley loaves and two small fishes," he looked around the church and added with a twinkle of his humorous eye, "but what are they among so many?" A smart application or a brisk repartee in the pulpit seem to have found their apologists in all ages. Barrow, the mathematician of Norwich, fazed boldly the cant sometimes flung at the superior clergy for enjoying large incomes. "Why, say some of these men, can you not live as the Apostles lived? Why, say I again, let them lay down their goods at the Apostles' feet, and then let them ask that question?" The following application is perhaps a little too sudden and searching for the taste of today. "He," said the preacher of a charity sermon, "he that giveth unto the poor lendeth unto the Lord. Now, my friends, if you are content with your security down with the cash!"

The Hottest Spot on Earth.

The hottest spot on earth is within the boundaries of the United States, according to one who claims to have passed several months in Death valley, located in southeastern California. The highest temperature recorded in the Sahara was 127 degs. Fahrenheit, and from the shores of the Persian gulf comes a record of 138 degs., but in Death valley in July a thermometer placed in the shade registered 130 degs. The world, and doubtless they will find their way before long into commerce. These natural conditions prevent the fall of rain throughout the year, and persons who enter the place have to carry along supplies of water.

Disraeli's Resemblance to Irving.

What was Disraeli like? "The only person whom I ever met with," says Sir William Fraser, "who reminds me in any way of the manner of Disraeli in private life, is Mr. Henry Irving. When a lad, I had the honor of knowing him, I could not persuade myself that he was not imitating Disraeli's manner, the peculiar slowness and deliberation of utterance, a voice very much of the same timbre, and the resemblance in other minute particulars surprised me." But the resemblance does not extend to everything. Mr. Irving, if we mistake not, does not disguise that he is becoming streaked with gray. But "Disraeli's hair and pointed beard were dyed a deep black. This could clearly be seen when from carelessness the dye had not been renewed."

The Biggest Ruby of the World.

The biggest ruby in the world is said to be found in the czar of Russia's crown, which has the distinction of being the finest ever worn by any sovereign. Its shape it resembles a bishop's mitre, and on its crest is a cross composed of five superb diamonds, which support the "biggest" ruby.

A foliated arch, composed of eleven magnificent diamonds, supports this cross, and on each side of the arch is a loop of finest orient pearls, than which there are none handsomer in the world.

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer the superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

ARTISTIC ARRANGEMENTS.

Fancy Candlesticks Festooned with Flowers—A Pink Crepe Shade.

Fancy candlesticks or lamps, festooned with violets, roses or sprays of lilac, tied with satin ribbon, is the latest fashion in table decoration, which is capable of infinite variation, being governed by the hostess' individual taste.

A table festooned in good form is a poetic confusion of porcelain figures and flowers. At the ends and in the center stand rose vases filled with exotic blooms. A little Dresden, or the old Worcester, basket is suspended over the center of the table, and filled with fruit and flowers artistically arranged, has a pretty effect. Decorator and Furnisher, which is authority for the foregoing, tells also of a pretty way to make an inexpensive lamp shade. Take pink chesse cloth, wet it thoroughly, and then, after it has been dashed several times, twist it until it doubles itself up in a knot. Secure it from unwinding, and wipe it dry with a towel and put it away to dry. It will take about ten days to dry it thoroughly, during which time it should not be disturbed. On unrolling the cloth it will be found beautifully crossed, and a lamp shade can be made in the same way as tissue paper, by simply cutting a hole for the chimney in the center of the cloth. The top should have a wire frame, a high rim being and a broad satin ribbon of exactly the same shade fastening it. A fringe of soft lace makes a beautiful trimming, and the whole at the top is also improved by a lace edging.

Preserving Cut Flowers.

A bouquet or cluster of flowers arranged according to the following directions is a very beautiful object, and it is said that the flowers will keep fresh a long time: Attach a weighted base to the bouquet by which it can be held in an upright position when placed upon a plate or shallow dish. Sink the dish in a deep pan of pure, fresh water, and arrange the flowers in the position in which they are to remain. Then carefully cover the bouquet with a bell glass which fits closely to the flat part of the dish. The glass should be perfectly filled with the water, thus excluding all air bubbles. Raise the dish from the pan without disturbing the bell glass and place where it will show well upon a table, then carefully wipe the moisture from the exterior, leaving a little water on the dish or plate around the base of the glass. Conceal the edge of the plate by a light wreath, made of moss dotted with small flowers. The effect in the evening, by artificial light, is particularly pleasing.

Household Hints.

The pungent odor of pennyroyal is said to be very disagreeable to ants. If the herbs cannot be obtained get the oil of pennyroyal and use around the places infested by these pests.

Hundred pound flour sacks may be made very useful by the economical housewife. They should be dampened with cold water and put on a flat bench until the letters have disappeared. They make good bread cloths and dish towels.

A cheap varnish to protect iron from rust can be made by adding six ounces of resin to one gallon of gasoline, and by scraping up a small quantity of paraffine and adding to the above the varnish will have more body.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," MONDAY, JULY 13, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

BASE BALL.

THE CRESCENTS AGAIN VICTORIOUS, WINNING SATURDAY'S GAME.

They Defeated the Ridgewoods, of of Brooklyn, by a Score of 8 to 2.—A Very Interesting Game Throughout.—Other Games.

On Decoration Day the Crescents played two games of base ball with the Ridgewoods. Each won one game. Saturday the Ridgewoods again visited Plainfield and crossed bats with the home team. It was thought by a number of people that the home team would be defeated. The visitors put Lauman in the pitcher's box and Fritz in behind the bat. The Crescents put in their own battery, Hammill and Bonner.

The game was an interesting one throughout and several good plays were loudly applauded by the audience.

The visitors started the ball rolling by making two runs, one in the first and one in the second inning. That was all they netted during the entire game.

In the Crescents' half of the second inning Melndoe went to the bat and hit the ball for three bases. It was a fine hit and the crowd showed that it was fine. He succeeded in scoring the first run for the home team. The third inning netted the Crescents three runs. The seventh, one run; and the eighth, three runs.

In the eighth inning Fritz hit a long "fly" out to left field. Bonner ran for it and caught it just before it struck the ground. The wind is known to send such circles as a "circus catch." He was loudly applauded. He then went to the bat and hit the ball for two bases.

Covey, the new short stop for the home team, had been on a visit in Connecticut and was unable to get here in time for the game. Holly played "short" in his place, and did a good deal to the credit that he had not forgotten how to play ball, but in the eighth inning he made a hit and succeeded in getting to first base.

Hammill pitched a very good game. He succeeded in striking out eight of the opposing team. Jones caught to perfection. The visitors only succeeded in making two hits off of Hammill, while Lauman's was but very hard.

The score by inning was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

The Westfield base ball team visited Somerville Saturday afternoon and defeated the West Ends by a score of six to five. During the game McLaughlin, the Crescent player made two home runs and a three base hit. The Westfielders have now won two games from the Somervilles. Next Saturday the West Ends will cross bats with the Crescents.

Robberies in the Borough.

Early Saturday burglars effected an entrance into the grocery store of R. W. Rice & Co., at the corner of Emily and Duer streets. They secured about four dollars in change which had been left in the money drawer. They took drawer and all and threw the former away as soon as they got outside. David J. Carney, while passing, noticed the cash drawer and notified the police.

Some time during Saturday night somesneak thief effected an entrance into the store kept by A. Hebrew on Manning avenue. Only a few articles are missing.

A Point Affecting Administrators.

Edward Sayre having taken out letters of administration on the estate of his brother, Mrs. George T. Sayre, late of Somerville, deceased, giving his brother, Sylvanus R. Sayre, notice, Vice Chancellor Van Fleet recently made a decree in which he held that where there was no husband or widow the next of kin are entitled to administer the estate, and that where one of several apply, the surrogate should not grant the letters until proof is made that ten days' notice was given to the others. The letters of administration were thus revoked.

Gen. Fay Improving.

The report that Gen. J. A. Fay of Elizabeth was dangerously ill is denied by facts. An operation was performed on the patient, which relieved him. Saturday morning it was his desire to walk to business, but his weakened state would not admit. His physicians state that if directions are followed, except the general will be able to be around in a few days.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Marshal Rutledge yesterday arrested Samuel Johnson, colored, for robbery. He is charged with breaking and entering the house of Harvey Richardson on Race street some time Saturday night or Sunday morning. Johnson was given a hearing before Justice Crossley and was committed to the county jail at Somerville to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Another Attempted Robbery.

Some sneak thief effected an entrance into the residence of Mr. C. C. Compton on Duer street by forcing a door on the side of the house. Nothing is missing, however, and it is supposed that the midnight marauder was frightened off before he accomplished his purpose.

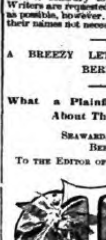
A BREEZY LETTER FROM THE BERMUDAS.

What a Plainfielder Has to Say About These Islands.

SEAWARD, HAMILTON PARISH, BERMUDA, July 3d, 1891.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:



HE Summer is not the best time to come to Bermuda but as we could not come at the best time we did the next best thing. Our month's stay has been very pleasant and with the thermometer ranging about 76 to 78 we have read with equanimity the cabled reports of your 90 degrees and upwards.

That the name used to be "The Bermudas" is explained by their being a number of islands in the group, 365 according to the popular count, but excluding mere rocks there are about 100 islands. The distance from one rock to another is small, some are connected with buoys, some with causeways and between some are short ferries.

The islands and their surrounding coral reefs constitute an "Atoll" for the meaning and formation of which I must refer you to an encyclopedia.

The reefs are quite close to the coral reefs do not extend far from shore, but toward the north they stretch out some nine miles from shore, and for large vessels there is but one channel, narrow and tortuous. The total length of the islands is about 20 miles and in the broadest place about two miles wide.

The hills, rising 200 and 300 feet above tide, are covered mainly with cedar. Between and among the hills are found the little fertile dells and patches, whereof some the onions and potatoes so well known in the New York market in early Spring.

These are Bermuda's staples. Other exports are arrowroot (the trade in which is reviving) and Easter lilies which are grown by the acre and find their best market in New York altho' the bulbs are shipped also to England and the Continent of Europe.

In sheltered places are various semi-tropical trees and shrubs; palms, palmettos, orange, lemon, coffee, calabash, bamboo—which with the frequent patches of bananas and plantains, the bright hued birds, the yellow-flowered cactus growing wild and the abundant oleanders with their luxuriant wealth of blossoms give a pleasant foreign air to the scenery along the numerous, excellent and picturesque roads.

A striking peculiarity of the road is that they are cut out of the native rock, which is soft enough to be sawn. The country is hilly and, as much attention has been given to reducing the grades, it frequently happens that the road runs now through a vertical cutting in the yellow-ish white rock turned gray by exposure, and now traverses a little valley on a causeway built up and walled with the same gray stone, making a pleasant relief to the overhanging bushes of lantana and oleander, gay with their Summer blossoms.

To build a house here you saw your cellar out of the rock, and with the stone blocks build your house; the native limestone burned makes excellent mortar and also a white cement which is well laid on over walls inside and out and over the stone slabs that form the roof. Then all is whitewashed within and without. Consequently the houses fairly shine, so brilliantly white is every part of the exterior except the cedar shingles.

Flower gardens abound, and I don't think there is an inhabited cottage however humble that has not some bright flowers about it, roses and scarlet geraniums prevailing, but often in company with lilies, trumpet vines, morning glories and the splendid hibiscus.

Of wild flowers we have not found the profusion one would expect, always excepting the bright hued lantana along the roadsides and the ubiquitous oleanders.

But the charm of all is the sea. The land is so narrow that one cannot go far in any direction without a seaview, and whether it be a glassy cave whose rocks the lapping waves have carved into arches and pillows and little caves, the white sand of its floor gleaming through its perfectly translucent water, or whether it be the placid sheen of a broad sound dotted with islets and bounded by towering gray cliffs crowned with cedars, or the wider reaches of the reef bound lagoon or the open sea beyond, all are indescribably beautiful. Colors of the emerald, sapphire, turquoise are rivalled and surpassed and the multitude of shades and combinations of these defy description.

Population, A. D., 1881, amounted to 14,000 civilians of whom 5,500 are white 8,500 colored.

In addition there is the naval and military garrisons which vary from time to time. The government consists of governor and commander in chief of the forces, who is appointed by the British government. A Council of 10 appointed for life, by the governor; and the House of Assembly, composed of 36 delegates, elected 4 by each of the 9 parishes. The property qualification for a voter is £300 freehold land, which excludes all or nearly all the colored population.

The judiciary department is represented by the chief justice appointed by the British government and there are some police justices, and a few policemen.

Education is compulsory. A fee is exacted from each child attending public school, except in case of indigence, when the fee is waived.

As the color-line is quite well marked it results that the public schools are used almost exclusively by colored children.

Slave emancipation was effected here in 1834. The colored people are extremely polite and well mannered, but it is said they are not industrious or provident. They are in a majority but have no political weight, owing to the property qualification and the inhabitants I have heard express themselves on the subject are unanimous against allowing them any share in the government. They seem however, to be comfortable, and to all appearances contented.

As your readers on the dockyard here contains a floating drydock—the largest in the world—capacious enough to receive the largest iron clad afloat.

It is to protect this dockyard, floating dock and coaling station that the British Government keeps up a force of fortifying this little colony. Many of the commanding points are capped with powerful forts and batteries and substantial military garrisons are maintained.

It is this which renders the Governor-general (with the approval of the home government) opposed to allowing aliens to hold real estate here, even though they be willing to take the oath of allegiance, and the inhabitants are discouraged, as owing to the recent increase of Winter visitors from the States there was every prospect of a good deal of American capital being invested here in land, but, for the present, this is checked.

The rush for United States visitors comes from December to May inclusive and during these months the climate is delightful. After May, although there is no excessive heat the humidity is oppressive, and unless the wind is in the North the visitor is apt to think it hotter than it really is.

In spite of its abundant opportunities the town of Hamilton has no facilities for out door bathing either for ladies or gentlemen.

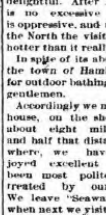
Accordingly we moved to this pleasure house, on the shores of Bailey's Bay, about eight miles from Hamilton and half that distance from St. George, where we have not only enjoyed excellent bathing, but have been most politely and hospitably treated by our host, Mr. Seon. We leave "Seaward" with regret and when next we visit Bermuda we hope to renew our pleasant acquaintance with its courteous inmates.

PUTNAM AVENUE.

A GIRL'S BRIGHT THOUGHT.

A Good Suggestion for a Healthy and Novel way to Spend a Vacation.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:



YOUNG LADY of Bayside, L. I., one day had a particularly bright thought, and, being energetic and practical she immediately made plans for putting it into execution. First enlisting her father in the cause, as he was a very important part of the plan.

When the idea was unfolded to her family it was received first with merriment and then treated with derision, neither of which had the slightest effect upon the enthusiast, who calmly proceeded to invite a favored few of her friends to go on a pedestrian tour through the Berkshire Hills. The plan which was faithfully carried out was as follows: The invitations were limited fourteen people (among whom were a musican, a minister, a doctor and several aspiring artists) each person was made a member of a committee, such as camping, cooking, packing, etc., and each one was requested to keep a journal for one day which was handed to the commander-in-chief at the end of the trip when all were to be type-written and each member presented with a copy of the journals combined.

A large wagon was provided to carry clothing, provisions, etc., and formed at night sleeping quarters for the ladies. The men were furnished with a tent.

The route was from New York City to Troy by boat, East by wagon for two rainy days to Vermont, through a small corner of that State into Williamstown, Mass., from there a climb of eight miles straight up to Mt. Greylock, the highest point of the Berkshire Hills, three thousand four hundred and thirty five feet high, down again to North Adams, through Pittsfield, Lennox and Stockbridge, back to New York State to Catskill and from there by boat to New York City.

The country was beautiful, the party congenial, and the trip delightful in every particular, reflecting great credit upon its organizers and promotors.

The fact that the party created a sensation in every town they passed through taken now for gypsies and again for a travelling show—did not detract from the enjoyment of the occasion, but rather heightened it than otherwise, and the trampers finally went by the name of the Greatest Show on Earth.

It mattered little to them what they were called, when after a hot supper served in the open air they gathered around the great blazing camp-fire, in front of the tent, at night, related the incidents of the day, told ghost stories and ended the evening with college songs.

There are fascinations about this kind of a life that cannot be described. Try it, ye nature lovers, and be rewarded by health, pleasant memories and a good shade of tan.—ONE OF THEM.

A Plainfielder, whose communication appears above was among this pleasant party. The North Adams (Mass) Transcript has the following to say of it:

TOURISTS ON GREYLOCK.

THE FIRST RELIGIOUS SERVICE THERE.—A NOVEL MODE OF TRAVELING

A lively pedestrian party of 12 people from Bayside, L. I., and Newport, R. I., spent Sunday and Monday on the top of Greylock mountain at the hospitable cabin of Mr. Seymour. At 11.30 o'clock Sunday morning they held the first religious service ever held on Greylock. The preaching was by one of the party, a young minister, and singing was led by the organ, violin and banjo. The pulpit used on this occasion, was, to say the least, unusual, as it was no more nor less than a pine box turned endwise. The preacher was attired in a comically unconventional, a corduroy knickerbocker suit. The party was organized by R. C. Weeks and his daughter, Miss Grace Weeks. The other names are as follows: A. C. Martin, Miss Margaret Martin, Dr. Martin, Miss Josephine Weeks, Miss Weeks, Miss Harriet Le Poy, Miss Tarbox, Miss Mary Stebbins, H. T. Weeks and Miss Prescott, Miss Clementine Butler.

The party left Lenox in canvas-covered wagon which is drawn by four horses. The wagon is ten feet wide and, with the team, makes a front of 14 feet, which by means the largest that was ever on Greylock. Each member of the party carries some kind of a musical instrument and altogether they form quite a band. Mem[illegible] the party were in this vicinity Tuesday and purchased $20 worth of groceries. The travelers expect to stay on Greylock till Thursday, when they will depart for Pittsfield, Lenox and other parts of the country.

A War Relic.

At the close of the war, Mr. Junis J. Carey, when mustered out went to Warrenville, N. J., and engaged in the carting business. He rode horse-back considerably, and used an army saddle he had had all through the war. Later the saddle was mislaid and Mr. Carey removing to Plainfield gave it up as lost.

A few weeks ago Dr. Pearson was visited by his nephew, the son of Mr. Pearson, the well-known carpenter, of the firm of Pearson & Gale. The boy while hunting around the out buildings of his uncle's home found stowed away on one of the rafters a dust-covered, decaying saddle. The stirrup-straps had rotted away and the stirrups fallen to the floor, where they were found under a mild heaps.

Upon the saddle-flap there was cut, evidently with a sharp knife, the following:

TUNIS J. CAREY'S SAD.
WAGON MASTER
IN THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.
JAN. 1865.

Mr. Pearson to-day returned the long lost war-relic to its owner, who was delighted to receive it.

The abbreviation "sad." is meant for saddle.

Mail Trains Cannot be Detained.

John Fitzpatrick, captain of the brick schooner Silas W. Peck, who was arrested April 23d, for making his schooner tack so that draw-bridge of the Lackawanna Railroad over the Hackensack river, thereby delaying several mail-trains over an hour, had a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Romaine, in Jersey City, last week, and was held to await the action of the U. S. Grand Jury. He claimed the company should have furnished him with a tug, as he could not manage the vessel against the wind. Assistant Superintendent Griffith testified that he was willing to have furnished the tug-boat, and that when the skipper threatened to shoot anybody who ventured to cut the schooner adrift, and refused to allow anybody to approach within fifty feet of the Peck.

Mrs. Tappen Says She Did Not Elope.

Mrs. George Tappen, wife of the South Plainfield butcher who was accused of having eloped with Minister Comer, asserted yesterday that she knew nothing of the matter until after they were gone. She left home, she said, because of bad treatment by her husband. Years ago, she said, she had applied for a divorce and her husband deeded the farm to her. Since that time he has been very lazy towards her and frequently made false charges against her.

A Dastardly Outrage.

Rev. A. C. Dill of Sterling, writing in reference to the statement that his horse was painted red, white and blue while under the parsonage, says: "I have seen that libelle is corrected. My horse was stolen at night from the stables of Wm. Compton, and painted red, white and blue, head and body, even in the eye, and left tied in the woods where he might have been accidentally if not found. The brutes who did it should have been hunted down and sent to the State prison.

—"Vacation" season is at hand and all who are arranging to go away are invited in Edsall's new advertisement to call at his establishment, where a complete assortment of articles for this purpose can be found.

Colored Statistics Again.

The latest one of President Francis A. Walker's admirable articles on the census is published in The Forum, and deals with the somewhat knotty problem of the colored population. To begin, it is to be recalled that the colored census of 1870 was defective, and that a large number of blacks were not included in the count at all. The deficiency was corrected in 1880, and the blacks who had been left out were counted, together with their natural increase. This made the colored race in the Union assume abnormally great proportions. There was a cry of alarm that the negro should outstrip the white in increase and take the country. General Walker quotes from a political campaign speech made two years ago in which the statement was made that the negroes of America would in a comparatively short time amount to 50,000,000.

They will never reach that number, according to General Walker. They are an anomaly and an artificial product in this country in the first place. They were by right here by force; they were taken here and there by their masters to climates in every way unsuited to them, and then were forced into unnatural conditions of many kinds by slavery. Now that slavery has ceased, it is found that the negro seems naturally to be sliding down into the lower gulf region as the country most like his own and the land where he thrives best. This has made an increase of the negro population in the lowland cotton belt which is not sustained elsewhere.

It is in the lowland cotton belt that General Walker predicts the increase of the negro will take place, if at all. And it will never assume, cannot assume the proportions predicted by alarmists. If the birth rate of the black race is high, the death rate is correspondingly so, to such an extent that the real increase of this race is not large. In 1790 the blacks constituted nearly one-fifth of the total population of the Union. In 1840 they were only one-sixth. In 1860 they were one-seventh, while in 1890 they are less than one-eighth. In the century beginning *with 1790 the white race has in*creased sixteenfold, the black only tenfold. There are at present about 7,500,000 persons with African blood in their veins in this country.

Canada imports still $2,000,000 worth of hog meats from the United States. From 1885 to 1889 the exports of butter from the United States to Canada more than doubled, amounting in 1889 to $143,000. But the rest of the story is that not one pound of this butter was consumed in Canada. Canadians would not touch Yankee butter for home consumption. The butter was relabeled *and shipped across to Europe as a Cana*dian product. But the importation of cheese to Canada from the United States is reported diminishing at last accounts. The reason is that United States cheese has obtained a very bad name in Canada and Europe, from which it will take some years to recover. The bad name was partly deserved, too; more's the pity.

A new electrical carriage, one that will go this time, is claimed to have been invented by an Indiana man. It will run on the stored accumulator plan, and will be so cheap, the supply of generating material can be renewed so easily, and the machinery itself will be of such light weight that we may expect to see electricity gradually take the place of the faithful, long suffering horse. The machine can be used for any vehicle, from a heavy road wagon to the lightest pleasure carriage. If it is only a sure enough go this time, if the streets really are to be freed from horses, the increase in health and happiness to the dwellers in cities will be immeasurable.

The final treaty of the European Customs league will be signed at Berne, Switzerland, July 20. Under the terms of this agreement none of the four contracting nations—Germany, Austro-Hungary, Italy and Switzerland—can form a commercial treaty with any other nation without consulting all the rest. Thus Italy cannot admit American pork without permission from its bitterest enemy, Germany. Of course all nations outside of the league, and particularly the United States, will be affected by this treaty.

July 1 the McKinley law went into effect on tin plate. Previous to July 1 the duty on tin plate was $1 a hundred pounds. It is now $2.20 a hundred pounds. Tin plates imported before July 1 will therefore get the benefit of the increased price without paying the duty. In anticipation of this the tin importing trade was lively just previous to July 1. Just at the close of June 3,300,000 pounds were landed in New York from Europe in one day.

"It is the general opinion of shrewd business men that the man who expects to get one dollar's worth of goods for less than 100 cents deserves to be and is quite likely to be disappointed," says The Rural New Yorker.

LOST OFF LONG BEACH.

Frightful Explosion on Board a Naphtha Launch.

EIGHT PEOPLE REPORTED DEAD

Diamond Merchant Dennis and His Family, of Brooklyn, Are Supposed to Be the Victims of the Accident—One of the Party Rescued by New Yorkers.

NEW YORK, July 13.—A yachting party composed of a number of New Yorkers left Brooklyn at 7 a. m. yesterday. They were on board the steam launch Agnes Dean. Among those in the party were William Veoth, of 784 Eighth avenue; M. Sheehan, of 800 Eighth avenue, and M. Bremer, who lives on Twelfth street, near Eighth avenue. Before they got through with their day they had some exciting adventures. It was along about 2 o'clock in the afternoon when one of the party noticed a man clinging to a buoy bobbing up and down in the water off toward Coney island.

The buoy is a great distance from Coney Island, and they all wondered how the man could have got there.

They lowered a small boat at once, intending to go and rescue him. A heavy sea was running and the small boat was turned over in a jiffy. Then they lowered another boat. They managed this one better and Veoth, Sheehan and Bremer got into it. With great difficulty they rowed over to the buoy. With still greater difficulty they contrived to get the man from his precarious resting place and safe into their boat.

The waves were running fiercely, and they had a hard time to prevent being overturned while near the buoy. It took two hours and a half for them to get to the man and bring him off.

Captain White's Story.

The rescued man said that he was Captain White, of East Rockaway. He had been on the Ethel, a naphtha launch.

This launch had been chartered by Mr. Dennis, a retired diamond merchant of Brooklyn. A party had started on board early in the morning from Rockaway for a day's outing.

The Ethel had cruised about until it reached a point some way out from the shore off Long Beach. Then, White said, a terrible explosion occurred. It seemed as if all the bottom of the boat was suddenly lifted up and blown into the air. Every person on board was hurled into the water. The sank with the most.

Not a Body in Sight.

When he came to the surface he saw nothing but wreckage. There was not a body in sight. He could not reach anything on which to float, and he made up his mind that he would have to give up his fight there and then. Just as he was about to do so he caught a momentary high wave he caught a glimpse of a buoy in the distance.

He resolved to me that this buoy was about four miles away; but there was nothing else to do but to make the attempt, so I struck out.

Black Blue and Burned.

"I swam for what seemed an age and at length I got to the buoy. I was almost completely worn out when I got there. It was bobbing fiercely and I had a hard time to hold on. The waves rolled over me every minute. I saw several ships and steamers pass, but no one noticed me until the Agnes Dean came along and sent the boat after me."

White's body is not only sunburned where the sun had a chance to get at it, but is black and blue in many places. Some of these black and blue marks may be due to the force of the explosion. Very likely others are due to the pounding he received both from the boat and the waves. Veoth and his two companions took White in their small boat to shore. Veoth then came back to fill a city.

Up to a late hour last night he had not heard of the others of his party on the Agnes Dean. He was fearful that they would have met with some accident after he and Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Bremer left them to rescue the man on the buoy.

"If it be true that this was a naphtha launch, it is not the first time that there has been a serious accident due to the use of naphtha. It is only a little while since the launch Ida built for Jay Gould that was at the time the largest naphtha launch. He had it sent up to Seneca lake, and while cruising there with a party of friends it blew up." Mr. Gould broke one of the oar locks. The boat slowed around, was struck by a steamboat and upset and the three thrown into the water. Mr. Carpenter caught the rudder of the steamer and was saved, but his wife and son sank.

HIS LIFE FOR HIS CHILD.

Tragic End of Superintendent P. W. Barney at Lake George.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 13.—P. W. Barney, superintendent of the Lake George and Lake Champlain Transportation company, lost his life near the Kenesaw Fourteen-Mile island on Lake George, Sunday.

In the afternoon, while Mr. Barney and his boy were on the lake, the little fellow lost his footing, and with a cry of "Father, save me!" on his lips, pitched into the water. The father threw himself head first into the lake, grasped the boy, and with the lad still in his arms, was drawn ashore by two men who chanced to witness the accident.

A glance sufficed to tell the story. The forehead of the superintendent had been crushed in by a projection of rock which he must have struck under water. A physician was called as quickly as possible, but Mr. Barney was dead. Mrs. Barney is heartbroken and as yet hardly realizes the rescue of Eugene followed so quickly by the sudden death of her husband. The body was taken aboard the steamer Horicon and brought to the foot of the lake. A special car was put on the steamer at Baldwin and tonight the steamer Chateaugay will arrive at Fort Ticonderoga on Lake Champlain and take the body to Burlington, Vt. Flags are half mast all along Lake George, and from Fort Ticonderoga to Burlington on Lake Champlain.

The animal was chained to a dog house on the premises of Warren Woodruff, and the child began to pat him on the head. The dog buried his teeth in the shoulder, lacerating the flesh in a horrible manner. Dr. Graves was summoned and he cauterized the wound. The child will probably be sent to the Pasteur institute.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 13.—An audience of two thousand filled the Asbury Park auditorium Sunday afternoon to hear Rev. Sam W. Small, the noted evangelist. Dr. Small's address was a bitter arraignment of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, or "Robert Le Diable," as he termed him. He said the Bible would not be overthrown although Colonel Ingersoll does not believe in it.

SCALDED BY THE STEAM

Carelessness Causes a Terrible Wreck Near Aspen.

SEVEN PASSENGERS ARE DEAD.

Hot Water and Clouds of Deadly Vapor Pour Upon the Helpless Wretches in a Crowded Coach—Only Three Out of Twenty-five Escape Injury.

ASPEN, Colo., July 13.—An engineer's carelessness, a crash of colliding trains, the bliss of scalding steam, the shrieks of men, women and children in awful agony is a brief outline of the horrible accident that occurred at Aspen Junction at 12 m. and made many a happy home resound with wailing. The collision occurred between a mixed train locomotive and the hind coach of an excursion train running between Aspen and Glenwood Spring. Engineer Switzer, of the excursion train, had run his train up to the water tank at the junction for water. When backing down to get on the train track a light engine shot out from the coal chutes, which are located in such a way as to conceal the coal chute tracks from view of the tracks leading to the water tank.

His Deadly Mistake.

The engineer on the light engine, thinking he could get out before the excursion train took the main track, made the attempt, but struck the rear coach of the excursion train at the switch. The force of the collision tore the check valve from the engine and poured scalding steam and water into the wrecked coach full of passengers. Then epsued a scene of terror impossible to describe. The passengers were at the mercy of the fierce, scorching monster at their side. Through the broken valve torrents of scalding steam and water poured out upon the helpless victims.

Seven Are Dead.

Many of them were penned down by the debris and were horribly scalded. Two persons were almost instantly killed, five were fatally and six severely injured. Five more have since died and a sixth cannot live. The dead are:

Miss Annie Phelan, Cardiff.
Mrs. Frank Ellis, Aspen.
Mrs. J. C. Baldwin, Aspen.
Mrs. W. L. Willoughby, Glenwood.
Mr. A. B. Rogers, Woody.
Mrs. A. B. Rogers, Woody.
Child of Frank Ellis, Aspen.

Fearfully Scalded and Burned.

Of the twenty-five passengers in the car three colored men who were in the forward compartment were the only ones uninjured. Conductor Miller with the train crew and the uninjured passengers immediately began the work of rescue. A two-year-old child of Mr. Frank Ellis, of Aspen, was taken out dead. Miss Annie Phelan, of Cardiff, died ten minutes after being rescued. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ellis, Thomas O'Donnell, Miss Mary O'Donnell, James Leach, all of Aspen. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rogers, of Woody, Colo.; Mrs. J. C. Baldwin, of Glenwood, and Mrs. W. L. Willoughby, of Glenwood, were fearfully scalded and burned. The injured and dead were placed in the baggage car and brought to this city where all the physicians were in attendance. The victims' cries of agony were heartrending, and their scalded faces and arms and bodies a sight to bring tears of pity. In spite of all efforts to save their lives, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Willoughby died within two hours from the time of the wreck; Mrs. Rogers died at 4 a. m. and her husband at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Willoughby died at 8 o'clock by were the most frightfully burned. The latter begged piteously to be kept alive until her husband could reach her. Of those still living, Miss Mary O'Donnell will die.

Ghouls Robbed the Dying.

While the injured people were at Aspen Junction the person of Mrs. A. B. Rogers, who was then dying, was robbed of a gold watch and chain and also $120 in money. Other robberies are reported. With a warrant sworn out by A. M. Hoffer before Judge Prettiss, Marshal Andy Sutton went to Aspen Junction and arrested J. G. Kuhn, cook of the railroad eating-house, charging him with the robbery. Marshal Sutton now has his prisoner in the county jail. He disclaims all knowledge of the money, but says that he was requested by Mrs. Rogers to take her pocketbook from he dress and hand it to some one standing near, whom she recognized as a friend. He did so, but claims he did this. He turned the watch and some other trinkets over to the proprietor of the hotel, and disclaims all intention of robbery.

Sunday divine service was held on the bluff back of "Luxury row." Rev. Roderick Terry preached an able sermon on the building up of a Christian character. There was singing by a choir of male voices from the several companies.

AGAINST THE ALLIANCE SCHEME.

The Sub-Treasury Idea Opposed by Members in Texas.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 13.—The following resolutions having a national bearing have been adopted by the Anti-Sub-Treasury State convention of the Farmers' Alliance:

Resolved, That we denounce sub-treasury and land loan schemes and governmental ownership of railroads as a violation of the first principles of good government as paternal in their character, as centralizing in their tendencies, and if enacted into the law they would create such a horde of national officeholders as would fasten the clutches of the party in power upon the throats of the people so strongly that the voices of the honest patriotic citizens would no longer be heard in the control of government affairs. We demand that laws men who are not farmers be removed from the national and state offices of our order and that only such be those who have their interest in farming so allowed to fill such places. We now appeal to all honest members of the Alliance throughout the United States to unite with us in putting down this common enemy and disgrace of our order. To this end we most earnestly recommend the brother Alliance men of the United States to meet in national convention at St. Louis on the fourth Tuesday of September, 1891.

Resolved, That we most heartily indorse the course of Hon. M. S. Hall, pre ident of the State Alliance of Texas, in refusing to concur in the action on the case of C. W. McCune at Ocala, in opposition to the sub-treasury scheme, etc. We sincerely regret that any member of the order and manly effort to rid the order, both state and n ational, of all shackles which will retard its strength for ultimate success.

To Fight Senator Hiscock.

FRANKLINVILLE, N. Y., July 13.—At the mass meeting of the State Farmers' Alliance at Lime Lake grove over 1,500 people were present. Prominent State Alliance men present were President Arnold, of Arcade; S. H. Venner, of East Aurora; Charles Moore, of Canistota; Frank P. Bartlett, state lecturer. The speakers were National President L. L. Polk, Ralph Beaumont and E. F. Dibble.

Mr. Polk contrasted the prosperity of the farmer and the toiler with the country, declaring that the unfavorable conditions was not due to the laziness or extravagance of the farming class. The statement was made that a business like farming could be found at the plow in the Alliance states who could better cope with the economic questions of the day than the average men of congress. A resolution was then adopted in regard to the return of Hon. Frank Hiscock to the United States senate.

A DESERTED WIFE'S REVENGE.

MILWAUKEE, July 13.—After following her runaway husband all the way from Denmark Mrs. Christian Jensen had the satisfaction of finding him in Encinitas, Cal., together with the girl who had won him away from her. Two years ago Jensen, who is now thirty-five years of age, deserted his wife and five children and disappeared from his native town in Denmark together with Josephine Thompson, then a maiden of nineteen years. In the old country Jensen appeared a small fortune through his invention of a knitting machine, and left his wife in comfortable circumstances.

Immediately following her husband's disappearance Mrs. Jensen engaged detectives to trace him, and after nearly two years he was located in Chicago. As soon as she learned of his whereabouts Mrs. Jensen started, together with her five children, from Denmark for Chicago. In some way Jensen learned of her coming and last Monday he left Chicago. Through the Chicago police she located him here. There was a lively scene when the husband and wife met, but after all, but it could be could no more live with his wife again.

Richmond to Get Davis' Body.

RICHMOND, Va., July 13.—To say that the people of Richmond are gratified by the decision of Mrs. Davis, to make this city the final resting place of the remains of her husband but freely expressed the feeling here. Mayor Daniel, an ex-Confederate officer, said: "The friendly contest between Mississippi and Virginia has been decided in our favor by Mrs. Davis. Let us all now, from the Potomac to Rio Grande and from the Ohio river to the Gulf of Mexico, act together as one to collect the necessary funds to rear a monument here worthy of the Southern leader."

Another Cavein at Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, July 13.—The old slope of the Kingston Coal company, near Larksville, caved in about 11 a. m. The cavein was caused by the stopping of the old timbers in the slope directly under the fanhouse, where the surface sank so suddenly that the walls of the air lifted the roof off the fanhouse. A number of houses in the vicinity were damaged. A dozen men were at work in the mines at the time, but they all escaped.

MEXICO'S MONSTROSITY.

It Is an Infant Girl with Two Faces.

THE MOTHER DESERTS HER CHILD.

One of the Freak's Faces Is Upon the Thigh and the Eyes Will Open—She Has Two Sets of Teeth and Is a Truly Remarkable Object.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Accounts of a most remarkable freak of nature were brought to New York yesterday by Mexican newspapers. The phenomenon consists of a little girl who is formed in the usual way, except that a second face has made its appearance on one of her thighs. The case promises to be one of the most notable in the annals of medical science, and the little girl will probably become the object of negotiations on the part of enterprising circus museum managers the world over. She has already begun to excite great interest and considerable comment in the State of Michoacan, Mexico, in which she lives, and she was recently removed from Charo, her native place, to Morelia, the capital of Michoacan.

The Eyes Will Open.

La Voz de la Justicia of Aguascalientes, the capital of the state of the same name, to its issue of June 25 contains this brief but rather startling paragraph: "Within the last few days there has been brought from Charo to Morelia a little girl who has a face on her right hip. If you compress the cheeks of this face it opens the eyes. The face has three teeth, but the nose is missing. She is about five years of age and is the daughter of a native of Charo."

A much more satisfactory account, slightly differing in one or two details, is given in the Daily Mensajero, of Vera Cruz, the principal newspaper of that city, which takes its account from La Gaceta of Michoacan: "In the photographic study of the school of arts, of this city," says the editor of La Gaceta, "we had the opportunity of seeing with our own eyes that now celebrated girl who 'possesses what is termed in medical science a congenital cyst, and which has resulted in the formation of a second face in the region of the thighs.

"The little girl is an innocent creature, scarcely three years of age. Her countenance is a sympathetic one, and in nothing would lead you to suspect the existence of that terrible defect in her organization which, among all born creatures, makes her one of the rarest beings.

Abandoned by Its Mother.

"She is the daughter of a second marriage, and answers to the name of Estanislao Alechi. She was born in Charo, and a few days after her birth her mother abandoned her on account of her deformity.

"When she had been in the world about two years an inflammation of the whole left region of the thigh set in and finally developed into a monstrous cyst. Then by degrees there appeared a rudimentary eye, then an eyebrow, one wing of the nose, curly eyelashes and finally the other brow.

"Next appeared one row of four teeth, a slight cavity of bone, which may be termed the end of the forehead, and other details which constitute the rudiments of a human face, with a ghastly aspect.

For a New Baptism.

"This accumulation of ugliness in one of the most singular of human faces that we have ever seen ends in a sort of nipple, probably the rudimentary part of some upper or lower limb of the being who must have been thus amalgamated with the unfortunate Estanislao, who, in view of her good health at present says would seem to be the least likely to be visited by so lamentable a misfortune.

"The good people who have reared the little one, upon this strange appearance of what seemed to indicate a new being, sought their bishop, in their guileless innocence, to learn if a new baptism was necessary.

"The cyst of the little one is about fifteen centimeters in circumference, and produces on all who look upon it the singular effect of the monstrous face of a Pierrot who laughs scoffingly at all who confront him."

The Trial of Young Haines.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Great interest is felt here in the case of young Thornton Haines, whose trial for the killing of Edward Hannegan begins at Hampton, Va., next Wednesday. A boatman says both Haines and Hannegan had pistols on John Paul Jones' yacht, which the young men used on this eventful trip. Haines says he accidentally in self defense, and the negro witness to the affair reaffirms that Haines Hannegan raise his oar to strike Haines before the shot was fired.

Five Bullets for His Brother.

BUTLER, Pa., July 13.—Adam Minniger fired five bullets into the body of his brother John in Jefferson township, fatally wounding him. Bad blood has existed between the brothers for some time. Last night John drove to Adam's barn to feed his horse. Adam refused him permission to do so. John then insulted Adam's wife and advanced toward his brother in a threatening manner when Adam fired.

Fled the Gun to a Bedpost.

DUBUQUE, Ia., July 13.—Ben Markey, of this city, shot himself with suicidal intent and will die. He tied the stock of a shotgun to a bedpost and then placed a string around the trigger in such a manner that when he pulled on it the gun was discharged, sending the entire load of shot into his left breast.

No Hope of Corn from Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—Reports from official sources on the prospects of the coming harvest are such as to dissipate all hopes of the exportation of grain from Russia. The purchase of foreign corn for Russian consumption is inevitable.

Thirty-one Horses Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—The large brick livery stable belonging to Samuel Lugbery, on Harvey street, Germantown, was burned early in the morning. Thirty-one horses perished in the flames. Loss, $24,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—Mr. Lacey, the controller of the currency, has received the report of Hon. Robert M. Yardley, receiver of the Keystone National bank of Philadelphia, showing the condition of the bank at the date of its suspension. Briggs Imperiled the Endowment.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Eight hundred theological students, nearly the entire endowment of Union Theological seminary, is in jeopardy because of the action of the seminary's directors in the Dr. Briggs controversy. In the Briggs case this compact, it is said, was disregarded by the seminary directors. Hence the impending financial trouble.

PASSED FROM THE STAGE OF LIFE.

Two Famous Actors, Charles Fisher and Harry Edwards, Recently Deceased.

For many years no name has been better known among the old school actors of New York than Henry Edwards. Recently he had not played parts of great prominence, but he was one of the few men whom the public would have hailed with delight in any role however small. June 9 he died.

HARRY EDWARDS.

He was born at Ross, Wales, Sept. 3, 1824. His youth was devoted to study of the law, but he afterward turned to science and the arts. His first appearance on the stage was made in Australia. From there he went to San Francisco, where he was not only admired as an actor, but loved as a man. In 1879 he joined Lester Wallack's famous company in New York and remained a member of it until 1887, when it disbanded. Another trip to Australia followed. Last year he returned to New York and became a member of Augustine Daly's stock company. Of him William Winter wrote in The Tribune:

"That he did not make a greater impression upon his time is due to his modesty, his reticence, and the indolence of a dreaming and drifting temperament. He never thought of himself first; he never thought highly of himself at all. He was one of the kindest and simplest of men in every relation of life, and one of the finest gentlemen that ever trod the stage."

He was an accomplished entomologist, and his collection of insects—especially butterflies—is said to be the finest in the United States.

On the day that the simple ceremonies for which Harry Edwards had expressed a wish were celebrated over his grave, another and equally well known actor was summoned from earth in Charles Fisher. Like Edwards, Mr. Fisher was a player of old men parts, and had been on the stage so long, had done such conscientious and artistic work and was such a kindly, gentle character, that even those who had merely seen him on the stage were possessed of a real affection for him.

He was an Englishman by birth. His debut was made in 1844. At the time of his death he was seventy-five years old.

He appeared in more than 100 different roles before the New York public.

The Yacht Ametia.

Yachting on the great lakes is enjoying a boom at present. The first cruise for the club pennant of the Rochester Yacht club occurred May 31, from Charlotte harbor to Sodus bay, a distance of about thirty-two miles. The following named yachts competed: Onward, Ripple, Majel, Amelia, Edith, Arenina, Romola, Modjeska, Restless, Velnette, Gonza, Soulbrette and Acnone.

The corrected sailing time gave the prize to the Amelia, with the Restless and Ou-ward second and third. The Amelia has won the opening handicap cruise and pennant for the past four years. She was built at Rochester by the Schirck Brothers, ship-owners, and is commanded by Captain L. Schirck. Her dimensions are Length over all, 31 ft. 5 in.; beam, 8 ft. 5 in.; load water line, 26 ft. 9 in.; sail area, 160 square yards. She also carries a spinnaker of 76 square yards, and a balloon jib of 86 square yards. The Amelia is undoubtedly the fastest yacht on the Yankee side of Lake Ontario.

Anecdotes of Hannibal Hamlin.

Mr. Hamlin was, probably the first man who heard the Emancipation Proclamation read. Shortly after that he went to the White House one afternoon to inform the President that he intended to leave town that evening to visit his home. Mr. Lincoln replied:

"No, you do not intend anything of the sort. In short, Mr. Vice-President, you will not leave Washington at present." Mr. Hamlin, seeing that Mr. Lincoln had something of importance on his mind, answered:

"Of course, I will not think of doing so if you wish otherwise. You are the commander, and I am under orders."

"And I order you," continued the President, laughing, "to sit in that chair and afterwards to ride with me to supper."

Hamlin did as he was desired, and shortly afterwards the two, guarded by a file of soldiers, rode on horseback out to the Summer residence of the President. After supper the President invited him into the library, and said:

"Mr. Hamlin, you have been repeatedly urging me to issue a proclamation emancipating the slaves. Now listen to me while I read this paper. We will correct it as we go on."

It was the Proclamation of Emancipation.

Mr. Hamlin was a singularly modest and unassuming man. While he was Vice-President he kept in rank to the Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy, he enlisted as a private in a Maine regiment at a critical period during the war, put on the common blue blouse, shouldered his musket and did duty from July to September, 1864, in Fort Clary. Every man in the North fit for service had then been ordered to the front for the final struggle. Opposite his name in the Adjutant-General's office in Maine are written the words:

Why Gould Still Seeks Riches.

An old millionaire of this city, whose millions number more than the years of his life, is still as eager as ever he was in the pursuit of money, though he could not hereafter spend the wealth he already owns if he were to live at the rate of millions a year. There are men in other pursuits who, all through the years of age, keeps up their activity and find the enjoyment of life increasing with it up. Humboldt was wrapped up in his scientific studies till he was nearly 90, and completed his "Kosmos" just before his death. Goethe was a literary devotee till he was over 80. Whittier is a poet still, though born in 1807, and so is Holmes, though nearly as old. Senator Morrill of Vermont is deep in politics, though over 80, and began a new term of six years in the Senate last March. Commodore Vanderbilt was interested in American railroads and George Bancroft in American history till over 80, and the elder Bennett kept up his interest in his paper till his death at nearly 80. It may be that the aged millionaire of whom I spoke as the opening of this paragraph looks on piling up his millions merely because he finds in their accumulation that activity which keeps the mind from rusting and that enjoyment which is desirable all through life.—John Swinton in New York Sun.

Spread of an Earthquake.

The course which an earthquake runs is usually very rapid. From the instant when the first shock was felt at Lisbon to the period when all was over, and nearly 30,000 people killed, not more than two minutes had elapsed. Usually from ten to thirty seconds elapsed between the first and last shocks of severe earthquake. But this lightning speed is not always the earthquake's mode of traveling. While Caracas in Venezuela was almost totally destroyed and 12,000 people were killed in less than twenty seconds by the great shock of 1812, there are cases in which constantly recurring shocks have lasted for weeks. No odds how brief the span, the most frightful havoc can be wrought, and the wave of destruction propagated from the most distant centres. The rumbling earth sound travels at the rate of about 10,000 to 11,000 feet per second, and the earth wave, on an average, about 1,200 feet in the same space of time.—St. Louis Republic.

Force of Habit.

A lady who wished to weigh her baby, two months old, but who had no scales at hand suitable for the purpose, took the child to a neighboring butcher shop. The butcher put the baby in his spring scales, looked and did not speak.

"With the bones and all, mum, it's fourteen pounds and a half. Shall I——"

"How dare you make such a suggestion!" screamed the indignant mother as she snatched the baby and rushed out of the shop.—Youth's Companion.

Rats in a Mulberry Tree.

Rats have taken possession of a large mulberry tree along Frankford Creek. They eat the ripe, luscious berries and drive off all birds, but when disturbed by the approach of a human being they drop headlong from the branches of the tree to the ground and run off until the coast is clear for their return after more berries. Seven sleek rodents were seen to drop from the tree in succession the other day.—Philadelphia Record.

A Beautiful Harvest.

The grain crop reports from the Pacific States are even more auspicious than th se from the States of the Mississippi Valley. In California, Oregon and Washington the yield of wheat this year is of surpassing abundance, and the farmers now feel assured that they can market their crops at fair prices. Happy is the land in which the harvests are bountiful. —N. Y. Sun.

There is Hope for Us Yet.

Fate seems to make things fit in nicely. Just as wood was giving out, coal was discovered; just as whale oil was about exhausted, petroleum was found; and now, just as we have about given up hopes of being angels, Mr. Maxim assures us that his flying machine will soon be ready.—Detroit Free Press.

The Burial of Japs.

In Japan the dead are always buried with the head downward, in which feet toward the south. A living Japanese will never sleep in that position. In sleeping rooms of private houses a diagram of the points of the compass is pasted for the benefit of timid guests.—London Tid Bits.

HORACE GREELY ON LINCOLN.

Horace Greely close l a lecture on Abraham Lincoln, which he had written but never delivered, with these words: There are those who profess to have been always satisfied with the part of the war, deeming it prompt, energetic, vigorous, masterly. I did not, and could not, so regard it. I believed then—I believe to this hour—that a Napoleon I., a Jackson, would have crushed secession out in a single short campaign—ah os. in a single victory. I believed that an advance on Richmond 100,000 strong might have been made by the end of June, 1861, that would have insured a counter-revolution throughout the South, and the speedy return of every State to the counsels and the flag of the Union. But such a return would have not merely left slavery intact—it would have established it on firmer foundations than ever before. But God had higher ends to which a Bull Run, a Ball's Bluff, a Gaines's Mill, a Groveton, were indispensable. The Republic needed to be passed through chastening, purifying fires of adversity and suffering; so these came and did their work, and the verdure of a new national life springs greenly from their ashes. Other men were better fitted by their generation and nobly did their part in it; yet, looking back through the lifting mists of seven eventful, tragic, trying, glorious years, I clearly discern that the one providential leader, the indispensable hero of the great drama—faithfully reflecting even in his hesitations and seeming vacillations the sentiment of the people—fitted by his very defects and shortcomings for the burden laid upon him, the good to be wrought out through him, was Abraham Lincoln.—Century Magazine.

A Silk Rag Rug.

The young man of the period must not be surprised if, when he puts off on his vacation, and sitting on the hotel piazza with his best Summer girl, she should suddenly inform him that he needs the hair on is "very pretty, and quite long for the rug. Just give it to me when you are done with it, please." Of course he meekly hands it over, without so much as asking why, but the reason is soon given, and the astonished man finds that she is saying the same thing to all the other fellows. She must need quite a collection. But what this girl does with them is this: She cuts them into strips about an inch wide, and sews them together, first on one side and then the other, in the most artistic combination of colors. This is pleasant work for a summer afternoon, and the maiden makes a pretty picture seated with a large box overflowing with dainty colored silks, and while she chatters away and easily sews them together her attendant cavalier winds the long strips into good-sized balls. Not a very different picture from that her grandmother made while being assisted to wind a skein of worsted. At the end of the season there will be several large balls, and then these are sent to be woven into a soft, pretty rug that will grace the hard-wood floor of our maiden's room.—N. Y. Sun.

A Glorious Day to Die On.

The fact that the death of Hannibal Hamlin occurred on Independence Day has naturally provoked comment, and no doubt will be referred to again in the formal eulogies pronounced upon one who will be remembered as the associate of Abraham Lincoln through the civil war. Sixty-five years ago so far more memorable event was connected with the national holiday. On the Fourth of July, 1826, John Adams, the second President of the United States, died, in the 91st year of his age, and Thomas Jefferson, the third President, died on the same day, at the age of 83. Jefferson's last words, as he roused for a moment from his stupor, were: "On the 4th of July, asking those around him the day of the month, had expressed the wish to live to see the dawn of the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration which he had drawn and signed; while Adams, on being asked, when the bells rang and the cannon fired, if he knew the day, answered, he replied: "Oh, yes; it is the glorious Fourth of July; God bless it!" It is remarkable as that James Monroe, the fifth President, died five years later on the Fourth of July, 1831, at the age of 73. The death of Madison, the fourth President, which occurred at or another time in years, in 1836, at the age of 85, took place during the week preceding the nation's birthday.—N. Y. Sun.

An Editorial Sermon.

Take things as they are and make the best of them. Prudence in a woman should be an instinct, not a virtue. Happiness is like the echo—it answers but does not come. Vice in the young fills us with horror—in the old, disgust. Caution is often wasted, but it is a very good risk to take. The man who never makes any blunders seldom makes any good hits. The great difficulty about advice is the preponderance of quantity over quality. When a man has the reputation of being a plain spoken it is a sure sign that he never sees anything good in others. The divorced and dubbed woman soon gets on to a new wrinkle, if it appears in another woman's face. Don't think that because you have exhausted all your own resources you have exhausted all in the world. There are seres to be ploughed outside your own gate. Because a man makes a loud noise by continually shooting off his mouth, don't think for a moment that it is a overflow of brain power. Consider the mule; he is a good example.—Rockport, Tex. Picayune.

Red Hair the Fashion.

The one thing absolutely de rigueur is red hair, says a Paris writer. Blondes and brunettes seem to have been wiped off the face of the earth so far as Paris is concerned, and there is hardly a woman in a hundred who cannot boast of locks the shade that Titian loved. A wonderful preparation is to be had which works the transformation. It is put on at night and the head bandaged in many folds of cloth. In the morning comes the harrowing moment. The swathings are removed, but such are the peculiar properties of the compound that no one can tell beforehand whether the hair will turn out the desired hue or purple or green. If it is red the color stays for a month or two, and if it is green nobody knows what happens, for the wretched victim retires to the country, not to be seen again for at least a year.

Nothing is sacred in the eyes of the American small boy. If he could lay his hands on the Declaration of Independence he would doom itself on it to celebrate the Fourth.—Baltimore American.

Boots and Shoes.

Seal leather is a special feature brought out this season. This skin, which supersedes Russian leather, the favorite of last summer, is really a part of the sealskin, carefully tanned, to be used as leather, and is so delightfully soft as to render it a perfect boon to tender feet. It has besides the great advantage of not easily showing its natural shades, ranging from light tan to dark brown, but of being dyed in lovely tints.

There is a decided tendency at fetes, weddings, promenades and all fashionable gatherings to wear shoes of bright, cheerful hues, harmonizing or contrasting with the gown, as necessary. Fashionable ladies are particular to wear stockings in plain or lace silk, matching exactly the tone of their shoes, hence tan, yellow and silver stockings, etc., have had to be manufactured expressly to agree with the shoemaker's materials. Many examples are made entirely of plain leather or kid, with toecaps and fronts cut out in fanciful devices, yet the majority appear to be golashed with black patent leather, which is pretty generally worn. The pointed cut, with the upper colored part is either buttoned, laced up or jauntily tied with moire or tinsel bows.

As to shapes, they vary according to the diversity of styles patronized by society leaders. Now there is, for instance, one notable fancy for a piquant Watteau gown, which really was the originating of the glass slipper of fairy tales, softly padded and covered with delicate dove gray silk; it is dressed on the vamp with satin bows wrought in gray silk and crystal beads. For a stern Louis XIII costume, on the contrary, there is the glossy shoe in black patent leather, and the high, pointed empire robe an elongated red slipper, with the baby's or the X straps, seems the very thing, while the fashionable draperies and hair knot cannot be better set off than by boots, high at the back and opened in front, to be laced up with gold cord or fastened with a buckle.

How to Render Fabrics Incombustible.

Many deaths would be prevented if ladies engaged in household work would wear incombustible or non-inflammable garments. The process of so treating linens and cottons is very simple. Steep the goods in a 7 per cent. solution of sulphate of ammonia, or a 20 per cent. solution of tungstate of soda and then dry them. If they are now held in the flame of a candle or gas lamp they will not take fire. That portion of the fabric which was in contact with the light will become charred, but it will not inflame, and hence the burning state will not spread to the rest of the garment. Steeping in borax and hot water will have a similar effect.

How to Restore Faded Writing.

Often the writing upon letters and other documents becomes faded and almost illegible. If they are of importance the writing can be easily restored by first covering it with a solution of prussiate of potash, and then adding over the prussiate some diluted muriatic acid. By this means they faded letters will assume a permanent and beautiful dark blue color.

Receiver of an Elizabeth Gas Light Company.

Mr. Werdenfeld of the banking firm of I. B. Newcomb & Co. was appointed by Chancellor McGill yesterday as receiver for the Metropolitan Gas Company of Elizabeth, which is in charge of the complainants. Liabilities are $150,000, and its assets are said to be $400,000, including the value of the plant. It needs $100,000 to continue business.

The Metropolitan plant has been in operation six months, and there is now pending in the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey a decision as to whether the charter under which it is operating is legal. This point has been raised by ex-Congressman Kean, President and owner of the Elizabeth Gas Company, and who has been vigorously fighting the new company since its formation. President Kean, in order to kill the rival company, has reduced the price of gas to consumers in Elizabeth to $1.75 per 1,000 feet to 75 cents a 1,000.

PERSONAL.

Police Sergeant James Finley of Jersey City has returned from a pleasant visit to his brother, Mr. John Finley of East Third street.

Special Policeman Philip Giese of West Front street is the happy father of a bouncing baby boy who first saw light on Sunday morning. The little fellow tips the scales at fourteen pounds.

Off for Newburg.

The Sunday-school connected with the Warren Mission chapel went on its annual excursion to Newburg-on-the-Hudson this morning. Although the weather looked threatening, it required fifteen passenger coaches to convey the excursionists to Jersey City, where they boarded the palace steamer, "Mynderse Starin."

ATTACKED BY A HIGHWAYMAN.

Mr. Butler Assaulted at Dunellen Sunday Night.

Sunday last Messrs. John Butler of West Second street and Edwin VanNamee of Park avenue went fishing in the pond at New Market. They started for home at about half-past eight o'clock in the evening. When near the Dunellen crossing they passed a man, but thought nothing of the occurrence. They had proceeded but a short distance, however, when Mr. Butler was felled to the ground by being struck in the head with a large stone. He fell across the railroad track. The assault was so sudden that Mr. Van. Name did not, for a moment, realized what had happened, but when he looked around for the assailant the fellow had made good his escape.

Mr. VanName then turned his attention to his companion who had been felled by the blow, and just succeeded in getting him off of the track, when a fast Philadelphia express train passed.

He assisted him to the residence of Dr. Brokeley, where his wounds were dressed. They then took a train for this city.

The object of the assault is not known, but it is thought that the fellow intended to rob his victim. Mr. Butler remembers but a few minutes previously taking out his watch to see what time it was and the supposition is that the highwayman saw him and coveted the time-piece.

Mr. Butler would undoubtedly have been injured more seriously had not the stone first struck the brim of a derby hat which he was wearing. As it is, a deep gash was cut in his head, from which the blood poured profusely.

A MIDNIGHT VISITOR.

John B. Gable Again Invades his Former Home.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. John B. Gaide was awakened from her slumbers by feeling somebody kiss her. When she opened her eyes she was surprised to see her husband at her bedside. In the meantime he had placed all his belongings in a trunk and when it was about time for the 5.27 a. m. train he shouldered the trunk and started off in the direction of the depot.

When Mrs. Gable realized what he was doing she began crying and screaming. This caused several of her neighbors but before they could prevent him Gable had again departed on the train.

Saturday's Races.

There were several interesting races on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday afternoon. The first event was between Mr. Quinn's "Kitty Pilot," Philip Jenner's "Blanch Warwick," and J. H. Fosher's "Dynamite." "Dynamite" won both heats; time, 2.43½ and 2.41½. "Blanch Warwick" came in second in the first heat, and "Kitty Pilot" in the second.

The second event was between a horse from Woodbrook Farm, named "Marcander," and A. D. Thompson's bay mare. "Marcander" won both heats. Time, 2.48 and 2.50.

Two colts from the Woodbrook Farm gave an exhibition of speed.

Alice McCrea Bitten by a Mad Dog.

A mad dog created a scare in the village of Fluckamin Sunday just as the children were returning from Sunday school. The children fled in terror and all succeeded in reaching their homes, the ten-year-old daughter of Donald McCrea, who was bitten badly on the left arm.

A crowd of men and boys killed the brute. Several cattle were also bitten and three or four dogs. All of them were shot. The village physician vaccinated the child's wound. He also opened the dog's stomach to satisfy himself that it was a genuine case of hydrophobia.

The presence of nails, bits of leather and string was taken as conclusive evidence that the dog was mad.

INTERESTING SCRAPS.

WHAT OBSERVANT ANTOINETTE OBSERVED.

A Divine's Good Story.—Something About Feet, etc.

THE END HE WAS AT.

HEN I went to the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning I learned that the pastor, the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, was ill. His pulpit was occupied, however, by the Rev. J. S. Breckinridge, D. D., of Brooklyn. Mr. Breckenridge wished to get enough money to keep a chair in an adult's bed in the magnificent Methodist Hospital, recently erected in Brooklyn, which cost $750,000, and which is doing such good work. He got it. To Mr. Breckinridge this hospital and its constantly increasing good work is as the proverbial "apple of the eye." The hearer is doubly and simultaneously impressed with the divine's whole-souled interest and eloquence, and the worthy object, which their money will further, for which he is pleading. His points were strengthened by "pat" illustrations. To impress one subject more strongly he gave the following anecdote, which will will bear repeating: A young man had determined to get married, and with his fair one sought a reverend Quaker. This worthy, with due solemnity, performed the marriage service which made them one. Then, as the young man was departing the kindly old Quaker shook him by the hand, and said, "young man, thee are at the end of thy troubles." The young man, never in the "blessed bonds of matrimony" before, thought the man knew what he was talking about and went his way happy. He happened not to have made a good selection. He found, upon experience, that he had never really known what trouble was before, and some time after, seeking the clergyman, he reproached him for telling him "he was at the end of his troubles." The Quaker smiled benignly. "Yes! young man" said he "I did tell thee that thee were at the end of thy troubles" here he paused, and then continued—"but I did not tell thee which end."

CANNIBALISTIC CHICKENS.

Through the Spring months a pair of sparrows worked patiently and industriously, first hatching and then rearing their fluffy offsprings, in an "experienced" nest, before my window.

They were very exclusive, and their home, hidden deep in a pine tree, on a quiet side-street where I live, was carefully and pugnaciously guarded from feathered visitors by the parent birds and from more powerful and destructive enemies by its pine-covered friend—the tree.

The warm weather and the ever-hungry brood of sparrows progressed together, and yesterday, one, the boldest and strongest of the lot, left its nest on its first long journey—to twig a few feet away. Its momentum carried it beyond the twig and it fluttered squawking to the ground below.

A brood of half-grown chickens were industriously scratching, where this little adventurer so unexpectedly came down, and they gave it a very warm greeting. Unfortunately it was not at all fraternal.

With a great flutter of half-feathered wings they were upon it. One caught one wing, another the opposite, two industriously tugged at the tender legs; a long-legged, clumsy rooster had its head and a portion of the neck in its bill, while another ran away with what they their more fortunate brothers or sisters and getting a hold where ever possible. Then they pulled. Something gave way. It was the sparrow.

Before the late rush of the sympathetic and surprised onlooker, myself, the cannibalistic chickens scattered in all directions, to give a gourmastic burial to the various portions of their victim.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR FEET, GIRLS!

A young man called on me the other evening. He was one of the observant kind, that take in, may hap in one glance, peculiar characteristics in all whom they meet. I learned that his pet "hobby" if such you can call it—you'd never guess what—the feet.

He imagines that the wearers' personality and character can be observed in the shape of the feet and the way they are used and also in the way they are shod.

He liked in all the feminine gender, the slender, high arched foot, well shod. (I tucked mine carefully in, out of sight.) He also liked a low, sensible—as he called it—heel, to the shoe. Several other things he liked I won't mention.

Of course every-one can't have nice, slender, aristocratic feet, with beautifully moulded curves and a high instep, but the plainest foot if sensibly shod and cared for with one moiety of the care bestowed upon the hands of face would be, and is, as a finishing touch to a picture, the thing that tells.

So, girls! look out for your feet. They are your trusty and faithful servants, and maybe one of your attractions. Take care of them. ANTOINETTE.

—Some person unknown place a box in front of Schwed's clothing store on East Front street yesterday morning bearing the inscription. "This is Ben's cushion, beware of dynamite." It is supposed that the inscription referred to Nightwatchman Wright.

THE STANDPIPE'S CAPACITY.

Interesting Information Gleaned From Engineer Davis.

The fires in the boilers of Plainfield Water Supply Company were started for the first time Saturday and yesterday some water was pumped into the standpipe. In conversation with Chief Engineer R. L. Davis last evening, a News reporter gleaned the following information:

"When the standpipe is full the water will weigh 2,146 tons. That quantity of water allowing 30 gallons per day for use per person, would supply 71,533 people for seventy years. The standpipe has a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons, allowing four gallons per day per capita. That amount of water would supply a city of 125,000 population, besides allowing enough for flushing sewers and fire purposes. The pressure will throw a stream of water ninety feet high from a one-inch-and-a-quarter nozzle.

Abandoned Farms in New Jersey.

It is not an encouraging fact that in the little State of New Jersey there are 18,487 acres of abandoned farms. The Chief Statistician of Labor has said the poverty of the farmers denying to the earth the fertilizers and manures necessary for production of good crops. The result is a bare subsistence for the family and a defaulting of interest payments on the mortgages.

In Atlantic county there are 1,139 farms, 105,136 acres, value $20 per acre; Cape May, 547 farms, 52,032 acres, value $20; Monmouth, 2,567 farms, 213,617 acres, $25; Ocean, 851 farms, 87,462 acres, $25; Camden, 950 farms, 81,793 acres, value $30; Passaic, 956 farms, 96,915 acres, $45; Hudson, 1,139 farms, 37,911 acres, $815; Union, 757 farms, 58,429 acres, $200; Bergen, 1,710 farms, 94,008 acres, $105; Cumberland, 2,230 farms, 158,277 acres, $45; Mercer, 1,542 farms, 120,006 acres, $60; Middlesex, 3,085 farms, 154,066 acres, $77; Morris, 2,504 farms, 242,778 acres, $60; Burlington, 2,513 farms, 209,334 acres, $60; Gloucester, 2,094 farms, 148,147 acres, $61; Salem, 1,825 farms, 175,339 acres, $53; Hunterdon, 3,153 farms, 245,087 acres, $60; Somerset, 1,961 farms, 178,511 acres, $60; Sussex, 1,962 farms, 253,688 acres, $38; Warren, 2,586 farms, 185,795 acres, $60.

Of the abandoned farms, fifty-five are in Atlantic county, covering 32 acreage of 2,756; Cape May, fifteen, 3,000 acres; Monmouth, five, 215 acres; Ocean, sixteen 916; Camden, four, no acres given; Passaic, ten, 1,284; Bergen, twenty, 696; Cumberland, twenty-four, 570; Mercer, ten, 683; Middlesex, twelve, 456; Morris, five, 1,270; Burlington, thirty-two, 986; Gloucester, three, 150; Somerset, sixty, 2,030; Hunterdon, one, 73; Sussex, thirty three, 3,326; Warren, eight, 963.

New Jersey Railroad Accidents in Gross.

The laws of the State of New Jersey compel all railroad corporations to file a detailed account of all accidents. During the past year, on the 2,000 miles of railway in the State, 1,604 accidents were reported, of which 317 were fatal. Three hundred and thirty-seven car couplers lost thumbs, fingers, arms or feet; 202 persons were struck while walking the track. Of these 129 lost their lives. There were 113 persons who were struck by stepping in front of trains. Of the whole number of accidents 2,276 persons were killed and 297 injured on the Central road, 35 killed and 56 injured on the Morris and Essex, while 92 accidents occurred on the West shore road.

MRS. TAPPEN SPEAKS.

She Tells Her Side of the New Brooklyn Scandal.

Mrs. George Washington Tappen, of New Brooklyn, who is charged by her husband with deserting him and running away with a Methodist dominie, the Rev. George W. Comer, went to New Brunswick Saturday. She was looking for justice and was taking steps to get the hay and other farm crops which are in the barn at the Tappen place at New Brooklyn.

First she called a lawyer, ex-Judge C. T. Cowenhoven, and he advised her to see Constable Reed and have him go to New Brooklyn and get the grain and hay, if necessary forcing the door. This the constable declined to do, unless he could have some assurance that he would not get in trouble about it; he wanted an indemnity bond that would indemnify him for all damages. Finding that the constable would not act, at that stage of the case, go with her, Mrs. Tappen then went before Justice Ford and asked for a writ.

She claims that eighteen years ago Tappen deeded the farm to her and that she has lived in the house and taken therefore owner of the farm, and, naturally, of the crops as well. It is said that Mr. Tappen is now taking steps to have the deed set aside.

Justice Ford refused to grant any writ to the woman, and advised her to go back to the place and endeavor to get the hay and other property, which she claimed, by peaceable means. She did so, and if not successful will return to New Brunswick and again ask the assistance of the law.

With reference to the farm and the matters connected with the deeding of it to Mrs. Tappen, her husband says it arose out of a suit for divorce which she had instituted against him for non-support some years ago, through Judge Cowenhoven of New Brunswick. The case was dismissed, and a little later the neighbors were much surprised to hear that Tappen had deeded all of his property to his wife. "How's this, George," said one of them to him, "have you and Sarah made up?" "Yes," said George, "she promised to be a wife to me again, and so I turned the property all over to her."

Mrs. Tappen alleges that she is the abused party in the case, and she says that she has left her husband because of the treatment she has received from him. When seen, while in New Brunswick, she said that her husband won't work and that for years she has been obliged to run the farm and take charge of all money matters, that he is ugly and jealous and has frequently unjustly accused her of immorality.

She has a married daughter, another daughter eighteen years of age and a son fourteen years old, and says that Tappen drove both the latter away from the house.

She refuses in toto Tappen's charges that she has ran away with Comer, and says that she is not living with him and knows nothing about his whereabouts. She is staying at the residence of J. C. Breese, near Metuchen. She merely "thought" he told her that he would not live with him any longer. She was accompanied on her visit by her sister.

Mrs. Tappen denies that she cleared the house of all its furniture when she left, and that her husband was left without a bed to sleep on. She took about half the furniture, which belonged to her, she says, and left the rest for her husband. This statement is substantiated by Officers Reed and Holman, who went to the place to superintend the removal of the furniture. They say that the neighbors generally side with the woman.

As to Comer, the statement is made that he is a bigamist. It is said that in February he told his wife that he already had two wives living, and then he explained to her that he had left a wife in England, and that his conscience would no longer let him continue his wrongdoing. There was a heart break, ing interview between the two, but it all ended in a visit to a lawyer, who went with them through the usual formalities of securing for each a bill of separation. At first Comer's wife was very outspoken in her denunciation of her husband's actions, but now she refuses to say anything or to see anybody in reference to the matter. Two months ago another little girl was born to her, the father of whom has just renounced his claims and duties as her father.

Some one started the story that Comer's English wife had come over the water and was looking for him, but no one believes that he has another wife. The opinion is that he told the story to frighten his wife into a bill of separation.

THE HOUSEHOLD

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS,

If the stories that come floating across the sea about the scandals among the British nobility are true, as many of them certainly are, it shows that titles are badly needed in that country. If the nobility were not in them people's names they would have none anywhere else. England ought not to be in a hurry about abolishing titles.

The announcement comes from London that an electrical machine has been invented which will not only grind meat and stuff a sausage, but will also turn it out cooked and smoking hot to the consumer. Great heavens! The winged bolt of Jove has been harnessed and made to run a sausage machine. It is a degenerate age.

When we find out what it is, there is use for everything. It has been discovered that the waste sand which falls off and accumulates in heaps from the grinding of plate glass can be made into brick of so good a quality that brick-makers could even wish there were more plate glass ground and show windows broken, just so they could get more waste sand.

An electric hand lamp for miners and those engaged in labor in dark places has been invented. It is no larger than an ordinary hand lamp and contains a miniature storage battery. This will maintain an illuminating current two or three hours, when the materials must be recharged. This, however, is so arranged as to be done easily and inexpensively. When not in use the lamp can be disconnected from the battery so as not to waste materials. It is an absolute safety lamp for miners.

A chance for very important international complications is contained in the warning of the chief of the Chilian insurgents to the captains of American vessels at Iquique. American captains are warned not to allow their crews to go on shore, as in the present state of insurgent feeling toward the United States our sailors are likely to be attacked and perhaps killed by mobs of Chilian rebels. A nation bent on conquest or the acquisition of territory could ask no better invitation than this to go in, get mixed up in the fight, and under pretense of indemnity for damages take possession of a good slice of the country. But the United States is not that kind of a nation.

Journalistic Boiling Down.

As a fine specimen of the ability of a good newspaper writer to "boil down" four columns of matter may be cited the following summary from The Christian Union of Pope Leo's encyclical. The editor of The Christian Union remarks that in this encyclical the holy father has brought the Church of Rome into line with industrial reform. Here is its summary, with its own comment at the close:

THE POPE SAYS.

That there is a labor problem.

That workingmen are suffering under gross injustice.

That it is the duty of the church to concern itself with these facts.

That wealth is a trust and must be administered as a trust.

That hours of labor should be such as to give time for other duties.

That wages should be such as to give opportunity for acquisition of property.

That, if these rights cannot be secured by free contract, the law should interfere.

That labor arbitration should take the place of labor battles.

That labor organizations should be encouraged.

That woman labor and child labor should be regulated and reduced by legislation.

That the rights of property are rights in principle.

That the church, the state, free labor organization and capitalists should all co-operate in labor reform.

These are all Christian Union positions. We did not expect ten years ago to live to see them advocated from the vatican by the pope.

The world moves.

Sun Spots and the Weather.

The French astronomer Camille Flammarion throws decided cold water on the theory that there is any proved connection between the periodical changes in the sun's spots and storms on our little bit of a planet. If there be such connection, as there probably is, it is not yet sufficiently understood to predicate anything certain about it. There is, however, an essential magnetic variation that is connected in some way with sun spots.

What is definitely known about sun spots is briefly this, according to M. Flammarion: Every eleven years the spots attain their largest size. In those years the greatest magnetic variation is observable on the earth and the greatest daily variation in temperature.

It is thus plain that enormous activity in the solar spots does have a magnetic effect on our earth. But we do not know as yet, says Flammarion, just where the spots themselves are located. They may be in the fiery fog known as the photosphere which surrounds the sun, or they may be upon the surface of the sun itself.

If it were true that we have more storms in heavy rain spot years than in others, and the storms are proportional to the spots, then we ought to have had twenty times as many storms in 1883 as in 1879, and no storms at all in 1878. But in 1878 the storms were very severe.

THE BIG FIGHT IN OHIO.

Campbell's Enemies Working Hard to Defeat Him.

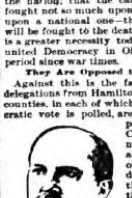
BUT HIS FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT.

The Democratic Gathering at Cleveland for the State Convention Wednesday That Will Nominate an Opponent to McKinley in the Gubernatorial Contest.

CLEVELAND, July 14.—Every incoming train today bore delegates to the Democratic state convention, and the demands upon the hotels by wire and mail give promise that Wednesday's gathering will be one of the largest that has ever been held in the state of Ohio's Democracy. Most of the arrivals were adherents of Governor Campbell; but many of them, far seeing, conservative men, who have borne the heat and burden of the day for the Democracy in many a hard fought campaign, were here to confront their dissatisfaction with and regret over the outlook, and there has been a good deal of talk and not a few quiet conferences regarding what ways and means might be adopted to pacify the discontented elements. The fact is recognized that the Republicans are united and enthusiastic, that as Governor Campbell's friend Major McKinley, one of the Republican leaders of the nation, that the campaign is to be fought not so much upon state issues as upon a national one—that is, that it will be fought to the death, and that there is a greater necessity today for a strong, united Democracy in Ohio than at any period since war times.

They Are Opposed to Campbell.

Against this is the fact that the solid delegations from Hamilton and Cuyahoga counties, in each of which a heavy Democratic vote is polled, are unalterably opposed to Governor Campbell's renomination; that, at least, a portion of Lucas county's delegation will be in the same boat, and that a good many delegates from the rural districts are reported as inclined to follow the lead of the men from the cities. The present conditions appear to be as exactly opposite to those that prevailed at Dayton two years ago, when Campbell secured the nomination. Then he was the choice of the young men as against the veterans, who are familiarly designated as the "Moosbacks," while today many of the latter are the warmest supporters in the executive and the young men are on the other side of the fence.



GOVERNOR CAMPBELL.

They Want a Tariff Reform Man.

Congressman Tom Johnson's name is worked up with might and main in behalf of Virgil P. Kline, said today: "We do not want a candidate who has no definite idea on the tariff and who will hide behind or in front of the party's progress. We want a tariff reform leader, not a man we have got to push. We want a man who is at the forefront of the battle for tariff reform. Kline is the man and I feel sure that if Campbell is nominated he cannot be elected."

Campbell's Friends Undismayed.

The friends of Governor Campbell, however, are not dismayed by the outlook. They have their record of 80,000 or more in their favor two years ago, and think that is sufficient to nominate on the first ballot, and they declare that it is immaterial to them whether or not the nomination is made by acclamation, or whether, as has been threatened, the anti-Campbellites walk out of the convention. The subsequent unity of the party can be depended upon to heal all wounds and obliterate all scars. State Chairman J. S. Norton says: "I can conceive of no manner or means by which Governor Campbell can be visited with defeat. I have noticed that what opposition does prevail throughout the state to the administration of the governor does not exist because of any ill feeling toward him, but because of an apprehension among Democrats that he is not as strong a candidate as the rank and file of sound Democrat. It is a fallacy which has gained ground in certain sections and which I am sure will be exploded after he is nominated. I do not think there will be any discord in the party whatever after his nomination. What is more, by the first day of next September the Ohio farmers will have Major McKinley beaten."

What the Platform Will Say.

Governor Campbell will be placed in nomination by Michael Ryan, of Cincinnati, and by John Jacobs, of Toledo, as chief second. If Kline is formally nominated, Judge Blandin will present his name. The chief feature of the platform will be the revenue and reaffirmation of the stand of the Democracy upon the tariff question; with a declaration that that is the chief issue of the campaign, and that the Democracy is fighting the very embodiment of the theory of protection. There will also be a plank favoring the free coinage of silver, limited to American product. Governor Cambell, with Allen W. Thurman as a large contingent from Columbus, arrived here today and will be given a monster reception. Tonight they will speak at a mass meeting in the public square.

When the body assembles tomorrow morning it will be with the intention on the part of the powers that be of rushing through the convention, and after the speech of Temporary Chairman Thurman to the final nomination, without even a five minute break for a hitch or a drop. This is at least the programme of the Campbellites. Like one other celebrated man, Governor Campbell appears to be served by his friends for the enemies he has made." The woods are full of them. This is because the anti-Campbellites have taken time by the forelock and are first on the field. Democrats from Toledo, Toledo and Cleveland know a thing or two about cutting the cards in dealing for a game of practical politics, and they expect to induce a good many of the country delegations to sit into an "anybody but Campbell" game between now and Wednesday morning. Emery Speer's name is the political overthrow of the governor.

The Cincinnatians prefer Neal, but they make no bones of declaring that they are willing to have Kline or anybody else rather than the present occupant of the gubernatorial chair. Some of them in fact are going farther than this, and give it out quietly that in the event of Campbell's nomination there will be a bolt in the convention that will cause the McKinleyites to rejoice."

A MURDEROUS MADMAN.

He Fired Point Blank at President Carnot.

BUT THE EXECUTIVE WAS UNHURT

A Report That Mrs. Langtry Has Been Disfigured for Life by a Brutal Kick from Her Friend Abingdon Baird—Emperor William's Departure.

PARIS, July 14.—The report that President Carnot had been shot proved to be untrue. The president was present at the official opening of a new thoroughfare, the Avenue de la Republique, where he received an enthusiastic welcome. Suddenly a man, wild eyed and making insane gestures, forced his way through the crowd and pushed past the soldiers on duty about the spot where the ceremonies were taking place.

Fired at the President.

This man rushed up to the carriage in which the president had driven up to the new avenue and fired a pistol at M. Carnot. As he did so the man shouted, "I'll prove that there are more Bastilles to be demolished."

President Carnot was much alarmed, but as he was unhurt he soon regained his presence of mind.

He Was a Madman.

The man who fired the shot was promptly arrested by the police, and such was the anger of the crowd that it required the services of a strong force of police to escort the man in safety to the nearest police station. Upon arrival there the man's examination soon disclosed that he was a madman who had just been released from confinement in a lunatic asylum.

FAREWELL TO ENGLAND.

The Emperor William's Visit Is at an End.

LONDON, July 14.—The German emperor in the morning rode through the most interesting portsof Hatfield park, lunching afterward in the Marble hall. All the ambassadors and attaches and their wives were present. After luncheon the emperor bade farewell to Lord Salisbury, declaring that he was highly pleased with his visit, and left Hatfield House for Windsor castle. Upon his arrival at Windsor the queen met him at the entrance to her private apartments and warmly embraced him. At the expiration of an hour the emperor returned to London.

The German empress started for Felixstowe, where her children are staying. The emperor accompanied her to the railroad station. It is reported that the emperor has invited the Prince and Princess of Wales to visit Germany in the fall of next state during the coming autumn, and that the Prince and Princess have accepted the invitation. Emperor William has presented to Lord Salisbury a splendid Dresden clock, made especially for him. The emperor dined at Lady Dudley's last evening, after which he left London at 10:40 p. m.

The Russian press express great displeasure at the cordiality and enthusiasm which have characterized the visit of the kaiser to the British capital, and the Russian journals suggest that Russia and France join in a protest against English occupation of Egypt.

Elaborate preparations are making at St. Petersburg and Cronstadt to give a warm welcome to the French fleet.

The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin regards the visit of the kaiser to Hatfield House as beyond mere courtesy. The kaiser, accompanied by German and foreign statesmen, met the chief statesmen of England, and both countries are convinced that the visit to the home of Lord Salisbury sealed the assurance of lasting friendship.

He Kicked Mrs. Langtry.

LONDON, July 14.—Several stories are afloat with regard to the latest theatrical sensation, a blighting to Baird's fault on Mrs. Langtry. The following story may be relied upon as authentic, as it was told to a newspaper representative by one who saw Mrs. Langtry just after the assault had been committed, with the blood streaming down her face. Some time ago Baird bought York house, Regent's park, for Mrs. Langtry, and also paid off her debts in connection with the Princess' theater, of which she is at present the leaseholder. On the occasion Baird returned home unexpectedly and found a young man dining with Mrs. Langtry.

The Lily Disfigured for Life.

Without a moment's hesitation he put him out, and then knocked "the Lily" down and kicked her in the face in such a way that it is said she is now disfigured for life. Mrs. Langtry had to be carried to bed and attended by a surgeon, who declares that it is probable she will never be able to act again.

Mrs. Langtry began an action for assault against Baird, but to prevent the action, he paid her £125,000 in Bank of England notes.

Rev. Spurgeon Growing Worse.

LONDON, July 14.—The condition of the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon is growing worse. A special prayer meeting of two hours' duration was held in the Tabernacle to beseech the Almighty for his recovery.

Harvard Challenged by Oxford.

LONDON, July 14.—The Oxford University club extends an invitation to the Harvard university crew to participate in a rowing contest on the Thames early in September.

The Barbers Boycotted Them.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., July 14.—The arrest of Olin Shelton and William Bidell at the laying of the corner stone of St. Paul's church, Huntington, for ringing the church bell in the early morning of July 4, has aroused the indignation of the whole community. One of the most prominent lawyers of the state has been engaged by the people to defend the boys. There is a ludicrous side to the affair, growing out of the refusal of the barbers to shave the church officials.

General Notification's Close Call.

KANSAS CITY, July 13.—General H. Nettleton, general manager of the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis and other lines, entered his bathroom and, overcome by the heat, fainted. A strong wind blew out the gas. The general was not missed until morning, when he was found apparently dead. The best physicians were summoned, and after over an hour's hard work succeeded in bringing him back to consciousness. He will recover.

Where Is Norah Sullivan?

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 13.—Norah Sullivan, a well known young lady of this city, has been missing since July 4, when she started for New York on the steamer Mary Powell for a few days' outing. Her friends have notified the police of New York to investigate the case.

SLIP'S ELUSIVE OUTLAW.

The Posse's Hunt for Richardson Doc Red Fan Out Well.

ISLIP, L. I., July 14.—While men with guns were searching the woods back of Squire Wallen's house at Bay Shore Tom Richardson, the hooded outlaw, appeared in the woods in front of the squire's house, and smiled a great big smile.

While the same men were searching Islip the outlaw was seen on the Brentwood road, walking toward Bay Shore. He didn't appear to be at all frightened. The butt ends of two revolvers were seen sticking out of his back pockets.

All the searching that has been done for the outlaw does not seem to have worried him in the least, and the fact that he hangs about his old haunts and keeps a close watch on his father-in-law's house, where his wife is staying, indicates that he still has hopes of accomplishing what he set out to do.

Whether that be, as the villagers believe, to get his wife and force her into submission in a cave, or steal her (or some of Squire Wallen's family) and chain her in a cave to stares, it is not known.

The men have suspected for several days that his sister, who lives here, has been giving information to him about the movements of the searching parties. All the plans for his capture that have been laid so far have been discussed in a certain saloon and the information reached the sister's ears through one of the habitues there.

Some way the belief got around that he was secreted in the house. So as soon as it got dark a posse surrounded the house and lay in wait for a few hours and then. About midnight one of the party crawled forward on his stomach to reconnoiter.

The hammer of his gun caught in a vine and the weapon went off. The night was still, the nerves of the watchers were strained with expectancy and the effect on that man was startling. The posse trampled over itself in its efforts to get out of gunshot distance.

But there is a surprise in store for Tom, which will probably put an abrupt end to his criminal career. Realizing finally that they were making a laughing botch of the attempt to capture Richard, a number of the leading citizens put their heads and contributions together and sent post haste to New York for a brace of good detectives.

The response was prompt. The detectives were last night preparing for a big hunt which is practically certain to result in that lawless district. By Sunday, it will be remembered for his clever work in connection with the "Florence Birch" mystery in Islip, is in charge of the case. Pickard has full control of the new party, with orders to shoot on sight.

SECRETARY BLAINE TALKS.

He Says He Takes No Medicine and Is Not a Sick Man.

BAR HARBOR, July 14.—Secretary Blaine has consented to be interviewed by a United Press correspondent. He said:

"I am as well as usual today. The sensational reports about my health sent to the press all over the country are lies. I am not a sick man. They have magnified a slight indisposition into something very serious. I am taking no medicine whatever. I go out every day and often twice a day. I have a good appetite, eat whatever I desire, rise at 7:30 and retire at 10:30 or 11, in short, live in my usual manner. There is nothing more to say."

Mr. Blaine took a long ride in the morning and in the afternoon, and did not seem to be in the least fatigued, although he did his own driving. That Mr. Blaine is mentally unsound, as reported, is absurd.

Mr. Frederick Blaine said today: "We no longer consider my father a sick man. He is constantly improving."

Secretary Blaine's physician said that he was improving rapidly, and within the last few days he has seemed to take a fresh hold on life and health. Those who are close to the secretary are confident he will return to Washington in the fall a well man.

Blaine's Cousin an Alleged Defaulter.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 14.—The county commissioners have just examined the books of Richland county for two years back, and found a shortage of $9,095.32. The treasurer who held office at that time was Mrs. Emily Blaine, a cousin of the late James G. Blaine. She retired in 1886, and is now the postmaster at Olney. There are many who believe there must be some mistake about the matter.

What Colonel Polk Says.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Colonel L. L. Polk, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, says: "As far as the northwest is concerned the third party has come to stay. It will have a ticket in the field that will reach Kansas, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and other states. If the southern Democratic leaders do not put an end to their denunciation of our order, there will be a third party in the south also."

Two More Dead at Aspen.

ASPEN, Colo., July 14.—Frank Ellis is dead, another victim of the terrible accident here Sunday morning, and the fourth out of one family. All the others who are severely injured will die except perhaps only one.

Miss Mary O'Donnell, the ninth victim, is also dead. Her brother, Thomas O'Donnell, may die at any moment.

He Wanted to Die Alone.

HARTFORD, July 14.—Edward Andrews, a well to do man, aged forty, has been separated from his wife for some time, but found that he could not live without her. He cut several gashes in his throat. When found he was still alive but on the verge of death. When restoratives were applied Andrews said: "Go away and let me die alone; I want to die."

Robbed by Masked Men.

PITTSBURG, July 14.—Five masked burglars entered the house of Farmer William F. Orr, of Franklin township. After binding and gagging him, the robbers forced Foster to give up his savings of twenty dollars, amounting to over $1,500. The robbers are believed to have been members of the Cooley gang.

She Carried Her Secret to the Grave.

NEWARK, N. J., July 14.—Lena Burrows, the girl who was taken to the German hospital several days ago suffering from the effects of a criminal operation, is dead. The girl steadfastly refused to divulge the name of her betrayer. Midwife Eckert and Clairvoyant Demak were held without bail.

Called Out at Lebanon.

LEBANON, Pa., July 13.—All members of the Amalgamated association, several hundred in number, employed in the nut and bolt works, were called out last evening on account of the company refusing to sign the scale of prices of the association.

AMERICANS IN PERIL.

The Haytians Are Most Insolent and Insulting to Them.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The World's correspondent, John C. Klein, who did distinguished himself in Samoa, is now in Hayti. He writes The World that the Haytians are most insolent and insulting to American cans, even in the public streets. Their pride in showing their feelings. "Ever, American is in jeopardy all the time, not barring old residents.

"It is their evil belief that American warships ought to be here by all means. No one has seen the Kearsage for a long time, and the United States consul here does not know where she is. American merchants advise me to be most cautious in what I write home.

"Some say Hippolyte would not hesitate to shoot an American if he gravely offended the government. These men to whom I talked are sober, sensible business men not at all prone to be easily scared. I did not think these Haytians would resort to extreme measures, but I doubt not they would quickly force me to leave their country.

"I send you a few photographs. A few were taken showing the dead in the streets on May 28, but all the plates were destroyed by order of the government.

"No proclamation has been issued decreeing the withdrawal of martial law, as talked on May 28, and the city is still virtually governed by it. Six thousand troops occupy the city and armed soldiers patrol the streets during the entire night.

"Every person found on the streets after 9 o'clock at night are subject to arrest and imprisonment until the following day at least.

"Hippolyte has the ruling hand for the moment, made doubly strong by the butchery of May 28. But while it has bred by frightened awe it has kindled his enemies into fiercer hate. It has strengthened him, it is true, more strongly, it has also added to the spirit of hatred and desire for revenge entertained by his opponents.

"Mr. Douglass has not proved to be a complete success as minister to this country. He is said to have not only allowed himself to be swayed by Haytian influence but has given more attention to the question of the elevation of the negro and his mental and physical ability as compared to that of the white man, and to the study of the Haytian and American negro, than to the questions gravely affecting United States interests in this republic."

Hippolyte Fears Uncle Sam.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The Atlas line mail steamer Athos touched at Hayti late in June and learned that Minister Douglass had left port for Washington. His great influence but has given more attention to the question of the elevation of the negro and his mental and physical ability as compared to that of the white man, and to the study of the Haytian and American negro, than to the questions gravely affecting United States interests in this republic.

Discredited at Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The reports brought to New York by a steamer from Hayti that Minister Douglass left his post at Port-au-Prince because the Haytian government did not care to recognize a representative of the United States and declined to have off all intercourse with this country are discredited at the department of state.

IT IS "CAMP LEON ABBETT."

Son Girt's Soldiers Honor New Jersey's Governor.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 14.—Camp Leon Abbett was formerly opened here yesterday with various interesting events.

At 11 o'clock the Fourth regiment of Jersey City, Colonel P. Farmer Warner commanding, reached the camp. The regiment numbered 500 men, and was preceded by a fine drum and fife corps and bugle corps.

A few minutes later the Second battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Moore, reached the camp. The command comprised one company from Hackensack, one from Leonia and one from Englewood and a uniformed Zouave corps.

Next came the first battalion, one company from Passaic two from Paterson, 220 men, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Muzzy.

Next came the Gatling Gun Company A, Veteran Zouaves, of Elizabeth, commanded by Captain Frederick Kroeger, of Madison Drake, who was the first Jerseyman to enlist in the late war.

The brigade band of fifty men, under the leadership of Professor Frederick Von Saal, came in about 11 o'clock. This completed the complement of the brigade, and at 12 o'clock the formal opening of the camp took place. It was christened "Camp Leon Abbett."

In the morning what might have been a fatal accident occurred to Surgeon Kolbich, of the Second regiment, who was thrown from his horse. The horse put his forefeet squarely on the surgeon's chest, but the weight of the animal's legs and raised the horse from his chest.

The Insurgents Defeated.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Advices from Chili state that the plan to capture the government torpedo cruisers Almirante Lynch and Almirante Condell at Valparaiso by bribing the crews was discovered and the leaders in the scheme put in prison. On Tuesday and Friday of last week the insurgents engaged the government in battle at Coquimbo and were defeated with great loss of life.

Steel, of Minersville, the state secretary of the Good Templars' association. He published a statement to the effect that Steel, upon his recent return from Scotland, had been banqueted by saloon keepers.

The Company Will Resume No More.

NAZARETH, Pa., July 14.—The new mill erected here by S. Fruhburger, of Philadelphia, for the manufacture of laces and braids has been put in operation. Twelve looms, the largest and most improved in use, are now in operation, and by next week the full complement of looms, twenty-five in number, will be in operation. Two hundred hands are employed.

Bids for Big Guns.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Bids were opened at the ordnance bureau of the war department for the construction of the twenty-five 8-inch, fifty 10-inch and twenty-five 12-inch breech-loading rifles for coast defense. The Bethlehem Iron company was the lowest bidder.

THAT'S THE GIRL.

The Young Woman Who Is Able to Meet Every Man Upon His Own Ground.

In glancing over the columns of a newspaper my attention was caught by an article in which a lady discussed the attractive qualities of marriageable girls in the eyes of eligibles men.

If my understanding of the writer's conclusions is correct the inferences may be drawn that as there are all kinds of girls and all kinds of men, almost any kind of a girl will please some kind of a man, observation undoubtedly justifying such an opinion.

There is, however, one girl—every man knows which one I mean—whose versatility and adaptability render her particularly agreeable.

She is always frank and free in conversation, even on unconventional subjects, but she is never bold, and will tolerate nothing approaching coarseness.

You are positive that her morning interest in the matters which interest you is not entirely assumed, and you are conscious also that she knows whether your opinion is worth a cent because of the affairs occupying her attention is genuine.

There is no indication, either, when you are in company with her that the talk of you when absent to any greater degree, or in any other way, than your male acquaintances do.

In conversation, her large fund of general information is evident, yet you are not impressed by a display of knowledge greater than your own.

She will converse in your stock of complimentary nothings she can handle them more gracefully than that other girl with more beauty, or that other else, and there is delightfully missing all sensation of having them extorted from you.

Perhaps, in a momentarily cynical mood, you sit down to study this girl's charm, determined to discover whether it is the result of ingenuous naturalness or the most consummate art. "What is your conclusion? Humph, yes! Why, one thing is certain—the charm is there, isn't it?

Now, to be honest, doesn't it lie in the fact that she apparently receives just that proportion of your character and personality which you know, in the depths of your consciousness, is a little too favorable for unbiased truth, yet is not so absurdly flattering but that you can honestly endeavor to believe it correct.

This girl, who meets on level ground every man worth meeting, though not challenging admiration, usually takes her choice among several suitors. And if that man is sensible enough to treat her after marriage as he did before, he seldom regrets the choice.

Any disappointment she may feel is never publicly admitted.—Providence Manuel Vieira in Kate Field's Washington.

LORD KAMES SAID,

"Men of the earliest times first observed the views and diseases of the present time—but they did not possess the moral resolution to cure, or cures for what they saw. Scrofula and consumption, the two cases were incurable, unmitigated curses, until the Cactus Blood Cure came in as a natural and sure remedy to simply by stirring the blood.

AN INQUEST FOR SMILER

Coroner Levy Will Exhume the Body Today.

TO INVESTIGATE ELECTROCUTION

The New York Official Wants to Know What Occurred at the Sing Sing Executions and Will Summons Warden Brown and All of His Witnesses.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The body of Harris A. Smiler, one of the four murderers who was electrocuted at Sing Sing last June, was exhumed at Sing Sing last Monday, and will be exhumed today at Woodlawn cemetery by Coroner Levy and an autopsy made by Dr. William T. Jenkins, the coroner's physician. The coroner said this morning that he was now sure of his position in taking the step he has in the matter.

He Has Looked Up the Law.

He said: "I have not been consulting with the district attorney or any lawyer, but I have been looking up the law and fully believe that I am in the right, and that every good citizen will uphold me in taking the step I have. This is an affair which interests every man in New York state, and I intend to find out what occurred behind the dark walls at Sing Sing last Tuesday morning."

Warden Brown Must Talk.

The inquest will be held next Monday morning. The coroner says he will have a jury composed of intelligent medical men and electrical experts to sit at the inquest. Subpoenas will be served on the witnesses who were present at the electrocution at Sing Sing and Warden Brown some time during the week.

No Right to Exhume Smiler.

ALBANY, July 14.—State Attorney General Tabor was asked what he thought of Coroner Levy's assertion that he would subject the body of Smiler, the murderer, to an autopsy and hold an inquest upon it and compel the witnesses to the executions to tell all they knew and saw. He said: "Coroner Levy can do no such thing. He has no more right to touch the body than he has to go into a cemetery in this city and drag out the remains of people buried fifty years ago. The office of coroner is limited by statute, and he can only examine in case a complaint is made and he deems it suspicious. In this case, under the laws of the state, the man has been executed, and physicians appointed under the law have certified as to the cause of death.

Nothing to Do with the Case.

"It does not matter, even if the man was roasted to death, as long as the warden complied with the law. The death certificate, with the result of the autopsy, is filed in New York county, and the coroner has nothing to do in the case. No complaint has been made, and he is acting entirely without reason. I don't think he will push the matter."

The Bar Association to Act.

Secretary L. B. Proctor, of the New York State Bar association, is of the opinion that the action of Lawyer Haire in appealing the electrocution cases to the United States supreme court for what seemed to be purposes of delay only, will be called to the attention of the executive committee of the association, which will meet in a few days. He added that the committee's action has already been outlined in the shape of a memorial asking congress to take such steps as will restrict appeals in such cases.

THE DUKE CHOKED HER.

That Is the Story the Wife's Maid Tells.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Micheline Ferriere, who has been employed as maid by the Duchess D'Auxy, has procured a summons for the appearance of the Duke D'Auxy in the police court in answer a charge of assault. The girl says the duke choked her so hard that the imprints of his fingers were left on her neck.

The duchess was seen at her hotel in regard to the matter and said the girl's charges were untrue. Her husband, she said, had discharged the girl for insolence. When he informed her of her dismissal she sprang at him like a tigress and scratched his face. The duke, according to the duchess, used no more force than was necessary to keep the woman from injuring more.

They Counted $614,511,582.29.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The committee, Messrs. Daskam, Milliken and Huntington, counting the money in the treasury on the transfer of the office to the United States treasurer from Mr. Huston to Mr. Nebeker, has completed its work. The total amount of money counted was $614,511,582.29, of which $175,960,000 was gold and silver coin, the rest being paper money. The money was found correct to a cent. Sixty people have been employed in the work for two months.

A Fortune in a Piano Stool.

WABONA, Minn., July 13.—About $13,000 in bills has been found in a piano stool among the effects of Lena Weinberg, the housekeeper of the old Hoff House, who suicided two years ago. Eighteen months ago $12,000 was found in some false bottomed trunks. The belief is the money was stolen, as she handled the funds of the hotel.

Like the Finch Case.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Susan O. Myers has brought suit against Lawyer Henry Halsey, to compel him with the divorce money paid to the lawyer by her husband for her use. She also claims that a divorce has been granted to her husband without any application to the county by her and without her knowledge or consent.

Robbins' Circus Seized.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., July 13.—The sheriff of this county has seized the property of Frank A. Robbins' menagerie and circus. The property to be sold on the 21st inst. to satisfy a number of judgments.

Hosmer Will Row Ten Eyck.

HARTFORD, July 14.—George H. Hosmer announces that he has accepted the challenge of Ten Eyck to row for $250 a side. If a suitable purse can be raised the race will be rowed here.

Prince George's Watch Stolen.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 14.—Just before the Thrush sailed for England some one entered Prince George's cabin and stole a hunting case watch. Detectives have been put on the case.

Warships Off for New York.

BOSTON, July 14.—The United States warships Vesuvius, Yorktown, Atlanta and Newark sailed for New York shortly after 1 p. m. to take part in the naval maneuvers.

ONE OF THE HANLONS KILLED.

CLINTON, Ia., July 14.—During the afternoon performance of Forepaugh's show the net broke upon which William Hanlon, of Hanlon Brothers, gymnasts, was performing. He fell to the ground, missing the net, and striking upon his head, broke his neck, dying almost instantly. He was thirty-one years old, born in London and had for twenty-four years been with the Hanlon voltors. Last August he had a similar accident at the Academy of Music, New York, falling from the dome and breaking his left shoulder blade. His work was upon the horizontal bar in the center, Robert and James Hanlon doing the flying trapeze.

Robert and James will remain with Forepaugh through the balance of the season. William leaves a widow, but had no children. Coroner Clemens impaneled a jury, who returned a verdict of accidental death, exonerating Manager Cooper from all blame.

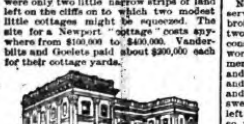
COTTAGES BY THE SEA.

TO COST A MILLION OR MORE DOLLARS EACH EXCLUSIVE OF THE GROUNDS.

Will Love Be Less Likely to Reign in the Humble Home the Poets Sing of, than in These Cumbrous of Rural Architecture?

We all know what love is a cottage is: The stuffy sitting room overrun with bawling children, a smell of cooking in the bedrooms, flies in the butter, meat burned to a cinder one day and served raw the next, an hysterical incompetent maid of all work, a skeletonized disheartened wife, and little Cupid sitting up aloft, disgruntled and disillusioned, treed like a pet kitten that has had its first experience with a fox-terrier. Oh, yes! We all know what love in a cottage is. But do you? You know they live in cottages at Newport, when there is said to be love there, and some people manage to scrape along very comfortably in them.

When the Vanderbilts and Goelets came to Newport they wanted to have cottages of their own and pay no rent. Here is the way they built them. Every one knows that a Newport cottage must be on the cliffs to be a real cottage. So the real estate agents of which there are eleven hundred and sixteen at Newport, were all called in, and after great pains and minute search, they discovered that there were only two little narrow strips of land left on the cliffs on which two modern little cottages might be squeezed. The site for a Newport "cottage" costs anywhere from $100,000 to $400,000. Vanderbilts and Goelets paid about $200,000 each for their cottage yards.



THE VANDERBILT COTTAGE.

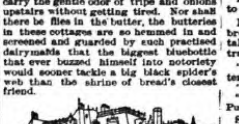
The next thing was to call in one Richard M. Hunt, a good carpenter and builder, by the day, who among other jobs ran up the Roman Catholic Cathedral in New York. He was quite willing to undertake to build a unique cottage for each of the gentlemen. What material would they have? Mr. Vanderbilt thought he preferred white marble, it looked so cool and comfortable in hot weather, and Mr. Goelet he rather wanted Indiana granite, because it wouldn't soil so easily in dirty weather. About the cost?

As to that Mr. Vanderbilt really didn't care. He just wanted a cottage, you know, to live in and keep cool two or three months a year, but Mr. Goelet, he was more prudent, and hoped and expected that Mr. Hunt would be able to carry out his very modest ideas and keep within $1,000,000, of course not including the cost of the land.

The accompanying pictures make it plain to the merest tyro in architecture that Mr. Hunt has done his work well and produced two cottages the like of which were never seen before even in Newport.

These $1,000,000 or so stuffy sitting rooms overrun with bawling children. Five hundred pairs of twins could not stuff the suites of enormous drawing rooms in these houses, even if the children were allowed in the drawing room, which they are not. On the contrary they have most elaborate apartments of their own, including study rooms, play rooms, nurseries and dining rooms, all secluded and isolated from the show part of the house, where they can work their little brains, lungs and appetites to their heart's content without ever interfering in the least with mamma or her guests.

As to the smell of cooking in the bedrooms, the kitchens in these houses are so far away from the living rooms that even a strong Newport nor'easter could not carry the aromatic odor of viper and onions upstairs without getting tired. Nor shall there be flies in the butter, the butteries in these cottages are so hemmed in and screened and guarded by such practised dairymaids that the biggest bluebottle that ever buzzed himself into notoriety would never tackle a big black spider's web than the shrine of bread's closest friend.



THE GOELET COTTAGE.

Neither will the meat be ill cooked or served up cold, as there will be two steam broilers and ovens enough to keep a chef, two assistants and four kitchenmaids in constant employment, and the maid of all work will be a steward, a butler, four footmen, a housekeeper and four housemaids, and the poor little housewife may wax fat and try on her pretty gowns all day long and never worry whether there is any sweet oil in the house or if Mary Ann has left the cork out of the pickle bottle. And so, with the head coachman and the dozen stablemen, and the head gardener and his assistants, the Newport cottage becomes a little kingdom of its own, ruled by some mysterious, unseen power, working in noiseless, well greased grooves that never jar and disturb, but have the whole day long for the cultivation of that perfect love for which the Newport cottage is famous.

Butler's Book.

General Benjamin F. Butler will call his forthcoming autobiography "Butler's Book." His mother was a very religious woman, and she struck a bargain with Ben by which he was to commit to memory as many verses of Scripture as she explained chapters of the book to him. "I committed to memory," he says, "the four Gospels and could recollect them at call for a quotation in every part. I know every word, not even excepting the first eight verses of the first chapter of Matthew, where everybody begat everybody else."

What She Excels In.

A woman cannot bait a hook, or kill a mouse or rat; without a qualm in which to look, she can't put on her hat. A woman can't throw a stone, and hit a thing kerplunk; but bless her, she and alone, knows how to pack a trunk.—Detroit Free Press.

Stranger (in Devil's Gulch, Wayout territory)—H'm! Have you made provisions for a cemetery here?"

The Mistake Corrected.

The ruler of a small German State made his entry into a certain town. Just as the Burgomaster was delivering himself of a speech an ass began to bray most horribly, until the Prince at last exclaimed:

"Will someone make that donkey be quiet?"

The poor Burgomaster made a sudden pause in his speech, and inquired, in evident alarm:

"Does your Highness mean me?"

"No, the other one," the Prince replied.—Humoristisches.

A Man's Description.

Mrs. Billson—So you met Mrs. De Fashion on the street? I'm so glad. They say she's wearing a new bonnet just imported. Did you see it?

Mr. B.—Y-e-s, I noticed it.

Mrs. B.—That's splendid. How was it trimmed?

Mr. B.—Well, it had a cowcatcher in front, a tailboard behind, and a job-lot of assorted ribbons all around. You could easily make one like it.—N. Y. Weekly.

Women and Dress.

"The notion that women are fond of dress is a fallacious one."

"You think so?"

"I do. Whenever I go to the beach and see the women in their bathing suits lying on the sands or gathered in groups at the edge of the water, I am convinced that they have been greatly misrepresented. They don't seem to be a bit fond of dress.—Cape Cod Item.

"Doing Time" For Time.

Prison-visitor—And what brought you here, my poor man?

Convict—Havin' too much time on my hands.

Visitor—Ah! idleness is indeed the parent of crime.

Convict—That aint it, boss. I was caught with three watches in me pocket that I couldn't account for.—Judge.

Witness—Yes, sirree! He'd just washed his hands, so I knowed at wurst he must have had blood on 'em, or sunthin' extraor'hary.—Munsey's Weekly.

Not Love, But Lasses.

The hour was late. For ten minutes neither said a word. Then she spoke:

"We made molasses candy to-day."

"Y-yes," he faltered, "I'm sitting on some and can't get up."—N. Y. Herald.

WHICH ONE WAS KEPT?

There were two little kittens, a black and a gray,
And grandmamma said with a frown:
"It never will do to keep them both,
The black one we'd better drown.

"Don't cry, my dear," to tiny Rose,
"One kitten's enough to keep;
Now run to nurse, for 'tis growing late
And time you were fast asleep."

The morrow dawned, and rosy and sweet
Came little Rose from her nap;
The nurse said: "Do into mamma's room
And look in grandma's lap."

"Come here," said grandmamma, with a smile,
From the rocking-chair where she sat;
"God has sent you one little sister;
Now, what do you think of that?"

Rose looked at the babies a moment,
With their wee heads, yellow and brown,
And then to grandmamma soberly said,
"Which one are you going to drown?"

The wife of Gov. Campbell is one of the shrewdest politicians in Ohio. She is, besides, a woman of extraordinary tact, and so free from snobbishness and ostentation that she has made many an influential friend for her husband.

Shoes for Evening Wear.

Gold and silver kid shoes are a great deal worn; indeed, the supply of this special kid is hardly equal to the demand. Many jewels are introduced into the embroideries, and occasionally the whole ornamentation is composed of gems. Velvet is coming in for shoes, especially for bridesmaids, but they require paste buckles. Bronze shoes have returned to favor, and sometimes these are checked all over with very narrow ribbon.

With white dresses tan colored shoes with pointed toes and tiny buckles on the instep are much worn. Any great ornamentation on shoes is now out of date, but they are often made of gold and silver brocades and exquisite materials; and most of our leading shoemakers can make up pieces to match the dress into shoes. A few of the new shoes are richly embroidered in the colors of the brocades; the bows, if any, are exceedingly small. One novelty is a large meshed gold net appliqué all over the shoes on to satin. The high Louis XV heels are much worn.

Sunbonnets for Children.

Some of the new washing bonnets are certainly particularly becoming to the little faces for which they are intended. They are made with very high crowns, standing many inches above the head, long tucked curtains and triple frillings over the face and drawn on cord. Some are made in plain jaconet and others are embroidered on the crown and curtain and also on the front, which is box plaited just above the face.

A Serviceable Costume.

An exceedingly serviceable and at the same time stylish costume is depicted in the accompanying cut. It is suited to long walks over country and mountain roads, and affords an admirable traveling dress, although especially designed for fishing expeditions to mountain brooks.

A FISHING COSTUME.

It is in homespun, of a new shade of brown, checked with faint lines of pale blue and white. It is made with a plain skirt plaited at the back and just long enough to escape the ground. The jacket is turned back with revers to show a waistcoat of the same material.

Summer Mantles.

For the warm summer days the lace cape mantelets affords a dressy and at the same time lightweight wrap. Laces and passementeries are embroidered in these summer capes.

A CAPE MANTELET.

In the cut is shown one of these fashionable capes made in rich Chantilly lace. It has a Medici collar finished with a lace ruffle. There are lace epaulettes on the shoulders. The trimming consists of rows of jet passementeries which outline the figure at the back and edge the collar.

An Attractive Piece of Work.

The pretty head rest shown in the cut is described by Good Housekeeping. The material is honeycomb canvas with deep garnet in with floss. Linen floss is more effective than silk for this purpose, as the meshes of the canvas are so large that silk would not fill them as well as the floss. The conventional design is outlined in white floss, and the remainder of the surface is darned with yellow.

A HEAD REST.

A pretty finish is made at the bottom by a fringe of several shades of yellow, the floss being cut into lengths and darned into the lower meshes of the honeycomb in such a way as to form points.

Bows of yellow and white ribbon are fastened at the upper corners, and if desired a ribbon can be added by which it can be suspended to the chair. This is indeed a delightful piece of work that is both pretty and easily executed, and are as suitable for those requiring a far greater expenditure of time and labor.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. G. W. Endicott of Park avenue is summering at Lake Como, N. J.

Councilman Roberts of North avenue has gone to Mt. Pocono for the benefit of his health.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Harder of this city are registered at the Coleman House, Asbury Park.

Mr. Edwin Huntsman of Providence, R. I., is the guest of his brother, Mr. R. F. R. Huntsman of the Central Times.

Mrs. Oliva Bowden and Miss Louisa Olsen have returned to their homes in New York from a pleasant visit to Mrs. J. H. Roberts of Plainfield, Second street.

The funeral of the late Rebecca Pound, who died at her home on Central avenue, Sunday, took place from her late home this afternoon at half-past two o'clock.

Ex-Councilman R. O. Bowers and family have returned to their home, corner of Putnam avenue and Franklin street, from a pleasant stay at New Brunswick, Canada.

Mary Anna Castor died at her home in this city yesterday. Deceased was in the twenty-third year of her age. The funeral will take place from her late residence, 30 East Sixth street, Friday afternoon at half-past two o'clock.

On Sunday next at half-past five o'clock, Mr. William W. Warnock, formerly of this city, and Miss Mamie C. Furman, of Englewood, N. J., will be married at the latter place. Owing to a recent death in the groom's family only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties will be present at the ceremony.

Mrs. Hess's Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Lucy Hess, who lives near Union Village, started to go out to the garden for vegetables yesterday, and was descending the steps of the house, when she slipped on a cabbage-leaf which had been carelessly thrown on the steps. She was thrown headlong to the ground, and a sharp butcher-knife which she was holding was driven into her left breast, just grazing the heart. Had not the point of the knife struck one of the ribs, causing it to glance sideways, the heart would have been pierced. As it is, the wound is an exceedingly nasty one. Dr. Wescott of Scotch Plains, was called and dressed the wound. He says her escape from instant death is well nigh miraculous.

Cranford's Venitian Carnival.

The Executive Committee of the Cranford Boating Association has arranged for a grand Venitian carnival and regatta next Saturday at four p. m. The races will consist of single and double shells and single, double and upset canoe. For the carnival which will be held Aug. 15 a fine programme has been arranged. All boats and canoes will be decorated with Chinese lanterns, Japanese lanterns, and there will be a pyrotechnic display.

The Pumps Tested.

The pumps for the Plainfield Water Supply Company were tested yesterday to the presence of several officials of the company and a number of invited guests. Some of the pumps were found to leak badly. They have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons a day. Allowing forty gallons a day for the use of each person, that amount of water would supply a city of 125,000 population, as stated in yester-day's News.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

An Account of the Christian Endeavor Excursion Yesterday.

The Christian Endeavor excursion to Newburg yesterday was one of the most delightful trips ever taken from Plainfield. About 550 persons boarded the special train here, besides 250 excursionists from Dunellen, so there was ample accommodation on the train, which consisted of fifteen cars, and on the steamer "Myndert Starin," during the sail up and down the Hudson.

At Newburgh, which point was reached at 12 p. m., many of the party visited Washington's headquarters, dozens of young people strolled along the bluff and enjoyed the view across the river, and quite a number remained on the boat during the hour and a half allowed to them ashore.

Returning the party reached Jersey City at 8:30, arriving at Plainfield at 10 o'clock, a tired but happy crowd. Nothing occurred on the trip to mar the pleasantness of the journey. During the sail up-river an attempt was made on the part of the boat attaches, it is asserted, to dispense something stronger than soda water and sarsaparilla to outsiders at the bar, but on complaint to the Committee of Arrangements this business was promptly stopped and the bar entirely closed. So many begged to be allowed to purchase soda water, however, that on the home trip the committee allowed a stand to be erected outside the bar, where the wants of the young people were satisfied.

Altogether the excursion was a complete success. The Warren Union Mission C. E. Society and the society connected with the Trinity Reformed church was well represented. Dunellen, New Market, Bound Brook and other points along the road sent a large number of Endeavorers whom the Social Committee found no difficulty in introducing. A string band of five pieces made merry music on the way and during the afternoon the singers on board enjoyed an impromptu concert in the cabin.

BURGLARS OUTWITTED.

An Electric Alarm Simple in Construction That Never Fails.

A new burglar alarm that has recently been patented contains many new and novel features. In setting the alarm the person who locks up the premises presses a button on the side of the door, which closes the electric circuit. This closes the necessary circuit for putting the alarm in working order for the night. After this is done, no one can enter the building, even if the wires leading to the door and window springs are in full view.

If the alarm connected with the police station is sprung, there is an audible alarm on the outside of the building is instantly put in circuit, so the building is never without protection.

Who Stole the Melon?

Several persons witnessed an amusing incident on West Front street last evening. Shortly after nine o'clock some colored people bought a large melon and sat down on the curb in front of the store of the Tea and Coffee Growers' Association to eat it. In some way a passer-by attracted the attention of the colored people while an accomplice stole the melon. When the latter party discovered the colored men were mad, and began to run up and down the streets in search of the missing melon. After the joker thought he had had enough fun with them he came out and asked what they were excited about. When informed, he told them that as he was walking along Exchange alley he saw a melon lying alongside a building. The "Gen'men" of color ran for the place and shortly returned with their coveted prize. One of them said "if we had lost dat melon it would almost a broken our hearts." After they recovered it the melon was very soon devoured without any ceremony.

Water Works for Cranford.

The village of Cranford is to have a system of water works. A franchise to construct the works was obtained in 1870 from the State Legislature, but the charter has since lain dormant. A meeting will be held to-morrow night at the Town Hall to take steps toward constructing a plant. A majority of the original corporators have signed the call for the meeting and books will be opened for subscriptions to the capital stock. The Rahway river runs through the village, but the proposed waterworks will not derive their supply from that source.

The German Picnic.

The children connected with the Sunday school of the German Reformed church will go on a picnic in Hyde's Grove to-morrow afternoon, weather permitting. In case of rain the picnic will be held on Friday. Arrangements have been made with Mr. M. Higgins, the liveryman to convey the party to the grounds in stages. The first stage will leave the church at 1:30 p. m., other stages will leave at short intervals.

Grand Officers.

Supreme Dictator and the Grand Officers of the State will visit Wetumpka Lodge, 3403, Knights of Honor, Thursday evening, July 16th, 1891. Visitors from the other Lodges in the State will be present. The committee of arrangements have made special efforts to give the visitors and members of the Lodge a royal good time.

—The First Baptist Sunday school excursion will go to Belmar to-morrow.

SAVED THE STATE $3000

WILLIAM A. HALL GRANTED A PARDON BY THE COURT.

Appointed to a Clerkship in the Prison at a Salary of $1,200 a Year. A Number of Other Convicts Receive Their Pardons or are Granted a Parole—The Court Met at Sea Girt.

A meeting of the Court of Pardons was held yesterday afternoon in the Governor's quarters at Sea Girt. Gov. Abbett, Judges Smith, Brown, Whitaker, Clement and Bogert, and Chancellor McGill were present. State Prison Supervisor Seymour and several of the other prison officials were also in attendance.

The court decided to pardon William A. Hall of Newark, who was convicted some years ago of embezzling funds in the office of the comptroller of Newark. His sentence was twelve years, and the term is now within three months of expiration. The pardon was granted on the recommendation of the prison authorities. It is understood the fact that Hall had saved the State $3,000 during the past eight years by performing certain clerical duties. They also stated that they had just appointed Hall to a clerkship in the prison at a salary of $1,200 per annum.

William Haddock, of Mercer County, sentenced in December, 1890, to five years' imprisonment for manslaughter, was paroled. He shot and killed Matthew Bergen. The parole was granted upon a strong petition.

E. Vanvetter, sentenced in Bergen County, in October, 1890, for assault and battery, was also paroled, as was Charles Acker, who was convicted of manslaughter for shooting Jacob Syed in the Princeton Post-Office in July 1889.

Pardons were also granted as follows: James Pennington, Camden, embezzlement, sentenced to six months; James Yost, Middlesex, assault and battery, eighteen months; James Smith, Hudson, bigamy, three years; Robert Marplaine, Cumberland, assault and battery, one year; Peter Cushler, Morris, malicious mischief, two years; M. Delaney, Ocean, breaking and entering, one year; Peter Burns, Passaic, larceny and receiving, two years; William Thornton, Essex, assaults and battery, four months; Henry James, Essex, assault and battery, four months; Francisco Frangolia, Essex, receiving, ten months; Asburn McLaughlin, George Zimmerman, Jacob Johnson, S. Parent, ninety days each for keeping a disorderly house.

The members of the court declare that in each case their action was prompted by the recommendations from the prosecutors and Judges of the respective counties.

MISS SHOTWELL'S DIAMONDS.

An Unexpected Verdict in an Elizabeth Court Against a Lawyer.

A jury yesterday in the Elizabeth District Court surprised the lawyers by rendering a verdict against Lawyer Louis A. Graff in a suit which Miss Sallie J. Shotwell of Rahway brought against him for the recovery of a diamond sold at a Sheriff's sale four years ago. Edson W. Hubbard, a salesman for a New York house, became insane, and was sent to the Morris Plains Asylum, where he was discharged as cured last April, and he is now living in New York. He boarded with his wife's cousin, Miss Shotwell, when he became crazy, and she took charge of his effects.

The Union County Board of Freeholders ordered the Sheriff to levy on the goods when the man was discharged and sell them to pay a part of the expense incurred for Hubbard's board at Morris Plains. Among them was a $65 diamond belonging to Miss Shotwell, which Lawyer Graff bought for $26.50.

The Sheriff said Miss Shotwell had presented it to Hubbard, who was a great admirer of hers, and who has been a widower ten years. She disclaimed the gift and brought suit against the lawyer for $100. The jury awarded her a verdict in fifteen minutes. Lawyer Graff, according to this, will not only have to pay her the money, but likewise must pay $10 costs of trial. He cannot recover from the Sheriff and his only redress is to sue the county.

"Keep It Out of the Paper."

"Keep it out of the paper" is the cry which the local newspaper publisher daily hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting scarcely worth saying "thank you" for. A newspaper is a peculiar article to the public's eyes. The news gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of an item, and is abused because he does not get another. Young men, and often young women, as well as older persons, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper offices to beg the editors not to notice their escapades. The next day they condemn the same person for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting, apparently, their late visit to the printing office. The subscribers expect to read the news, and there is always wonder when, for charity's sake, an item on the street and in everybody's mouth is not found in the next issue of the paper. —New Brunswick Home News.

Dr. Kennedy's Favo rite Remedy is a blessing. It has saved thousands, and is will save you. If you are sick and miserable, we advise you to spend One Dollar for this King of Medicines.—ADV.

WEATHER SERVICE.

Facts Useful to Farmers and All Classes of People.

The reports of the correspondents of the Weekly Crop Bulletin issued by the New Jersey State Weather Service for the week ending Friday, July 10th, 1891, show that the rainfall has been decidedly above the average in all parts of the State, especially in the southern portion, where the total was 3.82 inches. In the northern and central portions only about one-half of this amount was measured.

The temperature and sunshine have been below the weekly average and have greatly retarded the ripening of early tomatoes, melons and other plants. Corn has been greatly improved by the rains and is now considered a fair stand, although the cool nights have prevented a more vigorous growth; potatoes, early white, are yielding well in some of the southern counties, and the late varieties are reported to be in a most promising condition in nearly all the districts.

Oats have suffered some by the rain, although the recent drought caused considerable dropping. The heavy rains have prevented the finishing up of the harvest, and while many fields of grain were cut and not housed when the rains came on, no fears are entertained as to injury done, owing to the brisk winds and bright sunshine which immediately followed. The yield of timothy hay is reported to be much heavier than that of two weeks ago. In portions of Middlesex county it will be as much as one and one-half tons to the acre.

The "black rot" is reported among the grape vines in the vicinity of Egg Harbor City, Atlantic county, and Beverly, Burlington county.

PLAINFIELD, UNION COUNTY.

The long dry spell of weather was broken Tuesday p. m. by a refreshing rain, that lasted until Wednesday night, generally and all kinds of vegetation that were suffering and parched by the drought will burn, however, looking thrifty and bids fair to be an average crop. Hay will not come within 50 per cent. of last year's product, the price having already advanced $4 per ton. Oats are short but well filled. Cherries and berries have been unusually plentiful, large and rich. The highest temperature this week was 72 degrees, lowest 66 degrees.

R. S. SHAW.

SOMERVILLE, SOMERSET COUNTY.

All the weather conditions of the week have been most beneficial to all crops. The fine rains, which measured 1.08 inches, have revived all crops, especially oats, corn and potatoes. Corn now looking vigorous and promising, was cut short by recent drought and will not yield more than one-half a crop in this section. The condition of peaches continues fair; apples are falling and the yield will be short. A. P. SUTPHEN.

Worth Knowing.

We last week printed a paragraph which conveyed the intelligence that if a little corn starch be put in the salt used on the table it will keep it from lumping, and the pretty little shakers will not get so hard a scolding in dampish weather. A notable Bound Brook lady has since added her experience with the corn starch remedy. She says that a teaspoonful of the starch is sufficient for a pint of the salt. Mix it thoroughly with the salt and bake the salt in the oven of the stove for one hour. If, after that the salt is disposed to be lumpy—which it may be occasionally—give it another bake of an hour. Use the finest table salt obtainable, and if treated in this way no inconvenience will result from damp weather or other cause.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. G. W. Endicott of Park avenue is summering at Lake Como, N. J.

Councilman Roberts of North avenue has gone to Mt. Pocono for the benefit of his health.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Harder of this city are registered at the Coleman House, Asbury Park.

Mr. Edwin Huntsman of Providence, R. I., is the guest of his brother, Mr. R. F. R. Huntsman of the Central Times.

The funeral of the late Rebecca Pound, who died at her home on Central avenue, Sunday, took place from her late home this afternoon at half-past two o'clock.

Ex-Councilman R. O. Bowers and family have retured to their home, corner of Putnam avenue and Franklin place, from a pleasant stay at New Brunswick, Canada.

Mary Anna Castor died at her home in this city yesterday. Deceased was in the twenty-third year of her age. The funeral will take place from her late residence, 169 East Sixth street, Friday afternoon at half-past two o'clock.

On Sunday next at half-past five o'clock, Mr. William W. Warnock, formerly of this city, and Miss Mamie C. Furman, of Englewood, N. J., will be united in marriage at the latter place. Owing to a recent death in the groom's family only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties will be present at the ceremony.

Mrs. Hess's Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Lucy Hess, who lives near Union Village, started to go out to the garden for vegetables yesterday, and was descending the steps of the house, when she slipped on a cabbage-leaf which had been carelessly thrown on the steps. She was thrown headlong to the ground, and a sharp butcher-knife which she was holding was driven into her left breast, just grazing the heart. Had not the point of the knife struck one of the ribs, causing it to glance sideways, the heart would have been pierced. As it is, the wound is an exceedingly nasty one. Dr. Wescott of Scotch Plains, was called and dressed the wound. He says her escape from instant death is well nigh miraculous.

Cranford's Venitian Carnival.

The Executive Committee of the Cranford Boating Association has arranged for a grand Venitian carnival and regatta next Saturday at four p. m. The races will consist of single and double shells and single, double and upset canoe. For the carnival which will be held Aug. 15 a fine programme has been arranged. The boats and canoes will be decorated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns, and there will be a pyrotechnic display.

The Pumps Tested.

The pumps for the Plainfield Water Supply Company were tested yesterday in the presence of several officials of the company and a number of invited guests. Some of the pumps were found to leak badly. They have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons a day. Allowing forty gallons a day for the use of each person, that amount of water would supply a city of 125,000 population, as stated in yesterday's News.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

An Account of the Christian Endeavor Excursion Yesterday.

The Christian Endeavor excursion to Newburg yesterday was one of the most delightful trips ever taken from Plainfield. About 550 persons boarded the special train here, besides 250 excursionists from Dunellen, so there was ample accommodation on the train, which consisted of fifteen cars, and on the steamer "Mylndert Starin," during the sail up and down the Hudson.

At Newburgh, which point was reached at 3 p. m., many of the party visited Washington's headquarters, dozens of young people strolled along the bluff and enjoyed the view across the river, and quite a number remained on the boat during the hour and a half allowed to them ashore.

Returning the party reached Jersey City at 8.30, arriving at Plainfield at 10 o'clock, a tired but happy crowd. Nothing occurred on the trip to mar the pleasantness of the journey. During the sail up-river an attempt was made on the part of the boat attaches, it is asserted, to dispense something stronger than soda water and sarsaparilla to outsiders at the bar, but on complaint to the Committee of Arrangements this business was promptly stopped and the bar entirely closed. So many begged to be allowed to purchase soda water, however, that on the home trip the committee allowed it stated to crowd outside the bar, where the wants of the young people were satisfied.

Altogether the excursion was a complete success. The Warren Union Mission and Trinity Reformed church were well represented. Dunellen, New Market, Bound Brook and other points along the road sent a large number of Endeavorers when the Social Committee found no difficulty in introducing. A string band of five pieces made merry music on the way and during the afternoon the singers on board enjoyed an impromptu concert in the cabin.

BURGLARS OUTWITTED.

A new burglar alarm that has recently been patented contains many new and novel features. In setting the alarm the person who locks up the premises presses a button on the outside of the door which in turn operates a drop that closes the necessary circuit for putting the alarm in working order for the night. After this is done, no one can enter the building, even if the wire leading to the door and window springs in full view.

If the alarm connected with the police station has the circuit cut, an audible alarm on the outside of the building is instantly put in circuit, so the building is never without protection.

Who Stole the Melon?

Several persons witnessed an amusing incident on Central Front street this morning. Shortly after nine o'clock some colored men bought a water-melon and sat down on the curb in front of the store of the Tea and Coffee Growers' Association to eat it. In some way a passer-by attracted the attention of the colored people while an accomplice stole the melon. When the theft was discovered the colored men were mad, and began to run up and down the streets in search of the missing melon. After the joker had finished his sport he returned to them he innocently asked what they were excited about. When informed, he told them that as he was walking along Exchange alley he saw a melon lying alongside a building. The "Gen'men" of color ran for the place and shortly returned with their coveted prize. One of them said "if we had lost dat melon it would almost a broken our hearts." After they recovered it the melon was very soon devoured without any ceremony.

Water Works for Cranford.

The village of Cranford is to have a system of water works. A franchise to construct the works was obtained in 1889 from the State Legislature, but the charter has since lain dormant. A meeting will be held to-morrow night at the Town Hall to take steps toward constructing a plant. A majority of the original corporators have signed the call for the meeting and books will be opened for subscriptions to the capital stock. The Rahway river runs through the village, but the proposed waterworks will not derive their supply from that source.

The German Picnic.

The children connected with the Sunday school of the German Reformed church will go on a picnic in Hyde's Grove to-morrow afternoon, weather permitting. Cause of ruin the picnic will be held on Friday. Arrangements have been made with Mr. M. Higgins, the liveryman to convey the party to the grounds in stages. The first stage will leave the church at 2.30 p. m., other stages will leave at short intervals.

Grand Officers.

Supreme Dictator and the Grand Officers of the State will visit Wetumpka Lodge, 3401, Knights of Honor, Thursday evening, July 16th, 1891. Visitors from the other Lodges in the State will be present. The committee of arrangements have made special efforts to give the visitors and members of the Lodge a royal good time.

—The First Baptist Sunday school excursion will go to Belmar to-morrow.

WILLIAM A. HALL GRANTED A PARDON BY THE COURT.

Appointed to a Clerkship in the Prison at a Salary of $1,200 a Year.

A Number of Other Convicts Receive Their Pardons or are Granted a Parole—The Court Met at Sea Girt.

A meeting of the Court of Pardons was held yesterday afternoon in the Governor's quarters at Sea Girt. Gov. Abbett, Judges Smith, Brown, Whitaker, Clement and Bogert, and Chancellor McGill were present. State Prison Supervisor Seymour and several of the other prison officials were also in attendance.

The court decided to pardon William A. Hall of Newark, who was convicted some years ago of embezzling funds in the office of the comptroller of Newark. His sentence was twelve years, and the term is now within three months of expiration. The pardon was granted on the recommendation of the prison authorities, who informed the court that Hall had saved the State $3,000 during the past eight years by performing certain clerical duties. They also stated that they had just appointed Hall to a clerkship in the prison at a salary of $1,200 per annum.

William Haddock, of Mercer County, sentenced in December, 1890, to five years' imprisonment for manslaughter, was pardoned. He shot and killed Marshew Dugan. The parole was granted upon a strong petition.

E. Vanvetter, sentenced in Bergen County, in October, 1890, for assault and battery, was also paroled, as was Charles Acker, who was convicted of manslaughter for shooting Jacob Yard in the Princeton Post-Office in July 1889.

Pardons were also granted as follows: James Pennington, Camden, embezzlement, sentenced to six months; James Yost, Middlesex, assault and battery, eighteen months; James Smith, Hudson, bigamy, three years; Robert Marpiune, Cumberland, assault and battery, one year; Peter Cushler, Morris, malicious mischief, two years; M. Delaney, Ocean, breaking and entering, one year; Peter Burns, Passaic, larceny and receiving, two years; William Thornton, Essex, assault and battery, four months; Henry James, Essex, assault and battery, four months; Francisco Frangolin, Essex, entering, ten months; Asharm McLaughlin, George Zimmerman, Jacob Johnson, S. Parent, ninety days each for keeping a disorderly house.

The members of the court declare that in each case their action was prompted by the recommendations from the prosecutors and Judges of the respective counties.

MISS SHOTWELL'S DIAMONDS.

A jury yesterday in the Elizabeth District Court surprised the lawyers by rendering a verdict against Lawyer Louis A. Graff in a suit which Miss Sallie J. Shotwell of Rahway brought against him for the recovery of a diamond sold, at a Sheriff's sale four years ago. Edson W. Hubbard, a salesman for a New York house, became insane, and was sent to the Morris Plains Asylum, where he was discharged as cured last April, and he is now living in New York. He boarded with his wife's cousin, Miss Shotwell, when he became crazy, and she took charge of his diamonds.

The Union County Board of Freeholders ordered the Sheriff to levy on the goods when the man was discharged and sell them to pay a part of the expense incurred for Hubbard's board at Morris Plains. Lawyer Graff bought a diamond belonging to Miss Shotwell, which Lawyer Graff bought for $25.50.

The Sheriff said Miss Shotwell had presented it to Hubbard, who was a great admirer of hers, and who has been a widower for two years. She claims that the gift and brought suit against the lawyer for $100. The jury awarded her a verdict in fifteen minutes. Lawyer Graff, according to this, will not only have to pay her the money, but likewise must pay $10 costs of trial. He cannot recover from the Sheriff and his only redress is to sue the county.

"Keep It Out of the Paper."

"Keep it out of the paper" is the cry which the local newspaper publisher daily hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting scarcely worth saying "thank you" for. A newspaper is a peculiar article in the public's eyes. The news gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of an item, and is abused because he does not get another. Young men and often young women, as well as older persons, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper offices to beg the editors not to notice their escapades. The next day they condemn the paper as unfair for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting, apparently, their late visit to the printing office. The subscribers expect to read the news, and there is always wonder when, for charity's sake, an item on the street and in everybody's mouth is not found in the next issue of the paper. —New Brunswick Home News.

WEATHER SERVICE.

The reports of the correspondents of the Weekly Crop Bulletin issued by the New Jersey State Weather Service for the week ending Friday, July 10th, 1891, show that the rainfall has been decidedly above the average in all parts of the State, especially in the southern portion, where the total was 3.82 inches. In the northern and central portions only about one-half of this amount was measured.

The temperature and sunshine have been below the weekly average and have greatly retarded the ripening of early tomatoes, melons and other plants. Corn has been greatly improved by the rains and is now considered a fair stand, although the cool nights have prevented a more vigorous growth; potatoes, early white, are yielding well in some of the southern counties, and the late varieties are reported to be in a most promising condition in nearly all the districts.

Oats are looking well, as a rule, although the recent drought caused considerable dropping. The heavy rains have prevented the finishing up of the harvest, and while many fields of grain were cut and not secured before the rains came on, no fears are entertained as to injury done, owing to the brisk winds and bright sunshine which immediately followed. The yield of timothy hay is reported to be much heavier than reported some weeks ago. In portions of Middlesex county it will be as high as one and one-half tons to the acre.

The "black rot" is reported among the grape vines in the vicinity of Egg Harbor City, Atlantic county, and Beverly, Burlington county.

PLAINFIELD, UNION COUNTY.

The long dry spell of weather was broken Tuesday p. m. by a refreshing rain, that lasted until Wednesday night, greatly reviving all kinds of vegetation that were suffering and parched by the drought. Corn, however, is looking finely and bids fair to be an average crop. Hay will not come within 50 per cent. of last year's crop, the price having already advanced $4 per ton. Oats are short but well filled. Cherries and berries have been unusually plentiful, large and rich. The highest temperature this week was 72 degrees, lowest 66 degrees. R. J. SHAW.

SOMERVILLE, SOMERSET COUNTY.

All the weather conditions of the week have been most beneficial to all crops. The fine rains, which measured 3.08 inches, have revived the crops, especially oats, corn and potatoes. Corn now looking vigorous and promising; owing to short by recent drought and will not yield more than one-half a crop in this county. The condition of peaches continues fair; apples are falling and the yield will be short. A. P. SUTPHEN.

Worth Knowing.

We last week printed a paragraph which conveyed the intelligence that if a little corn stanch be put in the salt used on the table it will keep it from lumping, and the pretty little shakers will not get so hard a scolding in damp weather. A noble wife in Bound Brook already has since added her experience with the corn starch remedy. She says that a teaspoonful of the starch is sufficient for a pint of the salt. Mix it thoroughly with the salt and bake the whole in the oven of the stove for one hour. If, after that the salt is disposed to be lumpy—which it may be occasionally—give it another bake of an hour. Use the finest table salt obtainable, and if treated in this way no inconvenience will result from damp weather or other cause.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

A MYSTERY NO LONGER.

Pete Nolan the Man Who Struck Billy Patterson.

PISTOLS PULLED AT CLEVELAND.

Bad Blood Among the Democratic Delegates Caused a General Fusillade, but No One Was Hurt—The Important Ohio Convention Opened.

CLEVELAND, July 15.—The dense, opaque gloom that has heretofore surrounded that pertinent query, "Who struck Billy Patterson?" was cleared away in a satisfactory but somewhat alarming manner last evening. Pete Nolan, known as the "gentleman prize fighter" of Porkopolis, is the man who dared lay violent hands upon the famous William. It happened thus: With the arrival of Governor Campbell and his strong contingents from every quarter of the state, and the almost simultaneous appearance of the solid anti-Campbell delegation from Hamilton county with a small army of sympathizers at their back, the feeling between the great majority and the smaller faction was worked up to fever heat.

From noon on had tempered discussions, disputes and quarrels in the barrooms, in the hotel rotunda and at the street corners were of momentary occurrence. The anti-Campbellites are not as numerous as their opponents, but they are gaining and hard to down, and they have staked thousands of dollars that they can say to-day, they will slaughter Campbell in November next.

Nolan on the Warpath.

It was only by accident that the bad blood failed to culminate in wholesale murder. To offset the efforts of the anti-Campbell delegation from Hamilton county the friends of Governor Campbell's supporters at once entered upon missionary work.

Prominent among them was Pete Nolan, known as "the gentleman prize fighter," of Porkopolis. Pete had barely struck the town before he was buttonholing delegation after delegation, and before one conceded that Campbell had the convention beyond peradventure, but Nolan was not disposed to allow the idea that the Hamilton county delegation represented the entire Democracy of that county to be accepted without question. Nolan wound up his work last night at the Wendell house. And as he was leaving that hotel he encountered two Neal delegates from Cincinnati, "Colonel" Billy Patterson and his brother, known as "Cheeky Jim" Patterson.

He Struck Billy Patterson.

A running fire of hot words followed the meeting and then came the climax to history by letting out a link in his right and striking Billy Patterson in the eye. Billy went to earth, but even on the fall he drew his revolver and sent bullet after bullet into the darkness.

His brother followed suit, so did Nolan, and so did half a dozen of the hundred spectators who had belabor between them. Altogether over a score of shots were fired, and that one and all got wide of the mark is an only too palpable in the light of a providential mystery. Before Billy Patterson had emptied his revolver, however, he struggled to his feet and brought the butt of the weapon down on Nolan's head. The two men clinched and went into the gutter, and Jimmy Patterson and a wouldbe peacemaker went to stop them. A crowd of over a thousand soon surrounded the combatants. The latter, with heads and faces badly contused and bleeding very freely, were finally separated and led away. It was reported that a commercial traveler from Pittsburg had been shot through the shoulder, but the police knew nothing of it.

"Anybody Beat Bellamy."

"Anybody and anything to beat Campbell," is the cry of the governor's opponents this morning. At the Wendell house the denouncing the governor in venomous phraseology were cheered to the echo. There were Kline men and Neal men, who had no choice except that they would not have Campbell. Resolutions declaring that the nomination of the latter would result in an overwhelming Democratic defeat were adopted with a hurrah. While exploring the bad feeling that has been manifested, Governor Campbell in the bridal chamber of the Hollenden was taking things quietly and with apparent contentment of mind. He threw down the gauntlet to his opponents upon entering the hotel.

Mounting a chair in response to calls for a speech, Governor Campbell pointed his index finger to the opposition corner and said quietly: "Now, gentlemen, I'll make my speech Wednesday afternoon."

Campbell Is Confident.

Later, in conversation, he said that not only would he be nominated on the first ballot, but he would be elected by a big majority. A man may stay at the labor colonies two years and must stay three or four months. The work of this vagrant colony has changed the wild lands of the farm into a blooming garden and beautiful landscape.

The best part of the story is, however, that the parson and this side find that only one man in twenty is an incorrigible vagrant. Fifteen per cent of the persons discharged from the labor colonies go into permanent situations, and one-fourth of those who have left the colonies are known to have become respectable citizens.

The union of public with private charity in Germany has resulted well.

Fell Dead at His Wife's Funeral.

BRENSVILLE, Ills., July 15.—While the funeral services over the body of the wife of the Rev. W. B. F. Corley were being performed in the Methodist church at Tower Hill, last night, the husband fell dead on the floor and expired in a few minutes. The services were suspended and the deceased clergyman and his dead wife were interred together.

An Artist Horsewhipped.

ATLANTA, July 15.—G. H. Walter, who is known as "Professor Bird," horsewhipped Harry Erminie, a sketch artist, who had made sketches of Walter for the purpose of ridiculing them. Walter used a Blackjack whip, and Erminie, it is said, received a severe thrashing before any one could interfere. Five hundred women and children witnessed the affair.

Scientists tell us now that the material of which the sun is composed is exactly the same as that of the earth, and that, in short, our little planet was once a part of the sun and has been thrown off into space by that great globe of fire.

EDISON'S BIG VICTORY.

He Now Holds a Monopoly on Incandescent Lamps.

NEW YORK, July 15.—A decision by Judge Wallace has been filed in the United States circuit court in the case of the Edison Electric Light company (owned by the Westinghouse company), sustaining the Edison patent on the incandescent lamp. The suit was begun in 1885. The taking of the testimony occupied two years.

The present manufacture of incandescent lamps throughout the world is about 75,000 a day. Of this number 50,000 are made in the United States, 15,000 in England and the rest in France and Germany. More than half of the whole number are made by the Edison company, one-fourth by the Westinghouse and Thompson Houston companies, and the rest by numerous small corporations. The Edison patent was sustained in England two years ago by two different appellate courts, hence nearly all the incandescent lamps of the world hereafter will be manufactured under Edison's patents.

The decision not only stops the manufacture by other companies, but also requires all of them to account to the Edison company for profits on all lamps heretofore manufactured. S. B. Eaton, general counsel for all the Edison companies, said last evening:

"It is impossible to estimate how much we will profit by this last item, but it can safely be computed to amount to several millions of dollars. The increased profit arising out of the monopoly manufacture will at the present rate of production amount to fully $6,000,000 a year, and as the demand for incandescent lamps nearly doubles every year, these profits will correspondingly increase during the remaining years which the patents have to run."

THE FALL OF THE BASTILE.

Frenchmen the World Over Have a Glorious Time.

PARIS, July 13.—The Fourteenth of July was observed throughout France with appropriate ceremonies and general rejoicing. The fête was at first a mere imposing procession of the Alsace-Lorraine societies. Enormous crowds of people assembled in the street and saluted the men in line with cries of "Vive la France!"

The procession stopped at the Strasbourg statue and laid memorial wreaths, bouquets and tricolor flags upon it. There was no disturbance of the peace. Among those who were decorated by President Carnot in commemoration of the fall of the Bastile were three Americans. They were Mr. Van Bergen, Dr. Nachtel and Mr. Schweitzer, a delegate from the New York Benevolent society. The first two were appointed officers of the Legion of Honor and Dr. Schweitzer was appointed a Knight of the Legion of Honor.

At New York.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The French societies of this city and vicinity celebrated the 102d anniversary of the fall of the Bastile and the 101st anniversary of the emancipation of the Jews in France Tuesday afternoon and evening. The French ships in the harbor were gayly decorated, and the French flag was seen on many houses. The principal ceremony occurred in two parks in the upper part of the city, in both of which places Vicomte Paul D'Abzac, consul general of France, delivered addresses.

At Two State Camps.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 15.—The men suffered so much from the heat during the day that their work was cut short. The Seventh of the Twelfth regiment, however, are a sturdy lot of looking fellows, and they did not shirk work on account of the sweltering weather.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 15.—Camp Leon Abbett presented an animated appearance in the morning. The members of the First brigade turned out early and went through the usual routine of field work in good order. A feature of the day was the target practice of the gun detachment, which practiced on the target a mile out at sea. Governor Abbett will review the troops on Thursday.

A Clever Swindler Caught.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Eugene G. L. Koch, has been arrested charged with having victimized merchants in this city and neighboring cities by means of forged checks. His operations have been quite extensive. In his pockets were found letters to Chauncey M. Depew and William Astor, in which these men were notified that he had a valuable patent for sale. It is supposed he wanted to get their influence with the Chinese in his check working business. Koch is a remarkably intelligent man, and is a graduate from Heidelberg university.

Jewels to Aid Missionaries.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 15.—A peculiar scene was witnessed in the tabernacle at Round Lake, the Christian Alliance convention. When the appeal was made for contributions to aid in sending missionaries to Africa, Miss Louise Sheppard, a former dashing Saratoga belle, gave her diamonds and $250. Then followed a great rush of men, women and children and the table was soon piled with gold jewels and money.

The Coroner Racked Down.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Coroner Levy did not exhume the body of, Harris A Smiller, the executed murderer, as he had announced he would do. When he read the articles of impeachment against Talcor, in which the latter said that if the coroner dug up Smiller's body he would be guilty of a misdemeanor, he concluded to take no action. He says he will not hold the inquest until he hears from Mr. Tabor.

The President's Busy Day.

CAPE MAY, July 15.—The president passed a busy morning with his secretary, Banker D. O. Mills and daughter, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, wife of the minister to France, made a call on the president and Mrs. Harrison in the evening. It is understood that Mills was the bearer of important dispatches from Minister Reid concerning the export of American food to France.

Murdered by a Missis sippi Mob.

NASHVILLE, July 15.—At Love, Miss., Samuel Gillespie rescued another negro, charged with larceny, from an officer. He was arrested and lodged in a room. About midnight a mob of masked men took charge of the negro. They marched him to a tree and shot him to death. The corpse was found, and twenty-one bullet holes are in different parts of his body.

FIENDS IN HUMAN FORM.

Texas Robbers Cut the Throats of Three Children

AND FATALLY WOUND A WOMAN.

Deadly Work of Policeman Ryerson at Jersey City—Mr. and Mrs. James Brennan Attack Him and Receive Thrusts Death at the Muzzle of His Revolver.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 15.—At 1 a. m. two men went to the home of George Newberry, two miles west of Joshua, and demanded admittance. Mr. Newberry being absent, his aged mother supposed that it was her youngest home and opened the door. The men forced their way into the house and demanded money that they supposed had been received by Mr. Newberry a few days ago. Mrs. Newberry said there was no money about the house, whereupon the men proceeded into the yard, tied her to the gatepost and cut her throat.

Cut the Throats of Three Children.

One of the men then returned to the house, where three children were sleeping. The eldest, a child of seven, was asked where her papa's money was. The child's answer was that she would tell her father on him. The fiend then took her out into the yard and cut her throat. Then he went to the house and cut the throat of the little girl, aged five, carried her into the yard and cut her throat with the same knife. Returning into the house he got the baby, two years old, carried him into the yard and killed him in like manner. The men piled the bodies together, slashed the knife and left it lying on the table.

She Cannot Recover.

Mrs. Newberry's neck shows seventeen gashes, but she was still living when found, and gave an account of the affair. She cannot recover. Sheriff Officers are securing the country for the murderers.

A Policeman's Deadly Work.

JERSEY CITY, July 15.—Mrs. William Brennan, of No. 32 Grey street, Jersey City Heights, who, while helping her husband and his nephew to murder Policeman Ryerson, was struck by the policeman before he sent a bullet through her husband's heart, is dead.

Policeman Ryerson surrendered himself after his deadly work and is now under arrest. There was a real old fashioned wedding jollification at 3 Grey street. Mr. Bulger had just taken his bride home. Mr. Bulger is a driver for Dodd & Child's express company, and his fellow drivers went to serenade the couple. Everybody had a good time, and there were two kegs of beer.

Attacked by a Giant.

William Brennan lived at 33 on the same street. Mrs. Bulger was Brennan's niece, and he was present at the serenade and celebration. Somebody accused Brennan of taking home some of the beer in a pail. Brennan was said to beat his accuser that was unsuccessful.

John Lawlor, Brennan's nephew, saw John Coyne, of 331 Tenth street, rush at Brennan and belabor him. Lawlor was going to assault him. Lawlor seized a soda water bottle and beat Coyne with it about the head. Coyne cried for help. Policeman John B. Ryerson, responding to the call, found Coyne leading against the fence with his face covered with blood. Lawlor was pointed out as the assailant and Policeman Ryerson arrested him. Then Brennan seized him by the shoulder and forced him to stop. Ryerson is a small man weighing about 140 pounds, while Brennan was a giant, weighing about 200 pounds.

She Was a Good Fighter, Too.

In the ensuing scuffle Lawlor broke away and ran for Brennan's home. The policeman followed him and caught him just as he was entering the kitchen door at the rear of the house. Mrs. Brennan was there at the same time and a fight between Brennan, and she was as good a fighter as her husband, who was the terror of the neighborhood. As Policeman Ryerson reached for Lawlor Brennan seized him by the throat. Lawlor threw his arms about Ryerson's neck and pulled his head back upon his shoulder. Mrs. Brennan belabored the policeman's head with a pine club. Brennan got in an occasional blow. The policeman was being badly beaten. He felt his strength giving out, and managed to pull out his pistol just as Lawlor lost his grip and started out of the kitchen.

Shot Down in Cold Blood.

Ryerson pulled the trigger and Mrs. Brennan staggered across the room. Brennan banged his opponent's head upon the floor once more and the policeman fired again. Brennan rolled over on his back, for the bullet, entering his abdomen, had passed through his heart. More policemen soon arrived and caught Lawlor as they entered. They helped Ryerson to the station house, where he gave himself up. Mrs. Brennan, while she had walked to the City hospital, three blocks away. It was seen that she could not live, for the bullet had entered her abdomen and cut its way through and through the intestines.

Two workmen, Cornelius Hayer and William Reagan, were blown to pieces. Three others were more or less injured. The vessel went down in fourteen feet of water several hours afterward.

Will Help Cleveland.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 15.—In an interview Congressman Elkins, of Pennsylvania, said that Governor Hill was satisfied with the senatorial honors of the state and had little idea of opposing Grover Cleveland for the presidential nomination. Mr. Elliott believes Governor Hill will do all in his power to help Mr. Cleveland.

The Duke Was Discharged.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Duke D'Abbey was arraigned in police court charged with assault by Mlle. Ferriero, the maid employed by his wife. The duke was discharged because the maid could not prove the assault. The duke said that the girl entered his room and scratched his face. He simply put her out of the room.

"HE" WAS A WOMAN.

A Plucky Italian Girl at Work as a Miner.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 15.—A good looking young Italian working on the new railroad near here has been keeping house by himself for a few months in a small hut south of this place. When at work he made few friends, and was regarded as a dude on account of his effeminate appearance. A few days ago an Italian secured employment in the same gang, and the first day he was brought in contact with companions by declaring the dandy was a woman and the daughter of a neighbor of his in the old country. The foreman questioned No. 17 and she confessed.

She said she came to America a year ago to provide a home for her aged parents, whose only support she is. She secured work as a servant in New York, but the wages were so small she despaired of ever saving the necessary amount, and determined to assume the garb of a man and get work as a laborer, hoping to escape detection. The foreman told her she might continue at work, and today she was picking and shoveling as industriously as any of her countrymen.

AN APPEAL FOR BIDWELL.

Trying to Obtain the World Notorious Forger's Release.

LONDON, July 15.—In the house of commons Mr. Labouchere brought up the case of the noted American forger, Austin Bidwell, who in 1873 was sentenced to imprisonment for life for forgeries committed in England, whereby he obtained upwards of £100,000.

Mr. Allison asked Home Secretary Matthews to remember that Bidwell, who was twenty-four years of age when he was convicted, had been imprisoned for eighteen years, which was ample punishment for his crimes. Moreover, Bidwell's prison record had been uniformly good. Mr. Matthews said his sense of public duty forbade him to advise the crown to release Bidwell.

A Novel Insurance Case.

ALBANY, July 15.—Attorney General Tabor is hearing a case against the New York Life Insurance company that may mean a loss of $500,000 to the company. During the war the company raised to a much higher price the premium on the insurance of men's lives who were liable to go to the war. The premium recited that at the close of the war the extra money should be returned unless the policy holder should be killed. John C. Robinson, a policy holder, applied to the attorney general to begin action for the refunding of his money so paid as an extra. He claims that he is still paying the advanced rate. The company claims that the case is outlawed. Hundreds of policy holders are interested in the matter.

The hammer throwing contest was won by Queckberner. His record is 108 feet 1 inches. For this feat he receives the club's special gold medal.

Clemency For Three Convicts.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 15.—William Hall, of Newark, who embezzled funds while employed in the comptroller's office, has been pardoned. He was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment and had but a short time to serve. He will be employed as a clerk in the state prison at a salary of $1,200 a year. Thomas Lopez, who killed Jacob T. Ash, at Princeton, has been paroled at the solicitation of President McCosh and faculty of Princeton college. William Haddock, a Trenton printer, who killed Matthew Dugan, was also paroled.

Adjutant Wilson Arrested.

HARTFORD, July 15.—Military circles are excited over the discovery that Adjutant Ford C. Wilson, of the Second, is $1,000 short in his accounts as division deputy in the internal revenue department of Connecticut and Rhode Island. When Wilson entered upon the duties he collected he was placed under arrest by Deputy United States Marshal Arthur P. Moore. He was subsequently released on bail. He says the shortfall will be made good.

Killed by a Four-year-old Boy.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 15.—Herbert McGinnis, the four-year-old son of John McGinnis, accidentally shot his father in the head with a Winchester rifle, Mr. McGinnis was sitting on a horse, the rifle was lying on the floor in a room above the kitchen, while Mr. McGinnis was seated by the kitchen stove. Herbert picked up the gun and discharged it. The ball passed through the floor and lodged in Mr. McGinnis' brain.

Connecticut May Have Electrocution.

HARTFORD, July 15.—One of the matters which may engage the attention of the present Connecticut legislature before final adjournment is the question of the substitution of electricity for hanging in the infliction of the death penalty in this state. Governor Bulkeley, however, will probably introduce the bill, without the clause regarding secrecy.

SAFE IN PORT AT LAST.

Arrival of the Leary Raft at New York.

A VERITABLE FOREST AFLOAT

The Strange Craft Consisted of 10,000 Sticks of Timber, Many Weighing Three Tons Each—There Were 3,500,000 Feet of Lumber in the Great Tow.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Leary's big timber raft from New Brunswick, commercially known as Leary's raft No. 6, anchored off Riker's island, Flushing bay, at 8 a. m. Later it was broken into three sections and towed through Hell Gate to Whale creek, a tributary of Newtown creek. The raft was built at Hart's lake, N. B., and is the largest and longest of the kind ever sent to sea. The raft left St. John's harbor June 26, and was towed from there to Flushing bay by the tugs Ocean King and Louis Luckenbach. In shape it is like its predecessors, but several hundred feet longer than the famous Joggins raft, lost at sea in December, 1887, and which for months drifted about the ocean, a constant menace to vessels. Its length is 1,107 feet and the distance from the tugs to the rear and of the last section was 2,800 feet.

How the Raft Was Built.

In towing the sections were separated ten feet. There were sixteen sections of cigar shaped "cribs," averaging fifty-five feet in length, forty feet in thickness, laterally, and nineteen feet in height. The raft contains some 10,000 pieces or "sticks" of spruce and pine timber from forty-five to seventy feet in length, together with a great quantity of beech, birch and maple timber, making a total of 3,500,000 feet. The diameter of the sticks runs from twelve inches to thirty-five inches at the butts and from six inches to ten inches at the points. Some of the largest sticks of Norway pine weigh about three tons each. The estimated cost of the raft to its owner, James D. Leary, of this city, is $40,000. The contract price for towing it to Whale creek will be $4,000 exclusive of the cost of the hawsers. Its value is estimated at $80,000.

About a Thousand Carloads.

In rough figures the quantity of timbes contained in the raft is reckoned at fifty schoonerloads or 1,000 carloads. Owing to bad weather and fog the progress of the tow was slow. The most serious trouble occurred Sunday, June 28, ten miles outside of Bar Harbor. The sea began to rise and broke upon the breaker fell violently upon the raft. The man whose duty it was to light the lamps swinging from the strpods on the raft could not perform his task.

Thirteen of the cribs partied and were tossed about as though made of cork. Fortunately the gale subsided high seas did not continue, the parted section was recovered and after a delay of two days the raft resumed its course.

The Strange Craft's Speed.

There were eleven days of actual towing and the average speed attained against head tides was one mile an hour, and with fair tides about three and one-half miles an hour. The building of the great raft was begun in the St. John river, between St. John and Fredericton, Oct. 1, 1890, and was completed by May last. The cribs were built on the ice about Georgetown. Each crib has a strong chain laid lengthwise in the center of the timber, the whole being firmly secured on the outside by binders of heavy wire rigging.

Under and around each crib is a 1¼-inch chain with a half-hitch over the top and at the middle of each crib, the chain also stretched from crib to crib, thus giving longitudinal strength and providing a prevention against concussion. The cribs are coupled together much the same as a railway train, and the whole structure was so designed that in case of necessity one section could have been cut adrift without losing the whole.

A Victory for Lumbermen.

One hundred men and fifty horses were employed in the work of cutting and transporting the timbers from the forests to the "cribbing ground." Temporary frames were built of four sills with posts mortised into them and securely locked. The logs were slid on skids into the frames, and after being secured the frames were taken down.

The object of bringing timber to New York in this manner is to get the longest and largest logs here, since vessels trading in Nova Scotia cannot bring sticks exceeding sixty-five feet in length. The much greater length come from Michigan and Ohio by rail, which is expensive transportation, as three or four cars are necessary to carry them. The present raft has been brought here by Mr. Leary for his own use in ship building and in the construction of dock property.

"Our unqualified success in bringing to New York the biggest raft ever floated without losing a stick," said Mr. James Murray, the constructor of the raft, "will cause a revolution in the methods of transporting lumber. I shall look forward to the day not far distant when lumber shall be towed from the north shores of New Brunswick to Liverpool."

Sunk by the Insurgent Cruiser.

SAN DIZDO, Cal., July 15.—The commander of the Mexican man-of-war Democrata, now lying in this harbor, has received a dispatch from his government which says that a naval engagement took place on the coast of Chili two days ago between the insurgent cruiser Magellanes and several government vessels. The insurgent cruiser sank two of the opposing vessels and put the others to flight.

The Navajos Mean Fight.

FLAGSTAFF, A. T., July 15.—A sheep herder just arrived reports that the Navajos seem to be greatly excited and are gathering in large numbers to resist any attempt on the part of the government to arrest the leaders of the numerous raids made on the cattle and sheep ranges. They have warned all stockmen to leave and the belief is general that an outbreak will shortly occur.

DEATH UNDER N. Y. LAW

DESCRIPTION OF THE APPARATUS USED FOR ELECTROCUTION.

Location of the Building—The Death Chamber—The Signal Button and Death Lever—Precautions to Preserve Secrecy.

Warden Brown of Sing Sing Prison is a matter of fact business man. He has seen to it that every detail toward carrying out the law regarding executions has been attended to as far as known. The present arrangements for executing the new law were put up before he took charge of the Prison in April last and are as follows: The death chamber is a temporary frame structure which has been built inside the prison yard, east of the brick building recently put up as a prison for the solitary confinement of those condemned to death. The prison where murderers are confined consists merely of eight cells, ranged side by side, and fronting on the west side of a long corridor. These cells are nine feet long and seven feet wide. They are separated one from another by solid brick walls, but are otherwise made of open steel gratings.

The accompanying picture will show how the temporary wooden death chamber is built up against the side of the brick building which combines the dark cell rooms and the condemned prison. It was put up last fall. It is about thirty-five feet long and twenty-four feet wide, with a slightly slanted roof. It is built of common pine lumber and shows no attempt at adornment. This building is divided into two rooms, one of which, twenty by twenty feet, is the execution room. The other room is a sort of morgue for the laying out of the dead bodies after execution and for the performance of the autopsies. To complete the explanation of the picture at once, the covered way leading from the death chamber to the wall on the right is intended, for the passage of the Warden, the sheriffs, ministers, scientific men, and jury from the Warden's room to the scene of execution. It is covered in order that outsiders may not be able to tell when the execution is to take place. The long building shown to the left of the execution room in the picture is the clothing workshop, where a hundred or more convicts are at work daily. The large building in the background is the back of the long main building.

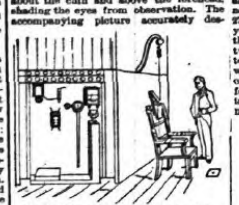
The death chamber is a tight and a suggestively lonesome place. There are three plain pine walls about fifteen feet high, and one brick wall which will soon disappear to be the outside wall of a condemned prison, against the side of which the death chamber is built. A large steel door is in the middle of this brick wall. This leads to the condemned prison.

The death chair and the electrical apparatus occupy the west end of the room. The chair stands upon a square of rubber carpeting in front of a closet about five feet square, within which will stand the man who throws the fatal switch. The chair is made of oak, and has a head rest on the back consisting of a hollow box covered with sheet rubber. Into this rubber the back of the head sinks, and is bound fast by a strap which catches the face securely about the chin and above the forehead, shading the eyes from observation. The accompanying picture accurately describes the chair. The "figure four" above the head rest is intended to hold the cup and sponge, which will be the positive electrode. The wire conducting this electrode with the dynamo will drop from a bracket above and pass through a hole in the "figure four" to the metal cup. There are straps provided to bind each arm and forearm to the chair. There is also a strap just below the waist at the back of the legs to bind the body of the victim tightly back against the negative electrode, which will be another cup and sponge applied to the bare skin at the base of the spinal cord. Another strap will bind the thighs tightly to the seat of the chair, and straps will bind the legs to a foot rest extending forward.



THE CHAIR AND EXECUTIONER'S BOX.

The switch board is on the west side of the closet in which is the fatal switch. It is five feet wide by eight feet high, and consists of a plane of polished cherry upon which are fastened various devices for the measurement and regulation of the electric current. It is covered by a sliding door when not in use, but during the executions will be opened in the death chamber where the scientific men, and indeed all the witnesses, can examine it. In the upper left hand corner is seen an electric push button which communicates with a bell in the dynamo room at the north end of the prison yard, and will be used to convey orders to the convicts or others who operate the dynamo there. Adjoining this push button is this signal code:

Five bells—Get ready.
One bell—Turn on current.
Two bells—More current.
Three bells—Less current.
One bell—Shut off current.
Six bells—All through.

When the condemned man has been strapped into his chair and the electrodes placed at his head and spine; when the scientific men have stood before the switchboard and noted measures of volume and force of the current and tested it by its power to light incandescent lamps; when, having satisfied themselves upon these points and having switched the current from the meters to the closet within, they have decided upon the length of time the deadly current must be applied; when they have informed the Warden and the Sheriffs have finally examined every uncanny detail and have concluded that all is ready, then the executioner in the closet will press down the death switch. Then when the small electric push button is touched once the current is shut off, and six taps on this button announces that all is through and the law has been vindicated.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN'S HISTORY.

A Farmer's Boy—A Printer's Apprentice—A Lawyer and Vice-President.

Ex-Vice-President Hannibal Hamlin's death at Bangor on July 4 closed a career which illustrates the possibilities before every American boy. He was born on a farm near Paris, Oxford county, Me., on Aug. 27, 1809. His father died while the boy was young. Thereat Hannibal took charge of the farm and remained there until he was twenty-one years old. Then he went to town and learned the printers' trade, and while at work at the case took up the study of the law, and in 1833, being then twenty-four years old, he was admitted to practice in Hampden, Penobscot county. Here he made his home until 1868.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN.

Within three years after he was admitted to the bar he was elected as a Democrat to the State Legislature, and was returned for four years. The second year of his service, 1832, he was elected Speaker of the House, and again in 1839 and 1840 he was honored in the same way. In 1840 and 1844 he was elected to congress, 1848 he went to the Senate to serve out an unexpired term of four years and was continued until 1857 when he resigned to become the first Republican governor of Maine. In less than a month—i. e. on Feb. 29, 1857—he resigned his office as Governor because he had again been chosen a Senator for the State.

In the Convention that nominated Abraham Lincoln as the leader of the Republican party, Hamlin was placed second on the ticket. On his election he resigned his office as Senator and from March 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863, presided over the Senate. He was soon after appointed Collector of the Port of Boston, an office that he resigned a year later. In 1864 he was again elected to the United States Senate, and served there until 1881, when he was sent as American Minister to Spain. He held this office but one year.

The Republican leaders of the day never ceased to regret that they did not renominate him with Mr. Lincoln in 1864 instead of putting Andrew Johnson on the ticket.

The later years of Mr. Hamlin were passed at his old-fashioned house at the corner of Fifth and Hammond streets, Bangor, which he had made his home early in the days of the war. It was completely surrounded by an orchard, bordered with evergreens, which he loved, and there an untrimmed elm. The house in summer has the appearance of being in a veritable jungle.

The exterior of the residence was severely plain, but the interior was charming. Every room bore evidence of the long public career of the ex-Vice-President, with its collections of books, engravings, and many relics of Washington and far-away Spain.

Mr. Hamlins life was very quiet and simple. Just outside the city he had a few acres of land which he called his "farm," and the amusement he found upon him constantly there. Nothing delighted him more than the exercise and recreation which he obtained digging in the loamy soil of that property. He owned a cow for many years, and during his last term in the Senate sensitive Bangorians received severe shocks by the sight of one of the country's most noted statesmen walking along the dusty roadway driving cattle, his own and his neighbors', from the pasture to the barns.

SHE BELIEVES IN HOME RULE.

Yet She is Said to Have Set Back Ireland's Claims in That Direction.

The recent marriage of Mr. Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea makes of interest the first accurate newspaper portrait of her which we publish herewith.

The case of Mr. Parnell, which brought the Irish party into disruption, is still fresh, and the party is also unreconciled. Last November Captain O'Shea, a member of Parliament and a follower of Parnell, entered a suit for absolute divorce against his wife. Mr. Parnell was named in the suit, he allowed the case to go by default, and the divorce was duly granted. There was an upheaval in the Irish party, which promptly divided itself into two parts, and entered upon an internecine conflict. There has been a lull in the storm of late, and Mr. Parnell took advantage of it to get married. Mrs. Parnell is a believer in home rule, and how her husband will like to have it tried on in his own case remains to be seen.

Mr. Parnell is passionately fond of dogs. You meet them in every part of the house. At the time of the reporter's visit there were three in the hall and two more in the front room. Mrs. Parnell is as fond of birds as her husband is of dogs. In her boudoir I saw three breeding cages for small birds, chiefly canaries.

TO JOHN WESLEY'S TOMB

THE FIRST PILGRIMAGE OF METHODIST MINISTERS TO EPWORTH.

The Epworth Leagues' Work—All the Comforts of Modern Travel Secured and a Glorious Time Promised the Pilgrims.

The Etruria carries on Saturday, July 11, the first pilgrimage of Americans to the home and tomb of John Wesley. The members of the party will be Methodist preachers and their families. So the Etruria will carry more Methodist ministers than any other ocean steamer has ever conveyed at one time and if the sailors saying is true that there is always a rough voyage when there are pious people on board, then the Etruria is bound to have a stormy passage across. The party will land at Liverpool and be carried by special train to London.

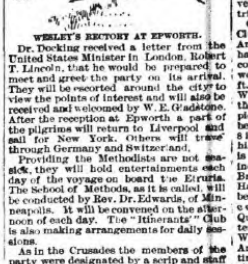
The idea of a pilgrimage to Epworth originated in the brain of Rev. James T. Docking, of Boston University. Less than two years ago, when the convention of a Methodist society known as the Epworth League was held in Cleveland, Ohio, Dr. Docking, in a speech, suggested the pilgrimage and outlined a plan for it. The delegates pledged their co-operation. As a result, in nearly every community where Methodists are found leagues have been formed for the purpose of sending one of their members to join the party. The plan is to make the voyage as cheap as possible, and the round trip price from New York and return was placed at $130.

REV. JAMES T. DOCKING.

From London the party will go by special train to Hegie, where they will take carriages for Epworth, as the latter historic spot can boast of no railway. It is in Lincolnshire, about one hundred and thirty miles from London. The little village is pleasantly situated on a hillside. It was there that Susannah Wesely founded the first Epworth League. The Wesleys were a prolific stock. Susannah, the mother of C arles and John, was the youngest of a family of seventy-four children and was herself the mother of nineteen.

It seems that the present year was thought the most appropriate for the pilgrimage because it is the one hundredth anniversary of the death of John Wesley. Standing beneath the historic trees under which he preached to the colliers with such fervor that he saw the tears "making white channels down their blackened cheeks," the pilgrims will fittingly commemorate his life and work. The old landmarks are all there. The points are marked where the Wesleys were mobbed and ducked and stoned and covered with filth. The village green where the sweet hymns of Charles Wesley first were sung, and where the religious enthusiasm was first used in making converts, is pointed out as peacefully as it did when it was the scene of Wesley's preaching. Even the Epworth rectory is still preserved intact.

The coming of the American pilgrims has awakened much interest among the Methodists of England. They have arranged a reception, to be held in the old historic Road Chapel, where addresses will be delivered by the most eminent London preachers, including General Booth and Mr. Spurgeon. Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker has also consented to be present, and adds: "I shall be delighted to greet the American pilgrims to Epworth." The American pilgrims to Road Chapel will occur July 17. On the following Sunday the American representatives will visit the West London Missions.



WESLEY'S BIRTHPLACE AT EPWORTH.

Dr. Docking received a letter from the United States Minister in London, Robert T. Lincoln, that he would be prepared to meet and greet the party on its arrival. They will be escorted around the city to view the points of interest and will also be received and welcomed by W. E. Gladstone. After the reception at Epworth a part of the pilgrims will return to Liverpool and sail for New York. Others will travel through Germany and Switzerland.

Providing the Methodists are not sea sick, they will hold entertainments each day of the voyage on board the Etruria. The food of Methodists, as it is called, will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Edwards, of Minneapolis. It will be convened on the afternoon of each day. The "Itinerants" Club is also making arrangements for daily sessions.

As in the Crusades the members of the party were designated by a scrip and staff and coarse woollen gown, the Epworthians will be furnished a designating emblem. It consists of a bronze medal, on one face of which is engraved the bust of John Wesley, on the other side a Biblical text.

Rev. James T. Docking, the organizer of the pilgrimage, is a young man and was originally from the West. He was educated at Aborn College, in Michigan, and at Boston University. At the time he first advanced the idea of a pilgrimage to Epworth he was in charge of the Asbury Chapel at Des Moines, Iowa, as pastor, but later he came to Boston to give his whole time to the pilgrimage.

He said on starting that the whole trip would be a great success. "It is only the first pilgrimage," said he. "It will be made a permanent thing. Next year we will send abroad an enormous party. Those who go with us this year are not all Methodists."

CARY, QUECKBERNER AND REMINGTON.

The American Athletes Who Captured Championships in England.

Cary, Queckberner and Remington, of the N. Y. Manhattan Athletic Club brought honors to their country in the recent amateur Athletic championship games at Manchester, England. It had been raining so hard the ground was a regular quagmire, and it was thought that Cary the "Yankee" sprinter would not be able to make faster time than 10½ seconds, but when the official timer stopped the that Carey had won the 100 yards in 10 1-5 seconds the crowd went almost wild with excitement, and he was voted to be the fastest sprinter that ever ran in England.

There were eleven entries in the 100 yard dash, and these were split up into six heats. The third heat was the most memorable one of the meeting. Luther Cary, Manhattan A. C., literally ran away from Rosan, London Athletic Club, from the stopping when he saw he had no chance. Cary trotted home in 10 4-5 seconds. The final gave Cary a chance to show his phenomenal speed. He got away like a flash, and, increasing his advantage at every stride, won with the greatest ease in 10 1-5 seconds. The wind was blowing strongly in the runner's teeth, and the track was very heavy. The American's speed electrified the spectators.

C. A. J. Queckberner, Manhattan Athletic Club, was the only American in the hammer throwing contest and he won easily at 129 ft. 10½ in., while W. J. M. Barry, the Irish champion, could not do better than 115 ft. 8 in., which placed him third. This is within 1½ inches of Barry's British record. Had a steel tape been used it is certain that C. A. J. QUECKBERNER.

Queckberner would have thrown 130 feet. The Irish champion, W. J. Barry, had his revenge over the American, Queckberner, in the shot putting contest. The Millrose carried the sixteen pound piece of iron 40 feet 8 inches. Queckberner did 37 feet 10 inches.

The one-mile run contained the names of five Americans. Remington won the first heat in 51 4-5s. He also captured the final heat in 5is., cantering away from his nearest competitor. Roddy did not get a place. Remington was dubbed Lon Myer's pupil, because he appeared to be so much like the ex-champion American.

In the remainder of the events the Americans were defeated, but they were competing under adverse conditions and before they were thoroughly recovered from the effects of their Atlantic trip. On July 4, the Americans compete with the French Athletes in the games of the Racing Club in the Bois de Boulogne. They will sail for home on July 18.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1891 PRICE TWO CENTS.

—The Plainfield Bicycle Club will enjoy a "run" to Westfield on July 25th.

—The Plainfield Reform Club will hold its regular mid-week meeting this evening at eight o'clock.

—There will be racing on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park next Saturday afternoon.

—An informal dance will be given at the Casino of the Union County Country Club this evening.

—The West Ends of Somerville will be the opponents of the Crescents in a game of base ball next Saturday afternoon.

—The Plainfield Reform Club will go on its eighth annual excursion one week from to-day. Black River Falls Park will be the destination of the excursionists. The place is known as the Yosemite of New Jersey.

—It required twenty-one cars to convey the excursionists who accompanied the First Baptist excursion to Belmar this morning. This is the largest excursion this season, and it was the most liberally advertised.

—Is there any other county in this State or any other State, that is getting more free and beneficial advertising than the county of Union at just this time? And it is all an account of the good roads. "The famous New Macadam Roads of Union County, N. J." is the title of an article that is being published in a Boston paper and sent broadcast throughout the United States. The roads are referred in stead of macadam, but the advertising is just as good for Union county. Only a few days ago one of the leading New York dailies had a long editorial upon these same roads.—Elizabeth Journal.

—In testing the works of the Plainfield Water Supply Company supposed defects were discovered in the wells put down by the old company. These greatly puzzled the present constructors in their tests a few days ago. The story got out that there was a leak in the pumps. This is not so. Investigation shows that the rubber gaskets in the well-heads, which were compressed under the old regime, had dried up and shrunk from long exposure to the sun, leaving open joints. Mr. Davis, the contractor, says that it is nobody's fault, and that the pumps have been shut down, in order that all the well-heads may be examined and supplied with new gaskets.

Another Incendiary Fire.

A large frame barn belonging to ex-Councilman E. B. Clark, situated on West Front street, near Plainfield avenue was destroyed by fire at about nine o'clock last evening, together with a large quantity of hay. A number of window sashes were stored in the building at the time. The loss will not exceed $1,000 and is partially covered by insurance. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

Fanwood Club's Reception.

The Fanwood Club, of Fanwood, will give a reception next Saturday from two until ten p. m. at the club house. There will be bowling, lawn tennis, dancing and other amusements. Supper will be served from five to eight o'clock.

UNION COUNTY COURT.

Several Prisoners Arraigned in the Special Sessions Yesterday.

Less than a score of persons attended the weekly session of the Union County Court of Special Sessions yesterday morning. Judge Rice presided, in the absence of Judge McCormick, and was assisted by Judge Hyer and Wiley.

The first prisoner arraigned was Charles Keiper, on a charge of entering and stealing. He pleaded not guilty, and will have a hearing on Wednesday next. Mr. James C. Connolly was assigned as his counsel.

James Masterson was next arraigned, charged with having in his possession burglars' tools. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, and was ordered to be ready for trial on Wednesday next, on which occasion he will be defended by Mr. Louis A. Graff.

Joseph Vetrimoile pleaded not guilty to atrocious assault on Frank Rabig, son of ex-Chief Rabig, on the Fourth of July. Mr. Hoffman was assigned as his counsel, and he will be tried on Wednesday next.

Francisco Kurkio, a rather indifferent looking son of Italy, and almost as black as the ace of spades, was tried for having taken $15.50 from the inside pocket of a fellow boarder. Chief Tenney was among the witnesses, and Prosecuter Marsh asked for a conviction, saying the State had made a clear case. Judge Rice told the prisoner, through an interpreter, that the defence which he had tried to make sounded rather flaky, and that it could not believe what he had said. He warned him and all Italians that when they came to America it was not their duty to rob people, and that the practice would be put a stop to, if in his power. The prisoner was sentenced to a term of three months in the county jail.

This was the only business transacted in the court, and the crier ordered an adjournment until Wednesday next.

A PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT.

The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum Entertains its Friends.

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum entertained their friends in St. Mary's School Hall last evening. An interesting programme had been arrange. It consisted of music, singing, etc. Prof. Callan, the celebrated elocutionist, appeared on the stage at short intervals and amused the audience with his humorous selections. The singing of Mr. J. A. Combie was especially praiseworthy as was also that of Mr. Wm. Stafford, a brother of the Rev. J. A. Stafford, the assistant pastor of St. Mary's church. The choir connected with the church also rendered selections which were commendable. Taken all in all the entertainment was a grand success. A prize was awarded to Miss Fannie Goff of West Third street. The following was the programme in full:

1. Piano Solo.....Mrs. M. Ronan.
2. Duet—'Tis She, a Happy Fate } Mr. J. A. Cambie, Miss Minnie Cambie.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

Two More Attempts to Break into Stores.

For some time past there has been a gang of burglars operating in this vicinity. In no instance did they succeed in stealing enough valuables of money to pay them for their risk or trouble. Early Tuesday morning they tried to effect an entrance into Langer's grocery store on Richmond street, but were frightened away before they succeeded in effecting an entrance. Yesterday morning while Policemen Flanagan and Kiley were at the depot awaiting the arrival of the 2.39 train two suspicious looking characters jumped off a coal train which was passing at the time. The officers were in the dark and the fellows did not at first notice them.

As soon as they saw the policemen, however, they again jumped on the train which was then running at a high rate of speed. The officers are of the opinion that the burglaries were committed by a gang who come to this city after night fall on coal trains and again depart before daybreak.

Summer Meeting.

The State Publishers' Union will hold its Summer meeting at Avon-by-the-Sea, on Friday next, beginning at 11 a. m. It is believed that a large number of the membership and others who desire to become connected with the Union will avail themselves of this opportunity to spend a day or more at the seashore. All hotels offer reduced rates to members of the Union. A pleasant time is confidently expected.

WHAT THE DOCTOR SAYS.

TIMELY WORDS FOR THOSE WHO WATCH BY BEDS OF SICKNESS.

The Strengthening Cup and the Refreshing Entertainment.—For the Amateur Nurse. — Life-Giving Treatment.

It is hard to find anything to nourish an invalid even in a home where all that money will buy is possible. And when the sick one's appetite is lost in fancies, and the sick one's progress depends largely on keeping him quiet and diverted from thoughts of himself and his discomfort, it becomes simply a maddening problem. Most persons who sit down to cook for any one who is ill select something to please their own taste. If they did, but stop to think they would find the invalid's taste running in quite a different direction.

Poetry will not interest the average sick man, but horse-racing may, though horse racing may be dull reading for his feminine nurses. Base ball news will not keep a sick woman still three seconds, but the account of the rose fair for the benefit of her pet charity will furnish food for talk and thought for hours.

In cases where a trained nurse is not employed, the patient will recover much faster if there be one individual, calm, half-stern, determined, to whose final word there is very question is left for decision. It is the greatest rest in the world to have a back-bone which can always be leaned upon when one's own is weak, and tired and worn. Not a single individual ought to be allowed to study for a talented nurse who does not possess that characteristic strongly developed.

What a difference there is in these nurses which custom brings nowadays so much into families where there is sickness. It is comparatively but a short time that the importance of special and thorough training for this work has been realized. In every household of old on some one member of the family fell the task of nursing all the sick ones because "so and so is a bornnurse." To-day we do not believe in born nurses, and realize that the essential thing is not a gentle patience and never-wearying, a tender touch and a soft and pleasing speech and manner, but that steady self-confidence that only comes with knowing "just how." As soon as one feels that one may absolutely trust one's self then a calm serenity dominates the individual, which is as apparent to every one as to one's self. This is the comfort to the patient in the trained nurse. The doctor knows his orders will be carried out to the letter, no deviation because somebody else dares to suspect certain new symptoms which need other treatment, for the first thing a nurse learns in a training school, as a soldier in the army, is absolute obedience to superiors. The family feels this same trust in the trained nurse and offers no interference, and the patient in most cases submits as unquestioningly as to the physician. He knows, as all do, that in many cases recovery depends far more largely on the watchful care received than upon medical skill.

ESSENTIAL OF NURSING.

A natural aptitude for things of this kind is a good basis for instruction, but it will by no means take the place of a calm, even temperament, quiet, neat, systematic ways, and an inborn gentle firmness combined with tact. There are other things of much importance, but these are the essentials, combined with intelligence. Nursing, of course, includes the administration of the food to the patient, and in serious cases of illness covers the preparing of the various foods, and the recipes for such articles are more generally founded upon reason than upon rule. Still, a late experience has revealed that there are rules for the preparation of articles of diet that are of persons which are learned in the nursing schools. The great principle insisted upon is that things which are hot should be very hot, and vice versa. And second in importance is the necessity always of serving cooking and taking away the usually delicate appetite of the patient. Another important thing to remember is, that although it may be needful in seasoning to taste the articles served to sick persons, on no account do this before them. They often turn away in disgust if this is done, and absolutely refuse to touch anything.

First of all foods considered for the sick are the meat teas or broths, and, contrary to the opinion of many persons, they are as different as can be—as will be observed in the following rules:

Meat tea (beef, chicken, mutton or veal)—Mince finely one pound of lean meat, remove every shred of fat, put it into a fruit jar and barely cover with cold water, seal the jar and set it into a kettle of cold water, which must then boil for three hours. Strain the tea and season with salt. Pepper must never be used for invalids.

Meat broths are made exactly as one makes stock for soup, and if the patient be well enough to leave off the teas and take these it is just as well to heat a nice little bowl from the stock kettle. Other, wise observe these directions: Cover two pounds of lean meat and bone (no fat) with a quart of cold water. Let it soak for on hour. Then gently boil for two. Pour the broth into a bowl, and let it stand until perfectly cold, so that all the fat will rise to the top and can be taken off in a solid mass. Do not strain this broth. Heat as much as is necessary and season with salt only. Although stock sometimes keeps nicely on ice for more than two days, it should not then be served invalids.

STRENGTH-GIVING DISH.

Rice and barley are the only two cereals that should ever be introduced in soups for patients who are really sick. Convalescents often take any soup prepared for the table.

After the broths, etc., made from meats, those made from grains, i. e., gruels, are next useful in the sickroom.

An old-fashioned gruel of flour is called pop-robin. Mix a teaspoon of flour with milk enough to form a smooth paste and half a saltspoon of salt; stir in a pint of of boiling milk until it is thick and smooth. Ordinarily it is cooked enough in a few minutes, but when in certain diseases this is almost the sole food, it must be boiled fully half an hour and stirred constantly or it will be lumpy. It is sometimes slightly sweetened.

Indian meal gruel is that usually prepared and almost every one knows how to make it. Mix smooth an even tablespoon of Indian meal with a little cold water and stir into a pint of boiling milk and water. Boil half an hour, season with salt and sugar.

Preparations of arrowroot are thought to be very nourishing. Those into which brandy is introduced are often given for strengthening the weak. Mix smooth a tablespoon of arrowroot with cold milk and stir it very slowly into a half pint of boiling milk, stir until smooth and thick like custard. Season with salt, sugar and teaspoonful of brandy.

When the patient is sufficiently convalescent to wish to gain strength rapidly it is considered wise to feed him often although the quantity be small. Then wine wheys, mulled wine, eggnogg and the like are given him, a few spoonfuls at a time.

Wine Whey—Into half a pint of boiling milk pour a wine glass of sherry. Slightly stir and the curd will separate from the liquid. Strain and sweeten with sugar.

Mulled Wine—In half a cup of boiling water steep half a dozen cloves and a few bits of cinnamon. Beat together two eggs, well whipped, and two tablespoons of sugar. Strain the spiced water into a pint of sweet wine and boil in porcelain. Pour this on the eggs and sugar and toss from one pitcher to another until it is foamy. Serve hot.

Eggnogg—Beat a tablespoon of sugar with the yolk of an egg until light, then stir in the white whipped to a froth, add one tablespoon of ice water, one tablespoon of milk, and one tablespoon of brandy or sherry if preferred. Hot eggnogg is made with twice the quantity of liquid, boiling hot. Boil the brandy and the milk separate or the milk will curdle.

Flaxseed lemonade is an excellent drink to cool the feverish tongue. Stir two tablespoons of sugar and three of flaxseed into a pint of boiling water. Steep two hours then add the juice of two lemons and strain. Serve hot or ice cold.—Newark Journal.

An Appeal.

To the Friends of the Home:—In view of the fact that the fifteenth anniversary of our work for the children will come next year, it was decided at the annual meeting to make this an off year, and hold no public anniversary. It has been suggested by a friend outside our Board that we should mark the year by an effort to raise our present endowment fund of $5,000 to $5,000. The friend who makes the suggestion offers to give $500 if the ladies of the Board will collect the other $1,500 by May 1, 1892. Any friends of the Home willing to aid in this work can send their gifts marked "Endowment" to Miss Ella Serrell, Treasurer, or Mrs. Horace Kimball, President.

Of course this must not cripple our regular contributions for the support of the Home. This is an extra gift to mark our crystal anniversary.

For the Association,
N. E. KIMBALL,
President.

Are There Pickpockets in Town?

Within the past few days there has been reported as lost no less than four watches. The persons who lost them have not the remotest idea as to how they come to be missing. One person found a portion of his chain dangling from the button-hole of his vest. Last evening a woman who resides on Liberty street lost her gold watch and chain in some unaccountable way. The loss of so many time pieces within so short a time suggests to the mind that there must be pick-pockets in town. It may also be incidentally mentioned that none of them have been returned to their rightful owners.

Discharged and Re-Arrested.

The case of Thomas Dowd, Jr., who is charged with threatening to assault a policeman, came up for trial before City Judge Codington yesterday. On motion of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh the case was dismissed. Dowd was immediately arrested, however, on two other charges.

Dowd was held in four hundred dollars bail for trial next Wednesday morning at ten o'clock.

Frightened by a Policeman.

Last evening as Policeman Giese was driving along Richmond street he noticed a number of boys seated under a large tree. He did not pay much attention to them, but as soon as they saw him they began to scatter in all directions. The officer then investigated and ascertained that the boys had been gambling. He secured a pack of cards and one cent in money.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a blessing. It has saved thousands, and it will save you. If you are sick and miserable, we advise you to spend One Dollar for this King of Medicines.—ADV.

A NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

The Shotwell-Graff Diamond Case Not Finally Disposed of.

Judge Gilhooly yesterday set aside the verdict and granted a new trial in the case of Miss Sallie J. Shotwell against Lawyer Louis A. Graff for the recovery of a diamond that she claims as her property.

The jury awarded her a verdict, with the understanding that the sheriff should pay back to the lawyer the sum the latter paid at the sheriff's sale for the gem. Judge Gilhooly declared there was no sense in such a verdict, as the sheriff had no power to do anything of the sort. Besides, the suit was not brought for the diamond, but for $100 damages for its seizure and sale.

Lawyer Graff, if the verdict was allowed to stand, would have to pay the plaintiff $100, but as the jury did not intend this to be the case the verdict was rejected and a new trial ordered.

The Convict Parole Law.

The Convict Parole law which has recently become operative in New Jersey is the English ticket-of-leave system fitted to New Jersey institutions.

The misfortune is that in the adoption the original system loses its most commended features. It reposes the natural order of things at the start by placing the power to release from the prison keeper the nominating power. It is the keeper who has the best opportunities of judging whether a prisoner is entitled to his freedom, and a well-considered law would forbid the Court to act till he had recommended. But this law makes it the prerogative of the Parole Court to advise the release, and then throws the entire responsibility of the release upon the keeper, without whose subsequent consent the release cannot be made.

The results of this method of procedure have already become manifest. The parole Board has been under their political friends on the outside by advising the keeper to discharge, and then the whole crowd of solicitors pounce down on the luckless keeper and make him feel the power of the Board.

If the law had been the result of an earnest and honest effort to help convicts to reclaim themselves, if it had been confined discharges on parole to those whose careers before conviction and whose conduct after it entitle them to consideration. A law that permits the indiscriminate release of murderers and professional criminals, as this does, means only harm for the community that is compelled to live under it.—New York Herald.

Board of Freeholders.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders met in the Court House in Somerville Tuesday afternoon.

N. Y. Ingam presented a claim, by the Millstone Vigilant Society, of $500, for the arrest and conviction of Arthur Van Fleet, for violation of the Sunday law. The Director and Messrs. Vreeland and Ballantine, was appointed to confer with the Counsel in relation to this matter and report at the next meeting.

Mr. Rockefellow moved that a committee of three be appointed, together with the Counsel of the board, to ascertain how the proposed bridge of the Port Reading Railroad Company will interfere with the northern approach to the iron bridge at Round Brook, and what damage or interference is likely to be done by them, and that the committee have power to prevent the same.

The motion being carried Messrs. Rockefellow, Everett and the Director were appointed.

The board adjourned to meet the Union board at the Raritan bridge, on the line between Somerset and Union yesterday.

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

Apostolic and Nicene Creeds.

Quite in confidence we may reveal to our readers that some excellent people who have been reading the discussions about the Apostolic and Nicene creeds have been wondering in their secret heart what these creeds are. Are any of them church members? Well, that is neither here nor there. But these excellent people want to know what these creeds are, and the truth is are ashamed to come out in this Christian age and ask boldly, "What is the creed, anyhow?"

We understand their ignorance. We sympathize with it. Therefore we print herewith both the creeds.

The school of Presbyterian ministers who, like Dr. Briggs, find themselves embarrassed by some of the articles in the present confession of faith, have declared, several of them, that the essentials of belief are all found in what is called the Apostolic creed, which runs as follows:

I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth; and in Jesus Christ his only son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried; he descended into hell; the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the holy Catholic church, the communion of the saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting. Amen.

In a foot note the Presbyterian confession of faith explains that "descended into hell" means "continued in the state of the dead and under the power of death until the third day." The Episcopal prayer book says that any church may omit the words "He descended into hell," and substitute instead this, "He went into the place of departed spirits." These latter words, says the Episcopal prayer book, "are considered as words of the same meaning in the creed" with the expression, "He descended into hell." The Episcopalians have another form of the creed, slightly different, which may be studied.

Dr. Heber Newton declares that on the original Nicene creed the Protestant church of Europe and America broadly rests. There is no other essential to which he, as an Episcopal preacher, is bound to subscribe, since the Nicene creed contains the essential spiritual truths of humanity. The Nicene creed which Dr. Newton lays down as the basis of Christian faith is as follows:

We believe in one God, the father Almighty, maker of all things, both visible and invisible; and in one Lord, Jesus Christ, the son of God, begotten of the father before all worlds; God of God, light of light, very God of very God, begotten, not made, being of one substance with the father, by whom all things were made; both things in heaven and things in earth; who for us men and for our salvation came down and was made flesh, and was made man; suffered, and the third day arose again, and went up into the heavens, and is come again to judge the quick and the dead, and in the Holy Ghost.

To this form of words the Roman Catholic church adds anathemas against certain unbelievers.

A Moral Engine.

Undoubtedly the modern apartment house is destined to be, under a kindly overruling destiny, a great moral engine. A recent lawsuit illustrates this. A woman lived alone in a flat. She behaved herself quietly, and, what was more to the point, paid her rent regularly. But a neighbor of hers, a man who lived in the flat across the hall, made complaint of her to the landlord. He said that she had much company, especially too many masculine visitors. It is true, the lady explained very plausibly, that they all came on business, but this did not do. They were all orderly and made no noise, but still it did not do. The mere fact that they came disturbed the guardian of society who lived in the next flat, and he felt constrained in the interests of morality to complain, and complain he did.

If you live in a flat and stay out until 2 o'clock in the morning, your neighbor above or below notices it and calls you to account. Just how loud you laugh, exactly who come to see you and how often they arrive, your method of training your children, how many of your family have a latchkey, nay, precisely what you have for dinner—all these and more are noted by the faithful watchdogs of society who occupy the next flat. If therefore you have a tendency to be a little gay, and unconventional and want to correct the fault, go live in a flat. There, whether you like it or not, you must "keep in de middle ob de road."

Hon. John Bookwalter declares that the most intelligent, clear brained class of people on earth are the American farmers. If a farmer has a library of twenty-five books he reads and rereads them till he can almost repeat them line by line.

Paragraphs like the following, from a fashion column, must be encouraging to invalid ladies who go to the seaside for the benefit of the salt water bathing. "Thin women are rarely attractive in the water, there is no beauty in angularity."

Twenty-three states now give school suffrage to women.

REPORT OF THE EXPERTS

Light Thrown on "Honest" John Bardsley's Thefts.

HIS NET STEALINGS $778,635.38.

He Loaned City and State Money at 9 Per Cent. and the Keystone National Bank Paid Him the Enormous Sum of Nearly $77,000 in Interest.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Taylor Faunce, Lawrence Brown and Thomas W. Barlow, the committee of experts appointed by Mayor K. S. Stuart to examine into John Bardsley's accounts as city treasurer, have made their report. After recapitulating the accounts as found, they show the net balance due the state from Bardsley to be $1,585,602.95. His account with state and city is thus stated:

Net amount due to the state	$1,585,602 95
Net amount due to the city	1,930,947 09
Total balance due to the state and the city to be accounted for	$2,394,551 95
CREDIT
1—Deduct amount of deposits in various banks to May 31, 1891	$919,673 47
Total	$1,474,878 48
2—Deduct Keystone bank due bills	295,000 00
Total	$740,878 48
3—Deduct Keystone bank checks paid by Mr. Bardsley in excess of $437,384.32 in city fund account	196,043 10
Total net deficiency in Mr. Bardsley's accounts	$553,835 38
A Grand Total of	$2,474,835.38.

In addition to the deficiency of $553,-835.38, the interest which Mr Bardsley received from the various banks, firms and individuals, together with dividends on stock and securities in the city vaults, and with public money, amounting to at least $225,000, should be added, making a grand total of money misappropriated of $778,-635.38. As to the above credit of $295,000 represented by Keystone bank due bills, we find more or less evidence of payments made from time to time by Mr. Bardsley to the president of the bank, which may make up this amount.

Suspicious Due Bills.

The due bills are irregularly numbered and dated, and in connection with the fact that we have found four blank due bills in a sheet uncut under a blotter on Mr. Bardsley's desk, creates a fair suspicion of irregularities. It will be impossible to prove whether these due bills are genuine and whether the money was actually paid into the bank, and if genuine, what disposition was made thereof by the bank officers, and especially whether any of it was paid back to Mr. Bardsley, until we have full, free and uninterrupted access to the books, papers and accounts of the bank.

Assuming these due bills to be honest evidence of payments to the credit of the bank, which have not been returned, it must not be forgotten that they do not represent deposits made in good faith by Mr. Bardsley as a public officer.

His Interest Income $1,000 a Month.

Public money to which he had no title was handed over to the Keystone bank or to its president for loaning purposes, but apparently for his personal advantage and to obtain a higher rate of interest.

Mr. Bardsley's private memorandum book shows that he received from the Keystone bank $1,000 each month, commencing in the month of January, 1889, and continuing regularly to September, 1890, making a total of $21,000.

This sum was regularly paid in addition to interest which he received on state money loaned or deposited, and appears to represent 10 per cent. on the limit of $400,000 of the city deposit. One entry showed the receipt of $300 "for the use of $60,000 from March 15 to April 15, 1890, 30 days," equivalent to an interest rate of 9 per cent. The total amount of interest paid to Bardsley for the years 1889 and 1890 by this bank alone was $76,827.45.

In the Light of Restitution.

Thus it appears that these due bills represent loans personally made to the bank rather than deposits therein, and which acts of loaning were violations of the law.

It may well be doubted whether such a credit under such circumstances is properly made, but it is allowed in this account with this explanation. All other amounts claimed as credits by Mr. Bardsley must be viewed solely in the light of restitution, to give him credit for such alleged values would be to credit him with the very evidence of his crime and hold him in his hopeless debt, or avoid a darker stain of wrong doing than any to which he has pleaded guilty.

Bardsley's Stock Deals.

Delving into Bardsley's stock deals the report reads: Certain items of John Bardsley with public money which were repaid to him: To Robert Glendenning & Co., $64,000; to Bardsley, $6,000; interest received by Bardsley on loans to Glendenning & Co., $13,026.37, loaned by Bardsley to Bradford mills, $375,700.78.

"There are other and smaller loans which were made by Mr. Bardsley to different persons. As to many of these loans there is at present no means by which we can make definite investigation. They have been paid and which have not. With respect to the loans to judges we would report that as a time which cannot be ascertained now. Thomas S. Pinletter either borrowed from Mr. Bardsley personally the sum of $600 or obtained this sum through Mr. Bardsley's intervention. The very small amount and the further fact that there is no evidence that a loan was made to Judge Pinletter by Mr. Bardsley out of any public money in his possession proves that transaction to be entirely free from any element of impropriety."

These are the only judges with whom Mr. Bardsley appears to have had any transactions whatever.

His Losses and Gains.

The total of the stock bought through Glendenning & Co. amounted to $102,-782.18. From William H. Kemble, $50,-967.50, and that bought through the People's bank to $16,850.

The recapitulation of losses through Glendenning & Co. was $102,782.18; through William H. Kemble, $50,972.40 and through the People's bank, $16,850, a total of $170,-605.58.

Bardsley's total gains on this stock transaction were $90,115.63, and the net loss $124,434. The gain on stock purchased by Mr. Bardsley, mainly with money borrowed by him from the Farmers and Mechanics' National bank, was on West Side Chicago Railroad company, $2,000 shares bought from Kemble, Widener & Elkins, $60,515.75. The dividends and interest received by him during 1889, 1890 and 1891 on stock and bonds purchased by him with public money amounted to $68,870, and the interest paid by him to carry loans amounted to $19,054.01, leaving a profit of $49,815.99.

Bardsley's Check Books.

A number of stubs in the checkbooks of Mr. Bardsley's account in the Keystone bank have been torn out. We have, however, found the checks bearing the proper numbers of the stubs. The stub of check No. 466, dated Feb. 28, 1890, for $1,000 has not been disturbed. On this stub in Bardsley's handwriting is the following entry: "For J. & Mc., Jan., Feb., $1,000."

We also find that check No. 205 on the Keystone, dated Dec. 4, 1889, was drawn by Bardsley, "to the order of myself for W. L." On the stub of this check is the following entry: "William Livey, state treasurer, for his kindness to me during the year, $500."

Memorandum on page 48 shows that Bardsley received as rebate on advertising in 1888 $16,789.04, and the entry reads "Loss on advertising that the interest of the law has been executed. Attached to them are the death warrants and the witnesses to the executions. Attached to the certificate is Ingrim's case is the following statement signed by Drs. Macdonald and Ward:

The undersigned, having served as physicians at the execution by electricity of James J. Slocum, Harris A. Smiler, Joseph Wood and William Kemmler, in the state prison, now severally declare, hereby submit, at your request, the following report of their observations:

First—All of the condemned men walked into the execution room unresisted, with firmness and without assistance. Each of them took his seat in the chair without the slightest protest or resistance and quietly submitted to the adjustment of the restraining straps and electrodes.

Second—In each case unconsciousness was produced instantaneously by the discharge of the circuit, was complete and without interruption until the heart's action had entirely ceased and death had certainly occurred. In each case death was manifestly painless.

In compliance with the statute an autopsy was made in each case at which was present by Dr. Ira T. Van Gieson, of New York, in our presence and under our supervision, with the result of revealing the entire absence in the blood and tissues previously observed in cases of death by the action of strong electrical currents.

Specimens, especially of the blood and of the nervous system, were taken to Dr. Van Gieson for the purpose of careful microscopical examination, and the results will be forwarded to us for incorporation in this report when completed. In conclusion allow us to congratulate you on the completeness in all the details of all your preliminary arrangements, on the uniform good order and decorum which prevailed during this trying ordeal, and on the resulting demonstration of the rapidity and painlessness of this method of inflicting the death penalty. The experience of today has proved to our satisfaction that this method is superior to any yet devised.

The Doctor Carries a Revolver.

PEMBERTON, N. J., July 16.—Not satisfied with having hung Dr. W. L. Woodruff in effigy and driving him out of town in consequence of his sensational suit for divorce against his wife, the citizens of Pemberton have passed resolutions against the new doctor for his actions and expressing sympathy for Mrs. Woodruff. Some of the bothsaded ones were in favor of giving the doctor a coat of tar and feathers, but on learning that he always carried a revolver concluded to postpone that feature.

California Wants the Garden.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—The state board of trade claims for California the head of the department of horticulture of the World's fair as a fair recognition of her position as the chief agricultural state of the Union, and presents the names of Col. Ben Buckley, of Los Angeles; Prof. Kimball, of San Diego; Edward Cooper, Santa Barbara, and George A. Fleming, of San Jose.

A Setback for Coroner Levy.

ALBANY, July 16.—In response to Coroner Levy's letter asking for information as to his duties in the New York city jail in regard to the inquest in the Smiler case, Attorney General Tabor wired this message: "I am decidedly of the opinion that you have no authority whatever to make the investigation contemplated."

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

A Negro's Vengeance for an Insult.

PROVIDENCE, July 16.—Charles Good, a negro, stabbed and fatally wounded William H. Larkin in Pawtucket. The negro and a companion passed Good on the road Larkin's companion shouted "Nigger!" This so enraged Good that he drew a knife and stabbed Larkin.

Temperance Delegates Quarrel.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 16.—At the national temperance convention Dr. Kynett, of Philadelphia, asserted that the state organizations were packed in the interest of the third or Prohibition political party. This statement created a wrangle.

They Will Not Consider the Senate.

HARRISBURG, July 16.—The Pennsylvania Steel company declined to consider the Senate bill providing for the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, and a strike will probably be ordered soon.

General Clarkson's Return.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Among the passengers arriving on the City of Paris was General Clarkson, president of the National Republican league.

CAMPBELL WON THE DAY.

Renominated for Governor by the Ohio Democrats.

M'KINLEY PRAISED AND CENSURED.

His Opponent Complimented Him Personally, but Assailed Him and His Tariff Bill—Campbell's Enemies Easily Routed—Young Thurman Honored.

CLEVELAND, July 16.—As Governor Campbell and his friends predicted, they easily won a victory over their opponents in the Democratic state convention. The full ticket nominated follows:

For Governor—James E. Campbell.

For Lieutenant Governor—W. V. Marquis.

For Auditor of State—Hon. T. E. Peckinpaugh, of Wayne county.

For Attorney General—John P. Bailey, of Putnam county.

For State Treasurer—C. F. Ackerman, of Mansfield.

For Judge of the Supreme Court—Gustavus S. Wood, of Hamilton county.

For Commissioner of Common Schools—Charles V. Miller, of Fairfield county.

For Member of the Board of Public Works—John C. McNamara, of Summit county.

For Member of the Board and Dairy Commission—H. S. Trumbo, of Lawrence county.

Young Thurman Warmly Welcomed.

In welcoming the delegates to Cleveland State Chairman Kerr called a meeting to order. Hon. Allen G. Thurman, and then Allen W. Thurman, the "Old Roman's" son, was warmly welcomed as temporary chairman. Young Thurman's speech was received with loud applause. Frank D. Blonde was made permanent chairman. The device adopted for the gathering was a Liberty bonnet. Governor Campbell was then renominated by an overwhelming majority over Neal, his principal opponent. In a long speech Governor Campbell reviewed the work of his administration, which he maintained had been of vast benefit to the state. Passing on to the tariff he said in part:

The Republican party of the state of Ohio represents the reckless extravagance and astounding profligacy which have disgusted the splendid Democratic surplus; forced the extension of national bonds and compelled an increase of taxation; which has resort to the trick of bookkeeping and subterfuge unworthy of his office in order to conceal a deficit and deceive the people.

He Compliments McKinley.

Pre-eminently also does the Republican leader in Ohio (whose high character and conspicuous public services command the admiration of his political foes, as well as the confidence of his friends), stand for that pernicious tariff measure which was rejected at the polls last year by the people of the entire country; a measure identified with his name, saturated with his ideas and wrought by his hands and a measure which, as well said, is the intensification "of monopoly for monopoly;" a measure which has brought into existence the trusts and combinations—the centralization of wealth with its debasing and destructive results; a measure which has increased the cost of living to the wage earner and lower wages for productive labor; a measure which has forced the farmer in Ohio to sell his wool in competition with the pauper labor of the world, and that, too, in a market where he pays more dearly for hundreds of necessary articles of use than the foreigner who competes with the humbug of bounty produced sugar; a measure which forces from the labor of the country $14,000,000 annually for the benefit of prospective tin mines owned by capitalists who live in England, and prospective tin plate works to be operated by labor imported from Wales; a measure which, as it came from the hands of its author, not, by the admission of an eminent Republican, "opens a market for another pound of pork or another barrel of flour;" a measure which could but have forced down the throat of a reluctant senate until sugar coated with the old Democratic doctrine of reciprocity—a doctrine finally thought fatally embodied in the bill in spite of opposition from the great Ohio protectionists.

The Tariff of Today.

In his recent speech of acceptance this same champion of higher protection said: "We follow the tariff teachings of Washington and Hamilton, of Clay and Webster, of Lincoln and Garfield. Let us see how wide of the mark this statement is.

The tariff of today is at the rate of 57½ per cent.; the tariff of Washington was 7½ per cent.; the protection sought for Clay was for the benefit of "infant industries," the tariff of today increases protection upon industries which have been coddled for more than thirty years; the protection of Garfield was to quote his own words, "that kind of protection which leads to ultimate free trade."

"No Third Party Can Succeed."

Let the Republicans of Ohio who have not gone mad over McKinleyism, and who still start with us on the backward march toward the tariff of Washington, or, better yet, enroll themselves with the Democracy of Cincinnati, those burning words of Garfield. Let the will meaning men who train under the banner of "Farmer Alliance" and "Industrial Union," and who seek to remedy real grievances, brought about by Republican legislation, remember that no third party can succeed, but that it will be a part of us they can help to swell the joyous triumph of the Democracy of the Republican citadel—now the Democratic Buckeye state.

The Platform.

The majority platform indorsed Campbell's administration and the tariff reform law, and favored a tariff for revenue only. It demanded the demonstration of silver in this fashion:

We demand the demonetization of silver in 1873 by the party then in power as an iniquitous alteration of the money standard in favor of the creditor classes against the debtors, producers and workers, by shutting off one of the sources of the supply of primary money, operated eventually to increase the value of gold, depress prices, hamper industry and disparage enterprise. And we demand the restoration of the constitutional standard of both gold and silver, with the equal right of each to free and unlimited coinage.

It favored reciprocity with Canada and uniform municipal government for the state. Frank Goepper, of Cincinnati, submitted this substitute for the silver plank in a minority report:

The Proposed Substitute Silver Plank.

We believe in honest money, the coinage of gold and silver, and paper money redeemable convertible into such money without loss; and we favor the issuance of United States notes to drive either gold or silver out of circulation, and we believe in maintaining the coinage of both metals on equal terms.

We also recommend that the resolution declaring for a graduated tax on incomes be stricken from the platform.

Judge Gorman contended that it was not the province of a Democratic convention to look up the light of the silver conventions of Colorado and Nevada. By adopting a free coinage plank the convention would place the seal of approval upon the issue of a debased coinage by the government. The Republican party should not be permitted to divert the Democracy from its true principles, and the Democracy of Ohio cannot afford to go into the campaign with a declaration for the money question as enumerated in the majority report. The Goepper minority report was carried by a vote of 599 to 356½.

Mr. Spurgeon Is Dying.

ESCAPED IN A DEAD MAN'S CLOTHING.

The Remarkable Adventure of National Guardsman Curry.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Daniel C. Curry, twenty-three years old, a member of the Eighth regiment, National Guard, and a plasterer by trade, appeared unexpectedly at his home, No. 210 East One Hundred and Tenth street, a fortnight after his death and astonished his wife, who supposed he was still a prisoner on Hart's island.

Curry was a quiet prisoner. He was put to work with a gang in Potter's field. When the keeper called the men together at night on June 26 and marched them to quarters Curry slid away to the dead house, where he pushed himself in through an open window.

Into one of the coffins he jumped and drew the cover on. Until night he stayed in the coffin. Then he climbed out, and finding the body of a man brought there for burial proceeded to strip the corpse of its clothing.

He clothed the body in his convict suit and put on the dead man's clothes. Then Curry stole out of the window and ran down to the shore, making his escape. A storm was gathering. The waters tossed a heavy log upon the shore and Curry seized it and rolled it to one side. From a boarded fence the convict ripped out four planks and made a raft. He drifted down the sound opposite Berrian island, a distance of ten miles, when he was rescued from his raft and swam to the shore exhausted. He was arrested later at his home.

A REIGN OF BLOOD IN HAYTI.

Even Hippolyte's Officers Shudder at His Butcheries.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Advices have just been received from the disturbed republic of Hayti by the steamer Alles, which left Jacmel on July 2. According to the purser of this steamer the seat of the insurgent forces has been transferred to Jacmel from the capital city, Port au Prince. The entire city was in an uproar, and it was plainly evident that preparations were being made for an outbreak Hastily conducted. According to the officers of the Alles the repeated assurances that Hippolyte had discontinued his massacres were false.

They say that Hippolyte's reckless policy is having its effect of turning from him many people who assisted him in subduing the revolutionists. It is said that Prince several political prisoners were executed between the last week in June and the date of the Alles departure from Aux Cayes. The killing had then become so frequent and unprovoked that even the leaders of the government forces in the various cities, to whom was assigned the work of slaughtering the men, revolted. Then Hippolyte announced that the executions would be continued, no matter who the victims were.

Census Statistics Corrected.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Comptroller Myers has finished the task he undertook of examining the census bureau, a detailed statement of the city's finances, correcting the statistics contained in census bulletin No. 68. The comptroller says the total ordinary expenditures chargeable to the city amounts to $26,968,262.55 instead of $48,-967,482, and that the administrative expenditures amount to $20,407,700.06 instead of $36,403,653 as stated in the bulletin.

MY TENDER CONSCIENCE.

I have a tender conscience.
That measures five feet three,
When sickness or pain is worth whole tonnes
Or cold divinity.

Who leads me by "a still, small voice,"
And, with a loving glance,
Reminds me while the lamp holds out
This sinner has a chance.

Whose form is ever by my side,
And at the door of sin
Thrusts out a white and rounded arm,
And taps the way within.

No man can ever go astray
Who pauses to reflect
That he must meet those modest eyes,
And keep his self respect.

So with a firm, unshaken front,
I bid old Satan flee;
For I've a tender conscience,
That measures five foot three.

Strain, and when cold add the juice of one orange, one grated pineapple, one pint of cracked ice and sufficient water to make it of a palatable sweetness. The pineapple, after it has been soaking and standing for one hour, may be, if desired, strained out.

A MISTAKE OF POPE'S.
That "particular ills are parts of general good" is indivisual nonsense with the horrors of scrofula or specific diseases, however light, upon us. Therefore, never mind the particular, we say—"Let us use the good, and fly to purify the blood," and remove all diseases by Queen Blood Cure, and let the general good "take care of itself."

TO CARRY OCEAN MAILS.

Preparing to Put the Subsidy Bill Into Effect.

MANY FAST SHIPS TO BE BUILT.

They Will Be Used as an Auxiliary Navy in War Time, and Must Be American Built and Officered and Partly Manned by United States Mariners.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The formal notice of the postoffice department inviting proposals for ocean mail letting has been issued. It cites the act of March 3, 1891, and is unusually explicit because the act of congress requires the advertising of the routes, which must be set forth in full, time when the contract shall be made, the duration of the same, the size of the steamers to be used, the number of trips each year and times of sailing and the time when service shall commence."

The law requires the insertion of the advertisement in at least two daily newspapers of foreign of the principal cities. The conditions of the bids, the classification of vessels and instructions to bidders are not made part of the advertisement, but are printed separately, and to be had on application to the postoffice department.

New Lines and Better Speed.

A new line on the Pacific coast from San Francisco to Chili and to the west coast of South America is proposed, and a new line from Seattle or Tacoma to China and Japan, to a new line from San Francisco to Melbourne. Provision has been made to secure quicker service by all of the old lines, reducing the time by one-fourth to Panama and as much as six days between Panama and San Francisco. The service between New York and Brazil is to be reduced to nineteen days instead of twenty-five and upward as now. The service elsewhere is reduced to a minimum by requiring new ships, and instead of irregular and infrequent service many routes much more frequent and absolutely regular service will be insisted on.

To Build Many Big Ships.

From the conference, that have taken place there seems to be good reasons to expect that certain service will be put on speedily. This new service, in connection with the enlargement of the old, will require the building of a number of ships, probably not less than five of the first class, seventeen of the second class, five of the third class and four of the fourth class, with an aggregate tonnage of 184,000 tons and at a probable cost of from $27,000,000 to $30,000,000. It is hoped that the other lines projected will invite still further investment of capital. Newport News or Norfolk has been chosen as the best point for the upper southern coast, and Port Tampa (starting at Mobile), New Orleans and Galveston as the best ports for the lower southern coast. While a small part of the service can be put on immediately, it will take the whole term of three years to put on many of the larger ships. Three years is the limit prescribed by law.

To Aid American Seamen.

Vessels must be all American built, all owned and officered by American citizens in conformity with existing laws. They must be of the highest rating of their respective classes known to maritime commerce. The speed is to be tested by four consecutive hours' trial, conducted by experts of lines designated by the postmaster general, and under such rules as are usually applied in the acceptance of vessels for the navy. They must be built for prompt conversion into vessels of the auxiliary naval cruisers, and those of the first, second and third classes must be prepared for the carrying of at least four inch guns. Not more than two years one-fourth of the crew must be citizens of the United States; the next two years one-third, and the last part of the contract term at least one-half.

For Naval Purposes.

The vessels are to be inspected by naval officers of constructors, and approved by the secretary of the navy as suitable for naval purposes before the postmaster general can enter into contract. Each vessel must carry a certain number of American boys or apprentices, and the vessels are to be received up to 2 o'clock of Monday, Oct. 26, next. The postmaster general reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

The following new board of directors was elected: Charles Francis Adams, Lemuel Bannister, A. M. Byers, August Belmont, Charles Fairchild, Marcellus Hartley, George W. Hobard, Henry B. Hyde, Brayton Ives and George Westinghouse, Jr.

Mr. Blaine Looked Well.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 16.—Mr. Blaine took his usual afternoon drive. He rode in an open carriage and was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Damrosch. Mr. Blaine looked well and chatted pleasantly with his companion. When he returned from his drive he took some exercise on the veranda of his residence.

General Knapp Calls a Meeting.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 16.—A call for a meeting of the Republican state committee at New York, Thursday, July 30, has been issued by General John N. Knapp, chairman of the committee. The meeting is for the purpose of naming the time and place of the next Republican state convention.

Chief Hostine Captured.

FLAGSTAFF, A. T., July 16.—The leader of the Navajo renegades, Chief Hostine has been arrested by Sheriff Francis. The chief was surprised with only one buck and was taken in haste to the railroad station, with several hundred Indians in pursuit. The escape was a narrow one.

Train Wreckers at Work.

SARATOGA, July 16.—Shortly after midnight two attempts were made to wreck the Adirondack sleeping car express train near Mechanicsville. The obstructions consisted of piles of ties. They were discovered by the track walker and removed.

Nina to Marry Tonight.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Nina Van Zandt who gained notoriety by marrying the anarchist, August Spies, by proxy, will be married tonight to Stepano Malata. The young couple will go to Italy on their wedding tour.

WOMAN AND HOME

SIMPLE DIET THE SAFEST.

Mothers Cannot Be Too Careful of the Quality of Food for Children.

Yes, the simplest is the safest, and the best is the cheapest. The butcher, for example, or the egg merchant, cannot adulterate his wares, but he may have several qualities, and there is a stage in respect to all animal foods which renders them to a large extent poisonous, and this is as bad if not worse than adulteration.

We often hear it said that shop eggs, as they are called, are good enough for frying with bacon or ham. This is a mistake; an egg that has even a suspicion of staleness about it is deleterious to health, not to say dangerous, no matter whether it be fried or boiled. The same may be said of flesh meats of all kinds.

It is a truism that any kind of food or mixed diet which requires the aid of stimulant for their digestion is not salutary. Such a diet is a tax upon the whole system, and causes heat and discomfort and a feverish state of the blood, which can only end in debility of the nervous system and more or less prostration.

Those who would obtain the greatest amount of health and comfort from the food they eat must be most careful in its selection. Every one ought to know what agrees with him and what does not. Through the summer months the table should be abundantly supplied with fruits and vegetables. Children especially should be fed liberally on these, to avoid heat rashes, which of the blood to the head and digestive troubles.

As a rule the healthy stomach will easily absorb any reasonable quantity of fruit taken at proper seasons. Weak and abused digestive organs will have to be treated more carefully, but will ultimately grow accustomed to a fruit diet and be all the better for it. To do good, fruit must be properly ripe and sound. If eaten green or between meals it is interfering with digestion and cause bowel troubles. Acids prevent calcareous degeneration, keeping the bones elastic, as well as preventing the accumulation of earthy matters. This is because of their solvent power. Fruit is perfect food when fully ripe, and if it were in daily use from youth to age, there would be less want, gallstones and stone in the bladder.—Hall's Journal of Health.

The Energy of Children.

There is sometimes an element of fierceness in the energy of children. They are not only lively and active and noisy, but they are aggressively so. They are not satisfied without constant attention and sympathy. Their elders must look at that, know this and praise the other; and their placidity being continually stirred, their elders get weary of schooling their souls to patience.

This aggressive energy is a terrible strain on tranquil nerves and a tired body. It is in such moments of stress of spirit that the mother makes the hasty, impatient speech, and then, self-reproachful, does for the child tenfold more than she ought to punish herself for the brief sin.

It is true, however some may exclaim against it, that all mothers do not merge their whole being in motherhood. Sometimes the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak, and sometimes the spirit itself rebels.

A woman who was the mother of twelve children brought up her sons and daughters to honor and love her. She was a model wife, mother and neighbor. Years after her boys and girls had grown up and were scattered, she confessed, "I did used to get positively tired of my children." She was a faithful mother in spite of the feeling, perhaps better because of her perception of it, but she was a woman first, and it was a human trait.

"Job's comforters" come around, saying: "Think how badly you would feel if you lost them! Think how you will regret the trouble when they are grown up solemn men and women!" All that is true enough, though, like some other truths, no present relief. But when the infliction is worst it might afford a little help to consider what a wonderful mercy it is that children do have such an abundant stock of aggressive energy to start with. That is a help it is in the chances and changes of this troublesome life!

It is the energetic, enthusiastic man who keeps a bold front and a steadfast soul in the world's battlefields. It is the energetic, brave spirited woman who preserves a happy, youthful heart, and meets trial and tribulations with a smiling defiance. Yes, the children will need through life all the energy they can command. Let us try to be thankful they have such a good supply to begin on.—Harper's Bazar.

Grandmother's Pantry.

A correspondent has evidently has a "sweet tooth" waxes eloquent over the goodies made by our grandmothers, who, as he truly says, had few cook books, but knew how to cook. He writes feelingly and well, but if he is a married man it is perhaps fortunate for him that his letter is printed anonymously.

It is long since some of us have seen any of the crullers of which we were so fond when grandmother made them.

She used to make also a toothsome little seed cake, fragrant with caraway and anise seeds, with sugar on top, the like of which we have not even since we used to dip into her pantry and help ourselves when we were out of the old blue stone jar in which they were always kept.

There was another and larger stone jar on the same shelf, in which she kept those big, puffy, twisted and braided doughnuts that neither looked nor tasted like the degenerate doughnuts of the present day.

Sometimes we chose a cooky instead, a cooky "as was a cooky;" not a thin, wafer like, dry cooky, like the cookies of this generation, but a full inch thick and almost as large as a saucer—a cooky to delight the heart and stall more the stomach of a hungry boy.

You remember, too, the big brown turn over with your initial on it. In these days of elaborate and unwholesome dishes you have never tasted anything better than that turnover.

You found many things in your grandmother's pantry that you never find anywhere now. And perhaps, with the exception of your own mother, you have never found any one so kind and patient and generous as grandmother herself was.—Youth's Companion.

Their First.

They came into the street car together Sunday afternoon, a little bit of a young mother, still pale with the delicate pallor of the cheeks of young mothers often seen, and her three months baby. The baby was dressed in white, with a little white hood, and was fast asleep in its mother's arms. He had the awkwardness and the clumsiness of the average young father who goes abroad for the first time with his baby. His own baby, for when he had it up in his arms, he held close and gently and so tenderly in the hollow of one of his big red hands, a frail, helpless little bundle of humanity, for it was that great giant would lay dead all life.

"She'n't I take him now?" asked the baby's mother when she sat down.

"Oh, no," he said to her, "he said, as he gathered up the baby's long ruffled and tucked white skirts to keep them from touching the car floor after he had sat down.

"When you get tired holding him I'll take him," she said.

"Oh, he won't tire me any. He isn't any heavier than a bird," was the reply.

And there they sat oblivious to everything and everybody but the baby, their baby. Its coming had been to them the beginning of the real home epic and its tiny presence had made their little world so much larger and brighter and sweeter than it was before.—Detroit Free Press.

Women Should Be Businesslike.

Why can't women be businesslike? The women in search of employment begins: "I have two children to support, and you know that is uphill work, and so I am sure you will wish to find something I can do." The uncommonly sensible woman stops at this point. The average woman goes on: "It's only four years since I was comfortably situated. Nobody ever thought it would be necessary for me to turn my hand to anything."

Is it not possible for a woman to understand that the size of her family does not concern her employer? Can she not further strain her intellect to grasp the fact that the wealth or poverty of her late husband or father is not a matter of the least interest to him? Is it asking too much to expect that she find out for herself something she can do, and stand on her merits as a factor of the business situation?

Further, is it not a matter of importance that women should see that by asking work to be done out of charity they give employers excuse for offering low wages and so reduce the standard not only for other women, but for men? Finally, can any body a moral or an economic right to bring up a girl without considering that it may some time be necessary for her to turn her hand to something.—New York Recorder.

How the French Baby Is Reared.

The French baby used to wear a multiplicity of caps—a small, close, cap of fine linen, over which was a second of Right flannel, and over that a third of some light and ornamental stuff; over the caps were long veils of lace, and the established servants of the country, to some well known dependent of the house, to be nurse and wet nurse in one.

That is why one reads so much in French literature of foster brothers and foster sisters, who were the peasant children brought up in the same home and at the same breast as the young lords and ladies. The wet nurse who lived in the family was—and is still—commonly a Burgundian, an ample, handsome and good natured type of woman, something like our own woman of Devonshire. The fine Burgundian nurse is still a feature of Parisian life, with her black eyes, her rich color and her opaline arms. He had the full bosomed cap and her long, floating ribbons.—Strand Magazine.

Ammonia and Borax.

The uses of ammonia and borax are manifold and their value as household agents cannot be overrated. In the laundry, bath and kitchen they are growing positively indispensable to the progressive housekeeper.

The first is a valuable cleanser and disinfectant at the same time. By those who wish to do their work in the quickest and most effectual way three remarkable facilities are now employed. As toilet articles they have no superior. A little ammonia in the bath will keep the skin healthy, sufficiently supple and clean, firm and fresh looking. Is is found in many shampoo mixtures, and is a thorough cleanser of the hair and scalp.

Borax water is also excellent for washing the hair. Many prefer it for the face, as it renders the water very soft and leaves the cuticle smooth and fair. Both ammonia and borax water will clean hair brushes very rapidly and keep the bristles white and stiff. Weak borax water is a good dentifrice.

Almost every housewife who has an inclination toward window flower culture knows the efficacy as a fertilizer of a few drops of ammonia put in the water twice a week for plants.—Springfield Homestead.

Mulligatawney.

Mulligatawney soup owes its somewhat outlandish name to the tricky restaurateurs of a hundred years ago, who managed under this name to introduce into popular favor the somewhat familiar curry soup of India. Mulligatawney literally means "pepper water," and there was no especial reason for giving this soup the name. It may be made of either the breast of veal, chicken or rabbit as a foundation. A genuine Mulligatawney bears very good to excellence to rabbit stock. For practical purposes, however, it is usually made of veal stock.

To make the soup slice and fry three small onions, put two tablespoonfuls of minced ham in the saucepan with the onions, and add half a fowl and half a clove of garlic; let the whole fry till the meat is a little brown. Then pour over it two quarts of veal stock, and let the soup simmer gently for about an hour. Add an even tablespoonful of curry powder and an ounce of almonds which have been pounded to a paste and the juice of half a lemon. Season with salt and cayenne, add boiled rice and some East Indian chutney. Pickled mangoes are considered the most suitable to serve with Mulligatawney. This soup is not strained.—New York Tribune.

Foreign Bodies in the Nose.

Not a little danger is incurred from snuffing up accidentally articles in the nose, where they get lodged and refuse to move either one way or the other. Children are especially liable to suffer from this accident than older people, but there are many cases of all ages in the hospital suffering from this complaint. The great point is to act quickly, remedy takes so long before it is removed as to cause swelling and inflammation. The operation of removing the article after it has become very bad is simple, but it often causes great pain and a disfigurement of the face.

A new way of removing such articles is given by a medical practitioner. Insert the nozzle of a rubber bag in the other nostril, and close it up tightly. In the case of a baby the bag should be squeezed when the infant is crying. In an older patient make him swallow some water, and when in the act of doing this give the bag a sudden, quick, hard squeeze. Generally the air will pass back of the foreign body and force it out of the nostril. It is a simple way of removing such bodies from the nose, and any one can try it should a case by accident happen.—A. S. Atkinson, M. D.

Wegman's Work on the Farm.

The National Stockman suggests that women ought to pay more attention to the care of young stock on the farm because they are better adapted to it and have more patience.

Dairy. In the same line allow us to suggest that men are much better adapted to carrying in wood and water, to carrying out ashes and to the rougher work generally, and it would be a great accommodation to the women if the practice were generally indulged in. But it does not prevail very extensively. The women have enough to do without playing wet nurse to all the motherless lambs and calves on the place, and their work is harder for them than the farmer's work is for him.

It is all very well to talk about woman's superior patience—we know all about that. But until she evolutes into a being with a spring steel back, and one that never requires sleep or rest, it is a work of supererogation to invest new fields of labor for her. —Husbandman.

A Homemade Furniture Polish.

Many good housekeepers are often at a great loss in knowing how to keep varnished furniture, and the kind generally known as "oil finished" looking fresh and bright without much labor. Furniture having it revarnished or gone over by a finisher. Here is a never failing polish: After thoroughly dusting the article and cleaning off whatever specks may be on it, she should mix and apply the following: Take one teaspoonful of pure cider vinegar and add to it one gill of pure raw linseed oil. Shake thoroughly and apply.

Apply with a soft woolen rag, rubbing gently. It is only necessary to dampen the rag with the mixture and not to thoroughly wet it. It soon dries and leaves the article with a bright, new face. This preparation has the advantage of not gumming whatever specks may be on it, also should mix and apply the following: Take one teaspoonful of pure cider vinegar and add to it one gill of pure raw linseed oil. Shake thoroughly and apply.

Cure for Round Shoulders.

Round shoulders are almost unavoidably accompanied by weak lungs, but may be cured by the easily and easily performed exercise of raising one's self upon the toes, in a perpendicular position, several times daily. Take a perfectly upright position, with the heels together and the toes at an angle of forty-five degrees. Drop the arms lifelessly by the sides, animating and raising the chest to its full capacity muscularly, the chin well drawn in. Slowly rise up on the balls of the feet to the greatest possible height, thereby exercising all the muscles of the legs and body, come again into standing position without swaying the body backward out of the perfect line. Repeat this exercise first on one foot and then on the other.—New York Journal.

A Novel Caster.

A useful castor of novel form is being used in England. It is intended to obviate the difficulties arising from the ordinary construction of castors where the roller is carried on a crank swivel arm which is easily broken off. The center pin of the roller bearing is fixed in a small plate rotating freely around a center pin secured in the body of the castor.

The plate named, when pushed round into any position, rests on the base of the cup or disk of the caster, and is thereby kept free to move in any direction, thoroughly supported in every position. It is, in fact, a well supported universal joint. The castor is a great improvement on the old types.—Boston Transcript.

How to Brush the Hair.

In the care of the hair it is important to brush it thoroughly on the "wrong side." For instance, when the hair is worn rolled back from the face it should be parted and brushed, and if the coiffure is in the back it should be combed up and also well brushed. Attention to this seemingly trifling detail, and to having the scalp massage daily, will insure strong, bright hair to elderly people. —Herald of Health.

Olive Schreiner, whose "Dreams" is considered the best literary production of a woman since George Eliot's time, lives in Cape Colony, in a mere apology of a town with the unpronounceable name of Matjesfontein. The place consists of a station, farm, mill, hotel, warehouse and a few barefooted horses. It lies in the very heart of a wilderness, "surrounded by level waves of gray sand and ragged ridges of rock."

The New York Tennis club is noted for the excellence of its woman players, of whom Miss Cahill's name takes the place of honor. She is said to be superior to two-thirds of the male players, and has occasionally beaten one or two well known men players. She is a slight girl, agile and active, and is never to be seen at a return a hard ball which is the delight and wonder of all tennis players.

Steamed dumplings, with stewed chicken or veal, are an acquisition. Cook both these meats until nearly done, then make the dumplings like baking powder biscuits. Pour about but a half of the water from the meats into another vessel for gravy, and put the dumplings in the pot on the meat so they will not touch the water, and cook until all the water is boiled away.

A useful cement for mending earthen or stone jars, stopping leaks in the seams of tin pans or iron kettles, or fastening loose joints of iron or wood, is made by mixing litharge and glycerine to a thick cream. This will resist acids, heat and cold, if the article is not used until the cement has hardened.

The mother who hopes to promote the welfare or happiness of her child by taking upon herself every burden of work and care, and by depriving herself of comforts that her daughters may have luxuries, is committing an error too grave to be overlooked.

Ceilings that have been smoked by a kerosene lamp may be cleaned by washing with water in which soda has been dissolved —the proportion is not important.

Miss Asenath Philpott, of Gainesville, Tex., has hair 10 feet 7 inches long. This growth is since 1886, when her head was shaved after brain fever.

To preserve picture frames from flies boil shoes or four young onions in a pint of water, then with a soft brush or blender go over the frame.

The unpleasant smell of newly painted apartments may be lessened by setting pails of fresh water around on the floor.

A NEW DEPARTURE AT THE 5 AND 10C. STORE.

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer it a superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

DRIVING CAPES.

A New and Very Becoming Design Illustrated and Described.

The season is at hand when capes, mantelets or similar wraps easy to put on and take off are in demand for driving. At Newport, Saratoga, and other summer resorts where long drives in fashionable equipages are one of the features of the season, driving capes are especially required.

The cape depicted in the cut is one of the several shapes worn by French women at the races or when driving on the Bois. It is of black silk, plaited all round, and has puffed epaulets. It is enriched with a medici collar and graduated necklet of jeweled passementerie. This quite new and becoming design may be quickly laid aside, when not required for warmth, to expose a handsome toilet worn beneath it. Many of the driving capes are lined with silk of delicate and contrasting color.

Novelties in Veils.

There are any number of novelties in veils. Some are patterned at intervals with butterflies, some with beads and some with flies. They require to be put on very carefully, and securely pinned to the hat, so that there is no danger of their getting askew. A rather pretty veil for a blond to wear is powdered with little turquoise spots. Russian net flecked with gold goes nicely with a black and gold bonnet. Chenille spots are wonderfully becoming, but they are counted old style now. The hunting crop and V patterns are both novel. Colored veils are seldom worn.

It has played and won thirteen games, and in the itinerary it has crossed bats with the strongest amateur teams of New Jersey, New York and Brooklyn and this city. Such a record encourages the hope that the Westfield team will play the Cuban Giants. The Crescents, of Plainfield, are booked for two or three games with the Westfields in August.—Elizabeth Journal.

There is being a good deal written about inventions for producing rain, none of which seem to produce rain when required. There never has been but one reliable invention for hurrying up a desired shower, and that is the one in use among housekeepers who bear in mind the useful hints their mothers have given them. These housekeepers, who know how to do it, fill a bucket with water in which they float a gourd, or in the absence of a gourd, a tin washbasin. They then carry the whole to an upstairs window, through which they throw the water by basinfuls into the street or anywhere out of doors, and the shower follows.—New Brunswick Home News.

THE EXCURSION TO BELMAR.

A Pleasant Day.—Tedious Delays Returning on Account of Accidents

It took twenty cars to accommodate the First Baptist excursions to Belmar yesterday. The day was bright and clear. A delay of about ten minutes was caused on the down trip by a 'hot-box' on one of the cars. A pleasant time was had at the shore.

Returning the train left Belmar at 6 p. m., stopping at Asbury Park and Long Branch for passengers left on the down trip.

Another "hot-box" developed near Long Branch and became so bad that after half an hours work without bettering the trouble, it was found necessary for the passengers in that car to find accommodation elsewhere on the train, and at the first opportunity the car was left on a side track, after the fire was extinguished, and the two sections started once more at a fast 'pace' for home.

At Tremley, a red flag warned the engineer to stop.

From Tremley on, the trip home was of the 'steady-by-jerks' order.

Plainfield was reached at 9.15.

A car derailed, on account of the track spreading near Elizabethport, was the chief cause of the delay.

The committee did all in their power to attend to the comforts of the passengers.

The passengers pestered both brakemen and conductor, as to the cause of the delays, but the information received was usually, "You know as much as I do."

One old man expressed the opinion of a great many when she said, "This delay is very aggravating, but no! to know the cause is more so."

LIFE INSURANCE STATISTICS.

Enormous Increase of the Business Done in New Jersey.

A glance at the statistics in regard to life insurance on file in the office of the insurance commissioner, at Trenton, shows that New Jersey is a prosperous field for the life insurance agents. The enormous amount of insurance is written each year, and the commissioner's report shows that policies aggregating $138,988,536,34 are outstanding. Fifteen years ago, when the insurance companies were first compelled to report to the Secretary of State, there were only twenty-eight doing business here. These were mostly old-line companies, although there were a few industrial companies.

At that time there were 19,508 policies in force in this State. At the beginning of the year 1891 there were 633,053 policies in force, of which 34,695 were held by the oldline companies. The 19,508 policies in force in 1875 represented $40,451,442 of fmurance; to-day the amount of insurance in force in the State of New Jersey is $196,988,536.34. Of this amount $67,688,877 is held by industrial companies, and the balance $89,351,659.34 by the regular life. There are forty companies now working in this State, compared with twenty-eight in 1875. The figures show that the life insurance business has increased more than 300 per cent. in fifteen years.

He Drew a Revolver.

As a Philadelphia express train on the Central Railroad was passing the Union station at Elizabeth yesterday morning a message was delivered at the telegraph office, to be forwarded to Jersey City, stating that a passenger on the train had drawn a revolver on a fellow passenger and threatened to shoot him. A message was at once forwarded to Jersey City to have the offender arrested on the arrival of the train at that place.

A Correspondent's Dissertation About the Bicycle.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—In these days when the "National" sport of bicycle riding has become so "universal" with lovers of out-door exercise, it is not difficult to foresee that with its "swift" strides it may overtake and "eclipse" in popular estimation its most formidable "rival" base ball, more especially when it receives the sanction of the Earl of "Warwick" and her "Imperial" majesty "Queen" "Victoria." Now that the bicycle has become indeed a vehicle of "safety," having apparently reached the "acme" of perfection the "tourist" and "rambler" may go with the greatest ease from "Springfield" to "Hartford" for pleasure, or the student to "Harvard" or "Yale" for learning, and can accomplish their journey with almost as much dispatch as if shot from a "pneumatic" tube, the only condition being that they take with them a "pathfinder" to "guide" them to their destination so that no time be lost. They may then in point of speed compare favorably with the "Eagle," "Sylph" shall retard their movements by busy hands of "iron" in their progress. Even to those who may not have personally experienced the effects of bicycle riding on the health and spirits. What more inspiring sight can be seen than when the ambitious "junior" seeking for fame as the "champion" issues a "challange" to the "expert" rider on a trial of speed, and the race begins. The word "go" is given. The "little giant" with muscles tough as "hickory" starts like a sturdy "broncho" and with a "rush" places himself in the lead with the determination that the "monitor" in the judge's stand shall soon proclaim him the "victor." His strong will soon brings into "union" the forces of blood and muscle. In the force of breezy "Gales" he speeds like a "cyclone" toward the goal.

The plaudits of friends and their "auxiliary" aid. His competitor may with the speed of the "new mail" urge him to his best. With a "dauntless" courage he presses the pedals that drive his wheels at a winner's pace over the line, and in the joy of his success shouts like a native "American", "Hail Columbia," "Happy Land," well satisfied that this is the "promised land."

The writer has lately passed through the worst part of a prospective bicycler's experience, that of the selection of a wheel even though he may have his "ideal" machine in mind. When the question is finally settled, and all is considered, it may appear needless to look at the question of securing a good one, as a matter of even ordinary difficulty. Among those whose names I have mentioned above, many fine ones are included, but after a person has listened to the agents' laudation of the superior qualities of their respective machines, a bewildering sense of doubt fills the mind and when the purchase is made, the conclusion is reached that in the choice of a bicycle he has required as much patience as any subsequent experience while riding it is likely to develope. I recommend to all in a similar dilemma this plan, that of relying on the integrity of a responsible maker, rather than trust to the whims and fancy of individual riders. The special wants of a bicyclist must have their place in setting this question. The racer examines carefully the weight of his machine as compared with its strength. The traveller over rough roads regards durability as the first requisite while he who aims to secure the most elastic movement will wish to combine spring forks, cushion or pneumatic tires, and any other appliance by which easy riding may be obtained. But I would emphasize the advantage of getting, if possible a high priced bicycle, not only on the well known principle that the best is the cheapest, but because a nicely finished, well made, well kept machine always delights the eye of a fast rider, as a handsome horse adds interest to the drive by his beauty as well as speed. But if the purse is too shallow to admit of that, then get a wheel of some kind with your lady friend and come out and enjoy a run over the fine road to Westfield and Elizabeth. The breezy air as you cut along will invigorate you far more than medicine. If you are a young boy it will give you keen enjoyment and if you are somewhat forlorn you into an old one, take the advice of one who knows, and renew your youth through the medium of a good "safety bicycle"

A New Bridge in North Plainfield.

The Board of Freeholders met with the Union County Board at the Sanford avenue bridge, North Plainfield, yesterday afternoon. It was decided to erect a low truss iron bridge over Green Brook at that point with a 45 foot span, a twenty foot roadway and six foot sidewalks on either side. The committee appointed to look after the work on the part of the Somerset Board are Messrs. Bullman, Adams, Dilley, Rockafellow and Staats. The board adjourned to meet at the Millington church with the Morris Board on Saturday afternoon.

Beetles Destroying Elm Trees.

In various parts of Union county beetles have made their annual attack on the elm trees. They eat the leaves and the foliage is being destroyed. All preventive measures have so far been ineffectual.

PANIC IN A PRISON.

Fire Creates Terror in Ludlow Street Jail.

"The jail's on fire!"

A terrified inmate in the Ludlow street jail awakened his fellow-prisoners and the sleepy guards with this exclamation at one o'clock yesterday morning.

The prisoners sprang from their hard cots and wildly shook the iron bars of their stuffy cell doors in their wild excitement. The frightened guards call loudly to each other to ascertain where the glare came from and what caused the smoke. It was a scene of intense excitement, and a loud explosion in the wire diminished the panic. It was soon ascertained, however, that the fire was not in the New York County Jail, but in a saloon immediately opposite, at No. 69 Ludlow street.

The saloon and billiard-hall is known as "The Arsenal," and is run by Meyer & Behrmann. It is part of a new and handsome five-story brick building, in which are domiciled twenty families of 305 persons. There are no fire-escapes on the front elevation, and the panic-stricken tenants evinced a lively disposition to throw themselves from the windows into the street below. It required the utmost persuasion of the policemen, the firemen and the spectators to pacify the frightened men, women and children, who, half-naked, crushed in the windows and refused to take what must have been a fatal leap.

The fire, however, did not get above the saloon, and one by one the terror-stricken children were lulled to sleep and put back in their little cots.

The fire was caused by the heat reaching the gas meter just as two men were about to turn off the gas. These men were assistant-foreman Lawrence Reilly, of engine No. 17, and Thomas Gallivan, an employe of the Consolidated Gas Company, whose name could not be learned.

Among the inmates of the burning building were Mrs. Frank Wolff and child of 40 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. Mrs. Wolff was visiting her brother-in-law at the time and herself and babe were asleep in a bedroom in the second story of the building. At about one o'clock she was awakened from her slumbers by the cry of fire. She partially dressed herself, caught her sleeping child in her arms, ran to a rear window and jumped on the roof of a one story building in the rear. From there she succeeded in reaching the ground in safety. She was almost suffocated with smoke, however, and it took considerable time to revive her. The child was also nearly asphyxiated. Mrs. Wolff was brought to her home in this city late yesterday afternoon. She is now unable to leave her bed.

Base Ball.

Next Saturday the West Ends play the second game of the series with the Crescents, on their grounds, and it will not be a walkover on either side. It is my opinion—and I am sure it is a correct one—that the two teams are now pretty evenly matched, as the Crescent management have gotten rid of their deadwood; Bodies Holly and Cory of Ponds they have secured Andy Ridly to play in the field, and with Taylor in the box, rid of his Carmencita movement, and Bolter to hold him—which he can do in the truest sense of the word—they are very strong. Taylor and Bouncr have been playing together nearly every day for a month now, and are doing fine batting very well. Their infield is a stone wall and their outfield is just as good. That they can hit Harbine I am not sure; but if Taylor shows the speed he did in the first game, and Bouncr can hold him, base hits by the West Enders will be as scarce as ballstones in July or firecrackers at Christmastime. That they mean to give us a square deal I can positively assure you, and that there will be no kicking by our players is the decree that has gone forth. So, all of you who go (and we hope there will be a large number), howl, yell, make all the noise you can, but don't kick and don't hit.

The Crescent League members are good fellows every one of them; and if Harriman roasts us, and the team plays dirty ball, believe with me that is not Bullman, Adams, Dilley, Rockafellow and Staats. The board adjourned to meet at the Millington church with the Morris Board on Saturday afternoon.

THE BLACK BASS.

Most Killing Lures Employed by Skillful Fishermen.

Many Plainfield fishermen are now flocking to Greenwood Lake, Hopatcong, and the other well-stocked fishing ponds of interior New Jersey, and some have sport on these beautiful sheets of water the recountings of which are most picturesque.

The angling fraternity generally prefer to take the black bass rather than the pickerel or yellow perch. No fish has been known by more names than the bass. Scientifically, he is burdened with two, viz.: Micropterus dolomein for the small mouth, and Micropterus salmoides for the large; but those who have angled for him seldom if ever dream of the gamy denizen of the lake under such titles. The bass is popularly known under various names—Black bass, green bass, yellow bass, river bass, bayou bass, slough bass, Oswego bass, etc. There are, however, but two varieties of the fish—the big and the little mouth and their coloring, which is wonderfully different in various waters, is purely the result of local causes.

The small mouth bass is one of the gamiest of fresh water fishes. When searching for surface food it will take a fly readily, but the best killing bait, especially for lake fishing, are chub and minnow.

Thegly rod for black bass should weigh at least ten ounces because the fish sometimes run to great weights and a tolerably heavy rod is required to handle a heavy catch.

The flies should be rather larger than those for trout, but may follow the same general coloring. It is best to have them tied on hooks with double guts. Generally speaking the black, brown, yellow, red and gray hackles will kill in any waters. Of the winged flies, which are as a rule not as good as those with the long hackles, the best are the professor, the coachman, the ibis, the quaker and grizzly king. Flies that imitate the moth and bumble bee will oftentimes be found killing when others fail.

For casting live bait the rod should be moderately stiff with ash butt and lance wood tip, and over it, and for cast in casting, a multiplying reel is recommended. The leader should be made of the very best silk worm gut, round and true at every point and reasonably heavy.

It is as impossible to describe live bait casting as to teach a man to cast flies by written words. There is only one way to learn, and that is by practice and patience.

At this season of the year the bass is very susceptible of the lure offered by the spoon when trolling, but the angler can often times heighten the enjoyment by using a minnow, as then lighter tackle can be employed.

In fastening the little fish on pass the hook down at out at the side of the gills and then hook it carefully through the broad of the back avoiding the bone. If this is done properly the bait will spin well and will almost certainly be taken, providing there is any fish around in quired vicinity.

A necessary part of the equipment is a landing net of good size. It is particularly useful in fishing from a boat for the bass always seem to reserve enough strength to enable it to make those final dashes which are oftentimes so destructive to tackle, particularly when the fish dart under the boat and thus get a purchase on the line, which frequently means adieu.

There is no fish of its size that will give better fight for its life than the small-mouth bass. He will struggle as long as there is strength in him, and when landed the angler must have a care or otherwise he will feel the sharp prod of the needles of defense in which he frequently caused amateur fishermen to cry "ugh!"

The bass has a habit of taking instantly on being hooked to the weeds and sunken logs, and unless the angler is provided with first-class tackle the chances are greatly in favor of the fish's escape. The flesh of the bass is rather coarse, but it is sweet nevertheless, and all lovers of the gentle sport will confess that the sauce supplied by the work of catching will add considerable to the flavor of the fish.

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

Eighteen hundred and nine was a year prolific in the birth of distinguished men. In that year were born Darwin, Tennyson, Gladstone and Oliver Wendell Holmes. The late Hannibal Hamlin, that fine gentleman of the old school, was born in 1809 too.

It is quite in keeping with the customs of a military despotism that some of the blue blooded German officers of the emperor's suite were impertinent and offensive to ladies whom they chanced to meet walking in the street during the late imperial visit to Windsor. In a country given over to the military idea there is little respect for women, and German officers did not understand the fine independence and liberty enjoyed outdoors by English ladies.

Whose Fault Is It?

A government clerk in Washington, sixty years of age, makes doleful wail. He got a government clerkship thirty years ago, when he was a young man. He has "served the government faithfully" for thirty years. Now he finds himself about where he began thirty years ago—with no money laid up, beginning old age, with no pension and no nothing, liable to be turned out at any time to make room for a younger clerk. In turn the younger man will doubtless settle down in front of a desk on a leather covered chair, and dry up and blow away with a pen behind his ear. Thirty years from now, in 1921, when this second fellow, too, shall be sixty years old, he in turn will doubtless wail that he is just where he was when he started, and has no money laid up, no pension and no nothing.

But these fossilized government clerks will have nobody to blame but themselves. In the enthusiastic days of youth, when with strong young arms they might have breasted the waves of life and fought real gold, gained a sure harbor and support for age, they got a government clerkship at $1,300 a year. In time it increased perhaps to $1,500. They staid and grew round shouldered and dyspeptic and gray headed. Courage and perseverance would have built for them a business independence outside; for there is money enough and opportunity enough in this country for every intelligent person with average health and business good luck to lay up a competency. But they did not take their fighting chances, and now they are left. Probably the most unfortunate thing that can happen to a young man is to get a government clerkship in Washington.

A Psychological Study.

Something like twenty years ago a negro boy was born on one of the Sea Islands off the South Carolina coast. A human being more stupid, to have at the same time good sense, could scarcely be imagined than this black boy apparently was. He seemed as he grew into his teens to be absolutely too dull to talk. He could not understand a direction that was given to him if it contained more than a few words. Yet this boy, Tony Hamilton, has lived to set at naught most of the theories about human education and training. He seems almost to prove that there is no underlying natural sense or faculty in particular directions that is either above or below all the sum of human education and instruction that can be poured into children. At any rate the faculty displayed by Hamilton, whatever it is, is outside of all human training. That much is certain.

When Hamilton was old enough to work he shipped on a steamer that made trips from a south Carolina port to New York. Two voyages of this steamer sent the boy to a friend of his, a horse trainer, Mr. William Lakeland, telling him that Tony liked horses and wanted employment to work among them. Something was found for him to do. But he had no companions, never seemed to talk to anybody unless it was to the horses among which he spent his time. He did what "Mr. Billy" told him to do and kept his mouth shut.

After a while, nobody knows how, Hamilton seemed all at once to be a good rider for races in a race. First a stable owner offered him $2,500 a year. Then the late Senator Hearst offered $4,000 a year. To young boy would not make the change. He still had dreamlike Mr. Billy. Next August Belmont attempted to get the boy for $10,000 a year. Once more Mr. Billy told him to take it and he did so. This contract is still operative, and Hamilton is the most celebrated jockey in America. He earns as much more riding outside horses, so that he's colored boy, who to all who attempt to talk to him seems to scarcely comprehend the commonest English, has an income of $20,000 a year, "and gets rid of the money as though he found it in the road." At the same time there are hundreds of thousands of doctors, lawyers, ministers, teachers and college graduates who would be only too glad to get as many hundreds a year as Hamilton does thousands.

MRS. CRAMER SUICIDES.

She Was the Mother of Pretty Jennie.

THE FAMOUS MURDER RECALLED.

The Malley Boys the Only Important Parties to the Celebrated Case Who Are Still Alive—The Suicide Carefully Planned by the Dead Woman.

NEW HAVEN, July 17.—The world wide Jennie Cramer case is again on the tongue of every man in this city, owing to the suicide of her mother, which was discovered last evening. For some time past Mrs. Cramer has been living with her son Edward, the last of the family, in New York, where he is an employe of the Postal Telegraph company, 185 Broadway. Mr. Cramer had sent several telegrams to his mother, but receiving no response to them he came here to see if anything was wrong with her. He walked into the house last evening just in time to see Medical Officer Dr. White lowering her body to the floor, she having hanged herself.

To Send for Her Son.

The poor woman had taken the precaution to fasten a pocket handkerchief around her neck where the fatal rope would grip

JENNIE CRAMER.

it so that it would not cause an abrasion of the flesh. Underneath the door of the apartment was found a paper on which she had written a request to those who might find her body to send for her son, whose address she gave, at least it is thought that Mrs. Cramer had been dead at least a day, and perhaps two. Ten years ago Jennie Cramer was one of the most beautiful young girls in New Haven, but her face, instead of being her fortune, caused her ruin and her death. Among her admirers was Wallace Malley, the wealthy and intellectual dry goods store proprietor—the biggest of its kind in Connecticut.

Young Malley had plenty of money and brains and was a fast young man, as was his cousin James. He paid a good deal of attention to the beauteous Jennie, much to the merriment and annoyance of her parents. There was nothing to show that Jennie was other than a good girl. She was regarded as a girl fond of a lark, but above suspicion of her morals. When she disappeared search was made for her, and finally she was found drowned near Savin Rock, a Long Island popular pleasure resort a few miles from this city.

The Malley Boys on Trial.

Her death caused the wildest excitement, especially when it was learned that she had passed the night and most of the morning before her death at the Malley mansion, on the outskirts of the city, and in company with Wallace Malley, his cousin James and a young woman of notorious reputation named Blanche Douglass, who had been introduced to Jennie as a cousin of the Malleys.

The Malley boys were arrested, as was also Blanche Douglass. Walter and James Malley were tried for Jennie's murder and the case attracted worldwide attention. The state sought to prove that Blanche Douglass had been employed by the Malleys to aid them in bringing about Jennie's downfall. It was charged that Jennie had been assaulted in the Malley home. All the wealth of the Malleys and their rich connections were exerted to save the boys. A theory was advanced that the girl had through shame committed suicide, and the fact that a quantity of arsenic was found in her stomach was advanced to give color to this idea. The jury disagreed, and the Malleys have not been brought to trial since.

Her Father Suicided, Too.

Two years after Jennie's death, her father, no longer able to endure his grief, committed suicide. Then her sister pined away and literally died of grief. Her mother fretted and worried incessantly, and her son took her to New York, thinking a change of scene would brighten her spirits, but she pined for her old home. It is thought that revisiting the scene of her grief and misfortune unbalanced her mind. Blanche Douglass is dead, and now Mrs. Cramer's demise removes the last of the important witnesses in the famous case. The Malley boys by public opinion so strong against them that they left New Haven but they are both alive.

TO SHOOT FOUNDER BRADLEY.

Mrs. Logan Was Looking for Him with a Revolver.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 17.—Mrs. James Logan, a resident of West Asbury Park, purchased a revolver and set out to shoot James A. Bradley, the founder of Asbury Park. She went to Bradley's office, flourished her weapon and said she would kill him on sight. Bradley was at the beach at the time of her visit and Mrs. Logan started to hunt him up. An officer overtook her, and, after disarming her, placed her under arrest.

Mrs. Logan says that Bradley has persecuted her son, John James Logan, Jr., who is being sued by the town site authority here as father of the unborn child of Lydia Humphrey. Bradley refused to make a complaint against Mrs. Logan. He says she is demented from brooding over her son's disgrace.

A Duel in a Saloon.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 17.—A duel with pistols took place last evening in a saloon between Eugene Byers, a United States deputy marshal, and Wesley Garner, an ex-policeman, in which both men were shot. An old grudge existed between them. Garner is dying from the wounds and is dying and Byers was seriously wounded. Both were desperate characters.

PORTER AND HARRISON.

The War of Words Between Them Still Wages.

CHARGES AND COUNTERCHARGES.

Each Accuses the Other of Misrepresentation, and Porter Says Harrison Is a Traitor—Showing Up the Alleged Interior of the Connecticut Fight.

HARTFORD, July 17.—The war of words between Representative Porter, of Pomfret, editor of The Post, and H. Lynds Harrison, of Guilford, ex-speaker of the house of representatives, is still being waged fiercely.- Porter publishes another letter in which in vigorous language he calls Harrison a liar and again accuses him of treason to his party that he may be loyal to his employers, the railroad company, which at every session, Porter alleges, controls and directs much of the legislation which goes on the statute books.

A Surprising Statement.

But the most surprising statement in his letter is the charge that at a meeting of Republicans at the Hartford club, in this city, Harrison advocated a declaration by the legislature seating Judge Morris, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Porter further avoids and partly evades Harrison's charge that the house "steering" committee had agreed to report in favor of seating all of the Democratic candidates except Morris. His defense is analogous to the Scotch verdict, not proven.' The committee did not find that any of the Democrats except Staub had been elected.

In answering Harrison's letter Porter indulges himself thus: "In the first place, as your letter makes no allowance while commenting on my share in shaping the policy of the party previous to the meeting of the legislature, I need only add that I agree with you in stating that the attitude of Republicans in general on this subject was eminently fair and unprejudiced. They expressed themselves, in private conversations as well as in public, as in favor of doing what was legally sound and morally just, without regard to personal considerations or the braggadocio of their opponents.

He Names an Exception.

"Can I name any exceptions? Yes! I am told that at 'a gathering in a neighboring city of several of the leading Republicans of the state"—referred to in your letter—that you, Mr. Harrison, before the general assembly had met, stated to other gentlemen present that your professions to your clients would not permit you under any circumstances to indorse any policy which might cause delay or a break in the senate. This I can prove on reliable authority. I, whom you accuse of having acted falsely, had no 'clients.' I had never been approached by or agreed to give my support to any man, corporations or measures, certain or likely to come before the general assembly. Are you willing to make so sweeping a statement?"

Anxious for a Fair Report.

Mr. Porter denies Mr. Harrison's charge that on Jan. 21 he (Porter) said he objected to making any such conclusion in favor of the seating of the lieutenant governor, secretary or comptroller, but, on the contrary, having reached such conclusion as to the merits of the evidence as logically required the adoption of the report afterward presented. Second—At that meeting no one had anything to say about a prolonged delay in seating men who were believed to have been elected. Third—There was no issued made concerning 'coercion of the Democratic senate.' Fourth—That he (Porter) drafted a final report which was afterward changed.

Not Influenced by Bulkeley.

Mr. Porter adds: "So far as Governor Bulkeley is concerned—whom I understand you are about to charge with having 'threatened' the committee—he never attempted to exert any influence upon me personally or upon any of my colleagues so far as I know. He never suggested plans and motives for keeping himself in office or others out of office."

Mr. Porter insinuates that Mr. Harrison is looked upon as a Democrat by many Republicans, and that this was the reason why Harrison's opinions did not carry more weight with the committee.

To Seat Judge Morris.

Mr. Porter stated that at a conference of Republicans at the Hartford club, some time after the adjournment by the house of the committee's report, Mr. Harrison said to him that in his (Harrison's) opinion the right thing to do to stop all the wrangle and delay would be to seat Judge Morris at once, without further judicial or legislative examination.

Judge Harrison's Reply.

NEW HAVEN, July 17.—It took Judge Harrison about two hours after receiving Editor Porter's letter to add to the volume of literature on the controversy. He adheres to his former statements that the minor officers on the Democratic state ticket were elected, and prophesies that it will also be demonstrated to the detriment of the Republican party. He also explains and denies the charge made by Porter that he advocated the election of Morris at the conference of Republicans at the Hartford club.

A Charge Against Porter.

In admitting that he is attorney for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, he charges Porter with benefiting from the constant agitation of parallel roads, the perennial source of great profit to the lobbyists. He denies some of Mr. Porter's charges that he said the way to stop the wrangle was to seat Judge Morris, and adds:

Bulkeley Would Not Do It.

"I was present at the Hartford club rooms and other gentlemen were dining with me. I did express the opinion that the way to stop the wrangle was to seat the three minor officers at once, without formal judicial or legislative examination; and I stated that if that course was taken the Republican skirts would be clean.

"After I made that assertion a gentleman said to me, 'Don't you know that if that course is taken Morgan G. Bulkeley will resign the office of governor and turn it over to Judge Morris?' My answer was: 'Morgan G. Bulkeley will not do it; but if he does, all the worse for him and perhaps all the better for the Republican party. He cannot by resigning turn it over to Morris. If he does it will make Merwin or Alsop governor.'

"You boast that no one approached you on any subject that was likely to come before the assembly. I do not know that any one ever did. You ask me if I am willing to make statements on this subject. I am counsel for corporations and should be so accounted before the proper committees if they had been attacked. I know of no general or special legislation that any of them desired."

The Syracuse Club No More.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 17.—The Syracuse Baseball club of the Eastern league is no more. George K. Fraser has tired of putting up for the club and seeing his money melt away without return. PAUL JONES—PIRATE (?)

HIS WONDERFUL FIGHT IN THE BON HOMME RICHARD.

The Battle Waxt on for Two Hours with the Ships Lashed Together, Their Guns Muzzle to Muzzle and Their Yards Overhanging the Opposing Decks.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

BRITISH navy and sailor styled this daring commander a pirate, but marauding lieutenants haven't the fashion of fighting a stranger for openly, as Jones did in his Bon Homme Richard in the North sea, off England, on the 23d of September, 1779. His battle with the British frigate Serapis at that time is one of the most renowned on record, and Jones won his fame by sheer pluck, powers of command and good seamanship. No doubt in the eyes of the conservative rulers of the king's "navee" and those who sympathized with him the Yankee-sized Britons had some ways that were peculiar, not to say unorthodox.

For instance, after he had parted company with the sloop Ranger, with which he swept the English waters in 1778, Old Fogyism would have held that he should find an easy-bottomed chair and sit down until "orders" reached him to go to work again. But Jones was built on a different pattern, and one day while amusing himself with "Poor Richard's Almanac" a hit upon the motto, "If you want a thing done, go and do it," and started at once to get the thing renewed his heart—a new vessel with which to pummel British pride. He went to Paris, where money and friends were at the command of the American envoy, and left a short time had under his orders as old Indiaman, refitted, a ship-of war, a merchantman, a brig and a cutter. The Indiaman had American officers and crew; in fact, the crew was a motley one. The other vessels were manned and officered by Frenchmen. Jones christened his vessel the Bon Richard in recognition of the incident that took him to Paris, and this became in French the Bon Homme Richard. He was made commander-in-chief of the fleet so far as paper authority could guarantee his rights, but he found out afterward that French jealousy could and did evade the spirit of the written provisions under which the armament sailed.

Among other original things for a naval officer, Jones went to the Richard after she was delivered to him ready for sea. Her heaviest guns were 12-pounders, and she was a single decked ship with but twenty eight pairs for her forty-eight 12s. Jones had eight 9-pounders mounted on the open deck, and also cut twelve ports below the six 12-pounders so he fought on either side. These of course could be used only in a favorable sea. The usual armament for first class vessels at that time was 18-pounders, and the valiant captain proposed to fight anything afloat that bore the British flag, hence his anxiety to have some heavy guns.

After some weeks of adventure and the beating up of many startling projects that were thwarted by the elements—one of which was to descend upon Leith, the seaport of Edinburgh, and demand a ransom of fifty pounds, Jones took a fleet on the 30d of September, off Flamboro head, on the east coast of England, under convoy of two men-o'-war.

At the moment this fleet appeared in sight the brave commander knew what was before him, for he had previous knowledge of the vessels and their strength. His own fleet had been augmented by the Alliance, Richard, the man-o'-war Alliance and the merchantman Pallas. Signals were at once set upon the Richard, and by her the Alliance was the fastest vessel and shot ahead, her captain saying to the captain of the Pallas that if one of the strangers proved to be a fifty-gun vessel they (the Americans) had nothing to do but run away. As soon as the Alliance had a good view of the Englishmen she hauled up and stood for land. The Pallas, misunderstanding a movement of the Richard, did the same. The Richard alone moved on the enemy, which proved to be the Serapis of forty-four guns and the Scarborough of twenty-two. After dark, and by the light of the moon, the Richard and the Serapis closed in and delivered broadsides simultaneously.

In this first volley Paul Jones' main hopes were shattered, for two of the six 18 pounders that he had introduced with so much care on his lower deck burst and tore through the deck above, killing or wounding nearly all the people engaged around them. The men promptly refused to work the remaining four heavy guns, deeming them rotten and unsafe. This reduced the combat to one between 12 pounders on the Richard and 18-pounders on the Serapis. For half an hour after the first shot the two ships maneuvered at close quarters, both keeping up a furious cannonade. The companion ship of the Serapis, the Scarborough, attempted to take a hand in the fight at this stage, but was driven off and captured by the Alliance and the Pallas. At the end of another half hour of maneuvering the main combatants were fast of each other, the Richard having run aboard of the Serapis, bows on.

After the collision there was a lull in the firing, and the captain of the Serapis, mistaking the meaning of the silence of the American guns, called out to Jones, "Have you struck?" were exclaimed. That answer gave a key to Jones' character as a man for war. It was, "I have not yet begun to fight."

In a few moments the vessels drifted apart and Jones, in trying to get a broadside position for his right cannon, again ran the Richard foul of the Serapis. He then promptly lashed the bowsprit of the enemy's mizzen shrouds. The vessels soon drifted alongside each other, head and stern, the Americans putting on additional lashings to hold their fighting position. The captain of the Serapis dropped an anchor in the hope that this would cause the Richard to swing clear, but the fastenings were already secure. Next the English lifted boarding, but were repulsed. The battle then began in earnest. The vessels were so close that the rammers of the Serapis had to be run into the ports of the Richard in order to have room to enter the proper guns. A few discharges of the heavy guns of the Serapis drove the American seamen from the gundecks to the forecastle and the upperdeck, where they continued the fight gallantly with muskets and hand grenades.

Jones succeeded, by personal attention, in keeping two of his quarter deck guns in action the whole time, and his masterly courage had its effect on the men around him. The crew of the Richard comprised men of every seafaring nation—Spaniards, Italians, Malays, and even British subjects—and so uncertain was Jones of their trustworthiness in a fight that he had shipped a battalion of marines armed with muskets to maintain order. But under the inspiration of the hour the men proved worthy of their leader, and in fact it would have been a sorry specimen of a sailor whose blood wouldn't stir with the enthusiasm of battle when he found himself on the deck of a man-o'-war with Paul Jones for a leader. It was a time for individual valor on board the Richard, and after being driven away from their guns the men carried the fight aloft, and in a short time drove every man on the Serapis below decks. Not satisfied with this they climbed out on the overhanging yards and dropped explosives down on the hatches of the enemy. One grenade dropped through a hatch, exploded a pile of cartridges, and produced terrible havoc, killing over 20 men and wounding a still greater number.

The loss to the crew of the Serapis by the explosion equalized the chances somewhat, for up to that time the Englishman had the best of it in hand-to-hand work because, in a short time, however, the inequality was restored in a most singular manner. The Alliance, which during the fight had been standing off, came up across the stern of the Richard and delivered a shot that did equal damage to friend and foe. Several attempts to warn the officers of the Alliance that they were firing into friends discharge from her guns Jones' men had to abandon two guns that they had begun to fight again on the main deck. It was dark, but the moon shone clear, and the distinguishing marks that should have prevented this calamity. When it was over the Richard began to settle. The Alliance had added to her leaks 12 or 15 well-aimed shots. The alarm spread among the people on the Richard that she must soon go to the bottom, and as an act of humanity a hundred prisoners that were in the lower hold were released. They were put to work at the pumps, but one of them escaped and crawled through the ports and told the captain of the Serapis that the Richard must soon yield. About this time an under officer of the Richard, missing both Jones and the lieutenant, who were with the prisoners at the pumps, called out for quarter. The Serapis then sent over boarding parties to take the ports, but these were quickly repelled. The damage to the Richard had been so great that her enemy had good reason to look upon her as a prize, for besides being in a sinking condition she was on fire in several places. The sides of her hull on a line with the guns of the Serapis had been cut away so that she looked like a huge rather than a ship, and the shots passed through between decks without touching.

In the confusion that followed the unauthorized cry for quarter from the deck of the Richard, Jones sung out a denial that reached the ears of the captain of the Serapis, and with the words of fire in his heart—directly on the mainmast of the Englishman soon caused that to totter, and once more the tables were turned. The captain of the Serapis hauled down his colors with his own hands, his men refusing to expose themselves on deck under the pitiless fire from the rigging of the Richard.

The battle lasted three hours and a half. The loss was nearly equal, about 150 on a side, nearly half of them killed. The Richard had about 322 men engaged and the Serapis over 300. The peculiar circumstances of the battle saved the crews from annihilation, for in a fight so prolonged and so shattering as this a short-of that could be expected. As it turned out the men on the Richard got out of range of the low fire of the guns of the Serapis early in the action and remained so the rest of the time, took shelter below to escape the shots from the men in the rigging and on the upper deck of the Richard.

Some hours after the Serapis struck the Richard sank, but not until her wounded had been removed. Jones took his fleet and his prizes to Holland, and the English government promptly demanded from the Dutch government the surrender of the daring Yankee as a pirate. A stirring diplomatic episode was the result, but a compromise was finally effected by which France got the prizes, the Scarborough and the brig, and Jones was forced to put to sea. Through the machinations of a faction devoted to English interests this was done while a whole fleet of his enemies was lying off to pounce upon him. In the Alliance—the French captain having been dismissed for his conduct in the combat with the Serapis—Jones sailed forth, eluded the British sentinel ships, and soon reached French waters.

ADVICE TO GRADUATES.

KATE FIELD SAYS "LET THERE BE COOKS" IS A NATION'S CRY.

The Only Gospel That Will Make Happy, Healthy Women—Practical Questions Put to Intelligent and Ambitious Young Women—Need of the Hour.

DEAR GRADUATES—I don't know what it is to be a graduate myself. I never went to school after I was fifteen, and I never learned anything at school after I was twelve.

Not being a graduate, the world having been my university, you girls can probably teach me ologies and oesophies I never heard of, yet I am asked to give you advice!

I want to ask you a few questions.

Do you really know anything thoroughly well? Are you mistress of your own language? Can you speak it purely and musically, or do you torture sensitive ears by talking through your noses with slovenly enunciation? Do you write legibly, or has the art of penmanship been beneath your notice? Do you sign your name so they who run may read, or does it require an expert to decipher it? Can you spell correctly? They are dyspeptics because our women don't know the rudiments of their business and resign their kitchens into the hands of ignorant servants, of whom they are afraid and whose impudence they frequently endure through sheer helplessness.

Of what use a smattering of French and music, of what avail even a profound knowledge of something worth acquiring, if unable to face the dull and universal problem of servantgalism and solve it by mastering it?

Living in Washington, I have visited our National Cooking School, where the well known expert, Mrs. Emma P. Ewing, was giving lectures on the science of cooking. One girl has come hundreds of miles to learn how to cook of what the professors do know! Mrs. Ewing tells me that there are not more than six American women who are fit to teach cooking scientifically. Twenty years ago this admirable woman married, having as little knowledge of housekeeping as most of you girls. Her husband was a confirmed dyspeptic, thanks to the groundless food of hotels.

To save the life of the man she loved Mrs. Ewing applied herself to the study of foods and how to cook them. In those days there were no books telling how to bake bread, how far fermentation should be carried, what foods suited delicate stomachs, etc. All these vital questions Mrs. Ewing was forced to answer by experiment. Today I look upon Mrs. Ewing as having done more good in her generation than any woman of my acquaintance.

Why?

Because she has devoted herself to the study of scientific investigation. Through her efforts the Agricultural College of Iowa established in 1884 a school of domestic economy of which she became professor. Since then Mrs. Ewing has had the satisfaction of establishing the same chairs in other western colleges, and now is at the head of a training school in domestic science at Kansas City. Her classes are made up of young women, many of whom are about to be married and are desirous to learn their duties. One of these young girls told her father she could not possibly qualify for married until she had fitted herself to keep house.

Here, girls, is the mission for which you must fit yourselves if you want to be very much women.—Kate Field in New York World.

Shot Silk and Lace Gowns.

Among new dresses some of the prettiest are of black net in basket pattern, made over shot silk. A new feature in these dresses is the bell skirt of shot silk covered smoothly with net cut precisely as the silk is shaped, then finished at the foot by a deep flounce of black lace bordered with the flower basket design. A stylish example is of pink and yellow changeable silk, and another is of pale blue shot silk gold. The silk skirt is simply a lining for the lace, and is faced deeply with black silk, then every seam has a separate petticoat of black taffeta silk with pinked flounce. The lace flounce on the net skirt has an upright ruffle as heading, with rosettes at intervals upon it. The round bodice of the silk covered with net put on smoothly about the shoulders, shirred at the waist line, and finished with a flounce of lace like that on the skirt. Sleeves of the plain silk are studded with jet nail heads, and have lace ruffles at the wrists. An open let collar is wired to flare slightly. The design of this gown is also carried out in black square meshed grenadine over pale blue taffe. The bell skirt of grenadine may have a lace flounce, or else it has a border of pale blue ribbon, dotted with jet applied flatly in a pattern of bow knots with fluttering ends. Serpentine striped grenadine is made in the form of gray blue or rosy heliotrope silk.—Harper's Bazar.

Ladies' Belts.

With the present fad for blouses and tennis shirts the variety in belts is great. A few new and taking examples are here illustrated.

Quite a novelty is the wicket belt in black, tan or drab leather with nickel fittings.

One to bring good luck is the horseshoe belt of leather, with this favorite emblem and buckles and mountings in nickel.

BELTS FOR BLOUSES AND TENNIS SHIRTS.

A very pretty tennis belt is of checked silk and leather, the former in red, gold and black, cardinal and black or blue and black.

A new Swiss belt of black, tan or drab leather shows a graceful perforated design and a handsome lacing.

Dress Skirts.

How skirts are cut on the cross puzzles a good many, and in fact there are several ways in which it is managed. The great object could seem to be to reduce as full ness around the waist to a minimum, and to so arrange the material that it flies out wide at the foot. Some of the leading dressmakers bring a corner point of the fabric to the waist in the centre of the back, joining gores at either side, so that the line is perfectly on the cross. Most of the French dresses seem to be cut on the cross. In a beautiful silk from Worth's the material came diagonally across the front, with deep points like bib in an insertion. Sometimes the front is on the cross as well as the back, but in that case there is generally a join down the center. Otherwise the front is straight, and the back on the cross.

TERRIBLY MANGLED.

AN EX-POLICEMAN'S HORRIBLE DEATH ON THE RAILROAD.

While Picking Coal Along the Track, Richard Hapenny Was Struck and Instantly Killed by the Allentown Express Train.—His Remains Taken to Casey's Morgue.—The County Physician Notified.

Ex-Policeman, Richard Hapenny of West Second street was instantly killed on the Central Railroad between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue shortly after ten o'clock this morning. Mr. Hapenny was picking coal on the track and stepped out of the way of a westbound coal train. The noise of the passing coal train prevented him from hearing the approach of the Allentown express train which is due in this city at 10:07 o'clock.

Mr. Hapenny stepped on the eastbound track, was struck by the express train and literally ground to pieces. His head was cut off, both arms were torn from their sockets, both legs were broken and the body was in other ways mutilated.

Employes of the Railroad Company went to the scene of the accident with a stretcher and carried the remains to Casey's morgue. It can be imagined how badly the body was cut up when pieces of flesh as big as a man's hand were found along the track in that vicinity after the body had been removed.

Mr. Casey notified County Physician Wescott.

Deceased was at one time a regular policeman in this city, but of late years had been employed in the Potter Printing Press Works. He was about sixty years of age. A widow, one son, and a daughter survive him. The latter is Mrs. Edward F. Campbell.

THREATENED THE POLICEMAN.

For that Reason John Philmore Spent Last Night in Jail.

Last evening Policeman Fredrickson went before City Judge Codington and made a complaint against John Philmore, a neighbor, charging him with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and for threatening to "do him." The Judge issued a warrant for the arrest of the accused and Policeman Giese and Fredrickson, armed with it, started out to arrest Philmore, but he had decamped before their arrival. At about ten o'clock a little boy who resides in the neighborhood of Philmore's home informed the police that he (Philmore) was murdering his wife. Policeman Giese and Gleentzer jumped in a wagon and went to the residence of the accused and placed him under arrest. Philmore's wife endeavored to prevent the officers taking her husband to jail and interfered with them to such an extent that a warrant will probably be issued for her arrest.

This morning when Philmore was arraigned before City Judge Codington he pleaded not guilty to the charge and furnished bonds for his appearance for trial next Wednesday morning.

—The Oak Tree Sunday school will hold a lawn social on Wednesday evening next on Mrs. George Gremson's lawn.

—Members of the Y. M. C. A. will take a bicycle run to Rahway Tuesday evening next. The start will be made at 7:45 from the rooms. The usual route will be taken. Mr. Charles C. Ditts will captain the "run."

—Mr. William A. Coddington of this city has been retained as counsel in the case of Vittorio Perini vs. the Merchants' and Hartford Insurance Companies. Perini is suing the companies for $1,500 insurance which they refuse to pay claiming that he did not have that amount of goods in his store when it was burned.

—Jovial Capt. Boynton, of Boynton Beach, is "whooping up" his attractive picnic and pleasure grounds this year. Headvertises, in another column, a few of the new attractions he has put in. Trains will take you to the Boynton Beach station, where a carriage, or you can go in the good old-fashioned way, by stage. On July 23d, there will be a grand concert, followed in the evening by a hop.

—To lay the blame of the unavoidable delay on the return trip of the First Baptist excursion from Belmar, Thursday, on the gentlemen of the committee, as some few people have done, is neither right or sensible. They did all that was possible under the circumstances for the welfare of the excursionists, who all seemed happy and contented enough. Of course the delays were annoying, but unfortunately they didn't own the railroad and couldn't get the right of way, and accidents will happen, you know!

—"Woman," says a writer in Kate Field's Washington, "is guilty of many awkwardnesses in public. She causes delays in her chronic inability to find her ticket or her fare, but this is because she has but one chaotic pocket in which to keep all the things which men have a dozen places for. She will never believe that information from a time-table is as accurate as that furnished by a preoccupied official, but that is because she is used to assimilating such facts only after they have filtered through the masculine intellect. She wears a dress reformed and forbidding expression, but it is from motives of rigid propriety, not from bad temper. All these sins are hers, but, in the matter of deliberate carelessness of the rights the unknown multitude about her, she is by no means the chief of sinners."

—The eighth annual excursion of the Plainfield Reform Cleb will be taken Wednesday next, July 22, to Black River Falls Park, which is one of the most beautiful spots in Northern New Jersey. The excursion train will leave at one o'clock from Plainfield, and will be due there at 10:30 a. m. It will return at five o'clock to reach Plainfield about 6.30 p. m. Those who do not prefer to take their lunch, will be able to obtain it from the caterer of the park, who can procure a good dinner for 50 cents at the Temperance Hotel, located at the Park. Ample provisions for varied amusements have been made by the Railroad Company, which has undertaken to make Black River Falls Park an exceedingly popular resort for respectable people in the near future. The falls are beautiful, and the scenery magnificent; the lake and river afford delightful facilities for boating and bathing. One third of the proceeds of this excursion will be donated to the Children's Home, which is now in need of funds. Tickets may be bought for distribution among those unable to purchase them. For further particulars see advertisement.

ALMOST A RUNAWAY.

Careless Ball Players the Cause.

Mr. L. A. Kline of Craig place, North Plainfield, while driving in Dunellen yesterday afternoon, passed two young men in the road catching ball.

One of these players in attempting to throw the ball over the carriage to his companion beyond, threw with considerable force and had aim.

The ball struck Mr. Kline's fiery little mare squarely between the eyes, and before the next minute had good handling of the excited creature is probably all that saved his neck. Fortunately no damage was done.

The worst of it was, he says, that the mare galloped out of sight of the careless players before he got control over her, and he missed a chance, which he greatly desired just then, of a quiet talk with those young men.

SALT WATER FISHING.

THE RAVENOUS BLUEFISH.

Where to Take Them in the Neighborhood of Plainfield.

It is impossible to select any one rod for sea fishing, and the fisherman must be governed by the locality. For surf-fishing where heavy bait and sinker are used, the rod must be very strong and not over eight feet long. The lower the ferrules the better the rod will stand the strain. In Barnegat Bay the resident fishermen believe that there is nothing equal to sixteen or eighteen-feet "pole," and they are very expert and successful with this unwieldly tool, but it is not a very pleasant way to fish.

Judging from the reports of early writers blue-fish were unknown on the Jersey coast before 1814. Their movements are little understood, and are probably governed by the supply of food. They are ravenous feeders, and have been known to attack a man while bathing. When they appear along the coast and enter our bays, they afford sport to thousands of people and line the pockets of countless hucksters of small craft who take out blue-fishing parties. There are three ways of fishing for them —casting a black tin squid from the beach and hauling it in rapidly, trolling with a squid with either a tin, bone or wooden squid and chumming. The first method is hard work and requires considerable practice to put the squid beyond the first breaker, the second is much more pleasant, and is the usually adopted by the crowd. The rapid motion of the boat over the crisp curling waves and the sharp struggles with the fish as they are hauled in hand over hand is quite exciting. The third method, however, is most sportsmanlike. The fisherman goes out in a small sailboat well supplied with mossbunkers for bait. Both the boat and the bunkers should be engaged the day before, as it is often more difficult to find bait than bluefish. Arriving on the fishing ground the boatman grinds up a few mossbunkers in his chumming mill which he scatters on the water. This greasy stuff floats away to a great distance and makes what is called a "slick." The bluefish follow this up to the boat seeking food. In the meantime the fisherman has baited his piano wire spell hook with a piece of mossbunker, and when the fish takes it there is fun ahead, for the bluefish is a gallant fighter and will cut on a rod than any fish of its size. The same style of rod and reel is necessary, and all hooks must be smelled on wire. The 20, 30 and 90 O'Shaughnessy forged hooks are the best. The best place for this sport is Barnegat Bay near Long Beach. When bluefish are running engage boat and bait a day or two ahead and go down the night before. Late in the season there is a run of bay mossbunk. When the wind is right great sport can be had, but it is not safe to go out with an easterly wind. The boatmen generally know best about this, and the fishermen had better be guided by their advice.

FOR CHARITIES IN ELIZABETH.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dean Gives Fifty City Lots, Worth $50,000.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dean of Epsom, England, who was the companion of Miss Kate Marsden on a proposed tour through the hospitals of Europe in the interest of lepers, has given to Grace Episcopal Church, Elizabeth, fifty city lots worth $50,000 for church and charitable purposes. They are in the centre of the lower wards in the thickly populated district called the Port.

Twenty lots are to be set apart as a recreation ground and play-ground for children, and the others as sites for a church, mission hall, asylums, and other buildings. She completed the deed of gift to-day by the payment of $200,000 for city improvements. She leaves to generous Americans the erection of the buildings.

Nine Hours a Day's Work.

The mechanics of Westfield have united in requesting the bosses of the town to re-organize nine hours as a day's labor, with the same wages now paid for a day of ten hours, the new time to begin Sept. 1. The following bosses have agreed to the request: J. Ingram, plumber; Manlon H. Ferris, plumber; Welch Bros., painters; William F. Smith, painter; J. F. Lightfoot, painter, James Moffest, carpenter; Sparkman & Bonger, carpenters; C. A. Smith & Co., coal and lumber dealers, on condition that other firms in the same line of business agree to the proposition; Todd & Force, masons; and Milton Freeze, mason. These firms are a majority of bosses in town, and the mechanics are confident of having the nine hours recognized as a day's work.

Testimony in Favor of Job Male's Will

Two witnesses were examined in the will case of Millionaire Job Male before Vice-Chancellor VanFleet at Newark yesterday. The witnesses both testified in favor of the Plainfield Public Library gift contained in the will. William M. Shotman, secretary of the library, said Mr. Male had informed him that he intended to make a bequest to the institution in his will. Marvin Dunn testified that the testator had frequently told him that he intended to provide a permanent fund for the maintenance of a public library at Plainfield.—Newark News.

SET ASIDE THE TOWN'S CLAIMS.

The County Not Obliged to Repair the Highway at the Bridge Ends.

A long legal contest has been ended at New Brunswick by which Middlesex county will be saved a large sum of money. The case is that of Albert S. Manning vs. the Board of Freeholders. It involved the question as to whether the county or the township of Piscataway was liable for the repair of certain highways.

In 1889, during the big freshets, the stream in Piscataway township known as Green Brook overflowed and washed out a large piece of the road at each end of the South Plainfield mill dam. The township committee asked the freeholders to repair the damage, they refused and a struggle in the law courts was begun. The township authorities claimed that the freeholders were bound to repair the highway at each end of a county bridge to the distance of 100 feet. The county solicitor took the position that under the law the Board of Freeholders was compelled to maintain only the highway or roadbed at each end of the bridge, known as approaches, and that it was unnecessary as to give a gradual ascent or descent from the structure proper to the highway.

Judges Depue, VanSickle and Scudder, before whom the case was heard, sustained the latter view of the case, and set aside the township claims.

Had the township won, the result might have been that Middlesex and other rural counties would have to make a bridge appropriation each year of double the sum now appropriated.

THEIR POWER USED AS A CUDGEL.

The Charges State Editors Make Against Politicians.

The New Jersey State Publishers' Union met at Avon-by-the-Sea yesterday. The attendance was not large, owing to the fact that Friday is the publishing day of many of the papers. The officers of the Union are: President, T. W. Morrison, of Plainfield; Secretary, J. H. Matthison, of Somerville; Treasurer, Edward Williams, of Orange. Speeches were made by ex-Senator John Carpenter, Jr., of Clinton; ex-Judge John Ulrich, editor of the State Masonic official organ, and Editor A. V. D. Honeyman, of Paterson.

A Committee of Grievances was appointed to communicate with editors and publishers all over the State in respect to the laws passed by the Legislature in relation to the publication of the laws in the journals of the State. The editors say the politicians use the power they have of designating the papers in which the laws shall be published, as a cudgel to compel allegiance. The editors adjourned to meet here Friday, July 31, and Saturday August 1.

Insect Life and Electricity.

[From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

I believe there will be a marked decrease in the fly and and insect nuisance this year. The electric lights are responsible for the death of bushels and billions of flying things, the cups below the electric lights are literally nearly full of them, while countless thousands die and fall to the ground. The impression that no amount of destruction can reduce the insect plague is, of course, erroneous, and it will surprise me if there is not a perceptible diminution this season and still more next, no matter how many flying nuisances are drawn in from the country. The arc light is destined to play a very important part on nature as well as on animal life. In some parts of the city careful observation made last year proved that perpetual light greatly aided vegetation and also reduced the dampness and consequent mosquito. Light is the natural enemy to disease in every shape, and experiments have clearly demonstrated that all the advantages of a sun bath are to be found in arclight rays. Factories lighted by electricity are found with a very much cleaner bill of health than in the old gas and coal oil days.

A Narrow Escape from Accidental Shooting.

"Jack" VanNess and Edward Staats, two of the employes of Mr. Albert Hedden of East Fourth street were skylarking in the stable yesterday morning. In fun young Van Ness said to young Staats, "I'll shoot you" and he immediately went to the office and took from the drawer of the desk a 32 calibre self-cocking revolver. Neither of the young men thought the weapon was loaded and young Van Ness began pulling the trigger pointing the weapon at young Staats. He pulled it four times and then examined the weapon. It was fortunate that he did for the next barrel contained a cartridge. Both of the young men turned two or three shades paler. They returned the weapon to the drawer and it is not likely that they will fool with fire arms hereafter.

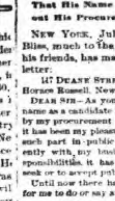
The Bookwalter Plan.

Hon. John W. Bookwalter, the Ohio turbine wheel millionaire, who resides most of the time in New York city when he is not traveling in Europe or Asia, is a Nebraska farmer besides, having 60,000 acres of land in said state, and has a plan of his own for ameliorating the terrors of farm life. He is going to try this reformatory scheme on his own Nebraska lands, and thinks that hence forth all will be well with farmers. He has started a farm settlement in Nebraska according to his new idea. He will build houses on the lands and offer them and sufficient ground for a small rent to any farmer who will work for the advancement of the plan. At the end of a term of years Mr. B. will allow the tenant to purchase the house and farm at a low rate if the opportunities have been properly taken advantage of under the contract.

In explaining his scheme Mr. Bookwalter says that he himself lived on a farm till he was [illegible] and therefore knows of farm life was some thing awful to him because of its same ness and isolation from the world's active life and interests. He could not bolt, or he did not know where else to go. Now when he is a rich man he will prevent the same dull unhappiness among other spirited young farm people as follows:



CORNELIUS N. BLISS.

My idea is to collect farmers together in a small area, not in villages, but in little groups so to speak. Let the houses be arranged regardless of roads, so that the houses of each are near each other. Then have the farms all adjoin, encircling the houses. They need not be more than one hundred of a mile distant, but don't have the farm land and the homesteads together. I propose to do this in Furnas county, Nebraska. I have already started the idea, and a little settlement, hardly as large as the smallest village, has been named for me. I am going to build a town hall and establish a free circulating library. This scheme is in vogue among the farmers of France, Spain, Italy and Switzerland, and is a great success. I have talked with the rustics of each of these countries and found the views of the American farmer's clap of feeling, and they held up their hands in astonishment at the thought.

There is no doubt about it. This scheme is perfectly practicable, and if I can bring other farmers to see it in the same light as myself I have brought mine, I dare to hope for a great change some day.

Let us see a few cardinal advantages to be derived by this plan:

First—The tedium of farm life in general will be relieved.

Second—It will keep the farm boys at home and take them away from contact with vice.

Third—It will tend to advance the farmer in education, knowledge of worldly affairs, and put him on a par with the world.

Fourth—He can go to church several times a week if he chooses without driving ten miles to get there.

Fifth—If domestic service is desired in the household it will be a much easier matter to obtain and retain help.

To generalize, this scheme has the virtues of country life without the vices of town life.

From the social point of view of this grouping together of agreeable and intelligent farm people will be delightful. All the same, who will sit up nights with the cattle pens and sheep folds, which must then be removed a third of a mile from their owner's house? And when Neighbor Jones' poultry destroys Neighbor Smith's "garding sass," as they inevitably will when the houses are thus brought together, who will pay for the hens shot by Neighbor Smith. We pause for reply.

A Summer School of Ethics.

There are honest, warm hearted people who believe with Herbert Spencer that moral progress must be effected by arresting the soldier's emotions. A number of men and women holding this faith have met together at Plymouth, Mass., this summer for a six weeks' sojourn. In the old town where the Pilgrims first started to impress their ideas on mankind the ethicists give lectures and talk to classes on the best methods of inculcating moral instruction and the golden rule. Whether or not this has been in operation now, for a goal while in America.

The people whom this unique undertaking have brought together number among them distinguished individuals of various religious faiths. Here is common ground whereon Jew, Presbyterian and agnostic are meeting one another. Felix Adler, of the Society for Ethical Culture, has charge of the department of ethics proper. In the school are discussed both moral and economic reforms that can be brought to bear to help workingmen. Carroll Wright, United States commissioner of labor, is there to give information in the field of wage earning and economic inquiry. College professors, clergymen, lawyers and laborites people are assembled. One of the most important goals is discussed by the teachers is the relation of religion to morality.

And now the barbed wire people have formed a trust, when their patents have run out. One thing is certain, gigantic monopolies can afford to engage in a losing business successfully in this age. What the profounder meaning of this present tendency of civilization is, future philosophers can read. Banal perpetual commercial and industrial co-operation is the way to business success. The field is as open to the class of people as to another. If one set of men with labor or goods to sell can make a success by combining, then other sets of men can certainly do the same. It is better, within the bounds of honesty and fair treatment, to swim with the tide than to go against it.

BLISS NOT A CANDIDATE

He Refuses the Republican Gubernatorial Nomination.

A MEMBER OF THE HOME GUARD.

He Says It Has Never Been His Purpose to Seek or Accept Public Office, and That His Name Has Been Used Without His Procurement or Desire.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss, much to the surprise and regret of his friends, has made public the following letter:

147 DEANE STREET, NEW YORK, July 16.
Hon. Russell, New York City.

DEAR SIR.—As you know, the mention of my name as a candidate for governor has not been by my procurement nor by my desire. While it has been my pleasure for many years to take such part in public affairs as I could, consistently with my business engagements and responsibilities, it has never been my purpose to seek or to accept public office. Nor is it now my wish that I should be voted for. I should much regret to have my name so used as to embarrass the action of the convention, where I had not been and might never be offered to me. But in case, where I had not only my personal friends, but others who are present I should not have expected, urge my candidacy, and the Republican press of the state apparently receiving it with favor, it seems to me I ought to let my position be known before the matter goes further. This is due not only to myself, so that it may not be said I consented by my silence to any misunderstanding, but to my party and the other worthy Republicans whose names I see mentioned in connection with this high honor.

To Serve in the Home Guard.

If anything could move me from my decision it would be the fear that my candidacy might be used as a pretext for so exalted an office, and at a time when it seems probable that the Republican candidate would be elected, to find myself

THE SEVEN WERE SEIZED

Did the Confiscated Boats Fish in American Waters?

SECRETARY FOSTER APPEALED TO.

Whether the Yankee Fishermen Were on Dominion Fishing Territory or Not the Cruiser Dream Has Carried Their Vessels Off to St. Andrews, N. B.

BANGOR, Me., July 18.—The following telegram has been sent to Secretary Foster at Washington by Congressman Boutelle:

The deputy collector of customs at Eastport, Me., sends me the following telegram in response to my inquiry:

"EASTPORT, Me., July 17, 1891.

"Hon. C. A. Boutelle, Bangor, Me.:

"The Dominion cruiser Dream seized seven American fishing boats Thursday forenoon in this harbor. Crews were landed here. Boats were towed to St. Andrews, N. B. Occupants of the boats claim they were fishing in American waters and ask the protection of our government. F. E. SPOFF, Deputy Collector."

To Annoy Americans.

Will you please advise the state department and take such measures as may be deemed requisite for official ascertainment of the facts and the protection of the rights of our people? It looks like an attempt to annoy and harass Americans at a time when the Maine coast is most thronged with pleasure seekers from all parts of the country.

C. A. BOUTELLE, M. C.

The President Reticent.

CAPE MAY, July 18.—The president was seen by the United Press representative in relation to the reported seizure of American fishing vessels at East Point. He has not had definite information in reference to the matter, however, and refused to talk on the subject.

AFLAME IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS.

Two Little Girls and Their Mother Burned at Erie.

ERIE, Pa., July 18.—Lena, the six-year-old daughter of a baker named Charles Schwartz, while making a bonfire in the alley at the rear of her home last evening, spilled some coal oil over her clothing and was soon ablaze. The clothing of her baby sister, aged six months, also caught fire, and their mother, startled by the children's screams, rushed to the rescue. When neighbors discovered the situation all three were clinging to each other wrapped in flames.

They were speedily stripped of their clothes and everything done to relieve their suffering, but despite prompt medical assistance Lena died a few hours later in horrible agony and the baby is dying. The mother may survive. Several persons who assisted in the rescue received serious burns.

With the President.

CAPE MAY, July 18.—A delegation of Grand Army men from Darby, Pa., called at the cottage last evening to pay their respects to the president. The president signed the commissions of the following postmasters: William E. Wilson, Mechanicsville, Pa.; Oliver P. Brown, Camden, O.; George W. Gordon, Ashland, N. H. Hereafter all executive appointments will be given out at Cape May. Judge Allison has gone. He had more important business with the president here than that of the appointment of consul to Liberia, but did not state what it was.

Religious Education of Indians.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The official relations between the Bureau of Catholic Indian missions in this city and the Indian office have been severed. Hereafter contracts with Indian schools conducted by the Catholics will be made directly with the schools instead of through the mission. Commissioner Morgan explains his belief that the old system of contracting with religious bodies for the education of the Indian youth is wrong and strongly favors their education in public schools.

Nancy Hank's Record Lowered.

PITTSBURG, July 18.—The last day of the grand circuit races at the Homewood Driving park was the most successful ever held in this city. In the 2:25 class trot Redmont captured the race. In the free for all trot McDel took the last three heats without much trouble. The third event on the card was Nancy Hank's attempt to beat 2:10¾. She took the mile with a running mate in 2:14, lowering her record a half second. Lady Sheridan, the favorite, won the 2:20 class pacing race.

Editors Choose Cappellar President.

The Priest Insulted the Kaiser.

LONDON, July 18.—In Wolfstein, Hesse, the parish priest of the Roman Catholic church of that place was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for four months for using insulting language toward the emperor in his sermon last Sunday. His remarks had especial reference to the kaiser's visit to England.

The Queen Was Snappish.

LONDON, July 18.—The queen's refusal to attend at her majesty's garden party meeting, near Aldershot, has caused indignation among the marksmen. In reply to the invitation the queen snappishly refused to visit Aldershot, even to send a regretful declination of the request for the honor of her attendance.

Gladys Evelyn to Lecture.

LONDON, July 18.—William Henry Hurlbert has cabled to his friends here requesting them to restrain Miss Gladys Evelyn from coming out. He announced the intention of delivering a lecture in the Aquarium next Wednesday treating of her recent legal action against Mr. Hurlbert.

Interest in the Big Fight.

ST. PAUL, July 18.—Boxes for the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight next Wednesday evening have been sold to parties from nearly all the principal cities. There is quite a demand for single seats, but as there are only 3,000 in the pavilion there will be plenty left for late visitors.

A Receiver for Bonnell & Co.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Mr. Herman Ridder has been appointed receiver of J. H. Bonnell & Co. (limited), manufacturers of printers' ink, by Judge Truax. The liabilities are estimated at $300,000 and the assets at $600,000. There will be no interruption of the business.

CHARLOTTE BRONTE'S IMPRESSIONS.

What She Wrote and Thought About the Famous Author of "Vanity Fair."

"There is a man in our own days whose words are not framed to tickle delicate ears; who, to my thinking, comes before the great ones of society much as the son of Imlah came before the threequel kings of Judah and Israel, and who speaks truth as deep with a power as prophetlike and as vital, a mien as dauntless and as daring. Is the satirist of 'Vanity Fair' admired in high places? I cannot tell; but I think if some of those among whom he hurls the Greek fire of his sarcasm, and over whom he flashes the lurid torch of his denunciation, were to take his warnings in time, they or their seed might escape a fatal Rasmoth Gilead."

So wrote Charlotte Bronte of Thackeray in her preface to the second edition of "Jane Eyre." Everybody who pretends to know anything about the history of literature knows how this preface to a popular novel helped, to a certain extent, the author of "Vanity Fair."

There are few besides students, however, who know that there was a time when it was seriously alleged that the authoress of "Jane Eyre" had been governess to Thackeray's children—that, indeed, he was the Rochester of "Jane Eyre" and herself the Becky Sharp of "Vanity Fair."

Today of course we view differently, says an English writer. We know that Thackeray and Charlotte Bronte did not meet until long after the publication of "Jane Eyre," and that Miss Bronte was, on the whole, disappointed with her hero. "Mr. Thackeray," she says in a letter to a friend, "is a large, heavy man, with small manor; he is, however, looked upon with some awe and even distrust. His conversation is very peculiar—too perverse to be pleasant." He expected to meet a prophet like Carlyle; she really encountered a person who seemed to her to be a mere professional man of letters.

Stage Fright.

Miss Ellen Terry, in "Stray Memories," gives a description of that singular sensation, stage fright. "You are standing there apparently quite well and in your right mind, when you suddenly feel as if your tongue had become dislocated and was lying powerless in your mouth. Cold shivers begin to creep downward from the nape of your neck all up and down the entire line, until they seem to meet in the small of your back. About this time you feel as if a centipede, with its many feet hobbles mercifully lord, had begun to run about in the roots of your hair. Your next agreeable sensation is the breaking out of a cold perspiration all over you. Then you feel as though somebody had cut the muscles at the back of your knees; your mouth begins slowly to open without giving utterance to a single sound, and your eyes seem inclined to jump out of your head over the footlights.

"At this period it is as well to get off the stage as quickly as possible; you are far beyond the hope of any human help." One such occasion she can recall when she was playing at the Royalty a small part in a piece called "The Governor's Wife." "I had," she continues, "just sense and strength enough to drag myself off the stage and seize a book, with which, after a few minutes, I reappeared and ignominiously read my part."

Relics of Sir John Franklin's Expedition.

An interesting feature at the English Royal Naval exhibition is the collection of relics of the Franklin Arctic expedition. The two ships of this expedition, the Erebus and Terror, started on May 19, 1845, and were spoken by the Prince of Wales, whaler, of Aberdeen, at the head of Baffin's bay, shortly after that date, and from that time all tidings of them were lost. The history of the search expedition which was sent out to find, and if possible to rescue, the survivors of the Franklin expedition is a most interesting one.

In 1859 Captain Leopold McClintock went out in the yacht Fox, fitted out by Lady Franklin, and found traces of the lost ships in abundance, and innumerable of these relics are now to be seen at the Royal Naval exhibition. They consist chiefly of various belongings of the officers and men—spectacles, watches, pieces of clothing, various documents, etc., and several specimens of Eskimo tools, knives, hatchets and other implements made out of wreckage from the ships and boats. Part of a diary found stated that Sir John Franklin had died early in the expedition, so that he never knew of its failure and death of all his comrades. Among relics brought home by the Fox were the chronometer of the Erebus, a snow knife and Eskimo arrows made from copper and wood from the lost ships, a pair of leather snow goggles fitted with wire gauze to keep the glare of the snow away from the eyes, and a sailmaker's palm, with thumb hole and roughened boss for the needle. The last two are depicted in the cut.

Marrying for a Postage Stamp.

We all know of men marrying for lands or money. Some one has said, too, that he met with "women who would like to be taken down by a novel and married to a poem." But we doubt if anybody has hitherto been known to seek marriage with a postage stamp. Such a being does however exist, if the following advertisement which Vanity Fair has unearthed from a Mauritius newspaper may be taken as a genuine offer:

"A stamp collector, the possessor of a collection of 12,564 stamps, wishes to marry a lady who is an ardent collector and the possessor of the blue penny stamp of Mauritius, issued in 1847."

Signification of Gems.

Moonstone—Protects from harm and danger.

Diamond—Faith, innocence, virginity.

Heliotrope—Causes the wearer to walk invisible.

Pearl—Purity; gives clearness to physical and mental sight.

Catseye—Possesses the virtue of enriching the wearer.

AN ENTERTAINING EXPERIMENT.

The Decomposition of Light Beautifully Illustrated by a "Color Top."

For the experiment to be described a common iron top, such as may be found in toy shops, is employed. It may have either a carved handle, like the one here represented, or a straight handle. Just under the flat part of the disk are two or three round pieces of drawing paper, and under these is a thick disk of pasteboard. Each of these has a hole in the center, so that it can be slipped over the leg of the top. In some tops, however, it may be easier to put these disks above on the handle.

It is for the entertaining and instructive use of such a top as this that Professors Mayer and Barnard give the following directions in their work on "Light:"

Get some thick drawing paper and cut out three disks, each four inches in diameter, and make a hole in the center of each.

A COLOR TOP.

So that it will slip over the leg of the top. Cut each disk open from the circumference to the center with a pair of scissors. Paint one with red vermillion, one with emerald green and the other with ultramarine violet, giving a thick coat, and then, while the colors are drying, make a disk of thick pasteboard and cut a hole in the middle, so that it will slip tightly over the leg of the top. When these are ready take the red and green disks and hold them side by side, with the cut places opposite, and slip one into the other, and then turn them round so that the green covers the red. Then put them both on the leg of the top and put the pasteboard disk under them to hold them in place. Now if you hold the top upright in a plate and make it spin you will see a beautiful ring of green color around the spinning top.

Such a top may be made to spin in a dinner plate on the table by winding a string round the leg and then pulling it away with the right hand, while the top is held upright with the left.

When it stops, take off the pasteboard and reverse the colored disks one on the other so that half of the red and half of the green can be seen, and instantly you have a ring of yellow. Move the disks so as to display one-quarter green and three-quarters yellow, and you get a deep orange ring. Move again and let the green hide nearly all the red, and the top shows a greenish yellow ring.

In the same way combine the green and violet disks and the spinning top will show a new shade of blue. Every pair of spectrum is in which green and violet are mixed.

Put on the red and violet disks and purple will be shown. Put on the red, green and violet so that one-third of each is shown, and the ring will be gray.

This simple toy serves to show how three colors may be combined to form every color in the solar spectrum. Red, green and violet may be tinted with other colors to the most charming manner.

A Curious Property of the Diamond.

Mr. George F. Kunts, well known as an expert in gems, recently called attention in the New York Sun, to a property of the diamond, which may be employed as a means of distinguishing it from other substances. Experiments made by Mr. Kunts demonstrate that the statement made by Robert Boyle as long ago as 1663 that some diamonds phosphoresce in the dark after exposure to the sunlight or an electric are light, is true, also that all diamonds emit light by rubbing them on wood, cloth or metal. This property will probably prove of great value in distinguishing between the diamond and other hard stones, as well as paste, some of which exhibit this phenomenon, and will be welcomed by the general public who do not possess the experience of the cutter in diamonds. The property is evidently not electric, or it would not be visible on being rubbed on metal.

Deodorizing Bottles.

To deodorize bottles that have contained laudanum, tansy, asafetida and other similar strong smelling substances, a simple and effectual plan is to pour into each a small portion of a mixture of sulphuric and nitric acids, and allow it to flow over all parts of the interior. After it has been left for about an hour in the bottles, which are occasionally taken up and turned about so that all parts of the internal surface are attacked by the acid, it will be found, says Popular Science News, that a good rinsing with plain water will leave them as good as new.

Spontaneous Combustion.

A singular case of spontaneous combustion is reported where a painter engaged in a mill removed his overalls at 6 p. m. to go home. As half-past 8 the watchman, discovering smoke in the mill, summoned the engineer, and together they searched the premises carefully, tracing the smoke to a small room in which the overalls were discovered, and in one pocket was a bunch of greasy waste that had ignited. This shows, according to Architecture and Builder, that spontaneous combustion may ensue in less than three hours if the conditions are favorable.

The Fastest Eastern Voyage.

Bradstreet's states that the fastest eastern voyage on record is that just made by the Furst Bismarck, which arrived at Southampton on May 28. Allowing for the difference in time, the actual time of the voyage was 5 days 19 hours and 20 minutes. The Furst Bismarck, it is said, has beaten by one hour and twenty-five minutes the record of 5 days, 21 hours and 20 minutes from New York to Queenstown, which was made two years ago.

STRYCHNINE AS A MEDICINE.

Russian Physicians Pronounce It of Great Value in Chronic Alcoholism.

Dr. Gamper, of St. Petersburg, has recently made careful investigation into the effect of nitrate of strychnine upon the functional activities of the stomach. He found, through experiments upon four healthy young hospital assistants, that strychnine increased the amount of gastric juice secreted, the general acidity and the quantity of free acid in the secretion. It also hastened the absorption from the stomach and strengthened the mechanical movements. Its effect, too, continued for some time after its administration had been stopped. The Lancet states that, like many other Russian observers, Dr. Gamper prefers to have been highly impressed by the value of strychnine in chronic alcoholism, declaring that it is the most effective of all drugs in such cases.

The Perfect Exercise.

An enthusiastic advocate of walking as an exercise affirms that few things, if any, are so effectual in building up and sustaining the physical organization as walking, if resolutely and judiciously followed. It is perfect exercise. It taxes the entire system. When you walk properly every muscle and muscle, every nerve and fiber has something to do. The arms swing backward and forward, keeping step as it were with the legs. The chest expands and contracts as the lungs fill and discharge; the drummer boy pulse beats a tune for the march; the legs curve and straighten; the feet rise and fall, while the head rides over all, but not as a deadhead. Every sense is has is employed, every faculty alert.

The nostrils expand to quaff the breeze; the ears catch every sound; the eyes roll in their sockets, sweeping from left to right, from earth to sky; the brain is at work through all its complex machinery under such conditions is the very eloquence of physical motion. What is the effect? The flesh is solidified; the lungs grow strong and sound; the chest enlarges; the limbs are rounded out; the tendons swell and toughen; the figure rises in height and dignity, and is clothed with grace and suppleness. Hunters, who walk much, are tall and straight, while sailors, who scarcely walk at all, are low and squat.

The Progress of Cremation.

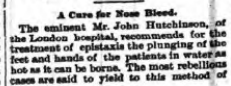
It was at Milan, 20 years ago that the first crematorium was erected, and, as far as "latest improvements" concerning cremation go, the marble building in the background is the most useful and the acropolis in the heart of Lombardy keeps pace with the best and latest innovations. At Paris 3,338 human bodies were cremated in 1890 against a very much smaller number at Milan. This, however, does not indicate any falling off in the general number of those in favor of cremation, but is, on the contrary, only a sign of the increasing popularity of the modern funeral pyre. This is the institution in a number of large Italian towns of perambulating crematoria which are sent about to all the small towns and villages of a district and return to their headquarters after each cremation.

Vaccination in Africa.

Surgeon Parke, who accompanied Stanley's Emin Pasha relief expedition, brought back with him an additional proof of the value of vaccination. When the American left Before the expedition started, the majority of the men were vaccinated by the doctor. In the wilds of Africa an epidemic of smallpox broke out, and only four of the unvaccinated men were attacked by the disease, and none died, while the camp followers, who had not been vaccinated, took the disease in its most virulent form and died in great numbers.

A Cure for Nose Bleed.

The eminent Mr. John Hutchinson, of the London hospital, recommends for the treatment of epistaxis the plunging of the feet and hands of the patients in water as hot as it can be borne. The most rebellious cases are said to yield to this method of treatment.



CHILDISH ERRORS.

Parents Sometimes Make a Fault Habitual in a Child by Noticing It Too Much.

Sometimes one fixes a fault in a child by noticing it too much, says Harper's Bazar. It becomes an expression of nervousness. The child repeats the fault through an inability to pass over it. It becomes like a hard word in the spelling book that he has met before. He recognizes the word without knowing its name, and at the same moment remembers his attempts with it, and the painful impression fills him with nervousness; his mind becomes confused and he cannot control his thought. It is wise with a fault, as with the hard word, to let it go to escape it. Omit the hard word; avoid anything to excite the habitual fault. Presently the child forgets the fault. It is said that injudicious parents often create their children's faults.

The Menu for a Garden Party.

The greatest latitude is observed in arranging menus for garden parties. Frequently, when the gathering is a large one, nothing more than a cup of tea, chocolate or coffee is offered, with sandwiches or wafers, and olives and salted nuts, according to one's housekeeping. If served out of doors it is unwise to arrange for any hot dishes. Salads, cold meats, jellies and ices may be added to the simple refreshments already suggested at the discretion of the hostess.

Unless one has ample conveniences for serving, it is better to avoid the attempt at a light collation and have it elegantly served. Sometimes an immense bowl of lemonade, frappe or punch is placed on a separate table and ladeled into dainty cups. Whenever the grounds are large enough, and sufficiently shaded and screened from the sun, it is the usual thing to serve the refreshments out of doors. Otherwise the tables should be laid indoors, when a much more elaborate menu may be prepared if desired.

Cherry Butter Balls and Cherry Cake.

Steam the cherries partly soft in a very little water, with sugar and a stick of cinnamon; then make a batter. Take five eggs, leaving out two whites, beat them up with cream and flour and a little white wine; make it of the consistency of pea-cake batter. Stir the cherries into the batter. Drop quickly from a tablespoon as evenly as possible into boiling hot lard, so as to make the batter balls into a round smooth shape. Fry them of a pale brown, then take up and strew over powdered sugar and cinnamon.

Soak one-half pound of sliced bread in as much cold milk as it will absorb; press it out, and six eggs well beaten, two ounces of almonds pounded, one-quarter pound of sugar, one-quarter pound of butter (creamed), and a small teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon; when these are well mixed stir in one and a half pound of cherries. An inch deep tin must be well buttered, filled with the mixture, strewed with sugar and cinnamon over the top, with a few sliced almonds and baked slowly in a moderate oven.

Design for Raised Applique Work.

The rose is fashioned with silk, muslin or sateen, the outside petals being rather flattened down, to be secured to the ground with a loose buttonhole stitch in embroidered silk, chenille or thisel, as shown by the thread left loose at the top of one of the scallops.

The leaves, in either velvet or plush, are veined and outlined with the rope stitch, which also edges the flat stems. One part of the leaves is turned over to show how it has to be tacked to the cloth or cashmere foundation before being decorated. The buds, too, are raised and shaped as true to nature as possible. This spray is suitable for the centerpiece of a pincushion and as a bordering for valances, etc.

RAISED APPLIQUE WORK.

Snow Pudding.

Snow pudding may be made with one-third of a package of gelatine in a little cold water, and when softened stir it into a pint of boiling water; add one cupful of sugar, the juice of two lemons or one-half cupful of wine, as preferred; when cold and beginning to thicken add the well beaten whites of three eggs. Beat all lightly and smoothly together, pour the mixture into a mold and set it aside to harden. Serve in the center of a dish, with a boiled custard poured around it. Make the custard with the yolks of three eggs, one pint of milk and half a cupful of sugar, with flavoring to taste.

A NEW DEPARTURE AT THE 5 AND 10C. STORE.
Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer this superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.
To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

"Black River Falls Park."

As announced in another column the Plainfield Reform Club will go on its annual excursion to Black River Falls Park on Wednesday next. In reference to the place the Somerville Unionist-Gazette has the following to say:

The beautiful Black River Glen and park is very close to the depot and during the past Winter and Spring workmen have been engaged in clearing and beautifying the grounds so that everything is in splendid order to receive expectant visitors. Passing the smooth stretch of river above the mills where boats are placed for the accommodation of those desiring them, the park on either side of the river, which is crossed by rustic bridges, is filled with handsome trees and rocks. The carefully made paths all covered with sawdust so that there will be no dampness even after a rain, lead to the various places of interest. One great beauty of the glen is that it is so formed that the sun shines well into it and that dampness which is frequently noticed in other places of this kind, is entirely absent. Perched away up on a solid rock above the river with a beautiful view of the falls, a bright looking cottage has been erected, and lunch tables are placed in convenient places. Footpaths lead over the rocks to the various points of observation, mineral springs, the falls and other beautiful spots, and something new is seen at every turn. A smooth grass covered plot surrounded by big trees and well back from the river, furnishes a play ground for the children, and ball and tennis grounds have also been provided. In the centre of one of the falls is the glen, Somerset, Hunterdon and Morris counties come together and neatly painted sign boards straighten out the visitor in regard to his geography of the region. There is good fishing in the stream and in a brook a short distance above a number of trout have already been caught this year.

Superintendent Melick is fitting up the place with every convenience found in popular resorts and the season will see many visitors at the beautiful glen which extends for fully half a mile with interesting falls, rocks and abundance of flowers and ferns.

FIRE-BUGS AT WORK.

Another Barn Reduced to Ashes Saturday Evening.—The Particulars.

Shortly after nine o'clock Saturday evening an alarm of fire was sounded from box No. 34 at the corner of Liberty and Fifth streets. The fire proved to be in a barn belonging to Mr. John Flynn of Scotch Plains, situated on Fourth street, near Liberty, and used by Messrs. John Kelley and George Mosher for stabling purposes. When the fire department arrived, the building, which was a frame structure, was a mass of flames and before the firemen succeeded in getting a stream of water on the fire the barn was almost consumed.

The horses and carriages which were in the barn at the time, together with two sets of harness, were saved. In saving one of the horses, a young man named Hendershot was badly burned on the left wrist and hand.

The loss will not exceed five hundred dollars and it is partially covered by insurance.

The fire is pronounced of incendiary origin.

Mystery About This Shooting.

Westfield was excited yesterday over the accidental or intentional discharge of a pistol that came near wounding if not killing an aged resident of the town. At 11 o'clock on Saturday night Mrs. Celia Condit was sitting with her daughter in the drawing-room of her home on Union street. Mrs. Condit arose from her chair and, leaving the room by the door, where a pistol shot was heard, and a ball passed through the window and struck the wall, passing over the chair left by Mrs. Condit. The shot was followed by a woman's scream in the street and some persons were heard running away. Mrs. Condit and her daughter were too much frightened to leave the house to inform the authorities of the shooting, but they did so in the morning. An investigation was made, but little came of it. Before the shooting a man and a woman were heard quarreling and the man threatened the woman. When the 11:20 o'clock train for New York left the station, a man and a woman boarded it hastily. The woman seemed to be hurt, and had to be helped to the car by her companion.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[In this column expressions of opinion from readers of THE NEWS are always welcomed, even if contrary to the views of the editor. Writers are requested to be as brief and direct as possible, however, and must always enclose their names not necessarily for publication.]

"OLD ONE HORN."

Another Version as to How and When the Old Cannon Became so Named.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—A few days ago I read a romantic story signed C. A. Leveridge which was claimed to be a history of our old cannon.

The part in which the name of my ancestors appeared makes me feel very proud, but the part which tells how it became "Old One Horn" while being taken from the Hessians in 1780 is so far from what I know to be the fact that I ask space in your paper to tell the whole story as I heard it more than forty years ago.

At that time I never had heard the gun was a revolutionary piece or had ever been in actual service, but had belonged to a militia company stationed at Westfield (which at that time I think included what is now Plainfield and Panwood.) The iron work for the carriage was made by Captain Spencer a Plainfielder who lived on Second street and whose daughter (Mrs. Robert Walker) still resides here.

In those days all able bodied citizens were compelled to do military duty and attend general muster on training days.

When this law was abolished the Westfield company disbanded. The gun was frequently borrowed by the Plainfielders and retaken by the Westfielders. Although the gun had a carriage it was dismounted the greater part of the time so that it might be more easily concealed by the party in possession. I heard the old gun boom for American victories in the Mexican war, and was present when it was fired on the occasion of the death of President Zach. Taylor and well remember hearing Mr. Lewis Barkaloo say "We'll fire one gun for old Rough and Ready."

I have often seen it when hidden in the shavings in the Cooper shop of the old still house.

One day about forty years ago when it lay under the blacksmith shop which stood on the ground now occupied by Rudolph Laurent's jewelery Store (adjoining the NEWS office), on Somerset street, the missing horn was knocked off by Richard Elliot with a sledge hammer. Mr. Elliot still lives in this city, on Clinton street, avenue. In that way, and no other, the cannon became "Old One Horn."

Most of the old-timers who were interested in the old gun are dead or have passed from my remembrance. Messrs. E. M. Cleaveland, Richard C. Bonnell, Thomas Jennings and ex-Chief of Police Philip Breen, probably know as much of its history as any persons living, as they helped to capture it often enough to know all about it.

Some of the younger men who used to have fun with the old gun are Messrs. Wm. R. Jennings, of North Plainfield; William Heddeu, Wallace Coriell and Richard E. Coriell of this city.

As to the ownership or earliest history of course I only have the common story in circulation forty years ago, but all the gentlemen whose names appear above, and probably fifty others remember when the gun had two horns. I am sorry to discredit any part of Mr. Leveridge's nice story, but the gun which my ancestors helped to capture from the Hessians was not "Old One Horn" but some other gun.

As to the present ownership of the gun, one would naturally think it belonged to the town of Westfield as sixty years ago (that is) Westfield, Panwood and Plainfield. We have the greater part of the population, also possession of the gun, but if the Westfielders think they should have it let them do as their daddies did forty years ago, come and get it. Respectfully,

ONE OF THE BOYS OF FORTY YEARS AGO.

A BIG RACE MEET.

The Elizabeth Wheelmen to Give a Great Event.

A great cycling race meet, the greatest ever held in this section will be given under the auspices of the Elizabeth Wheelmen at the grounds of the New Jersey Jockey Club on Saturday afternoon, September 26th.

The Weelmen are enthused over the matter and Saturday night's special meeting, called to consider the project was the largest meeting the club ever held. Letters from Col. McIntyre and Capt. J. H. Cory, offering the Elizabeth wheelmen the use of the track and grounds, were read, and the offer was accepted with thanks. A special committee, to act with the race committee, was appointed to arrange details, and they have already formulated a programme and will at once issue a preliminary notice to all the cycling and athletic clubs in this section of the country.

The track will be put in first class condition, and with its mile circuit it will be the finest track for cyling in this country.

The date has been arraigned so as to suit the circuit riders, and doubtless a large number of crack racers will be entered. Record breaking will be a certainty. The event will attract a big crowd of wheelmen, and its success seems to be assured, even before the project is fairly under way.

The question of the Elizabeth Wheelmen joining the association known as the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey, which has recently been formed, was briefly discussed Saturday night and it was unanimously decided not to join on account of several requirements in the constitution and by-laws of the latter called upon to accede to.

THE MILL AT THE OLD INN.

Three Rounds and a Mistake in the Referee's Rulings.

The old, historic "Elm Park Hotel," just outside of Somerset county on the extreme edge of Middlesex, was the scene Saturday night of a sharply contested mill. The principals were James Dwyer, Bound Brook's noted heavyweight, and Town Cassidy, of Reading, Pa., a stone-cutter who is working in the neighborhood. The fight was witnessed by about one hundred persons. The stakes were $100 a side and the gate receipts.

The men stepped into the ring as the fifteen clocks were striking 12, and in less than half an hour the contest was ended. Three rounds were fought.

In the first round Dwyer forced the fighting and landed heavily on Cassidy, keeping it up until time was called. The second round was much the same as the first. The men had fought less than a minute when Dwyer drove Cassidy against the wall and was about to finish him when the referee called "time." The referee acknowledged his error and Dwyer refused to fight. His seconds pushed him out of Middlesex, however, and the round continued, Dwyer having the best of it.

Round Three—Cassidy attempted to force the fighting. His left eye was soon closed. Cassidy fought wildly, while Dwyer gave telling blows, one of which landed his opponent in the corner. Dwyer followed him and as he fell struck him twice. Cassidy's friends yelled "Foul!"

The door was then burst in. Dwyer made a break, thinking the police were there, and rushed through the rear door.

On account of the referee's ruling in the second round the money was divided.

The Rubber Wheel Tires.

The application of rubber to wheel tires has proved a great boon to bicycling and the increase in this branch of industry remarkable. There are 100,000 bicycles made every year in this country, and 40,000 more are imported. As all these have tires of the best rubber, it can be seen that a good percentage of the world supply is absorbed in this way. Each tire weighs on a average between three and four pounds, and this together with renewals, involves a yearly consumption of not far from 1,000,000 pounds. The solid tire was first used, but the cushion and the pneumatic are now the popular forms. These adaptations of rubber enable the rider to travel long distances, day after day, with but little ill effects from the concussion which otherwise so materially the health and comfort of the bicyclist.

Union Water Company Directors.

The stockholders of the Union Company of Cranford, have selected directors and adopted by-laws and a corporate seal. The Directors will hold office until the next annual meeting, which will be held on the third Monday in May next. Appended are the names of the Directors: B. F. Haas, ex-Congressman John Kean, Jr., Sylvester Cahill, Jr., ex-Assemblyman Foster M. Voorhees and James Maguire. The Board will meet in a few days and elect a President, Secretary and Treasurer. It is whispered that the opponents of the Water Company will fight the Company in the courts on the ground of alleged illegality in the organization proceedings.

—The correspondents of several New York papers are doing great injury to Plainfield, perhaps unintentionally by their misleading and in some cases false and exaggerated accounts of fires. The reports thus circulated enlarged by the writers to secure their insertion are like a cold blanket to prospective and would be citizens, or investors.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Mrs. Procter Commits Suicide.

ASBURY PARK, July 20th. (Special.)—Mrs. Susanna Procter committed suicide here at one o'clock this morning. Her husband left her about a year ago and she has been despondent since.

The Wonderful Kinetograph.

Mr. Edison's latest invention, the kinetograph,—from the Greek words kinetos, moveable, and graphs, writing, and meaning, therefore, an instrument that writes or pictures motion,—combined with the phonograph, furnishes a striking example of the marvellous and seemingly supernatural effects that can be produced by the ingenious use of the simple powers and forces that nature has placed at our disposal. Every one knows how a phonograph repeats the words and musical sounds that have been pronounced or sung in its presence. The kinetograph is just as simple.

It consists of a photographic camera so arranged that a strip of gelatine, which has been prepared so that photographs can be taken upon it, is made to pass over rollers behind a lens to which is attached a shutter capable of making forty-six successive exposures in one second.

If then the lens is focussed upon a stage containing a company of actors it produces upon the gelatine strip a series of photographs of the actors, each successive picture being separated by an interval of only a forty-sixth of a second.

Suppose that an actor has just raised his arm to make a gesture when the kinetograph is turned upon the stage; if the gesture occupies one second forty-six photographs will be produced, showing the actor's arm in just so many successive positions, and the intervals are so short that if the forty-six pictures are then caused to pass in quick succession before your eyes the actor's gesture will be reproduced as if the living man were actually swinging his arm in your presence.

The principle employed is the same as that of the optical toy called the zoetrope.

At the same time a phonograph, combined with the kinetograph, records the words spoken by the actors while they are making the motions that have been photographed. It is only necessary then to connect the series of photographs to pass at a regulated speed through a magic lantern in order to present upon a screen not only a picture of the stage and the actors, but actually to show the latter moving about, smiling, frowning and gesticulating, just as they did in the play, while at the same time the phonograph repeats the words that they uttered.

This invention has not yet been entirely perfected, but a working model of it has been exhibited by Mr. W. Kinsen, showing that the machine will certainly do the things we have described.

What would the old story-tellers of the Arabian Nights, with their magic perspective glasses and enchanted carpets, have thought of the way in which we hold in the broad daylight of this practical age these astonishing products of Yankee ingenuity.—Ex.

Bound Brook's Prosperity.

The people of Bound Brook consider the increase in the business of the postoffice as a fair index of the rapid growth of the place. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1890, the receipts at the office were less than $2,400, while during the fiscal year recently closed the gross receipts were more than $3,000. This shows an increase of more than 25 per cent. in three years.

Never kick a man when he is down—unless he deserves it.

After all, Chicago got her monument built to Grant before New York did.

The talk about a national flower is still on. It is turned on every spring, and lasts nearly the summer through. But we can scarcely have a national flower. The right way will be for each state of the Union to choose its own flowers. Then all can be blended into one gorgeous national bouquet of forty-four blossoms. That would be a fine sight. When a new state came in a new flower could be added to the national bouquet, just as a new star is added to the flag.

Unravelled as material for a romance is the story of Frank Woosley and John Brock, who left Springfield, O., together fifteen years ago. They went to a Texas ranch to raise cattle. For some reason best known to himself, one day Woosley disappeared utterly, as completely as if he had vanished from the face of the earth. Cowboys and miners have a way of resolving complications quickly, and at once it was suspected that his partner had murdered and made away with Woosley. Brock was arrested and only by the skin of his teeth escaped being strung up to the nearest tree. He did get out of the lynchers' clutches alive however. From that day on he had one object in life. It was the finding of his lost partner. In this depended the establishing of his good name among men. He was either a deeply injured man or a suspected murderer. He vowed his life and such fortune as he had to finding Woosley. He found a trace at length and followed it to the end. At last he has found him, alive and pursuing his way like an ordinary mortal. He had known of his former partner's search for him, but kept silent. The rest of the story is that Brock has now sued Woosley for $50,000 damages in not discovering himself and thus proving Brock's innocence.

Rhode Island Savings Banks.

Rhode Island contains thirty-eight mutual savings banks. They pay a small interest on deposits like most savings banks, perhaps 3 per cent. on the average. But a feature of these mutuals is that the depositors receive dividends on the profits made by the bank, after the manner of building associations. This feature has made the mutual savings banks so popular that now in Rhode Island there are $60,000,000 deposited in them. The people of Rhode Island have put by small savings that amount to that much in the aggregate. Rhode Island has little agriculture and resources to speak of. Her working people labor mostly in the factories and the wages paid by these seldom make millionaires of the operatives. Yet, little by little, laying by fifty cents to a dollar a week, the thrifty Yankees of the smallest state in the Union have $60,000,000 put away for a rainy day.

All Rhode Island contains a population of a little more than one-third as much as the one city of Chicago. The whole state is about equal in size to Cook county, in which Chicago is situated. Yet, recognizing the money laid up among the mutual savings banks depositors in Rhode Island, it is found that it amounts to $172.86 per capita. This is probably the best showing of any savings bank or building association depositors in the country.

What a City Government May Do.

Two years ago in London the plan of electing the municipal officers by the people was adopted. The old city government was not satisfactory, and London went in for making a clean sweep and reforming it altogether. It was replaced by the London common council. Only persons of unimpeachable character were elected. The best citizens of London consented to serve their home town. Sir John Lubbock was made president of the council. Among such men as he "practical" politics would have been as out of place as a hyena in a church at high communion.

Sir John Lubbock has made his report of the work accomplished by the council. It has boldly torn down by wholesale filthy tenement houses and put sanitary apartment houses in their place. It provided bathhouses for the London workingmen, and more than a thousand cricket and football grounds. It enforced courageously the doctrine that the public parks were for the people by putting in seats, gymnasiums and swings. By establishing a line of free ferry steamers it has made coal twenty-five cents cheaper on the ten for a million of London's inhabitants. The council next desires London to buy and place in its hands for management the gas and water supply of the city. If this shall be done the world will have opportunity to see how public works thrive under city government ownership.

The London common council was thus inaugurated purely with the design of governing London in the manner that is productive of most good for its citizens. When shall we have municipal governments working for the same object in American cities?

QUAY WISHES TO RESIGN

His Chairmanship Duties Are Altogether Too Onerous.

HE INTENDED TO RETIRE BEFORE

It Was When President Harrison Was Elected, but Quay Was Prevented from Doing So—But He Will Not Say Positively That He Will Give Up the Chair.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—Rumors have been flying around for several days that Senator Quay was about to resign the chairmanship of the national Republican committee. When a reporter interviewed Mr. Quay at his home in Beaver the senator was in a communicative mood, and he gave the newspaper man every reason to believe that he would not long occupy the chairmanship.

The following was written in Senator Quay's presence and approved by him:

Senator Quay's Statement.

"The time is approaching when the labors for the campaign of 1892 should be commenced. I do not care to take charge of that work. But still I do not wish to say positively that I will resign from the chairmanship of the Republican national committee. That is a question that will be decided later on. It was my intention to retire immediately after President Harrison's election. But I was prevented from doing so by circumstances well known to my colleagues on the committee.

At Liberty Now to Step Out.

"That desire to get out of a place encumbered with so many duties has never abated, and the time has now come when

SENATOR QUAY.

I feel at liberty to step out. The coming campaign has the forecast of being an educational one. It will be conducted with vigor by both parties. The man who is to manage the preliminary work as chairman of the executive committee should be in position now, and should henceforth devote his time largely to its duties. As I said before, I do not care to do the work, but still I do not positively say that I will resign."

Not on Account of His Health.

"Would such a step be taken on account of your health?" was asked.

"No," replied the senator, "notwithstanding newspaper assertions, my health is fairly good."

"Will you leave the committee entirely or simply the chairmanship?"

"I have not stated that I would resign," was the evasive reply.

Continuing he stated that the executive committee would meet in Philadelphia on July 30. "I cannot say," he continued, "when the national convention will be. A great many favor holding it early in order to escape the heat, but that is usually encountered. That will be decided by the entire committee at some future meeting."

A Clarkson His Successor.

"Who do you think will succeed you, provided you resign? It has been stated, you know, that letters were sent to the different committee members asking if they would have J. S. Clarkson succeed you, and they all replied favorably."

"That is not true," replied Senator Quay. "No such letters have been sent with my knowledge. It is generally conceded, however, that Mr. Clarkson will be elected provided I resign, and he is well fitted for the position; but there is no indication of what action will be taken by the national committee."

A Compliment for Pattison.

"What about the national outlook?"

"It is too far ahead to say much about it. I have no doubt that if Secretary Blaine is a candidate he will receive the Republican nomination. Mr. Cleveland seems to be the leader on the Democratic side. Pattison, I am told, is being favorably discussed by eminent Democrats outside of Pennsylvania. He is popular, has a clean record, and would be a strong candidate."

THEY STOLE A TRAY OF DIAMONDS.

The Police Have Arrested Robert Howe, a Bookmaker's Clerk.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Robert Howe, a young bookmaker's clerk, has been arrested on a charge of stealing a $10,000 case of diamonds from the jewelry establishment of Carl Wartzicke, No. 12 West Twentieth street. The robbery occurred on February 6 last, and the police have been at work on the case constantly. On that date the prisoner, or a man who very closely resembles him, called at the jewelry store with a handsomely dressed woman, who said she wanted to purchase some diamonds.

They examined some rings, but finally concluded not to purchase and left the place. A tray of diamonds, valued at $10,000, was almost immediately missed, but the couple could not be found. On Friday night Howe, who answers the description of the thief, was arrested on Broadway. The police are now searching for the woman.

The Navajos Will Not Fight.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 20.—The reports published in regard to an alleged Navajo outbreak are false. These Indians are partially civilized and could not be induced to war with the whites under any circumstances. D. M. Riordan, who was formerly the Navajo agent, says that the reports are absolutely nonsensical and that the Navajos were never more peaceful than at present.

Fire at the Lorillard Brick Works.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 20.—Several new kilns, together with a number of outbuildings at Lorillard's brick works, at Lorillard, N. J., near this place, were destroyed by fire. The fire department saved the immense works from destruction. The works are still managed by Receiver Seldner, of Jersey City, in the interests of the creditors of Joseph Lorillard.

MARRIED TO KYRLE BELLEW.

That Is the Latest Story About Mrs. James Brown Potter.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Letters just received from Hong Kong say that Kyrle Bellew and Mrs. James Brown Potter were married in that city just before the steamship Belgic sailed for this port. The story is rifled the rounds, when cannot understand the feeling which should actuate two Christian sects to deeds of violence for the possession of a sacred spot to which neither has any right that is recognized by any laws or treaties extant.

MRS. BROWN POTTER

patch came to Mrs. Potter saying that her husband had secured a divorce, whereupon she at once married the actor. Mrs. Potter and Bellew made money in Australia, but lost it all in China, where the principals have been reduced to playing with amateurs, after they were unable to form amateur companies they gave recitations and parlor entertainments.

Mrs. Potter's Career.

Mrs. Potter is the daughter of Colonel David Urquhart, of New Orleans, where she was born about thirty-five years ago. She appeared as an amateur actress in her native city, and was, after her marriage in 1877, one of the best known society actresses among the fashionables of this city and Newport. Mrs. Potter studied in Paris, and on Oct. 31, 1887, made her American debut as a professional at the Fifth Avenue theater in Delpit's "Mlle. de Bressier." She since has played various roles in this country and in England, her best known part here being that of Cleopatra in Shakespeare's play.

Recently in China Mrs. Potter and Mr. Bellew have been presenting such plays, taking the star parts themselves and filling up the cast with local amateurs or such professionals as they could find at liberty at the various places they visited. Where no aid was available they have been giving parlor entertainments consisting chiefly of recitations.

There have been many reports that Mr. Potter was contemplating a suit for divorce on account of Kyrie Bellew, but Mr. Potter has always denied that he intended to apply for a divorce.

SEVEN WENT DOWN.

Two Women and Five Children Sank with the Ruby Belle.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 20.—The schooner Ruby Belle has been wrecked on the Newfoundland coast. The following persons went down with the vessel:

Mrs. Jane Freeman, aged 30; Caroline Higgins, and five children. They were all taken on at St. Johns. The vessel was bound from Catalina to St. Johns. They all belong at St. Johns.

Five Fishermen Perished.

LOUISVILLE, July 20.—While seining on the Tennessee river, near Murray, Edward Brown, Walter Strader, John Meader, Bird Eaves and Ben Strader were drowned. The party numbered eight. They tied one end of their seine, seventy-five feet long, to the bank, and swam with the netting nearly straight out into the river. Only their shoes, hats and coats had been removed, and none of them was well acquainted with the river. Returning to the shore they swam into the swift, cold current. One of them was seized with cramps. A panic followed. The seine was dragged down. Brown and Strader became entangled in it. Meader and Eaves were swept under by the current.

Drowned Herself and Her Boy.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The body of Mrs. Sarah Kramer, aged thirty-five years, and 1,352 West Mt. Ann Clarkson, was found in the Delaware river. Attached to her waist by means of a stout rope was the body of her five-months old son, Willie. The child had been deformed, and this probably caused her to end the existence of both the child and herself. She was the mother of five other children.

Four of the Crew Drowned.

LONDON, July 20.—The captain of the British brigantine Annie Harris landed at Plymouth last night. He reports that his vessel was run into and sunk by the German steamer Dresden, off Start Point, and four of his crew were drowned.

A Strong Swimmer, but He Sank.

SEA ISLE CITY, July 20.—Charles Kaulfers, aged twenty-eight, an excursionist from Wilmington, Del., was drowned while bathing. He was a strong swimmer and is supposed to have been seized with cramps.

Fell Overboard and Drowned.

SARATOGA, July 20.—Charles Vale, engineer of a pleasure steamer on Saratoga lake, fell overboard from the craft and was drowned. He came from Brooklyn a month ago.

"DOLLY DAVIS" AGAIN.

Marie Arigassa's Lover Was Colonel Potter, of Rochester.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Some of the mystery surrounding the suicide of Marie Eugenie Josephine Arigassa, whose body was found recently in the Hudson at Croton landing, has been dispelled. Her last words when she left her home in this city were:

"My heart is broken; my love has gone to Colonel Potter."

This lover is George F. Potter, president of the United States Capital Life Insurance company, with offices in the Atlantic building, Washington, D. C. He is also controller of the Flour City Life Insurance association, of Rochester, N. Y. Three of the officers of this company are now under indictment for forgery. The company has been wrecked.

The body of the suicide was found June 30. It was at first identified as that of Dolly Davis, a variety actress and skirt dancer.

Murdered with a Rock.

CANTON, O., July 20.—Francis Machamer, section foreman of the Cleveland and Canton railroad, quarreled with Lincoln E. Andreas, who hurled a rock at Machamer, striking him in the head. Machamer soon died in great agony.

Rev. Mr. Spurgeon Is Improving.

LONDON, July 20.—The condition of the Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon is much improved. He passed a good night. He took food and drink last night for the first time for a month.

LIZZIE LOVED WING LEE.

A Camden Girl Who Eloped with a Chinaman.

HE IS CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION.

The Girl Met the Celestial at a Mission and He Wrote Her Love Letters—Other Chinamen Helped Her Father to Find the Runaway Pair.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Wing Lee loved a pretty Melican girl. He courted her clandestinely. Then he ran away with her. Wing Lee is now in the Tombs. He will have a hearing today on a charge of abduction. There is also a charge of carrying concealed weapons against Wing. Lizzie Sproul is the fifteen-year-old daughter of David C. Sproul, of Camden, N. J., who has been the sexton, Sunday school superintendent and elder of the leading Methodist Episcopal church of that Jersey suburb of the Quaker City. Attached to the church is a Chinese mission and Sunday school. In the basement of the Sproul home there is a Chinese laundry.

Then Lizzie Disappeared.

Lizzie, who is a tall, well developed and rather pretty girl, in this way became acquainted with numbers of the Celestials, and spent considerable of her leisure in their company. The upshot of this familiarity was that on June 29 Lizzie disappeared from home. After she had gone, her father found in her room a letter which gave him a clew to her whereabouts. It read as follows:

The Celestial's Love Letter.

MAY 19, 1891.

MY DEAR FRIEND LIZZIE SPROUL:—I was very glad received letter from you or my Dear also sweet I am sorry leave you that day because not have time stay with along time because I am business plans excuse me I hopping you come see me I have time monday I like see you every monday because not have time only some time monday I can not send my picture to you right away if you wont come see me answere to me perhaps I come see you on June 8th 1891 monday morning about seven o'clock pleas I hope you come see best my Dear

Good by my Dear
Sweetheart Good by
From your Friend
WING LEE.

He Had Sold His Laundry.

The Camden Chinamen professed to know nothing whatever about Wing Lee when the troubled father questioned them, so Mr. Sproul crossed the Delaware to Philadelphia, and called on some Chinamen on Race street, with whom he had become acquainted through their attendance at his Sunday school. They told him that Wing Lee was a laundryman in a suburb of the city. Thither went Mr. Sproul, only to find that Wing Lee had sold out his laundry several days before and gone.

Gone with the Chinaman.

Mr. Sproul returned to the Philadelphia Chinamen and besought them to use their endeavors to locate Wing Lee, as he now felt assured that his daughter had gone with the Mongolian. The Chinamen promised to trace the fellow, and wrote to some of their countrymen in this city. These located Wing Lee and the girl. Then the father came to New York, reported the case to the police, and Officer Liston, of the Elizabeth police force, arrested the pair at 19 Pell street, where they were living. Wing said to the officer that Lizzie and he had been married, but the girl admitted that this was false. Wing had done nothing since selling out the Pennsylvania laundry, the girl told the officer, and he had treated her "splendidly."

He Carried Steel Knuckles.

When the officer was taking the pair down the stairs of the Pell street house he noticed Wing Lee put his hands under his blouse, and suspecting that the fellow might be endeavoring to get rid of something compromising, he searched him, and found on him a pair of steel knuckles of a particularly murderous kind, which Liston took possession of and which formed the basis of a second charge. Wing Lee was locked up for the night in the Elizabeth street station house, and Miss Sproul was taken to the office of Mr. Gerry's society. Yesterday Wing Lee was brought to the Tombs.

Usually, when a Chinaman is arraigned before a police justice a dozen or more of his pigtailed countrymen are interested spectators, but Wing Lee had only one white bloused Celestial friend, who had come to give bail for him. The amount of the bail fixed by Justice Dyer was too much, however, for the friend, and Wing was hustled down stairs to the prison.

Lizzie was present in the court room, accompanied by Officer Finn, of the society. She was neatly dressed in a white muslin gown, black straw hat, and wore a quantity of cheap jewelry, including a necklace, breastpin, bracelets and several rings. Her father was also in court.

"Gentleman George" at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 20.—George F. Parker, alias "Gentleman George," who committed suicide in London the other day, was well known here. In 1884 he conducted the Atlanta hotel, and by claiming that Jay Gould was to advance the requisite funds with which to build a mammoth hotel he gained the confidence of the natives and bled them of considerable money. He finally skipped from town leaving a host of creditors.

Founder Bradley Defied.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 20.—Drug stores and cigar stores were all doing business Sunday as usual. The Law and Order league had spotters out gathering evidence against the proprietors, which will be used when they are arraigned today. It is feared they will insist upon Founder Bradley paying a fine for hiring bath houses and suits at his bathing grounds.

Two Sunday Suicides.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Charles P. Thompson, forty-two years old, a Dane, sailor, shot and killed himself Sunday. Despondency was the probable cause of the act. Charles S. Hessler, aged thirty-two, committed suicide by shooting. Domestic trouble prompted the deed.

Ex-Senator Hill's Son Insane.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Roland B. Hill, a Boston newspaper man and the son of ex-United States Senator Hill, of Georgia, has been taken in charge by the police of this city, who fear that his mind is unbalanced. It is believed that he will be all right in a day or two.

Soldier Boys at Peekskill.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 20.—The members of the Eighth regiment, of New York, and the Seventy-fourth, of Buffalo, spent their first day in camp resting quietly in their tents and reading the Sunday papers. A dress parade the regiments made a very fair appearance.

FIGHTING AT BETHLEHEM.

Christians of Different Sects Come to Blows in the Ghetto.

LONDON, July 20.—The decision of the sultan to station a larger guard at the grotto at Bethlehem, owing to the large number of deaths which have occurred there through the frequent fights between Greeks and Catholics for possession or control of that sacred spot, has created a feeling of disgust in the more civilized countries. The disputes, which have in so many cases ended so fatally, have horrified the Turkish authorities, who cannot understand the feeling which should actuate two Christian sects to deeds of violence for the possession of a sacred spot to which neither has any right that is recognized by any laws or treaties extant.

One of the strict observances of the holy place is the rigid requirement that any person who enters shall do so in his bare feet. Recently a Greek seeking entrance removed his shoes, but neglected to take off his stockings.

This sacrilege so shocked a Catholic devotee that he drew a knife and attacked the Greek, who in the ensuing fight was killed. There is now in progress a chapter of sanguinary encounters, and the warfare has grown so fierce that the Mohammedan sultan has found himself at last compelled to station a guard in the grotto sufficiently strong to keep the Christian wranglers from further desecrating the place they both profess to hold sacred.

FOR ONE HUNDRED MILLIONS.

A Big Suit for Almost Priceless Real Estate in New York.

WEST POINT, Miss., July 20.—A suit involving property worth over one hundred million dollars will shortly be filed in the courts of New York city. Colonel H. Clay King, of Memphis, and his brother, T. C. King, of this city, are deeply interested in that suit. It will also be of great interest to a large number of people in Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas, relatives of these gentlemen. The suit will be brought for the recovery of property leased to the city of New York ninety-nine years ago by Robert Edward, at that time a real estate owner in the city. The lease has just expired.

The property comprises land on which Broadway and several adjacent streets are now located. The lease specified that at its end the property, with all improvements, should revert to his heirs. The King family, heirs of Mr. Edwards, have in their possession all the documents necessary to prove a clear title to the property in question, and as the lease has just expired suit is to be commenced at once to recover possession of the property.

A Suit for $6,000,000.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The title and ownership of real property worth about $6,000,000 is involved in the suit which was first begun by 143 persons, claiming to be the heirs of Mrs. Ann Drake Seaman, who died in 1878. Mrs. Seaman's will, leaving three-fourths of the property to persons named in it, was broken. Notice of appeal was given at the time. The present renewal of the suit is made on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

Took His Money and Then Failed.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—The indications now are that there will be a criminal prosecution to follow the failure of the First National bank. City Treasurer Lemon says he placed $84,000 in the bank after banking hours, and the officials received a check for the same. That check he would not open next morning. He says that if the check is used among the assets of the bank a criminal prosecution will follow.

YOUNG WALLER TURNS UP

His Father Denies Certain Sensational Stories.

THE SON'S ACCOUNTS ALL RIGHT.

The Ex-Governor of Connecticut Says He May Be in Love, but He Is Not Dishonest Nor Fool Enough to Run Away with His Own Money.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Ex-Governor Waller came to New York last night by the 11 o'clock train and reached the Gilsey House at just midnight. He met his son, Martin B., at the Grand Central station, and the latter took the midnight train for New London with his brother Tracy. Martin B. Waller is the secretary and treasurer of the Long Island Brick company, of Greenport, and it was reported in yesterday's newspapers that he had disappeared from Greenport three weeks ago, that nothing was known of his whereabouts, that an expert accountant was going over the books, and that there were reports that a deficiency had been discovered.

Ex-Governor Waller Talks.

Ex-Governor Waller had a long talk with Martin at the Grand Central station before going to his hotel. He said afterward:

"As soon as my son awoke in the morning and found himself famous he telegraphed home, denying the sensational story absolutely. There it not a word of truth in it. The serious harm the publication effected was in the mention of the daughter of President Sage, an intelligent and sensitive young lady, who ought not to have been made to suffer."

A Cruel and Ridiculous Story.

Earlier in the day Mr. Waller said at New London:

"I am very much mortified that such a cruel and ridiculous story should have obtained circulation, and especially as much of my son's apparently inexcusable carelessness has probably been the cause of it. He has been absent for an unusually long time on the business of the company without reporting regularly, but not so long as is stated. In four weeks he has wired the company four times, and on Saturday evening he sent from East New York a telegram announcing that he would be at the office of the company on Tuesday. My son Martin is not a defaulter for a cent, and the suggestion that there is a woman in the case is altogether sensational. But of this feature of the story I do not care to talk.

"If the boy is like his father he may be susceptible, but he is not dishonest. He is the third largest owner in his own right of the stock of the company, and he is not stupid enough to run away to Brooklyn with his own money."

Only a Simple Love Affair.

Greenport (L. I.) people think there is a romantic side to the disappearance of young Waller. They say he had been paying assiduous attentions to the pretty daughter of C. D. Sage, the president of the Long Island Brick company, of which young Waller was secretary and treasurer, and that his suit was frowned upon by the proud old man.

There is no confirmation yet of the story that Waller was short in his accounts. Mr. Sage will not talk about the matter, and other officials are equally reticent. An accountant is still at work on the books, and it is said that no definite statement can be made at present.

THE TARANTULA BIT HIM.

But a Physician Says Pastime Will Not Die.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 20.—Louis Pastime, fruit dealer of Main street, was moving a bunch of bananas at his store when a huge tarantula jumped out and stung him on the thumb of the left hand. Pastime tried desperately to shake off the deadly spider, but it took several minutes to do so. He then ran to the office of Dr. C. W. Fitch, who has lived in Central America and is an expert on the tarantula. Before he reached the office the thumb had swollen to twice its natural size. Mr. Pastime says that immediately after the attack he felt excruciating pains shot through his arm and both sides. In a moment the pains had penetrated even to his liver, which was seriously affected.

Dr. Fitch cauterized the wound and expects that Mr. Pastime will recover. The doctor says that the tarantula's bite is not very dangerous except when it is in an excited condition, and that the one which bit Mr. Pastime was in rather a torpid condition. In his fifteen years' residence in Central America he was bitten twenty times, but he knew how to treat the sting and attended to it immediately.

"If," said the doctor, "you can imagine yourself suffering a pain a hundred times as intense as a wasp sting you can realize what it is to be bitten by a tarantula. To test the ferocity of the spider I once cut a round hole in the center of a newspaper and placed the tarantula in a hole. Then I set fire to the paper, and the insect finding itself hemmed in on all sides, threw itself over, and stinging itself on the back, died instantly."

SEARCHING FOR FRANK ALMY.

The Story of Pretty Christie Worden's Murder at Hanover, N. H.

HANOVER, July 20.—All day Sunday scores of men were scouring the woods for Frank Almy, the murderer of pretty Christie Worden. Investigation shows that the crime was carefully planned. The criminal said the entrance of escape were selected long before the fatal shots were fired. The little party of women were wending their way homeward. They had left the lovers, when a man glided stealthily into the roadway and blocked their passage. His salutation was this:

"Mrs. Worden, you and Fanny may move on with safety. I shall not harm you unless you interfere, and if you do I will shoot you like dogs. Christie, I have come 1,000 miles to meet you and now our time is short."

Then he drew a revolver from his breast, which he cocked.

Mrs. Worden was dragged away by Miss Goodell, who had accompanied them, leaving Christie and Fanny with Almy. Christie up to this time had been so overpowered by fear that she was hardly able to move. She clung tenaciously to her sister, a bright young girl of seventeen. Almy seized Christie by the left shoulder, placed the muzzle of his weapon against the breast of her sister and said:

"I have hated you, Fan, and unless you let go of Christie I will blow you into eternity."

"Shoot, then; I will not let her go," she replied.

He did not carry out his threat, but shook Fanny off and dragged Christie into the brush. Fanny followed close behind, despite Almy's threats to shoot. Meantime Christie had been struggling to escape, and Almy had his hands full in holding her. Nearly all of her clothing was torn off in the struggle. Fanny's presence seemed to disconcert the murderer, for he raised his revolver and fired point blank at her. The bullet missed its mark and she kept on. Again he fired and she felt a strange sensation in her shoulder.

Then she turned and ran toward Emmet Marshall, who was running toward her down the road. Fanny led him toward the spot where her sister was held by Almy. As they approached two more shots were fired. There was a cry of agony from poor Christie, and all was over. Then Marshall saw Almy run up the hill and disappear. Since then he has not been seen. Christie's face was terribly disfigured by blows from the revolver and by two horrible pistol shot wounds.

Almy's infatuation for the young woman was known to her parents and to her self, but nobody dreamed that he would resort to violence. When he proposed marriage, and it was learned that Christie disliked his attentions, he was discharged. That was last March. Since then he has dogged her footsteps.

EDWIN BOOTH BLACKMAILED.

Pursued for Years, It Is Said, by His Manager.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Mr. Edwin Booth, the distinguished actor, has, it is reported, been the object of a conspiracy to obtain money from him. A disreputable newspaper man and a person connected with the stage have had for years in their possession a document relating to an incident in Booth's family, but of which Mr. Booth was not aware until informed by the conspirators and for which he was in no way responsible, and the story is said to have been used this knowledge to blackmail him.

The late Lawrence Barrett interposed between the supposed conspirators and his friend. Barrett did not believe the story which these men said they had to tell. Nevertheless, rather than see his colleague and friend put to the trouble and annoyance of having the story made public and denying allegations that were absurd, Barrett paid them to discontinue their annoyance. When, however, Barrett died the accursed blackmailers, it is said, began once more to annoy Mr. Booth.

THE FIGHTING FIFTH.

GALLANT BATTLE RECORD OF DURYEE'S NEW YORK ZOUAVES.

Organized in One Week. They Opened the First Battle of the War—In the Campaigns of 1862 They Fought in a Division of Regulars.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

QUAKERS are not so savage as they look to be when in full battle trim, but, if the fighting records of these picturesquely clad soldiers during the civil war were not up to the popular expectation aroused by the beginning by their waslike make'up, it was no fault of the men. Battle records are largely a matter of luck. Troops fight where and when they are told, and it does not fall to the lot of every body of soldiers to be sent into the heat of the fray.

The Zouaves in a distinct class dropped out of sight in the Union army before the bloody period of the war was reached. This was because their peculiar uniform was discarded, and with this gone they became simply soldiers like the rest, although in most cases their Zouave designations were adhered to as regimental synonyms.

But although the career of the Zouaves proper was short, a buggy trousered regiment had the glory of leading the regular fighting of the war, and the same regiment had more men killed in a single battle than any other organization of the same class during the war. This was the Fifth New York volunteers, Duryee's Zouaves. At the battle of Big Bethel, Va., June 10, 1861, which was the first engagement between regularly organized volunteer troops, the Fifth opened the ball by advancing as skirmishers. Kilpatrick commanded two of the companies, and his men got in the first shots.

The Confederates called Duryee's men "red legs devils," a name suggested by the wild, lambit look of their faces by their bright red trousers, their saber bayonets and their revolvers conspicuous on the front of their belts.

The Fifth was raised in one week after President Lincoln's call for volunteers. Its first year of service was passed in the region near where it received its baptism of fire, the lower peninsula around Fortress Monroe. When the Army of the Potomac arrived in front of Richmond in May, 1862, the Zouaves were put in the division of regular troops commanded by Gen. Sykes. Gen. G. K. Warren, who was the first lieutenant colonel of the regiment, took command of the Fifth and Tenth New York and fought them as a brigade side by side with two brigades of the regular army.

The first battle in which the regular division took part was Gaines' Mill, June 27. In this fight the troops were two to one against the Union troops, and the regulars were given the task of holding the right wing. As the battle progressed the Confederates threw their weight upon this wing, where the ground was occupied by a thin line of infantry and some artillery. In front of Warren's brigade there was a wooded ravine about 400 yards distant, and after maintaining two companies of Zouaves in the woods for some hours as skirmishers, Warren withdrew them in order to give the artillery free play upon the enemy. The Confederates were advancing in force to get possession of the woods, and when the Zouave skirmishers withdrew they followed them up by a desperate charge against the main line. Warren promptly ordered the Fifth to make a counter charge, which they did, driving the enemy back to the woods. A fresh body of Confederates then charged from the woods upon the Zouaves, but the gallant fellows persisted and finally drove their assailants off. The triumph was short, however, for the Confederate leaders buried new troops upon this point in a desperate effort to destroy Sykes' line. That accomplished, they could establish batteries on high ground behind it and the victory was theirs, for they could then shell the whole field.

A second Confederate charge was made from the woods, and the Zouaves met it as before, repulsing the advance and forcing their way up to the woods again. For the second time their colors were advanced across that open field up to the very edge of the timber. The loss was appalling and was not exceeded in the division that day, except in one case, the Twelfth United States, regulars. Out of 450 men engaged, the Fifth lost 38 killed outright and 110 wounded. Of the wounded 15 died subsequently. Just before the last charge, when the ranks of the Zouaves had become thinned out so as to destroy the alignment, the regiment was paraded under a galling fire, the gaps were closed and the men mounted off anew, leaving out the fallen. The position was held by Warren until supports came up, and the enemy failed to secure the heights they were aiming for.

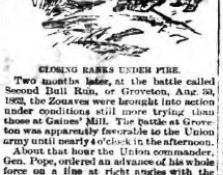
CLOSING RANKS UNDER FIRE.

Two months later, at the battle called Second Bull Run, or Groveton, Aug. 30, 1862, the Zouaves were brought into action under conditions still more trying than those at Gaines' Mill. The battle at Groveton was apparently favorable to the Union army until nearly 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

About that hour the Union commander, Gen. Pope, ordered an advance of his whole force on a line at right angles with the Warrenton pike and north of it. Stonewall Jackson's Confederate corps, after a good pounding received on the 28th, was retiring westward somewhat hastily, and it was supposed by Pope that Jackson was alone and could be routed by a sharp attack on the right flank near the pike. Fitz John Porter's corps was given this task and formed the left wing of Pope's army. Two divisions of Porter's lay north of the pike and one (Reynolds') south of it. At the time the attack commenced Reynolds' division was ordered elsewhere, leaving Porter's left flank unprotected. The extreme point of this flank was held by Haslett's battery, Fifth United States artillery. Haslett had taken position on a hill in order to throw shot in the woods and Hunter's infantry into the woods occupied by Jackson's men.

The next troops north of Haslett's battery were Sykes' regulars and Warren's dismi-brigade of volunteers, the latter forming a reserve to Sykes' division. When Warren saw Reynolds' division moving off to reinforce Porter, he, finding himself left solved to cover the space with his little force, aggregating just 1,000men. Six companies of the Fifth, the Ninth New York were detached as skirmishers, with four companies in reserve, and the Fifth regiment entire was posted as supports to Haslett's battery. In a very short time the fortunes of the day depended upon Porter's corps, and the fate of this corps rested with Haslett's battery, whose fortunes in turn were in the hands of the Zouaves, recruited since Gaines' Mill to be 400 strong. The idea that Jackson's corps was retreating was a mistake, and Porter's men were met on their charge by a force strongly intrenched behind a railroad embankment. When the charging column fell back before this obstruction the Confederates followed up, and Haslett's battery alone was in position to fire upon the enemy in aid of the retiring troops. One Confederate column in particular was beaten back by the shots of Haslett's guns.

Warren held on with his handful, determined to save the battery or lose all in the effort. In a short time a new enemy appeared, for there was another mistake made that day in the calculations at Union headquarters. Jackson's corps was not alone on the field. Longstreet was at hand with 30,000 fresh troops, and while he was advancing eastward on the south side of the pike Jackson was retiring westward on the north of it to get in line with him. Longstreet's column made a wide circuit, bringing up at last on Porter's left flank.



A WARM CORNER AT GROVETON.

so as to envelop it completely. Warren was occupied on his front with a force that attacked his skirmishers, when the new enemy made his appearance and rushed for Haslett's battery. The Tenth fell back from the skirmish line across the front of the Fifth in such a way as to prevent them from firing without hitting friends. Warren succeeded in extricating the Tenth, and just as the front was clear for the Fifth to open fire, a sharp volley was poured upon it from the left and rear. Haslett was promptly informed by Warren that his battery was in danger and at the same time the Fifth was ordered to retire. Longstreet's overwhelming column, led by the dashing Hood, R. H. Anderson and D. R. Jones, were moving, unopposed, north by eastward to the Warrenton pike.

In the uproar of battle Warren's command to the Fifth to retire reached the ears of one captain only. When he passed it to his men they rejoiced still and kept on shooting. The captain was wounded while trying to get his men to move backward as ordered. The regimental adjutant caught up the word and started to give it to the captains along the line. He was killed before the duty was half done. The regimental commander, Col. Cleveland Winslow, had his horse shot, and the only other field officer, Lieut. Col. Ellis, was killed. Half another captain was killed and two captains and four lieutenants were wounded. Both color bearers were shot down and the colors were lost entirely. Minor's Hill Haslett flumbered up and was off. He had to cross a ditch where only one carriage could move at a time. As he saved every gun and caisson but one the gallant Zouaves, who lost half their number in checking the enemy.

The loss of the Zouaves was unparalleled in any infantry regiment during the war in a single engagement. There were 3 officers and 88 men killed outright and 7 officers and 163 men wounded. Of the wounded 83 died subsequently, making a total of killed and mortally wounded of 179. In neither case, at Gaines' Mill nor at Bull Run, was the blood poured out in vain. The Zouaves held their ground at Gaines' Mill until re-enforcements came and a victory was won, and they protected from falling into the hands of the enemy. At Groveton, Porter's flank was protected and Haslett's battery was prevented from falling into Confederate hands. It was Haslett that took the very same guns saved that day by the Zouaves up the rocky ascent of Little Round Top at Gettysburg, and saved the day on July 2, when Longstreet's troops tried to repeat their success and demolish the left flank of Meade's army.

In these two battles the Fifth mustered an aggregate of 940 men. Its losses in killed and wounded amounted to 404. The percentage in killed of those engaged was 19 at Gaines' Mill and 24 at Second Bull Run. During its term of service the regiment lost 216 by death, 179 of them from battle shots, and 254 were wounded and recovered. The regiment was mustered out of service in May, 1863, at the expiration of its term of two years. Its colonel at the time, Cleveland Winslow, immediately raised the Fifth New York Veteran regiment, using the old command as a nucleus. The Fifth Veteran served to the end of the war, and lost its first commander killed at Cold Harbor and its second, Col. Frederick Winthrop, at Five Forks. The first colonel of the Zouave Fifth was Abram Duryee, who was subsequently organized Duryee's brigade. Gen. H. E. Davies, the cavalryman, and Gen. J. E. Hamblin, were captains in the regiment when it started to the front in 1861. Gen. Warren was its second colonel, and Gen. Hiram Duryee the third. The fame of Duryee's Zouaves was such that the regiment enlisted by the One Hundred and Sixth-fifth New York (Second Duryee's Zouaves) and by the Fourth regiment, National Guard.

Pleasant Experiences of a Honeymoon.

The story is told of a fellow-townsman who several years ago was divorced in the west, came east and married a woman who was also a divorcee. They traveled south, and there, as they sat in the hotel veranda, the Lewiston man bowed coldly to a lady who passed them hanging on the arm of a gentleman. Curiously enough, his wife also bowed to the couple.

Said she, "To whom did you bow?"

"To the lady," said the Lewiston man, with a flush, "to my former wife. To whom did you bow? Did you know her?"

"No," said she. "I bowed to the gentleman. I had the misfortune once to know him intimately. He was my husband."

And this was their wedding journey.—Lewiston Journal.

COMICAL BIRDS.

The Mischievous Trick Which Two Little Puffins Played Upon Poor Mr. Rabbit.

Do you know what a puffin is? Well, the puffin is a funny little black and white bird, about a foot in length, with a big, colored beak, which makes the creature look as if it had put its head into a tea cosy. On the rocky cliffs of some sea coasts you may see rows of puffins, sitting and bowing and nodding to each other in a very comical way. They sit very upright, as diving birds generally do when they are ashore, and they look like a lot of stout old gentlemen in black coats and white waistcoats chattering together. If you look at the first picture, you will see how easy it is to turn a puffin into an old gentleman.

The puffins make their nests in the crevices of the rocks, and very often they use a rabbit's burrow for a home, turning out the poor bunnies. Well, the puffins I am going to tell you about were two mischievous little creatures, who started out together one fine morning along the cliffs just to pass the time for an hour or two. They had not gone far when they spied a rabbit hole, above which there was a large board with the words, "Mr. Rabbit back in five minutes," written on it. Now these puffins, although they were young, knew enough of the world to be sure that when any one puts up a notice outside his door, "Back in five minutes," it really means that he has gone out for a long time and does not know when he will be back. So they thought they would explore the burrow, and if the rabbit chanced to come back while they were inside so much the better. It would give him a fright. So in they went.

THEY WENT IN.

But it happened that Mr. Rabbit had been out for a long scamper over the cliffs, and he came loping up just as the puffins disappeared down the hole. He suspected nothing, and after looking round to be sure that no one saw him he popped into his burrow, singing softly to himself, "Home, Sweet Home!" A second or two after and out he came with a bounce, his eyes starting out of his head with fright and all his fur standing on end. "Murder!" he screamed, "What's that!" And turning tail he rushed away as if one were shooting at him. And presently the two mischievous little puffins appeared, grinning with delight. "What a fright the old chap was in," said one to the other.

But the rabbit never got over the fright. He went mad, stuck straws in the fur of his head, and the next morning he danced over the edge of the cliff and fell down, down—past the rows of puffins, past the old cormorants sitting on a jagged point of rock, past the cloud of screaming gulls which were swirling round and round—splash into the sea he fell below. All his body went so far down that a big old lobster who lived in a cranny of the rock got hold of it and made a hearty meal of the remains of poor bunny. The puffins got off that time, but one can foresee that their tricks may some time end in trouble for them.

A Boy's Composition on Cats.

Cats don't like to swim, and never do except when they can't help it. If you want to get rid of and you do her up in a bag with some bricks and throw her into a mill pond off the bridge, and then she'll back a long and swimming ashore and kits for home, so's to be there to welcome you there, so's you won't feel lonesome.

Our cat lives in the house when times she don't live out in the barn. She is real handy to throw stones at and to pull her tail and make her squawk. I make her squawk in one or six times a day, and the backs of my hands is drawed out in lines like a map, where her toe nails has got hitched.

Cats can climb telegraph poles and set on the ridgepoles of four story houses without being dizzy headed, and they can sleep with one eye open and lay awake with both eyes shut.

The Only Dozen Girl.

Sing a song of girls—the little boy who lived all alone
In the green out of doors;
She made her a necklace of cranberries, and a
Ribbon run of the rose that grows;
And she made her a beautiful oak leaf cap, and a swing of a wild grapevine;
And merrily—a) day she swung out of shade into gold sunshine.

A Monster Gas Holder.

A monster gas holder is that to be erected for the South Metropolitan Gas company, of London. It is stated that it will have a capacity of 12,000,000 feet of gas; that it will be 300 feet in diameter, with an altitude of 180 feet when at its full height; that its total weight will be 2,220 tons, of which 1,840 tons will be of wrought iron, 60 tons of cast iron and 320 tons of steel, and that it will require 1,200 tons of coal to fill it with gas. For the reception of the gigantic gasometer a concrete tank 358 feet in diameter and 31 feet 6 inches deep has been made.

Origin of a Popular Phrase.

It has been explained that the term "blue stocking" was originally used in Venice about the year 1400 to designate literary classes by colors. Members of the various academies were distinguished by the color of their stockings, blue being the prevailing color. The application of the term to women originated with Miss Hannah Moore's admirable description of a "Blue Stocking Club" in her "Bas Bleu."

SUCH IS LIFE.

She should sing and she could play,
She could dance from night till day,
She could while the hours away,
So "the said;
She could skate and she could paint,
She could play the piano saint,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Make a bed.

She could walk eight miles a day,
And play tennis charmingly,
Flirting in a sunny way,
Little scamp!
She could drive and play base ball,
She could make a stylish call,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Clean a lamp.

She could swim and she could row,
She could always have a beau,
And I'm sure that we all know
That she was shy.
She could laugh and she could prance,
But she play a game of chance,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Make a pie.

She could etch and write a book,
She could vanish with a look,
She could win by hook or crook,
I confess;
She could excel and she could float,
She could cry and she could pout,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Darn a sock.

She could talk of church affairs,
But knew naught of household cares;
Still I'm sure that none compares
With sweet Nan;
Even if she couldn't bake
Bread and pies and angel cake,
She enraptured and she captured
A rich man!

He Waited in the Cellar.

In traveling over the battlefield of Antietam I met an aged negro who seemed to know the lay of the ground perfectly well, and after a time I inquired: "Were you here when the fight took place?"

"Right yere, sah," he replied.

"Saw it all then?"

"Well, sah, not exactly, but I saw de dead folks arter de battle."

"Why didn't you witness the movements of the troops?"

"Well, sah, I was dun embarrassed a heap dat day. I knowed General Lee was dopendin' on me not to whoop for the Yankees, an' dat General McClellan was dependin' on me not to whoop agin 'em, an' so I dun went down cellar an' sat on de head of a cider bar'el an' let 'em fight it out de best way dey could."—N. She Was Teaching Him.

A lady, on entering the kitchen early one morning, saw a plate and knife and fork, the former of which had evidently contained cold rabbit pie. The lady strongly suspected a certain policeman of having supped off it, and the following conversation took place between her and the cook:

Mistress—Mary, what's become of the cold rabbit pie that was here?

Cook—Oh, I didn't think it was wanted, mum, so I gave it to the dog.

Mistress (sarcastically)—Does the dog use a knife and fork, then?

Cook (unabashed)—Not very well yet, mum, but I'm teachin' him to.—London Tid-Bits.

—Don't forget the excursion of the Plainfield Reform Club to Black River Falls to-morrow. The train leaves the depot in this city at 9 a. m. Tickets may be procured of the committee for one dollar each. The Plainfield Cornet Band and Orchestra will accompany the excursionists.

—At about ten o'clock this morning Policeman Giese found a man who was what is called "paralized" drunk lying on East Second street. He endeavored to arouse the fellow but was unable to do so. He eventually succeeded in getting him to the station house but the culprit was too drunk to give his name.

—Ex-City Clerk C. D. Marsh of Railway is the owner of a cat (a Maltese) that is governed by a pneumatic whistling code. Three whistles is an order for him to wipe his feet on the door mat prior to entering the house rainy days, a feat which Jim always dexterously executes. Four short whistles call him to his milk.

—Frank A. Robbins' circus was on Monday seized by the sheriff of Blair county at Huntington, Pa., by virtue of executions attachments amounting to $4,000. This is the miserable affair that exhibited in this town last May. It needed the strong hand of a sheriff on it even then. A wag says "show" never pitched a tent on Plainfield soil.

—It is a mistaken idea that watermelons taken internally are not healthy. Of course you cannot eat as many watermelons at a sitting as you can cherries, nor can you eat watermelon, seeds and all, any more than you can eat cherries in the same way with impunity, but a person may become addicted to watermelon even in large quantities at short intervals, and yet the grave may overtake him before he can insult the stomach he boards with by his recklessness.—New Brunswick Home News.

Tendered a Warm Reception.

At about six o'clock last evening a colored woman who resides in Exchange alley, ejected two colored men from her residence. The latter had evidently been acting in a disorderly manner and in some way insulted the woman. She pummelled both men unmercifully and did not stop until they were outside the gate. As soon as they reached the alley they started on a run and never stopped until they reached the Elkwood, where they are said to be employed as waiters.

THERE MAY BE TROUBLE.

Elizabeth City Council and a Railroad May Lock Horns.

The city authorities of Elizabeth were going to lock horns this morning with the Central Railroad Company over the opening of First street.

The latter is the leading business street at Elizabethport. For a score of years the property owners on the line have been agitating the opening of the street direct to the Singer Sewing Machine Works. To do this it will be necessary to cross about sixteen tracks belonging to the Central company on Port avenue, and which lead to the Elizabethport coal docks, owned by the Central company. Most of the shifting of coal cars to the docks is done along the line of First street. For this reason the project of opening the thoroughfare has been opposed by the Railroad Company, which has always been able to muster votes enough in the city Council to defeat the project.

The fact that the docks gave employment to hundreds of men was urged as an argument against interfering with the coal shipping facilities of the Railroad Company by opening First street.

For several years the matter has lain dormant, but the location of other large industries near the Singer Works, together with the decadence of the coal docks since the Reading Company removed its base of shipping operations to Port Liberty, Jersey City, has caused the agitation for the opening of First street to be resumed more vigorously than ever. It was decided by the business men along First street that if something was not done to bring the tide of travel that way it would be diverted in other directions, and the street would lose its commercial importance.

The new industrial enterprise being started along the water front, east of the coal docks, will employ in the near future thousands of hands, and a direct thoroughfare to and from these establishments could only be attained by opening First street.

The Railroad Company has showed no disposition to comply with the resolution, and the cars still encumber the crossing.

Commissioner McKeron at noon yesterday notified Chief of Police Tenny to hold the force in readiness to-day to protect the forces of the Street Department, who are to begin work on the disputed crossing at 7 o'clock, prepared to clear it of all obstructions.

Should the Railroad Company offer any resistance there will be serious trouble, as the Chief of Police will sustain the other branch of the of the City Government in the effort to open the thoroughfare with all the men at his disposal if necessary.

Street Commissioner McKeron does not anticipate that the railroad people will resist the city authorities, but says he is bound to be prepared for any emergency that may arise.

If all goes well, by this evening the twenty year dream of the First street merchants will at last be realized, and from Elizabeth avenue to the Singer Manufacturing Works, the thoroughfare that is the pride of Elizabethport, will be open to pedestrians and vehicles.

Found Brook Wants a Carnival.

Bound Brook wants to hold a series of regattas and carnivals on the Raritan River. At that point the river is wide and deep, as well as picturesque. The Chronicle has taken the matter up and is endeavoring to carry the idea to a successful issue. It points out that some such river display would introduce the possibilities of the river as a means of healthful exercise and pleasure, and would prove an interesting diversion to those townfolk who cannot afford to go away from home for pleasure. It is proposed to get the means for a display by popular subscription.

Fell in a Fit.

At about five o'clock Saturday evening a young man named Haven fell in a fit at the corner of Park avenue and Front street. In falling his head struck the curb and a deep gash resulted, from which blood flowed profusely. He was carried in a near-by drug store where his wounds were dressed and he was afterward taken to his home in a carriage.

Twenty Days for Annie.

Annie Wright, a woman who claimed to hail from Newark, was acting in a disorderly manner on Park avenue and West Front street last evening and Policeman Flanagan arrested her. When she arrived in the station house she asked for the best cell the place afforded. This morning City Judge Codington sent her to the county jail for twenty days.

A Farmer Robbed.

Yesterday afternoon a farm hand employed by Mr. Christopher Gray of Scotch Plains was rather unceremoniously at the same time a suit of clothes and several pairs of pants mysteriously disappeared, together with a watch and chain and some money. Mr. Gray suspects his late employe of the theft and swore out a warrant for his arrest.

SETTLING THE TAX-RATE.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Assessors Yesterday.

The Board of Assessors for Union County met yesterday at the Court-House in Elizabeth to fix the valuation of the different wards and townships in the county, and also to settle the tax-rate for the ensuing year.

Elizabeth and Rahway, being governed at present by a special State law, were represented at the meeting by their Commissioners of Taxation. By the courtesy of the Board they were permitted to offer suggestions, but were not allowed to vote on any question that came up for settlement. The Elizabeth Freedmen, who perform the work of Assessors in the various wards under the direction of the Tax Commission, submitted their reports, but were not permitted to vote on the ground that they were not legally elected Assessors.

The meeting lasted from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Following are the final valuations as fixed by the Board: Clark Township, $285,800; Cranford, $648,000; Elizabeth, $14,760,100; Fanwood, $666,900; Linden, $1,494,500; Plainfield, $6,200,000; Rahway, $2,725,400; Springfield, $898,400; Summit, $1,199,500; Union, $1,592,300; Westfield, $1,040,000; total, $30,990,000.

The increase in the county valuation over last year is $1,288,925. The increase in the city of Elizabeth is $698,325. The increase in the remainder of the county, including the cities of Plainfield, and Rahway is $590,600.

The total number of polls in the county is 18,474. The county tax rate this year will be .84, the State school tax .32, making a total of .96.

Committees were appointed to levy the the county and State tax in Rahway and Elizabeth. The latter city's total rate was fixed as follows: County, 64; State school, 32; interest on adjustment bonds, 94; city, 1.08; total rate, 2.98.

The real estate, personal property valuations and liabilities in the three cities of the county are as follows:

Elizabeth—Real estate, $13,121,870; personal, $2,101,000; liabilities, $465,000.

Plainfield—Real estate, $5,327,845; personal, $1,079,455; liabilities, $204,300.

That Belmar Excursion.

Annexed is what the Belmarians thought of the First Baptist excursion:

BELMAR'S BIG DAY.

THE FIRST EXCURSION EVER MADE THERE OR HEREABOUTS YESTERDAY.

For the first time in the history of Belmar or Ocean Beach, a genuine excursion struck that resort yesterday. It came in shape of the First Baptist Church and completed the congregation and friends of the Baptist church in that city. It was the same excursion that Plainfield and Cranford enjoyed two years ago, but which was kept away by the rain. Yesterday was in every respect an excursion day, and the visitors made the most of it. On their arrival the majority went out for the bath, where bathing, shell hunting and other sports were indulged in. Others found enjoyment in fishing, sailing and sailing on the beautiful Shark River and bay. The boarding houses and restaurants were largely patronized, Bennett & Warren's pretty restaurant feeding fully a hundred of the hungry visitors, who lingered in the cool, shady grounds and lively pavilion, drinking in the beauties of the day. The day passed without an accident, and every one was pleased with this excursion experiment, many of whom would like to see it repeated.—Asbury Park Press.

The Peach Season Opening.

An occasional basket of peaches was to be seen in the market last week, but they were simply recognized as the forerunners of the army behind them. The early peach is a tantalizing delusion. A person buying them should see that each basket is provided with a razor and lather brush. They always need shaving before being eaten. In the course of a couple of weeks some better fruit will begin to arrive.

The grocers are hustling for baskets now. Several of the more extensive growers have provided themselves with as many as ten thousands baskets each, and some have purchased a still higher number. This shows that they expect their orchards to produce this season. The baskets may be had now—or could have been bought a week ago—at 4½ cents each. Dealers think they will soon advance in price, probably going as high as 6 cents by the first of September.

Result of the Examination.

Forty-four of the fifty-one candidates who recently presented themselves at the Supreme Court chamber for examination for licenses to practice as physicians in this State, were successful in answering a sufficient number of questions for them to pass. Three of the number are still students, never having graduated, and they will be compelled to graduate before their license is granted. Two of the successful candidates, Messrs. Bejamin VanDoren, Hedges and Edward C. Handcock, are from this city. The former is a brother of Dr. E. W. Hedges.

TONS OF GOLD IN TEETH.

A Veritable Mine of Wealth—$100,000,000 in Gold Cemeteries.

"Four full tons of the purest gold is carried around in the mouths of Philadelphia's 1,000,000 inhabitants."

It was a well-known dentist's supply man that yesterday revealed this forgotten asset of the Quaker City, and his formidable array of figures was sufficient proof that the estimate is nigh to the fact. "It is not difficult," he went on, "to see how great a flow upon each of the precious metal is yearly rammed into the aching teeth of Philadelphia. It is something short of 3,000 ounces. Now, the average length of human life, we will say, is thirty-five years. Multiply the two together, and we have an approximation to the sum total of gold that an army of dentists have placed in the molars and bicuspids of all those now living in this city. It is 8,750 pounds, or about four tons pure.

"As to the value of this unfortunately available wealth it is over $2,500,000. The gold used in the trade is worth about $25 an ounce, so that a years consumption costs $75,000. Such figures make one feel like unloading his ivories of all their treasure and substituting some less valuable metal."

"Your figures are all right," said a prominent Walnut street dentist in confirmation of the supply man's estimate. "And just think of the mine, what a gold mine some of our cemeteries are. There must be $100,000,000 worth of shining gold in all the acres of burial ground about Philadelphia.

All About Snapping Turtles.

Lamberfville Record: Captain Amos Williams, residing on Lambert street, in this city, is considered authority on the snapping turtle question in this locality, having for many years made it a business to hunt and fish for these creatures. The season opens on the 15th of June and closes in November. The canals, creeks and ponds are searched, but only one having experience in the art has any success in finding them. On an average Mr. Williams captures 75 snappers each season, and they weigh from four pounds to as high as 27 pounds —the largest that he has caught. Thus far this season he has captured several, the largest weighing 16½ pounds. He has regular customers for them, who pay from 15 to 25 cents per pound for them. The snappers grow to a great age and begin to show their age when four years old by certain ridges or marks, between the root and point of the tail. At four years old the snapper weighs about four pounds and does not increase in weight much over a pound per year. During the season the Captain generally has several on hand and takes particular interest in showing them to any one desirous of seeing the ugly and wickedly-pugnacious creatures.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

Then What Will St. Peter Say?

Cherries have been unusually abundant this summer in the neighborhood of New York city, where fruit is sometimes plentiful, but never cheap. They were great plump fellows, the cherries were, as though nature had dealt out their life giving juices with generous hand for her starving children in cities. They were so abundant that even poor day laborers might have had some every day.

But what, then, do the wholesale dealers do? There was a prospect cherries would be so plentiful that it would necessitate a drop of a cent in the pound on the wholesale rates, if they went down a cent a pound the wholesalers could not make their usual percentage on the luscious fruit. It will hardly be believed, indeed it is to be hoped yet that for the sake of God and humanity and of common decency there must be some mistake in the story that is told. But it is asserted for a fact that these wholesale dealers laid their heads together, consulted and then went out and bought several small lots with cherries. What then? Of course they distributed them among the poor of the great city, the newsboys, the wretched tenement house mothers, the women who make garments for the sweaters' shops and keep soul and body from parting company on bread and tea. Did they do this? Well, no, they did not. They, so the story goes, towed the cherries out and dumped them into the waters of New York bay. At the same time, in the groceries of New York and Brooklyn, cherries were from fifteen to twenty cents the pound, stones, stems and all.

In the day of judgment, when St. Peter examines men previous to passing them into heaven, he will face these wholesale fruit dealers with his terrible countenance. He will say: "Hundreds of children die in New York every day for want of fruit and milk and air. Cherries cool the blood. Their pleasant acid allays thirst and drives away fevers. Make cherries and other fruit cheap enough and you save precious human lives. Why, bless your mean little souls, don't you know there are thousands of forlorn children in your city who never tasted a cherry in their half starved lives, that for just one of as many cherries as they could eat would be like a touch of paradise to them? If cherries had been even a cent a pound cheaper they could have had this taste. And you dumped three boatloads into New York bay. What did you do it for?"

And the only answer these poor, mean, cringing, cherrystone souls can give to offended majesty will be, "We couldn't make nothin' on 'em!"

The Colored People's Exhibit.

On general principles it is not wise to make race distinctions in public enterprises in this country, where we are, or ought to be, one people. But the desire of the colored citizens of the country to have an exhibit of their own at the Columbian exposition under the direction of competent ladies is laudable. Some white persons are dissatisfied with the blacks, and declare they are incapable of the higher civilization. The blacks themselves are in a state of unrest, the circular issued by the colored committee of the world's fair affirms. This being the case, a number of intelligent colored citizens, among them physicians, lawyers and business men, have decided that they shall be at the fair an Afro-American exhibit which shall properly display the progress in arts, science and industry made by the negro since the close of the war. This exhibit will show just what the black man has been able to do for himself in freedom, though still hampered by the prejudice against his race.

The committee ask, therefore, the appointment by the directors of the Columbian exposition of an Afro-American bureau, with a colored man at the head of it, so that the negroes of the country shall stand on their own merits.

There is something wholesome and pleasant in the thought of how Hannibal Hamlin went back to nature and enjoyed a healthful and happy old age in rural quarters among his cows, sheep, birds and beautiful Jersey cows. These last years must have been the happiest of his life. Taken altogether, with the swift, painless death that came to him, this seems the natural and rightful close of a human life. First, years of work—busy, constant work—helping one's fellow man, doing whatever the hand finds to do; then, after forbearance and ten years of serious activity and bustle, changing it all for some sweet, restful years with nature—with the sky, the waters and the green earth.

Canadian bonds amounting to $5,000,000 have been renewed in England at 4 per cent. That is what Canada must pay for money. At the same time, we may with modest pride call attention to the fact that the United States secretary of the treasury is able to refund the war 4½ per cent. bonds at 2 per cent.

Cry of the million, Oh, if people would only mind their own business!

MORE BLAINE RUMORS.

It Is Again Said That He Has Bright's Disease.

DIFFERENT TALE FROM BAR HARBOR

The Sensational Story Is Said to Come from a Friend of Both the President and Mr. Blaine—That Alleged Conspiracy Against the Maine Man.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The New York World's Washington correspondent telegraphs that a paper that a friend of Secretary Blaine and of the president says that Mr. Blaine certainly has Bright's disease. This individual, whose name the correspondent does not divulge, is reported as follows:

Time for The Truth.

"The time has come to tell the truth about Mr. Blaine. Some of us who love the Republican party better than any individual have known it for some time. We had hoped for reasons which are apparent that it would not be necessary to speak out at least at present.

"But it is unjust to President Harrison, unjust to the Republican party and unjust to the people of the United States to conceal the facts any longer.

"Mr. Blaine's ailment is Bright's disease—in the second stage and passing to the third.

"How long his constitution will withstand the constant drain upon his system nobody can tell. But the disease is firmly established, and is incurable.

"That is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

That Alleged "Conspiracy."

The World's correspondent says his informant spoke as if from settled conviction and not without a trace of indignation. "I repeat," he continued, more vehemently, "that if Blaine is to be sacrificed to President Harrison, the Republican party and the entire people to hide the facts another day. Recent reports have given rise to the impression that there is some sort of conspiracy on the part of Republican leaders to misrepresent the condition of Mr. Blaine's health, and so, as he is reported to have said, 'get him out of the way.'

"Hints have been dropped already by rabid Blaine men that even the president is concerned in such a plot. Anything more outrageous was never conceived. It is perfectly true that Mr. Harrison has not said that Mr. Blaine had only overworked and would soon be all right. He has not said so, for the simple reason that he could not say so honestly. He knows perfectly well that Mr. Blaine's disease is incurable, and that consequently he cannot possibly be a candidate for the presidency.

Concerning Mr. Blaine's Denial.

"Now, Mr. Blaine says in an interview with a World reporter that he had not Bright's disease, and I do not doubt for a moment that he is entirely honest in his belief. He is simply travelling everything concerning his health is so well recognized that strict silence has been enjoined. But he is above all a patriot and Republican, and if he could see as I see how serious is the danger of disrupting the party by this talk of conspiracy I feel confident that he would be willing to have the truth known."

The speaker then states that a chemical and microscopic examination has proved that Secretary Blaine has Bright's disease and that the disease is now in its second and passing to the third stage.

MR. BLAINE IMPROVING DAILY.

His Physician Only Counsels Him About Exercise and Food.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 21.—When Dr. Taylor called upon his patient, Secretary Blaine, in the latter's cottage, he found him about to go out walking and the two walked down to the cottage of Emmons Blaine together.

The physician says Mr. Blaine is continually improving. All he can do is to watch his progress and counsel him about exercise and food.

The secretary spends his time here about as usual in summer. After breakfast he examines his mail, discusses with his secretary matters of business and then goes his friends who call, and about 11 o'clock drives or walks out. He returns about 1 and usually goes out a second time about 5 in the afternoon. He spends his evenings with his family. Mr. Blaine's appearance, whether riding or walking, shows great improvement in health.

TROUBLE AT DUQUESNE.

Carnegie's Men Will Not Allow Other Laborers to Work.

DUQUESNE, Pa., July 21.—The striking employes of the Allegheny Bessemer Steel company, of Carnegie & Co., may make trouble. About 400 steel workers from McKeesport, Braddock and other towns have arrived at Duquesne and will not allow the workmen to enter or leave the mill.

Sheriff McCleary is on the ground with a number of deputies, but he is unable to disperse the crowd with the force at his command. Every workman that approached the mill was assaulted and told that he would be expected to stay away from the mill.

The Homestead men declare that they will not permit the Duquesne mill to run under present circumstances.

In the afternoon the strikers paraded the streets at Duquesne with brass bands. The police officers who were carrying the dinners to the workmen in the mill were stopped, the food taken from them and destroyed.

A report is in circulation that the Carnegie employes at Braddock and Home will join in a general strike next Wednesday unless the firms will recognize the Amalgamated association and sign the wage scale.

Marcellus E. McDowell Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Marcellus E. McDowell, head of the Durham Tobacco company, died at his country place, Marion, in Germantown, this morning. Mr. McDowell was fifty-four years of age. The firm are sole agents and part owners of the Blackwell Durham Tobacco factory, which is the largest establishment of its kind in the world. Mr. McDowell was a director in the Manufacturers' bank, Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad company, Atlantic City Water company, and other corporations.

Shot While Playing Indians.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Herman Engelhardt, seventeen years old, was shot and instantly killed by Frederick Schlaugen, a boy of the same age, last night. The boys were employed in a pie bakery, and while business was slack they began playing "Indians." Schlaugen had an old rifle, and pointing it at Engelhardt first, the bullet passing through his heart. The shooting was purely accidental.

CAPTAIN THOMPSON'S SUICIDE.

The Dead Man Came of a Well Known Connecticut Family.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Captain H. Thompson, Jr., aged about forty-five years, of Hartford, was found dead in his room at the United States hotel in the afternoon. He had committed suicide some time during the night by shooting himself in the head.

HARTFORD, July 21.—Captain Thompson was the brother of Dr. William H. Thompson, a prominent physician of this city, and also of the widow of Postmaster Kenney, of Hartford. His father was the leading doctor in this country for many years, and died a year ago, nearly ninety years old.

Captain Thompson has had command of the tramp ship Philadelphia, and has been of a roving disposition. Recently he received a letter from his brother, Dr. E. H. Thompson, of this city, telling that his father and mother had died. It is thought here that this news might have affected his mind.

Captain Thompson, it is said, deserted his ship at Hamburg and took a steamer for New York, where he had just arrived. He has not been in Hartford for something over a year. Thompson went to the hotel on June 28. He registered as G. H. Thompson. He was a handsome fellow, about six feet in height.

NATALIE SUES MILAN.

The Ex-Queen of Servia Wants Her 2,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, July 21.—The trouble of ex-Queen Natalie of Servia are again called to public notice by her big suit against her divorced husband, ex-King Milan. She is suing her former lord in the courts of this city for 1,000,000 francs, which she says is a portion of her personal fortune. It will be remembered that ex-Queen Natalie was recently expelled from Servia, and is now in exile. Ex-Queen Natalie of Servia or another the unhappy queen has been compelled to air her grievances in public for some time past. She has many loyal friends in Servia. When she was driven out of the country several students who attempted to protect her were shot.

MR. QUAY'S RESIGNATION.

It Is Alleged That He Wished Certain Appointments Made.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Press says: "The announcement that Senator Quay was about to resign the chairmanship of the Republican national committee was hardly credited by his friends in Washington until Mr. Quay himself confirmed the statement as "probable," if not "certain."

The interpretation put upon this uncertain phrase is that Quay wishes President Harrison to make or promise to make certain appointments before he gives up the national chairmanship, the principal one being that of Colonel R. Gibbon, now second controller of the treasury, to the bench of the court of claims, to succeed Judge Schofield who has reached the age of retirement.

Mr. Gilkeson is known in Pennsylvania as a devoted adherent of Senator Quay. If he presses his wishes to make this appointment it is believed that Mr. Quay will be quite ready to resign the chairmanship, of which he has long been weary.

The White Squadron All Ready.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The white squadron is ready for the naval drill off Twenty-third street, North river. The show will begin tonight for New Yorkers. After two drills in the harbor the squadron will go with the naval militia to Fisher's Island, which has far better advantages "for exercising boats, maneuvring ships and firing at target with the main and secondary batteries." The North river is hardly the place to let the big guns go.

Still Preaching at Ninety.

NYACK, N. Y., July 21.—Rev. Thomas Mack, the oldest clergyman in Rockland county, celebrated his ninetieth birthday Saturday and Sunday evening preached the first sermon of his ministry to his congregation at West Hempstead, Rockland county. He is still hale and hearty, and drove to Nyack, a distance of twelve miles, yesterday to open the big Masonic fair with prayer.

Accident and Death at Asbury.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 21.—Bessie Popen, aged eighteen years, of Baltimore, was seriously injured in a runaway accident at Cranmer & Cook's cottage. Mrs. Cook, a retired New York merchant, died at his cottage at Spring Lake Beach, aged sixty-nine years. Mrs. Mary Whiteside, a prominent Philadelphia woman, died at her summer residence at Asbury Park, aged eighty-two years.

Rumor About Stanley.

LONDON, July 21.—The report that Mr. and Mrs. Stanley have quarreled and parted is denied. As late as last Friday the pair were seen together at Interlaken, and no separation is contemplated. It must, however, be stated that there are rumors of repeated quarrels between the two, the origin of which is attributed to Stanley's surliness.

Woman Suffragists to Meet.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 21.—A convention of the people of the western counties of New York will take place Friday, July 31, to consider the proposed laws enabling various classes of women to vote. Mrs. Lovelda G. Wallace, the Rev. H. Blake, Miss Lucy C. Tuttle and others will represent the woman suffrage party in the discussion.

CONCORD, N. H., July 21.—Senator Chandler makes public a letter he addressed by him to the interstate commerce commission in reply to a communication from the latter in which they advise him that they had decided to investigate his charges against the Boston and Maine railroad for issuing free passes.

The President Saves a Life.

CAPE MAY, July 21.—President Harrison commuted the death sentence of Edward Bolden, a life prisoner, to imprisonment for life. The president drove to Cape May and saw Lieutenant and Mrs. Parker off for the Virginia Springs and took a ride, accompanied by Mrs. Harrison and the grandchildren, over Beach avenue.

Baltimore and Ohio's World's Fair Plan.

BALTIMORE, July 21.—Vice President King, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, is authority for the statement that the company is now handling negotiations for securing a right of way in Chicago, which will enable them to run trains direct to the World's fair grounds.

New Developments at the Meeting of the Bardsley Investigating Committee at Philadelphia—Colonel McClure Denies the Stories Told About Him.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—The Bardsley investigating committee held an open session in the afternoon, and Samuel B. Huey, attorney for the Lucas estate, told of the efforts which had been made to reorganize the bank, and said he visited Washington with President Marsh and Director Haines and called upon Postmaster General Wanamaker.

Mr. Wanamaker asked Marsh if he had informed Huey of the over issue of stock. This was the first time he (Huey) had ever heard of it. In looking over the bank papers he found a memorandum as follows: "March 3, 1886, John Lucas, John Wanamaker, 4 per cent. on gold, 1,000 shares Keystone National bank stock. Collateral $40,000."

Mr. Wanamaker Explains.

Mr. Wanamaker afterward explained that he had borrowed $40,000 from the Girard Trust company at Mr. Lucas' solicitation. Of the Sea Girt and Spring Lake property all Mr. Huey would say was that Mr. Lucas had sold it to a party of capitalists for $60,000, and received $50,000 in cash and the balance in mortgages.

Colonel McClure's Denial.

Colonel A. K. McClure, editor of The Times, read a statement, in which he positively denied the statements reported to have been made by Bardsley in an interview with Editor McWade, of The Ledger. He said that he never went to President Harrison, the Republican party and the entire people to hide the facts another day. Recent reports have given rise to the impression that there is some sort of conspiracy on the part of Republican leaders to misrepresent the condition of Mr. Blaine's health, and so, as he is reported to have said, 'get him out of the way.'

"Hints have been dropped already by rabid Blaine men that even the president is concerned in such a plot. Anything more outrageous was never conceived. TO PREVENT THE BIG BATTLE.

St. Paul Ministers Endeavoring to Keep Fitzsimmons and Hall Apart.

ST. PAUL, July 21.—A mass meeting of citizens was held at the Newmarket hall by the ministers of the city last evening for the purpose of endeavoring to stop the Fitzsimmons-Hall fight. A committee of citizens also called on the mayor, the governor and the sheriff with the same purpose in view. The governor says he has nothing to do with it, as also does the sheriff.

The mayor says it is too late to interfere now that the Athletic club has gone to work preparing for it at an expense of some $15,000 or more, and it would be unfair and unjust to interfere at this late day. Following the action of the ministers and others it is certain that the fight will come off as announced.

Archbishop Ireland was the chief speaker of the evening, and he arraigned the prize ring and its "lawlessness and vulgar animalism" and the municipal authorities for permitting the exhibition. Ex-United States Senator McMillin and the Rev. W. L. Butterick were the other speakers, and were even more severe than was the archbishop in the morning. Last evening a memorial was presented calling on the governor to interfere and prevent the fight. With shouts of "Present it now!" the entire 5,000 people went en masse to the state capital. Governor Merriam told the committee he could not address such a great crowd, but would receive the memorial in the morning. Last evening a warrant was issued for the arrest of Fitzsimmons. It was sworn out by William P. Lendon. Fitzsimmons is still in hiding. The best of people from all parts of the country are constantly arriving to witness the fight.

Goddard Whips Choynski.

MELBOURNE, July 21.—Joe Choynski, the California pugilist, was defeated by Joe Goddard, the Australian, in a four-round contest here. Goddard had been set to fight all the way through. The fight was for $10,000 and the championship of Australia.

The McAuliffe-Gibbons Match.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Austin Gibbons, accompanied by a score of prize fighting men, went to The Police Gazette office yesterday to meet Jack McAuliffe and arrange for a match for the lightweight championship. McAuliffe did not show up until the others, after waiting an hour, had departed. Jack deposited $500 as a guarantee of his intentions, and it is likely that Gibbons will cover it today.

CASUALTIES AT PEEKSKILL.

Two Militiamen Badly Burned and One Hurt in a Fight.

STATE CAMP, PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 21.—About 8 o'clock last night Governor Hill visited the state camp. Near the middle of the salute, while Robert Reid was ramming a cartridge into the cannon, the cartridge exploded, blowing off Reid's right arm and the left side of his face. The doctors will amputate his thumb. The exact extent of his injuries cannot be told on account of his condition. His leaning may be permanently injured. The rammer was blown to splinters. Some parts of it were found 400 yards away.

George Ryan who was holding the fuse was burned about the head and arms. There was about the same time a fight in the mess hall. One man hit another on the head with a sugar bowl, splitting his head. The one making the assault was arrested and the other taken to the hospital and his wounds dressed.

The Governor of Tennessee Calls Out the State Soldiery.

THE MINERS VERSUS THE MILITIA.

Troops Overpowered by Men Who Do Not Wish to Compete with Convict Labor and Driven from the Scene. But They Have All Gone Back Again.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 21.—The crisis in the trouble between the ousted miners in this district and the convicts who were brought here from the state prison at Nashville has at last been reached. When about 400 armed strikers attacked the guards who had charge of fifty felons at Briceville last Wednesday night and liberated the prisoners it was confidently predicted that this would be but the beginning of a general movement throughout the entire mining district of the state. Governor Buchanan was immediately notified and responded by ordering two companies from Chattanooga and one from Knoxville to the scene. Of the fifty convicts taken from the guards at Briceville two escaped and the others were brought to this city. When the militia arrived they took the convicts along back with them and warned the mob that they would protect them at all hazards.

The Law Was at Fault.

Governor Buchanan at once proceeded to the scene of trouble, and in a neat speech explained his position to the rebellious miners. He told them that it was his sworn duty to uphold the law, and if the convict system was wrong he was not to blame, and that the only recourse of the men was through the courts. The miners announced that their families were starving and that they were compelled to drive out the convicts if it cost the life of every man in the valley. They made all sorts of fun of the handful of beardless soldiers, but declared that they would not harm the "spider legged, cigarette smoking dudes," as they characterized the militia, but as soon as they were withdrawn they would release every convict in the region.

A Massacre Seemed Imminent.

Becoming impatient, however, at the delay in recalling the troops they decided to try to overcome the soldiers by force of numbers. At 10 a. m. 3,000 miners, farmers and other natives who have no occupation at all took possession of the hills around the Briceville camp. Fifteen hundred of these were armed with rifles, the rest had shotguns and pistols. They came from all the mines within a radius of fifty miles. The organization was complete and their leaders placed them along the hillsides with military precision. At the call to arms the little garrison turned out gallantly and prepared for defense. It was apparent at a glance that a fight would result in a massacre. A meeting of the officers was called.

The Hostile Forces Parley.

Some declared that a stout resistance to the first attack would be sufficient and the mob would withdraw. Others thought that it would be suicidal, yet every man was in favor of doing his duty, notwithstanding the exposed position they were to defend. The miners called for parley and were met on neutral ground by Colonel Sevier. They stated that they had sufficient force to overwhelm the soldiers, but did not care to engage in battle. The convicts were quietly turned over to them.

This request was emphatically refused. The miners then asked Colonel Sevier if he would remove his troops and take the convicts with him. He asked what would be done to the mining company's property, which was under his protection. They replied that it would not be injured. He also asked if an attack would be made on the Knoxville Iron company's stockade just below Briceville. If such was intended he intended to fall back there and fight it out regardless of consequences. The leader replied that no attack would be made.

Then the Troops Evacuated.

The troops then marched out of camp, carrying with them the convicts, all their commissary supplies and baggage. They marched to Marville and there took the train to Knoxville. The promise not to attack the Knoxville company's stockade has already been violated and the 150 convicts at that place were put on a train and sent to Knoxville. The mob then started for Oliver Springs, where they also intend liberating the prisoners. The whole of Eastern Tennessee is in sympathy with the miners.

The Militia Badly Treated.

The troops from Briceville arrived here at 4 o'clock. They are all in good spirits and will return in the morning with re-enforcements. The boys were badly treated by the people of Knoxville, who seemed to be in perfect sympathy with the lawless element in Coal Creek Valley.

The State's Entire Militia Called Out.

Governor Buchanan, who has been guided by the utmost caution since the troubles began, at once decided to call out the entire militia of the state, and for that purpose he immediately telegraphed each company and instructed General J. L. Weakly to arrange railroad transportation for them. Each company was ordered to secure three days' rations. Tents and blankets were loaned from the Capitol and sent down by the special train. The train pulled out at 5 o'clock with three Nashville companies, a Springfield company and one from Franklin on board, and they will pick up along the line companies from Murfreesboro, Shelbyville, Tullahoma and Decherd. Knoxville and Chattanooga companies passed through later and four companies from Memphis and one from Jackson are also en route on another special train. There are fourteen companies in all, comprising 450 men, and 300 will be taken on at Chattanooga.

Spying on the Governor.

A number of the leaders in the mob were in the city getting all the information they could of the intentions of the governor. Some of these men returned to Coal Creek on the 8:30 train and others remained in the city. Excitement here seems to be increasing every minute and thousands are on the streets. A big effort is being made for a rousing labor meeting tonight.

Martin S. Waller Talks.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 21.—Martin S. Waller, treasurer of the Long Island Brick company, who has been the victim of sensational charges, says that he left Greenport, L. I., where the company's works are situated, on June 22 for Brooklyn. Sickness caused him to prolong his stay, and although he sent a telegram to the president he forgot to send his address. There was never any suspicion on the part of Mr. Sage that he had embezzled the company's money.

BURNS AND COLLINS COLLIDED,

And Brooklyn's Well Known Second Baseman Will Probably Die.

BROOKLYN, July 21.—A shocking accident occurred during the baseball game between the Brooklyn and New York league teams yesterday afternoon, which will probably result in the death of Collins, the well known second baseman of the Brooklyn team. He and Burns, the right fielder, started for a short fly ball hit to right field. While running at full speed the men collided and both were rendered unconscious.

Both men were frightfully cut about the face, and blood was spurting from Collins' mouth and ears. Physicians were soon in attendance, who, after an examination, announced that the men were suffering from concussion of the brain and that Collins was likely to die. The men were removed to their homes. Burns, who was the first to start at his coming opposition, recovered consciousness about an hour after the accident. When he opened his eyes he shivered like a leaf, and blood from the nose and mouth. The doctors think he will recover. Collins was still unconscious at a late hour last night. His condition is very critical.

The Reorganization of Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 21.—The movement to retain the Syracuse club in the Eastern association took definite shape last night. A meeting of business men was held at which it was decided to reorganize a stock company to carry on the baseball club. A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions to stock. President White is in town and will remain until the matter is settled. The Syracuse will play its scheduled games in the meantime.

How to Brew Tea.

The old English fashion in brewing tea is this: Heat the teapot—which must be perfectly dry—to about the temperature of boiling water, then put in the tea, the proper quantity being one teaspoonful for every cup of water and one additional spoonful. The dry tea is allowed to rest in the pot for a few minutes, after which the boiling water is added. After this the teapot is to be kept on the fire, but the decoction must not be allowed to boil again for eight to ten minutes. It is then ready for the table; but it is always well to keep a "cosy" over the teapot to keep it at a proper temperature. If, after the water is poured on the leaves, it is allowed to boil, the tannin is extracted and the beverage rendered bitter and unpleasant. An earthenware pot is always the best.

How to Remove the Smell of Onions.

Parsley eaten with vinegar will remove the unpleasant effects of eating onions.

How to Give a Theater Party.

Say it is given by three young men to three young ladies. Each young man should write to the young lady he is to escort a note of invitation in the third person. Here is a form considered good in the city of New York:

Mr. John Smith presents his compliments to Miss Clara Jones, and requests the pleasure of her company on Thursday evening, January thirtieth. Madison square theater. Carriage will call at seven o'clock.

As a rule the number of the house should be at the top, and the date at the bottom. Inclosed in the note should be the cards of the other gentlemen. Make white paper, unruled, is the only correct form. On the street each gentleman should offer the lady his right arm, and never take hers. He should precede her down the aisle of the theater, and should endeavor to quickly remove his coat in the lobby beforehand. This prevents unnecessary confusion in the seat. If the party are to be seated in the box the gentleman should be careful to arrange the chairs for the ladies. If there is a chaperone, she should be given the place of honor invariably. It should never appear to her or any one else that she is simply tolerated.

How to Stop Shoes Squeaking.

Drive a peg into the middle of the sole. Leather saturated with castor oil becomes waterproof.

How a Corpse Is Cremated.

There are several methods of cremation. Among the most practical is that of Dr. Polli, of Italy, who obtains complete incineration or calcination by the use of coal gas mixed with atmospheric air, applied to a cylindrical retort of refractive clay, so as to consume the gaseous products of combustion. This process occupies two hours. In the Siemens's regenerative furnace, which has been approved by several high authorities, only the hot blast is used, the body undergoing hydrogen and carbon; or a stream of heated hydrocarbon mixed with heated air is sent from a gasometer supplied with coal, charcoal, peat or wood, the brick or iron cased chamber being thus raised to a high degree before cremation begins.

How Long It Would Take a Train to Reach the Sun.

If a railway were built to the sun, and trains were to run without intermission upon it at the rate of sixty miles per hour, it would require 175 years to make the journey to the sun, which is 92,000,000 miles distant.

How to Make Milk Toast.

Melt two ounces of butter in one quart of milk; add a teaspoonful of flour wet with a little cold milk, and then beat it in half a cupful of the hot milk before adding it to the remainder. Beat two eggs in a portion of the hot milk, and then stir them well in the mixture. Strain the cream and return it to the stove, beating it carefully until it comes to the boiling point and thickens. Send thin slices of well browned toast to the table dipped in this cream, and lay the remaining cream over each slice as it is served.

How to Make Pistachio Ice Cream.

Blanch two ounces of pistachio nuts in exactly the same way as you would almonds. Lay them on a plate in the oven to brown a little; then put them in a mortar with a tablespoonful of sugar and pound them to a paste. Add a pint of sweet cream gradually and stir the mixture carefully. Prepare a custard with a pint of rich boiling milk and half a dozen yolks of eggs, and the yolks of four eggs. Set the bowl containing the custard in a basin of boiling water, and stir till it begins to thicken; then add a saltspoonful of salt and finally the cream and pistachio paste. When the cream is nearly cold freeze it.

How to Manage Brooms.

By wetting brooms in boiling suds once a week they will become very tough and will not cut a carpet. They will also last much longer and always sweep like a new broom.

How and Where to Use a Toothpick.

It is never comme il faut to use a toothpick at the dinner table, but it is essentially vulgar to use one and endeavor to hide your ill manners by covering the operation with a table napkin. If an accident arises that necessitates your using one at table do so openly; the necessity will excuse you; the napkin hiding trick would only attract attention. When the covers are removed and the ladies gone it is pardonable to use toothpicks. But their constant use, which some individuals indulge, is not alone unmannerly but injurious. When they must be used, wooden ones are less injurious than quills or gold.

He Did Not Want that Kind.

A young married man, who lives in the suburbs, came into a dog-fancier's store late one afternoon, and approached the proprietor with a half-bewildered and wholly nervous air.

"I ordered a watch-dog here a few days ago," he said, and his voice trembled with excitement. "Do you remember?"

"Yes," the dog-seller replied, "I sent you the best we had."

The young man looked about the store to see that they were alone, and then he leaned across the counter and continued in a hoarse whisper:

"Your man brought the dog out to our house this morning when my wife was not at home, and he tied him to the door-knob. He is the watch-dog."

A smile spread over the kindly countenance of the dog-man, and he showed his good breeding by not pressing his customer for any additional information. "I understand," he said, "and I'll send one of my trainers over to your place right away. The sort of thing happens sometimes, but not often."

The young man drew out his handkerchief, and rubbed it over his damp forehead.

"You are very kind," he said. "Tell the man to go next door after my wife and ask him to let the servant girl out of the kitchen. If my mother-in-law hasn't climbed down from the front porch yet, tell him he will find a step-ladder in the barn. I—I don't believe I want that kind of a dog."—R. B. Cramer in Fun.

Brave Fellow.

She—Oh, Charlie, here comes a bull! What shall I do?

He—I won't you. Stay here while I run for help.—Munsey's Weekly.

She Was Not at Home.

"Johnny, is your sister at home?" said the young man at the front door.

"Wait till I light the gas—or hold on—is your hair sandy?"

"Why, no," replied the abashed youth.

"Have you got a mustache that curls at the ends?"

"N—no. I don't wear a mustache at all."

"Hum. Have you got a large seal ring on the fourth finger of your left hand?"

"No, I haven't."

"Then," said Johnny confidently, "she ain't at home," and he shut the door without further to do.—Washington Post.

A Powerful Hint.

His face was red and there were large accumulations of colored under his collar and he was using language more forcible than chaste and elegant.

"What's the matter?" asked a man, disturbing his soliloquy.

"Why, why," he spluttered, "that blankety blank whipper-snapper at the committee meeting, two hours ago, moved that my resignation be accepted."

"Well, what's wrong with that? What did you send your resignation in for if you didn't want it accepted?"

"That's it! Blankety blank the blanked scoundrel! I didn't send in any resignation."—Detroit Free Press.

A Terrible Disappointment.

Mother.—Why, my dear, what's the matter? Something has happened at Mrs. De Music's party, I know. Tell me all about it, my child.

Daughter—Boo-hoo! Mrs. De Music asked me to play, and—and when I told her I was out of practice, she said she was "so sorry," and didn't ask me again, boo-hoo!—Good News.

The Candid Little Boy.

"No, my little boy, what is the meaning of the word hypocrisy?" asked a Texas Sunday-school teacher, of her favorite pupil.

"I can't explain what it is, but I know just the name."

"Give me an example of hypocrisy?"

"When a fellow says he loves his Sunday-school teacher—that's hypocrisy."—Texas Siftings.

Total Depravity.

"Bunco Bill," said the old settler, "was a very wicked man."

"Steal horses?" asked a bystander.

"Worse'n that," said the old settler.

"Cheat at cards?"

"Worse'n that."

"How could that be?" asked the bystander, and the old settler replied:

"Got caught."—Somerville Journal.

Kismet.

"Do you see that pale young man calling out 'Cash!' at the ribbon counter?"

"Yes."

"Fate's awful funny sometimes. Ten years ago when we were boys together his one ambition was to be a mighty hunter and catch mountain lions with a lasso."—N. Y. Recorder.

Brutality.

The Broken Hearted Girl.—He treated me brutally.

The Sympathetic Male Cousin (aching for a fight—savagely)—What did he do—break the engagement?

The Broken Hearted Girl—No, he never even proposed.—Munsey's Weekly.

He Didn't Stay.

"Have you noticed the beauty of the sunrises this month?" he asked, as he hitched his chair a little nearer to hers.

"No," she said, "I have always been asleep at that hour, but I will have an opportunity of doing so the next one if you are going to stay till then."—N. Y. Press.

Sound Advice.

Pompous Author (to veteran editor)—What would you advise a man to do whose ideas are in advance of the times?

Veteran editor (promptly)—I would advise him to sit quietly down and wait for the times to catch up.—Drake's Magazine.

Came High.

Van East—So you have been elected a United States Senator. That is a high office.

De West—I should think so! It cost me $100,000.—N. Y. Continent.

Not a Complete Dismissal.

"Do I understand from this," said he, "that you wish me cease calling here?"

"Not at all," said she. "Papa and mamma will always be glad to see you."—Harper's Bazar.

A HUMAN TIGER.

The Cruelties of a Turk Whose Whelm Only Was to Rage Loose.

Of the cruelty of the Turkish grandee, Defteadar Bey, who married the daughter of Mohammed Ali, numerous anecdotes are related in Egypt. He had, it is said, a tame lion usually lying at the foot of his divan which, although mild towards its master, was sufficiently ferocious to terrify his visitors. Sometimes he allowed it to worry his slaves, calling it off perhaps, just as it was about to kill the wretches.

This savage, when Governor of the delta, played himself one of the simplicity and primitiveness of his manners and his entire freedom from European habits and notions. During the time of his rule, a soldier in the upper country a soldier robbed a poor woman of a little milk. The woman, not foreseeing the result, laid her complaint before the bey, who commanded her to point out the culprit. This being done, the soldier was ordered to be laid upon the ground and his belly ripped open. The milk being found in his stomach, the bey paid the complainant, and, dismissing her, observed:

"The robber has been punished; but had he been discovered to be innocent, the same punishment would have awaited you."

It was the custom of this barbarian, who always moved surrounded by the terror of arms, to be followed by a numerous suite, a number of mamelukes (or domestic slaves), each of whom carried 1,000 sequins in his girdle that, should he be compelled to fly, which, considering the hostility of the pasha, was by no means improbable, he might still be provided with money for his immediate use. During the Syrian campaign six of these young men, dreading the effects of his ferocity, examples of which they daily beheld, made their escape and took refuge in Ibrahim's camp.

Being discovered, however, they were immediately apprehended and conveyed back to Cairo. Here they were commanded to be beaten before their honorable lord in the hall of the palace, where they found him surrounded by a number of blacks armed with drawn swords. They were not long in learning their fate. He commanded them to take every man a saber and attack each other in his presence, until the last man remained, who should fall, promising life and 1,000 sequins to the victor. The mamelukes appeared, ranged themselves three and three, and, having been trained to the use of arms and uniting skill and courage, fought desperately, shedding their blood like water, while Defteadar sat calmly on his divan enjoying the spectacle.

At length after a long and sanguinary struggle only one remained the victor over his unhappy companions. Exhausted and bleeding in every limb he raised his eyes to his master to receive the promised pardon, but at this moment the bey gave the nod to one of the black slaves who stood behind the victim, and the head of the mameluke immediately rolled along the floor.

On another occasion two of his military slaves quarreling drew their swords in his presence, at which his anger being kindled, he commanded their heads to be struck off. The mamelukes, however, mindful of the fate of their companions, resolved to sell their lives dearly, drew their pistols, and, aiming at the head of the tyrant, were about to rid the world of such a monster, when the interposition of others of his slaves enabled him to escape into the harem.

Reckless and despotic as this growing scoape to be impossible, the mamelukes, now joined by several others, who all had wrongs and injuries to avenge, pursued and besieged him in his private apartments, where, but for the speedy arrival of a party of soldiers from the citadel, he would have paid the forfeit of his innumerable barbarities and crimes. With this assistance he succeeded in repelling the assailants, who, in their turn, were shut up and besieged in one of the turrets of the palace forming the powder magazine.

Here they held out several days, fighting desperately, but at length finding that their number decreased, and being entirely destitute of provisions, they set fire to the powder and blew themselves up with the tower in which they had taken refuge.—Sheffield (Eng.) Telegraph.

A Dangerous Birthmark.

A well-known family of Minneapolis are distinguished by a similar birthmark, said to have been borne by every member of the family for the past two hundred years. However this may be, it is certain that the mark is carried by all of them now known. It is a small grain like a knife wound at the base of the neck, narrowly escaping the spinal cord.

This cut, which resembles a fresh stab with raw life blood, refuses to be healed and at times bleeds profusely and even alarmingly. It is about three inches in length and varies in depth from a quarter of an inch to an inch and a half, increasing as the bearer grows older and becoming more angry and occasioning greater loss of blood.

This peculiar birthmark has been the cause of death to nearly all of the family possessing it, as after the age of thirty-five or forty it assumes an exceedingly malignant nature, discharging pus and blood until mortification ensues. In the children it seldom amounts to more than a very deep scratch, causing slight pains, but readily inflamed by fever or other illness.

There is attached to this a peculiarly romantic story of an ancestor's cowardly blow at a brother and supposed to perpetuate its memory in this way, but physicians pronounce it to be of a cancerous nature, hereditary and remarkable in the history of medicine.

Our System of Notation.

Some system of notation has been used since time out of memory. The first records we have of it is of figures written with a stick on a flat surface covered with sand. Before that all calculations were made with pebbles, beans and the like. Even now the Chinese do their calculating with little stones or beads strung on wires in a frame. The Romans first used vertical lines—I., II., III., etc.—to express numbers. The Arabic figures, which we commonly use at the present time, are of much earlier date. The Arabic system is chiefly valuable on account of the great convenience it affords by giving a figure a value according to the place it occupies in the line. By this system the most enormous sums can be expressed by the ten little characters which form the numerical alphabet.—St. Louis Republic.

Gas for Cooking.

Gas is becoming very popular in Brussels for cooking purposes. The price has been greatly reduced since the introduction of coke by the gas companies, and the gas companies supply special stoves at an annual rental of about ten per cent. of their total value. Many different kinds of gas stoves have been invented. Monthly lectures on the use of gas as fuel are given, with weekly lessons in cooking by means of gas stoves. Cooking by gas has important advantages for hot weather.

Fashion Note.

She—How ruffled the sea is to-day.

He—Yes; it's the fashion for the shore to wear ruffles on her skirt of waves.—Judge.

She Felt Silly.

"Good evening," exclaimed the young man, as he approached the front stoop where his girl was sitting. "It is warm enough for——"

"Sir!" she interrupted in forbidding tones.

"For ice cream," he went on, in the most tranquil manner imaginable, and the girl on the front step looked silly.—Washington Post.

He Went Home Early.

He—I mustn't stay so late as I did the last time I called.

She—No. The sun rises an hour earlier now than it did then.

Whereupon he rose in his wrath and proceeded to emulate the excellent example of the sun—at once.—N. Y. Herald.

A NEW DEPARTURE AT THE 5 AND 10C. STORE.

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer this superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

A YOUNG GIRL OUTRAGED

SHE LOSES HER WAY, AND ASKS A STRANGER TO GUIDE HER.

The Stranger Leads Her Away; Searchers Find Her, Torn and Tattered by the Roadside.

Last evening about 8:30 o'clock, Mrs. Catherine Fitzgerald and a twenty-year-old unmarried sister, residing in North Plainfield, were out walking. As they passed Reform Hall Mrs. Fitzgerald asked her sister to go inside with her. The sister objected because people were coming out and she thought the Salvation Army meeting was concluding. Mrs. Fitzgerald said she wanted to go in and see and asked her sister to wait near the foot of the steps. Mrs. Fitzgerald did not think the meeting was over, since people were going in and out all the time, as a common occurrence, and went up stairs to the meeting. When she returned her sister had disappeared.

Mrs. Fitzgerald hurried home, thinking to overtake her. The sister had walked slowly around the vicinity of the Hall, so as not to stand on the street. In some way she got turned about, and found herself under the bridge at Madison avenue.

Then as she stood on the curb, looking about to get her bearings, a man accosted her with "What is the Matter?"

The girl said she had lost her way and was trying to find it. The man agreed to show her, and she consented to go with him thankfully.

He took her to East Front street, thence to Evona, in an opposite direction from her home, and when he had got her in a lonely place, he led her into a side road, and then attempted to assault her.

One account says she tore away from the fellow and ran screaming in terror toward the bushes, and scratched and bruised, and her clothing torn, finally found her way to the roadway, the fellow having been frightened away by her screams which are said to have attracted the attention of a young man named Mocrafi who was approaching from Dunellen in company with his sister, and that they took the girl safely home.

Another account is that they found the girl lying on the roadside with her clothing in great disorder, and moaning, and that she claimed that she had been overpowered by the man.

However she was found and taken home about midnight.

Meanwhile her sister, Mrs. Fitzgerald and another sister Mrs. Taintor, in great alarm had started a search for the missing girl, apprehensive of the worst.

Mrs. Taintor's husband got a horse and wagon and drove in all directions hoping to find her on the streets.

The police were also notified, and aided in the search, but, of course, missed her.

She was interviewed by the police, and they think they recognize in her assailant a well-known frequenter of one of the saloons, who will probably be arrested if the girl identifies him as she is sure she can.

She has only been in this country a few weeks, coming here from a nunery in Ireland, where she had been taken care of, being orphaned. She did not suspect anything wrong when she accepted the escort of a stranger, but she will know better next time. Meanwhile no steps should be spared to secure the arrest and punishment of her assailant.

—The roads of Union county, and Plainfield, New Jersey, are getting a wide spread and merited reputation. A western wheelman visiting near here, says that among bicyclists, Union county, N. J., roads are, as he put it, "way up in G."

—At a seaside resort, much frequented by Plainfielders, a "pillow-case and sheet" party was held recently. The newsmen can, of course, make all figures, except in height, unrecognizable. One young man, a Plainfielder, danced with another of the same sex a good portion of the evening, under the impression that he was with a charming young lady, while personal appearance had attracted a earlier in the evening.

A VICTIM OF CANCER.

FOUND DYING UNDER A TREE AMONG STRANGERS.

A Respectable-Appearing Unknown Man Supposed to be from Paterson, Unable to Give His Name and Address, Sent to the New York Cancer Hospital.

A well-dressed man, appearing about thirty years old, has been for two days lying under a tree near Greenbrook at the Grant avenue station, until yesterday afternoon, before he attracted attention.

William Briggs, who is the station agent at Grant avenue, in company with Dr. Endicott yesterday afternoon approached the man to ascertain if he was sick. The man's face was so terribly swollen and distorted that he could not answer the questions put to him except by mumbling, which could not be understood. There was a constant discharge of matter from the man's mouth, and a sickening odor as of putrefying flesh. The doctor discovered that the cause was a cancer which seemed to be in the poor fellow's chest near his neck. On searching the man's clothes in the hope of identifying him the doctor found a letter, which, though not giving the man's name, indicated that he was a respectable mechanic residing in Paterson and was given the letter to secure his admission to the Cancer Hospital, New York.

The man managed to make it understood that he had applied to the hospital, but would not be received, that he had got on the wrong railroad in trying to make his way back to his home, and was put off at Grant avenue, when exhausted with pain and suffering he had dropped for rest beneath the tree where he was found, and was unable to rise or call for assistance.

Doctor Endicott said they could not receive him in Muhlenberg Hospital, as they were not in a condition to treat such cases, and that the man must be mistaken about being refused admittance to the Cancer Hospital in New York as that was the only proper place for him. The doctor thought the man might have been told to stand aside for further examination, after other cases were disposed of, and misunderstood the directions to mean that he would not be accepted and went away disheartened.

Mr. Briggs took the first train to the main depot for assistance. He met a NEWS reporter and made known to him the facts. The reporter informed Capt. Grant, while Mr. Briggs notified Dr. Long for the city, and both these officials hurried to the scene. It was discovered that the stranger was lying beyond the city and county limits, but in Somerset county, and thereupon Dr. Carman and Overseer of the Poor Bauersachs of North Plainfield were notified.

By this time it was twilight. Mr. Bauersachs hurried to the scene, but as there was no place in Somerset county where the man could be cared for, it was decided to bear him back to Plainfield, to New York, and he was sent on the 11.38 train last night.

He was unaccompanied, and would arrive in New York after midnight. Even if accompanied it would be difficult to secure admission to the hospital at that hour, and in his weak state he could scarcely be expected to go far during the night.

Dr. Long is reported to have said that the man would not last ten days, the cancer was in such an advanced stage, and would quickly finish him.

He would soon have died from exposure had he laid much longer under the tree.

Respecting Legal Publications.

The Elizabeth Journal says: The editors of the State, or at least the majority of them belonging to the State Publishers' Union, have taken up the subject of publishing the State laws under the present system. There is much reason for their action. The way in which Abbett and his assistants gave out the laws this year was highly disgraceful. Like everything else that Abbett does, it was a selfish, unwarranted, domineering piece of business. Everything pertaining to information of the people were not taken into consideration at all. The papers that Abbett didn't like didn't get the laws. Those that suggred him over got the laws, and the Sheriffs' printing, and the County Collectors' printing, and a lot of other things beside. The papers ought to have the right to publish. Such regulations ought to be made as to influence, circulation, good standing, etc., as would leave such men as Abbett no chance to discriminate selfishly and politically. If the publishers unite they can force this matter to a just issue.

The aim of the State Publishers' Union is not to stir up political feeling respecting the above matter, by charging one party more than another with abusing the privilege to publish. But such regulations ought to be made as to influence, circulation, good standing, etc., as would leave such men as Abbett no chance to discriminate selfishly and politically. If the publishers unite they can force this matter to a just issue.

—Three large stage loads of Plainfield, ers visited Washington this yesterday. They returned at about eight o'clock last evening. All report having had an enjoyable time.

—Almost everyone has an "infallible" way for foretelling the weather. One sure way, easily seen by suburban residents, is given by a wide awake old farmer. Spiders are wise insects, and can give lessons in more ways than one. They also know enough to keep in out of the rain. Did you never notice on a gray morning, such as usually precedes a warm, fair day, the silken meshes of spider webs spread like bleaching linen on the grass? Those are the fair weather signals of the spider. Our friend, the farmer, is authority for the statement, that you will never see the day stormy, no matter how it may look, when those early risers "hang out their flags."

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Various Matters Political. — Some Revelations about Farm Mortgages.

[Special to THE NEWS.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21, 1891.

Hon. O. S. Gifford, lately a Representative in Congress from South Dakota, was at the national yesterday. "There is no political excitement or discussion in Dakota just now," he said. "The people are engaged solely in business concerns, and are happy over raising splendid crops. I suppose the alliance people will support a third party ticket in '92, but that organization in Dakota only follows the lead of the Southern Alliance people. They originate nothing themselves, and take their cue from their brethren in the South.

A Farmers' Alliance judge in Kansas, Judge McKay, of Topeka, is carrying things with a high hand. In all important cases he is said to consult a committee of the Alliance before rendering a decision. He refuses to hear suits for the foreclosure of mortgages on the ground that such suits are oppressive to farmers, and, in one instance, he went so far as to imprison an officer for obeying an order of the chief justice. Clearly the judge is on the high road to impeachment, and his journey on it should be short.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has prepared a statement showing the number of sugar producers for 1891. Sorghum and sugar cane who have made application to him for receive license, and giving interesting statistics concerning their business. The total number is 4,672, and the estimated amount of sugar they will produce is 320,750,000 pounds.

The number of producers is as follows: From cane, 730; from beets, 7; from sorghum, 3; from maple sap, 3,932.

The amount they will produce is: Cane sugar, 5,000,000 beet sugar, 22,210,000; sorghum sugar, 2,500,000; on which $11,134,200 bounty will be paid.

The number of sugar producers in the United States, whose estimated production for the year ending June 30, 1892, is more than one million pounds, is 206, of which Louisiana has 126; California, 13; Texas 4, Nebraska 2, Kansas 2, Utah 1, and and Florida, 1.

The duty on sugar collected for the the fiscal year ending June 30, was $63,985,873. From April 1 to May 31, 1,901,606 pounds of sugar were imported free of duty under the new law.

The Topeka Capital has a controversy with Senator Peffer on the subject of Kansas farm mortgages and on the financial condition of Kansas farmers. The Senator says the Capital gives a mendacious account of these things in public speeches, also in his paper, the Kansas Farmer. The Capital replies by making an examination of the old mortgages recorded and for one county recorded during the past three months in thirty-eight counties of the State. The result of the examination is that $784,352 of farm mortgage indebtedness has been paid off in the thirty-eight counties in that time, against $478,844 of such indebtedness incurred a net payment of $305,708, or 40 per cent.

An examination of mortgages on city and town property in the same counties showed a difference of only $1,000 between new debts contracted and old ones paid, from which it would appear that the country mouse is doing better than the city mouse in Kansas. These figures are worth more than tons of speeches by Peffer or Simpson or Mrs. Lease, or anybody. Unless the Capital's figures can be shown to be wrong, there is nothing more to be said on the subject. The case is closed.

Despite the fact that the assembly of the Fifty-second Congress is something better than two months in the future, gossip regarding the organization of the House is an unfailing topic of conversation. It should not be imagined either that all the speculation and concern revolve about the speakership. That, of course, comes first, but it does not begin to monopolize the interest felt both inside and outside congressional circles as to the result of the rivalry for all the high places.

The clerk of the House has several score of places to fill, some of them paying $1,000 a year and upward. Through this patronage a sagacious clerk is able to solidify himself with the leading men of his party and thereby retain his office for many years, or until the opposition comes in and a new deal is called for.

The doorkeeper, so-called, he doesn't really keep the door, as the new member from wayback imagines till he comes on to take his seat is a bigger man even than the clerk, for he has considerably more patronage to dispense, more offices to give at the suggestion of the members instrumental in his election.

For the offices of sergeant-at-arms and postmaster competition is not so keen. Adams and Mr. Schermerhorn, were employed last year in a party of civil engineers in the U. S. Government survey, and became chums.

Mr. Charles B. Brown has received an invitation from the Young Men's Christian Association of Rahway, to address the young men of that city on next Sabbath afternoon, July 26th. It will be a union meeting, and Mr. Brown, after Mr. Brown's address, the Plainfield delegation to the recent Student's Conference at Northfield will give short talks on their trip. It is expected that nearly the entire Plainfield delegation will accompany Mr. Brown to Rahway.

With the arrival of hot weather many beards and moustaches disappear from their accustomed places. The latest piece. The lack of the familiar hirsute adornment often leads to amusing mistakes. A short time ago, a well-known Plainfield appearing man called at the NEWS office and after an interesting section, informally given, he was found to be an old acquaintance, and father of several charming youngsters—Mr. Charles Lynch. He would pass for a happy looking "big boy."

STATE NOTES.

A SHARK STORY.

Mrs. Cyrenius Stack of Lambertville had an unpleasant experience on Monday evening, which she will not be apt to forget in a long while. She and her children were taking a stroll in the country and sat down in the grass along the roadside. The children began to play and Mrs. Stack was watching them when suddenly the youngest screamed and said: "Oh, mamma, look in your lap!" She turned around quickly and there, curled up and head erect, was a black snake about five feet in length. In terror she jumped to her feet, when the snake fell to the ground and quickly crawled away.

A GIRL DISFIGURED FOR LIFE.

Miss Lizzie Sanisbury, adopted daughter of Charles Eichlin, of Lebanon, while picking black cherries yesterday, fell from a tree, landing on a ledge of sharp rocks. Her upper lip was completely cut off close to her nose and parallel with her mouth. Miss Saulsbury received other injuries about the head, the marks of which she will carry through life.

LIKELY TO DIE FROM A SPIDER'S BITE.

Mrs. Byron Pilger is at the point of death, suffering from the effects of black spider's bite. The insect bit her on the lower lip while she was asleep. Her head has swollen to twice its natural size, and there is now great danger that lockjaw may set in, in which case she cannot possibly live. Her suffering is very great.

AN HISTORIC TREE STILL STANDING.

The buttonwood tree to which Master Marlow, of the ship Kent, lashed the cabin when the first settlers landed at Burlington in 1676 is still standing on the river bank in front of the Grubb homestead.

A policeman stood at Lilligore's pavilion in Ocean Grove yesterday morning and refused to allow any one who had nothing over his bathing suit to approach the water. Not only women in perfectly proper bathing suits, but little boys and girls, were sent back to their homes for coats and wraps. The majority of the bathers, knowing that they had neither time, money nor patience to fight the association, went back at once for their clothes, preferring to submit to the rules. During the day men pasted signs on the pavilion, forbidding "bathing in a nude state or in improper or indecent bathing apparel" under penalty of $5. The order causes much indignation and a delegation to give the Grove a wide berth in days to come.

Salesmen Going to make Themselves Heard.

A circular will be issued in a few days calling for a State Convention of the Retail Clerks and Salesmen's Association, with a view of forming a State league and securing legislation. A move will be made to prevent the repeal of the law closing banks at noon on Saturday. The convention will probably be held in September. If the league be successfully formed an effort is to be made to get it into the Federation of Trade and Labor Unions. Some of those who are discussing the organization, favor forming a district assembly of the Knights of Labor. There are Clerks and Salesmen's Associations in Newark, Paterson, Passaic City, Elizabeth, Orange, Jersey City, Burlington and Atlantic City. A strong one is just about forming in Trenton. Summer and Winter early-closing is one of the reforms they will seek to accomplish.

Consequently no steps will be taken until then to open the street.

ALL READ THE EVENING NEWS.

Those who have read the proclamation of the president announcing that citizens of Belgium, France, Switzerland and Great Britain may secure copyrights for their books in America will have noticed that the name of Germany is omitted. This is because Germany has not agreed to allow United States citizens to take out copyrights in that country. The copyright law passed by congress provides for reciprocity in the book business. The nations named in the proclamation have already taken steps to permit Americans to copyright under their laws.

Once more attention is called to the rare chance offered in South America for clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers who understand the Spanish language. Both sexes are included in the chance too. Stenographers are especially wanted, there being few Spaniards who understand stenography and no typewriter girls at all among the pretty Spanish-American maidens. The stenographer who understands Spanish is also in great demand in New York and other eastern cities, on account of the rapidly increasing trade with Mexico and the South American countries.

The Largest Steam Hammer.

The United States now has the distinction of possessing the heaviest and most powerful steam hammer in the world. It is in the ordnance department of the iron works at Bethlehem, Pa., and will be used for forging the steel plates that are to constitute the armor of the ships of the new American navy.

In the iron working plant of Schneider & Co., at La Creusot, France, is a hammer which, with its piston rod, ram and the moving framework that holds it, weighs 100 tons. But the American hammer at Bethlehem weighs 125 tons. It was designed in America, too, by the superintendent of the Bethlehem works, John Fritz, and it has been two years in process of construction.

Few there are who have not, like the children in Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith," "looked in at the open door" of a forge and watched the smith hammer a piece of red hot iron till he had wrought the shape he wanted. Just so the 125-ton weight, driven not by man's arm, but by great steam engines, will hammer at huge ingots of red hot steel till they take the shape of armor plating for Uncle Sam's new warships. Every American must contemplate with satisfaction the fact that we can make these huge plates, equal to the best in the foreign navies, here upon our own soil.

We Need Cuba.

Ringing with manifest destiny throughout is the paper furnished by General Thomas Jordan to The Forum on this subject. The writer reminds us that since the foundation of our government there never has been an acquisition of territory to the United States that was not fraught with immediate commercial advantage. Among the last public utterances of that farsighted statesman to whom we owe the acquisition of Louisiana, Thomas Jefferson, was this, "The addition of the island of Cuba to our confederacy is exactly what is wanted to round our power as a nation to the point of its utmost interest."

The United States already consumes much the largest part of all that Cuba produces for exportation, notably sugar. Moreover, excepting only Great Britain and France, this island, with a smaller area than the state of New York, furnishes more of our foreign imports than any other country. That, too, although scarcely 15 per cent. of the generous soil of Cuba has as yet been brought under cultivation. The grinding colonial policy of Spain has been to squeeze this rich island for revenue till there is little encouragement for the development of her magnificent resources. But once this glorious island was our own, with all the money it produces flowing to us instead of going to Europe, and with ten times as much added to it, the United States would be in very truth the richest nation of modern times.

BLAINE WORKING HARD.

Regaining His Health and Tired of Making Denials.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S SILENCE

Beneath the Dignity of the Chief Executive to Notice the Rumors That His Friends Inspired the Stories About the Health of the Secretary of State.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Press' Bar Harbor correspondent says: "With a healthy smile on his face, two ruddy sweet pea blossoms on his cutaway coat and two ruddy dots on his cheek, Mr. Blaine walked and rode and worked during the day, rising half an hour earlier than is his wont in order to get through his correspondence in time to have an outing. To an intimate friend he said that when he got up in the morning the stories about his ill health used to annoy him. He was afraid they would reach the eyes of his wife and frighten her. She had a similar fear for his feelings, and so they both used to get the papers and run out the scary articles before passing them to the other. One day Mrs. Blaine caught him weeding out the Blaine killing articles from a New York evening paper which she greatly admires for its independence in Spanish journalism and from that time on the scissors of both husband and wife were allowed to rust in idleness.

No Use in Denying.

"Since then," said Mr. Blaine, "I have let matters take their course and devoted myself to weeding my lawn foot and tossing up my nervous system. It is no use for me to deny these statements. If I could lie upon a table and have a board of medical examiners, with a coroner, expose my viscera and hold an autemortem autopsy on my body, the verdict rendered would not be excelled by those who are determined to have me in articulo mortis. So I am resting and laying on flesh, getting ready for the work of next fall and winter."

Blaine Not After the Nomination.

This friend of Mr. Blaine's is a warm advocate of Harrison's renomination and an officeholder under the present administration. He says that in three weeks of constant intercourse with Mr. Blaine he has never heard the secretary of state expressa wish for the nomination, while time and time again he has spoken hopefully of Harrison's re-election, as if he already considered his renomination a settled fact.

The President's Silence.

The same paper's Washington representative telegraphs: The renewal of the story that Secretary Blaine is suffering from Bright's disease was generally dismissed in Washington as the resurrection of a very dead political issue. The publication is not wholly displeasing at this time to the friends of either the president or his premier, inasmuch as the vehicle of the story is said to be Wellington Mitchell, the empty tales to the effect that the administration or friends of the administration are in any way responsible for the origin of stories about Secretary Blaine's health. It could only be expected that the dignity of the president prevents his answering any of these lies.

That Omaha Dispatch.

Some effort has been made to represent as significant a recent dispatch in an Omaha paper to the effect that Blaine is seriously ill, on the authority of that the dispatch was sent respondent of the Indianapolis and on the further assumption that the president's secretary, Mr. Halford, must respond to every telegram that goes from Washington to the Republican daily of their own city. The regular correspondent of the Indianapolis Journal did not send the dispatch referred to, so that the attempt to connect the Presidential cottage at Cape May, through Secretary Halford or any one else, has not even that slight excuse.

PEFFER FOR PRESIDENT.

He Is Figuring for the People's Party Nomination.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 22.—The rumor that Senator Peffer was figuring for the nomination for president by the People's party in 1892 was confirmed today by Alliance Advocate, the People's party organ in Kansas, raises his name, and in an editorial states that as Kansas took the initiatory step in the movement she was entitled to the honor.

Until it was known that Senator Peffer desired the nomination the preference among Alliance men seemed to be for President Polk, of North Carolina. Senator Peffer's friends say that the man who has big enough to fill Ingalls's shoes is big enough for a presidential candidate.

Jerry Simpson and Senator Sherman.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 22.—Hon. Jerry Simpson made a speech here, in which he referred to John Sherman as the father of our financial system and the arch enemy of the human race, and said that the Alliance had determined to defeat him in Ohio.

Jumped from the Bridge.

NEW YORK, July 22.—At 12.45 a man jumped from Washington bridge, One Hundred and Eighty-first street and Harlem river. He left the following letter: "Dear Lottie: It breaks my heart to grieve you so, but I can't stand my trouble any longer. I have tried for work for a long time with no success, and now bid farewell to you all. Love to all. Ed."

FITZSIMMONS WAS ARRESTED.

But the Fight Will Probably Come on Adjourned.

ST. PAUL, July 21.—In deference to the popular manifestation of opinion the authorities have made a move in the direction of the prevention of legal measures to prohibit the Hall-Fitzsimmons mill, and nothing now stands in the way of the affair coming off in accordance with the programme as arranged. Moved thereto by the protests of one of the largest and most demonstrative mass meetings ever held in the state, and the strong utterances of Archbishop Ireland, Governor Merriam fulminated one of the most remarkable proclamations that has ever been issued from a state capitol.

He called upon all officers whose duty by law might relate to the prevention of the commission of offenses to faithfully execute the law relating to the same, "according to the tenure thereof," and in default to be liable to be dealt with according to the provisions of the statutes. This ambiguous pronunciamento created much hilarity. Attorneys had no hesitancy in saying that the text of the document meant less than nothing, while the sheriff and chief of police gave it out that they were not subject to the control of the governor of the state. Sheriff Dean, after talking counsel with Judge Flandreau, gave it out that "he would perform his duties." He then arrested Fitzsimmons on a warrant setting forth that Fitzsimmons and his trainers were about to violate the law.

Hall, who was at a hotel near the courthouse, was unmolested. Justice Covey held Fitzsimmons in a bond of $500 and his associates in bonds of $200 each, to appear and answer on Friday morning. The bonds were quickly given and the accused men left the outer rooms.

The fight will without doubt come off tonight as advertised.

Knocked Out by the Black Pearl.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 22.—The finish fight last night between Ed Ellingsworth, of New York, the ex-amateur middleweight champion of America, and Harris Martin, better known as the "Black Pearl," of Chicago, resulted in a big victory at the Twin City Athletic club. The Pearl made a chopping block of his opponent and knocked him out in the fifth round. One spectator fainted. The Pearl was unharmed.

ARCHITECT BRIEAN ARRESTED.

He Is Charged with the Embezzlement of $25,000.

BUFFALO, July 22.—Detectives have arrested Josiah W. Brieau, the missing Philadelphia architect, whose operations in Philadelphia created a big sensation in New York and Philadelphia.

Brieau is accused of embezzling $25,000 from John W. Post, of New York, the general manager of the Steel Tubular Car company, of Bradford, Pa. Mr. Post engaged Brieau to go to Bradford and superintend the construction of buildings for the Steel Tubular Car company, which are among the biggest in Pennsylvania. During February, March and April Brieau was furnished with $75 checks on the company's stock to sell, and he disposed of them for $60 a share, obtaining $25,000. Post demanded the sum of money on several occasions, but Brieau neglected to give it up. They met in the Girard house at Philadelphia one day, and Post got $10,000 out of him. He wanted another. Brieau took it to cash it, and that is the last ever seen of the sota. Brieau then fled.

A dispatch from Bradford, Pa., says that Mr. Post will be arrested in New York upon the same charges as that made against Brieau. The shortage will be placed at $180,000. The stock of the steel company has been disposed of and the directors are anxious to know who has the money. Brieau says Post has $8 and the latter says it is the former who is in possession.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 22.—William H. Pope, defaulting bank cashier of Louisville, was arrested in this city. He will be held for a requisition by the Kentucky authorities.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY.

Thieves Get Away with $4,000 of the Easton National Bank's Money.

EASTON, Pa., July 22.—The Easton National bank was robbed yesterday of $4,000. Three men were engaged in the robbery. First a nicely dressed man entered and asked for the discount window engaged a clerk in conversation.

A few minutes after he entered a man stepped to the teller's window, and did likewise with Chief Bookkeeper Frank Sieter, who was serving in the absence at dinner of Jacob Holl, the teller. Then a third man entered. Mr. Sieter now him come in while he was talking to stranger No. 2. Stranger No. 3 went to a desk at the left and began to write. Mr. Sieter does not remember seeing him after that time.

The theory is that this man entered the cashier's room from the lobby, entered the directors' room and crept under a table, and getting into the vault, grabbed the first package he could, making his exit from the bank safely. The whole affair took place in less than five minutes. People were passing in front of the bank constantly who could see into the vault.

ARBITRATION IS ASKED.

The Tennessee Miners Are Anxious for Peace.

THEY ARE OPPOSED TO BLOODSHED.

All the Militia in the State Is Ready to Move to Coal Creek to End the Disorder. The Miners Are Cool Headed and Determined.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 22.—Thrilling scenes were enacted in this city during the day, and the excitement caused by the return of troops and convicts from Coal Creek is unabated. The presence of the largest body of soldiers seen here since the war, and the fact that they may momentarily be called upon to go to battle with four times their number of determined men, such as adept in the use of firearms, caused the streets to be crowded since daybreak. Every military company in Tennessee is in this city awaiting orders from the governor to go to the seat of trouble at Briceville. There are 1,200 men encamped in all, and they contain nearly 800 men. Careful estimates place the number of miners at Coal Creek and Briceville at 1,500, but the first signs of hostilities would doubtless call out nearly a thousand more.

The Miners Are Desperate.

General surprise is manifested here that the governor did not accompany the troops from Nashville. The feeling is that while his presence might not avert a conflict, his absence prevents further conference with the miners, so that the presence of troops will mean the surrender of the miners or a conflict. An ominous feature of the situation is the quietude and lack of boasting on the part of the miners. There is a quiet determination and a coolness that indicates a dangerous desperation. The purpose of the troops is, of course, to return the convicts and protect them in their work of the mines and to arrest the leaders of the movement forcing the troops and convicts to leave. This, the miners say, shall not be done. Sheriff Rutherford, of Anderson county, who called on the governor for troops in the first instance, is reported to have fled the country.

Under Martial Law.

Coal Creek valley is under martial law from the scene of the trouble, and miners are spread out all along the entire distance. That section will probably be placed under martial law by General Carnes as soon as he reaches there. This is regarded as the most effective way of preventing the miners from controlling for an attack. It is believed that General Carnes will take the released convicts now under guard in this city back with him.

The Committee at Knoxville.

The Anderson county miners came to town last night to confer with the governor and effect a settlement before the troops started into Anderson county. The governor and Adjutant General Bate and General Carnes, but that gentleman declined to be interviewed. The troops will doubtless be put in motion at once.

The Miners Issue a Manifesto.

COAL CREEK, Tenn., July 21.—The press bureau of the miners has authorized this statement:

We do not intend to have any fight with the troops. We do not believe the troops are coming here. In fact, when the militia and contracts left Contractor Goodwin and Colonel Sevier and other officers promised us that the convicts and companies would not return. On the strength of that assurance, we placed guards to protect the property of the mining companies.

Now, if those same militia companies do come here, we will not be responsible for the consequences. If new soldiers come they will not be molested, but we will tell you one thing, if the same militia companies are coming, we think there may be men who will reduce the stockade to ashes. Goodwin assured us that the convicts would not return. If they do, and we have to set them free again, we may put no guards to restrain them from getting their liberty, nor will the safety of the coal companies' property be assured. We may be powerless to protect them. We feel that we have right on our side, and while it is not intended to shed any blood, you may say emphatically that convicts will not be taken back.

To Arbitrate the Question.

The miners held a big mass meeting last evening. There were speeches by a number of leaders and all cried for a conservative tone, and of advising against any sort of act or violation of the law. A resolution was unanimously passed to appoint a committee of five to go to Knoxville and Nashville if necessary to confer with Governor Buchanan and arbitrate the present difficulties. Each man pledged himself on his honor that not one dollar's worth of property would be destroyed and the companies' property should be guarded. It was further determined that no one should offer violence to any one, except in self defense. There is a sense of relief and quiet since the meeting. The miners seem to feel that they are now taking the proper course.

The Men Are Well Armed.

There was some talk of attacking troops coming to arrest the leaders. They are at determined to defend at all cost, no state shall work here, and say they will release all who come just as soon as the troops leave.

A telegram was received from the Kentucky side at Jellico offering a large number of men in case help was needed. The reply was for the men to hold themselves subject to call. Two companies left for Coal Creek. Nearly every man present had a double barreled shotgun in his hand, and there were a few Winchesters and many revolvers.

The count, who is twenty-four years of age, has been in America about a year.

IN HONOR OF JACKSON.

A Statue of the Famous Confederate General Unveiled.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 22.—About 30,000 people assembled in this city to-day to assist in the unveiling of a statue to General "Stonewall" Jackson. The day was the anniversary of Bull Run. General Wade

THE JACKSON STATUE.

Hampton was present and delivered. As a preliminary to the unveiling of the statue, a gentle pull to the cord and the veil which had hidden the bronze figure of "Stonewall" Jackson from the sight of the assembled throng was given. As the canvas fell to the ground the cold statue of Marion Mercer, who composed the Rock Bridge battery, fired a salute of seventeen guns with his artillery used in that battle, while cheers from 30,000 throats rent the air.

"The statue, which is by Valentine, is in bronze and stands on a granite base. Gen. Jackson is clad in a full suit of Confederate, the gold lace showing distinctly on his coat sleeves. His feet are encased in a pair of heavy cavalry boots. He is facing mildway above the knee. His sword hangs by his side in the scabbard. In his right hand he carries his field glasses. His head is bare, his long hair is thrown back from his broad forehead, his mouth is firmly set and his eagle eye looks out to the south. The pedestal on which the statue stands was built of six slabs of granite. The first is 7½x7½ ft.; the second is 7x8½ ft.; the third is 6x6 ft.; the fourth is 4x8½ ft.; the fifth is 4x2 ft. 6 in.; the sixth is 3x3 ft., on which the statue rests. The granite base is 9 feet high, the bronze placque 1 foot, and the bronze statue is 9 feet high, making a total height of 19 feet.

A WOMAN'S AWFUL DEED.

She Says She Killed Her Husband and Four Children.

AUSTIN, Pa., July 22.—A startling story comes from one of the mining camps at Kettle creek, this county, the truth of which interested parties have started out to investigate. In April, 1889, the people of all the region were horrified by the news that Frank Hancock, a lumberman, living at Blue Run, near the Tioga and Potter county line, had murdered four of his children and his wife, and then committed hanging himself in his house. The news was made known by Hancock's wife, who had been absent from home on the night of the tragedy.

A few days ago a messenger from the Kettle creek camp went to Condersport, the county seat of this county, and told a startling story that Mrs Hancock had died in camp, and that before dying she had made a confession which not only acquitted her husband of the murder of the children and himself, but which declares that she herself and two of her paramours murdered her husband and the children.

THE NAVAL MILITIAMEN.

Cutting Out a Cruiser at New York.

INTERESTING DRILL ON THE RIVER.

The Sight Was an Unusually Pretty One and Many of the Novices Did as Well as the Veteran Jack Tars of the White Squadron.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The first battalion of naval reserve artillery of the state of New York had its first taste of actual naval work last evening. The men had been ordered to report aboard the old frigate Minnesota for what is called the "cutting out" drill, and promptly at 5 o'clock all hands made their appearance. "Cutting out" is man-of-war for capturing a vessel at anchor or in a convoy by means of a boat expedition. The theory is that the boats, manned as fully as they possibly can be, shall drop down on their victim under cover of darkness, boarding the vessel attacked, hold her men under hatches, take them prisoners and fire the ship.

If successful in getting alongside without being discovered, the crews board the ship and carry out the plan. If discovered before getting alongside, they open fire with their machine guns and rifles and attempt to board and board.

Attacked by Two Hundred.

Last night's drill consisted of arming and equipping the boats and then maneuvering them by signals from the flagship, the Chicago. There were about 200 of the members of the naval reserve on hand at 5 o'clock.

At 5:30 o'clock the four batteries of the battalion were mustered on the pier, clad in their picturesque sailor togs, consisting of white canvas jumpers and trousers, white canvas hat, black silk neckerchief, lanyard and knife. The only way to tell a naval reserve man from a peaceful jay bird was by the letters N. R. A. S. N. Y. The batteries were formed in two ranks on the pier, and the gun captains mustered their crews. Then the batteries wheeled into columns of fours and marched to the landing float.

Off for the Siege.

Here a number of navy yard cutters and the Minnesota's steam launch were in readiness. The men were put aboard the cutters, the remaining officers went aboard the launch. The launch took the cutters in tow and steamed out into the river to distribute the men according to their assignments. The first battery was put aboard the Chicago, the second aboard the Navarch, the third aboard the Boston, the fourth aboard the Atlanta, and the officers were divided between the Concord and Yorktown.

Ready for Business.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the signal for the drill was given from the flagship. Immediately there was lively scurrying aboard all the ships of the squadron. The naval reserve men had been detailed to fill certain parts of each ship's boats, replacing parts of the regular crews, but the blue jackets of the squadron, who were all in white, had to arm and equip the boats. The flaring gig, the whaleboat with which each boat was to be armed was quickly taken from its tripod on the ship's rail or deck, and the tripod itself was unshipped. A rope sling was put around the gun and its tripod and both were soon in the boat. In the meantime other members of the crew were bringing to the gangway stands of rifles, boxes of ammunition, signaling utensils, lanterns, compasses and the other articles with which a boat must be equipped. In very quick time each boat was manned. Every boat carried a detail of marines and bluejackets armed as riflemen. The larger boats had extra riflemen sitting on the thwarts between the oarsmen. The bowmen in such boats as had Gatlings or Hotchkiss guns acted as the crews of those guns.

It was noticed that the boats were gradually drifting astern. In a few moments they had cleared the Chicago and were heading obliquely for the New York side. Every column kept its distance from the other in splendid style. No prettier sight has been seen in the harbor for years than this maneuver, so well was it executed. Steadily the columns took up the same relative position on the port side as they had occupied on the starboard. This movement brought all the boats in sight of the patient watchers on the New York piers and docks. Their cheers could be heard on the flagship.

The Drill in the Water.

As quickly as possible each ship's steam launch took in tow her pulling boats, one behind the other, and assisted by the oars, they began to fight the swift North river tide by the time they reached the flagship. When the line of boats from the various ships reached the Chicago they took up their positions on her starboard bow. It was a beautiful sight for those who were near at hand.

Each boat had its colors flying as it danced on the waves filled with white clad seamen, and when signals were given from the flagship and answered from the boats, the red, white, and red answering pennants added to the color of the scene.

The signals were hoisted at the Chicago's maintopsail yard and were interpreted by officers in the boats provided with signal books.

Every Blade Obeyed.

Three flags flew to the maintopsail yard of the Chicago. It was signal No. 350 and it gave the command "Column right" to the boat squadron. Up went a little red and white pennant in every boat. All answered. "We understand." Three more flags sought the yard arm. "Toss oars" was the order, and every blade obeyed at the same second.

The Admiral Saluted.

More sig[illegible]"ags went up to get the boat squa[illegible]eady in line. The crews were told t[illegible]outside right." They did it with their [illegible], and they saluted the admiral, who [illegible] passed his bridge.

"Toss oars" was ordered. A forest of blades sprang up like magic. This was capitally done. Then suddenly the flags said "No. 35." It meant "Cast off tow line, commencing with each rear boat." Down went the oars, the boats fell off and the "boys" went to rowing against the tide.

"Three twenty-six" signaled the flags in short order. That was "Boats return to your ships."

"At will!" asked a voice.

"At will" came back from the Chicago. The boats moved away, and the whaleback of the Chicago's boatswain piped. "All hands to boats' falls." The drill was over.

It was a noticeable fact that some of the boats which were manned chiefly by naval reserve men made quite as good a show as those manned altogether by blue jackets.

Nearly Mobbed the Umpire.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 22.—Substitute Umpire Joseph Kennedy was nearly mobbed at the New Haven-Syracuse game. He was badly rattled throughout, and his decisions were the worst ever seen in Syracuse. In the fourth inning Secretary called Friel out at the plate when Theisen had touched him with his left hand while he held the ball in his right. In the tenth inning Long came to first base on a fly and left the bag before the ball was caught, but Ramsey allowed the run.

MOTHER AND HERO.

The breeze, in pity, takes the flag
That marks a soldier's resting place,
And lays it on his mother's grave,
Commends in sacrifice and love.

God knoweth best which offered more,
The heart that dared, the heart that broke,
But like affection hallows records
Where'er the immortal deeds are spoke!

HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

A Flaming Fire Lily Among the Pale Blossoms of New England.

The coming to the front of new writers of short stories, like Mary E. Wilkins and Octave Thanet," has somewhat overshadowed the fame of the older writers. But Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Harriet Prescott Spofford have borne a goodly share in the evolution of the short story and its establishment as a literary fact. Surely the new aspirants will do well if they equal the pathos and power of "Jack" and "The Madonna of the Tubs," or the fascination of "The Amber Gods." My youth feasted on the tales of Harriet Prescott's stories. I reveled in her sonorous, burning diction, whose lavish color and life sometimes overleaped the "the stiff mother tongue molten and fused in a magic crucible, and turned to liquid gold and gems." One cannot help wondering whence came such tropical luxuriance of imagination in a child born among the lumber forests of Maine, nurtured amid the prim provincialism of old Newburyport and schooled within the austere limitations of Pinkerton academy, in New Hampshire. But one sometimes finds a flaming fire lily of carnet among the pale blossoms of New England's hillsides.

Her mother is said to have been intellectual and high bred, but rather proud and reserved; her father brilliant, tender, and prodigally hospitable, and, withal, descended from what Dr. Holmes calls "the Brahmin race of New England." Mr. Whittier, many years ago, described Harriet Prescott to me as "delicate and shy as a wildwood anemone." This was a great shock to preconceived notions of the brilliant writer.

Like "H. H." in her childhood, she induced a playmate to start off with her to find the "jumping off place" of the world, which her imagination vividly pictured. Great was her indignation to be brought back ignominiously by a boy's sister who found them footsore, but persevering, two miles from home. She was the delight of her girlish friends by her ability to write dramas for school exhibitions, many of them resting on a historical basis. These dramas have survived their generation, and also served the purpose of the schools of today.

Her first literary success was winning the prize for an essay on "Hamlet," offered to the pupils of the Newburyport free school. This attracted the attention of Thomas Wentworth Higginson, whom soon lasting discernment of her ability and encouraged and developed her genius.

A childish friendship between Harriet Prescott and Hon. Richard S. Spofford ripened into betrothal, and, after many years culminated in marriage. Their only child, dying in infancy, left a grief in the mother's heart that time has not effaced. Until Mr. Spofford's death they spent a portion of every winter at the Parker House, and were beloved by a circle of Boston friends. Mrs. Spofford still exercises her unique and exquisitely beautiful home at Deer Island, picturesquely situated between Newburyport and Amesbury. Great pine trees on one side and the river rushing past on the other make the scene complete, and yet a few steps bring them to the bridge, whence the street cars lead to the two towns. Her sister, Mary N. Prescott, who also has the gift of story telling, adorned the home. Mrs. Spofford's short stories are frequently seen in various periodicals, and her last book was a juvenile story, "The Lion Tamer," in which little friend pronounces "perfectly lovely."

Names often have a peculiar fitness to the persons bearing them, as if the good fairy at the cradle forsaw the future personality. Again, a name is strangely ill adapted to its recipient. Did you ever know a gawky woman named Grace, and a dark mannished girl with fate had un kindly christened Lily? Mrs. Spofford tells a personal incident in this same line.

One of her colored servants in Washington asked permission to name her baby after her mistress, but when the little darky was brought for inspection its name proved to be Genevieve. "Oh," said Mrs. Spofford, "I thought she was to be called Harriet after me." "Oh course, Mis' Pot-fit," said the mother, "but you see Genevieve 'presents a easier pattern to Harriet does."—Boston Cor. Worcester Spy.

People Who Have No Washing.

A practical but untraveled woman driving along Newport's famous Ocean avenue one Monday in summer wondered aloud to her companion if there were no "washing day among the Four Hundred," as she saw no clothes "a-drying." She could have repeated her drive every day the week through and still beheld no signs of laundry work. All did not go to Newport, but in all suburban homes of any pretension. Like the queen of Spain, whose pompous major domus was met, on one occasion of her passing through Lisle, by a deputation of the citizens with an offering of beautiful hosiery, the product of the place, and who declined the gift with the mere rebuke, "Know that the queen of Spain has no legs!" so fashionable summer households presumably have no soiled linen.

In point of fact the washing is seldom done on the premises at all. In large estates, where the extensive grounds afford some sheltered site, a temporary shed or hedge or fence, the clothes are dried in such spots; in as many more the gardener's wife is the laundress of the family, and her detached premises are rendered by a hedge or fence, the clothes are dried in such spots; in as many more the gardener's wife is the laundress of the family, and her detached premises are rendered by a hedge or fence, the clothes are dried in such spots. An exception to all these modes is found in Saratoga's beautiful residence avenue, North Broadway. Here the passerby will behold some of the most costly and beautifully kept places an oblong enclosure on the back or side back lawn, through whose high, close lattice work palings he may catch the flutter of drying clothes. And when he does so he wonders, particularly if "he" is a woman, why that family does not increase its expenses by a few dollars a month and send its washing out to be rid of the unsightly though neat and well built structure.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

The Butcher's Book.

A butcher's pass book is a delusion and a snare. When the bill is left at the house of a customer it is sure to be at the stall of the dealer, and vice versa. It is absurd to suppose that it is to be of any protection to the customer. The butcher can get the best end of the stick every time; but the best way to manage him is to demand a daily bill, bearing date, weight and price and examine it every morning. Never postpone the examination of a butcher's bill until the end of the month. Never receive your provisions without a daily bill.—Exchange.

POTATOES IN FOOD.

THE NEWLY DISCOVERED POISON FOUND IN SOME FOODS.

Some Recent Poisonings—The Lyndon Case in Kentucky—Some Medical Views—The Use of Canned Goods on Buffet Cars—What Ptomaines Are.

Three recent cases of poisoning by ptomaines or, as the doctors say, the cadaveric alkaloids, have attracted public attention to the fact that a new, subtle and most dangerous foe to human health and life has begun to play a part in the drama of existence. Not so much a new perhaps, however, as newly recognized.

The three cases referred to are the poisoning at the Herr-Soule marriage at Lyndon, Ky., which is undoubtedly destined to rank among the famous cases of history; the poisoning of a father and two children at Highlands, Col., and the infection of several families by canned lobster in Canada. Of these easily the most important, and at the least thoroughly understood has been the affair in Kentucky, as a result of which the bridegroom and four other members of the party have died and the remainder of the party are in two distinct theories are entertained by experts.

"Ptomaines," said an eminent New York physician, "are alkaloids generated during decay and closely resemble the vegetable alkaloids, but owe their origin to the putrefaction of animal matter. While some ptomaines are very poisonous others are admirable antidotes to known poisons. They are usually produced in substances which, after brief exposure, have been shut away from the air, as in all kinds of canned goods, or more properly tinned foods; in sausages, the skins of which keep the air out, in cheeses and in buried corpses. There is no subject in toxicology or the science of poisons and poisoning which is of more than no moment to professional men. It has been scarcely ten years since the attention of toxicologists was attracted to ptomaines. Yet a few years before that, who discovered and named ptomaines, threw a curious light upon the obscurest pages of the history of poisoning; those which relate to the mysterious and fascinating exploits of the Italian poisoners of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries.

"It is now believed, indeed, that the ptomaine figured potently in their noxious preparations, because in Italy, according to tradition, the secret and deadly aqua tofana or Perugia was a secret compound, prepared by rubbing white arsenic into the flesh of a pig and collecting the liquid which dropped from the flesh. It is now thought possible that the activity of the arsenic was increased both by the formation of new compounds which would be easily absorbed and by the production of arsenical bases. With the same object in view the poisoners of that day may have prepared the celebrated aqua Toffana by the addition of the juice of the ivy-leaved flax. This alleged existence of arsenical ptomaines is confirmed by arsenical wall papers; that is, if Selmi is correct in his assertions that the contact of arsenious acid and albuminous substances produces a volatile arsenic by which has a highly poisonous action, differing very decidedly from the arsenic acid itself.

The remark made a day or two since by no less eminent a New York medical authority than Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, in regard to the recent Kentucky cases, is highly significant in view of the following remarks, which Dr. Edgar M. Crookshank, the Professor of Bacteriology in King's College, London, used in the one and re-delivered at the latter school on that subject. Dr. Crookshank says:

"The researches of Pasteur into the role played by micro-organisms in the fermentation and putrefaction, and in diseases such as anthrax, the silkworm malady, pyæmia, septicæmia and chicken cholera, have invested the science of bacteriology with universal interest and vast importance.

The remark by Dr. Hamilton referred to and that "Dr. Scott, of Louisville, who made the post-mortem analysis in the famous poisoning case out there, said to me when I was in that city a week or two ago, that he had come to the conclusion that the poisoning was due to chicken cholera, and that the sufferers had eaten freely of some boiled preparation of chicken which had been cooked and then allowed to stand too long." Indeed, from this and other similar cases, in regard to the Lyndon case, there is little doubt in the minds of this and other experts here that it was a case of ptomaine poison. Inasmuch as the physicians of Louisville is to the effect that some physicians thought the deaths due to arsenic and others to vegetable alkaloids that form in the mushrooms of which the wedding guests ate. Dr. Kastenbine is quoted as declaring positively that there was no poison in the chicken salad, but that the symptoms consistent with the ptomaine theory, which seems to point to the formation of these alkaloids in some decomposition of chicken served on that occasion.

All doubts, however, on this subject were set at rest by the analysis of the stomach and viscera of some of the victims, by Drs. Cottell, Goodman and Howard, of the Medical College of the University of Louisville. The ptomaine of chicken cholera was clearly discovered, and investigation showed that a turkey had been badly affected by chicken cholera had been boiled and served at the wedding dinner. The servant who dressed it discovered that a portion of its flesh was black, but simply cut off this diseased meat and served the remainder.

The increase of the tariff on tin-plate was widely declared at the time, and has since been proved to be the effect of increasing the cost to manufacturers of all sorts of canned goods, of which millions of dozens are put up annually in this country, and so increasing to consumers the cost of each individual can of this widely used form of food. But it is not asserted that the output of canned goods in the United States has as yet very materially decreased in consequence; the change of status has been in regard to price. Now, according to the views of a good many eminent physicians and toxicologists in this country, it would be an excellent thing for the country at large, that is, for the consumers, if the use of canned goods were diminished in a much greater degree.

"Everything that we know about ptomaines," said a medical authority, "increases the aversion which I share with not a few other medical men for all sorts of canned goods. The use of canned food upon many of the buffet cars in this country is now carried to an outrageous extreme. I have no doubt that in the future, when the public is more thoroughly aroused to the dangers of ptomaine poisoning that the use of tinned meats and vegetables, but especially tinned meats, in dining cars, and buffet cars, especially the latter, will be absolutely prohibited by State laws."—N. TABLE ETIQUETTE.

Eat your soup from the side of your spoon, either from or outside.

Do not rattle your knife and fork. A knife and spoon will be found more musical.

Do not take game in your fingers. This, however, does not apply to a game at cards.

Never help yourself to articles of food with your knife or fork. Use a harpoon or lasso.

Do not fill your mouth too full; rather allow some of the food to get into your mustache.

Do not rest your arms on the table cloth. Stack your arms in a corner of the room before beginning dinner.

Bread should be broken, not cut; but if you don't like bread, "cut it." In breaking bread use a curb bit.

When asked what part of the fowl you prefer, answer promptly. If you want the whole of it don't hesitate to say so.

Split a biscuit with your fingers, instead of opening it with a knife like an oyster. If the biscuits be hard, a beetle and wedge are admissible in the best society.

Salt should never be put on the table-cloth, but on the side of your plate. If, however, you want to pickle the table-cloth in brine, you must put salt on it, of course.

Do not drink with the spoon in your cup; put it in your pocket. Forgetting it, you will be so much ahead. A close regard to this rule has enabled Ben Butler to accumulate a competency.

Never leave the table until you are through, without sufficient excuse. The sudden entrance of a policeman with a warrant for your arrest is generally sufficient excuse in police circles.

When you have finished your meal lay your knife and fork on your plate, side by side, with the handles toward the right, a little south by southwest, heading northerly when the wind is off the sideboard quarter.—National Weekly.

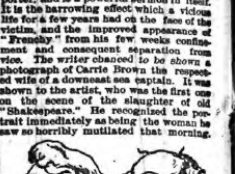
"SHAKESPEARE." AND "FRENCHY."

Portraits That Illustrate a Moral as Well as Adorn This Tale.

The "Jack-the-Ripper" murder case in New York has been the subject of volumes of sensational newspaper reading, but there has been one notable feature of the affair which has entirely escaped the reporter, and is a powerful sermon in itself. It is the harrowing effect which a vicious life for a few years had on the face of the victim. The writer chanced to be shown a photograph of Carrie Brown as the respected wife of a downeast sea captain. It was shown to the artist, who was the first one on the scene of the slaughter of old "Shakespeare." He recognized the portrait immediately as being the woman he saw so horribly mutilated that morning.



MRS. CARRIE BROWN. "SHAKESPEARE."

The picture was in the hands of a friend of the murdered woman who would not permit its publication. The picture made, however, a mental photograph of it, and here it is side by side with his sketch of the same woman when murdered. He has taken the liberty of removing the blood stains, arranging her hair and opening her eyes so that the picture could be identified by those who saw her at her best, and knew her as "Shakespeare."

Now as to "Frenchy" or Ameer Ben Ali the exact contrary has taken place. When the artist made the first sketch it was after Inspector Byrnes had him confined for a few days. He was clean but haggard, and there was a wild look on his face, like a caged beast. But when he stepped into court the other day, what an improvement had been wrought in his features. Of course there were the same protruding high cheek bones and the retreating forehead but an expression of refinement has taken the place of the wicked one he wore when first placed in confinement. As he realized fully the terrible charge hanging over him the agony he must have suffered since his arrest should have aged him in-

A NEW DEPARTURE AT THE 5 AND 10C. STORE.

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply de lers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer this superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

AN ITALIAN ASSAULTED.

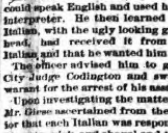
A Deep Gash Cut in His Head by a Fellow-Workman.

An Italian, who was unable to speak the English language, approached Policeman Giese this morning, and exhibited this head which was badly cut. He mumbled something in his native tongue, but the officer could not understand what he meant.

Mr. Giese called another Italian who could speak English and used him as an interpreter. He then learned that the Italian, with the ugly looking gash in his head, had received it from another Italian, and that he wanted him arrested.

The officer advised him to go before City Judge Codington and swear out a warant for the arrest of his assailant.

Upon investigating the matter further Mr. Giese ascertained from the contractor that each Italian was responsible for his own pick and shovel and the fellow who had been assaulted, was in the act of stealing them, when caught by the owner, who was so angry that he hit the fellow with some blunt instrument.



—The Plainfield Reform Club will hold its regular mid-week meeting this evening at eight o'clock.

—A lady never swears. But step on the hem of her dress, catch the expression of her eye and you will conclude she don't have to."

—The Crescents will contest a game of baseball with the West Ends of Somerville next Saturday afternoon, weather permitting, on the Crescent grounds here.

—A panic was caused at the New Market Baptist church on Sunday by the collapse of a scaffold platform on which a large choir was standing. Twenty-five of the singers were pinned down by the timbers. Henry Gilbert and Fred Huff had their ribs crushed, Miss Genevieve Ross fractured a leg and Estelle Blackford had her scalp torn open and may lose the sight of an eye. The others suffered minor injures. The platform was a high one, extended from gallery to gallery and across the pulpit at the front of the church. The pastor escaped harm by leaping from the pulpit when the crash came.

—A young man, of inventive mind and aspiring genius, living in this vicinity, probably to study the "law of gravitation" or to observe the effect of a "downward draw on a string fixed at an acute angle," fastened a string to the inside handle of the back door, which opened outward, passed it through the keyhole, up outside the door, through the transom and securely fastened it there to a handle. The handle was keeping "steady company" with the pail of water which was full of water. The boy's father opened the door just as the boy finished his "scheme" and while he was looking at it. The scheme, it might be remarked was a "howling success."

Pumping Water at Netherwood.

The Water Company started their pumps yesterday and soon filled the standpipe to the top with clear cold water. After the pipe was full they continued to pump for a few minutes and the water fell in torrents from the top of the tower, and was carried a considerable distance by the wind, presenting a beautiful sight to those who were present. A quantity of water was also pumped, through one of the mains and discharged into Cedar brook this side of Netherwood. More than a million gallons were pumped without stopping, and it was found impossible to lower the wells more than eight inches no matter how rapidly the water was drawn.

The final adjustment and fitting of the machinery will begin to-day with a view to the early starting of the works in practical operation.

A Clothing Store Robbed.

Some sneak-thief effected an entrance into the merchant clothing establishment of Mr. Charles Collins on North avenue at an early hour this morning and decamped with some clothing, several pieces of cloth, a watch and other valuables. When Mr. Collins opened his store he found everything scattered around the place. The thief left no clue to his identity.

He will be given a hearing this evening at eight o'clock.

Arrested for Swindling.

A man who said his name was Dixon was arrested by Special Marshal Job Codington at about twelve o'clock yesterday on the charge of swindling George Becker out of some money. Dixon is still in the lockup, and has not as yet been given a hearing.

THAT SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

Reported Approved by the State Board of Health.

The announcement is made that Common Council will hold a special meeting next Monday evening, and that the combine will grant the franchise to Mr. Low, to construct a system of sewers for Plainfield. The franchise is one in which the combine is in our opinion serving only the interests of Mr. Low and not the interests of the city, and with a zeal that we consider extremely suspicious. The city is already paying dearly for the past doings of this combine, but the experience it has had will be as nothing compared to the experience it will have hereafter. We point to the city of New Brunswick as an illustration of what mischief bad men in power—politicians politicians—can do to the people, and it is from a personal knowledge of how another city was all but ruined by just such a gang as now have Plainfield by the throat, as the result of treachery—that we so earnestly oppose, and believe the people will oppose, every scheme the combine is interested in. A few months longer and we will have men in power who will see that Plainfield is not cheated by contracts which even experts engineer debars are all one-sided, as we have published from the Engineering Record. We have had the system described to us, by one familiar with such things and having no interest in misleading, and, we do not believe that the people are to secure what they suppose. That is, according to our information, the pipes are not for surface and roof drainage but simply and solely for the removal of house sewerage, which our informant says is to be carried away in little six inch pipes! At the miller below the city the sewage is to be chemically dried and prepared as a fertilizer.

In our informant's opinion the city will often have the odors wafted over the city of spread fevers and other diseases. But that is a matter on which there may be an honest difference of opinion. The combine claim to have the sanction of the State Board of Health to the plan, as the best for a city like Plainfield. So if that is true we must accept it. But our citizens will probably fight the matter in the courts on other grounds. At least we hope so, with the result of having the contract finally broken, unless we can get men to represent the city in Common Council in whose integrity the people will have confidence, and who will see that the city is not swindled. We have beaten the combine so far in every one of their previous schemes, but at a terrific cost to the taxpayers, as they will still have to pay the next tax bill comes around. But the cost will amount to little compared to the mischief that would have been caused had the combine succeeded.

The cesspools at Paris has sewers but does not allow them to be used for house sewerage, such as excrement. For this earth closets are used, the earth being the best disentectant known. This system would undoubtedly be the best for Plainfield to adopt, as we are expert of twenty-five years' experience, from whom our information is obtained.

Certainly the people should oppose by every means in their power any system of sewerage that does not completely fill the bill. In the system proposed, as we understand it, there are ordinarily two sets of pipes, one for carrying off the house sewerage, and the other water from the roofs of houses and surface of the streets. The small house sewerage pipes will be placed about twelve feet below the surface, while the other pipes will be only two or three feet below the surface, but we understand that there is no intention to use the surface pipes at all, on the ground of expense, and that it is assumed that the people don't know the difference. If this is true, the matter ought to be brought again to the attention of the State Board of Health, which no doubt supposed that the whole system is to be used, if they have approved of it as alleged.

If it is the intention to build some cheap one-horse system of half sewerage and then sell it to the city at a big price for a first-class complete system, people ought to be posted and be prepared to prevent such a scheme being consummated or even begun. It can only be accomplished through the connivance of combines, in the thing for what they can make and without any regard for the taxpayers, except to fleece them. We cannot charge these things in the present state of the case, but give the readers pointers to keep their eyes open and be ready to pounce on those who may be guilty of wrong doing upon the first particle of tangible evidence, although the fellows who would be in the scheme may be sly enough to cover up their tracks. In view of the past record of the combine we think it quite natural for the people to have no confidence in them.

Gas For Westfield.

Several capitalists connected with a New York gas company have been in Westfield to look over the field with the idea of establishing gas works here to supply Westfield, Garwood and possibly Fanwood. Several attempts have been made to put an electric-light plant here, but the town is still lighted by oil lamps. The town is now spending about $1,000 for street lighting, and the Town Committee think it possible to grant a charter to any reliable company that will introduce immediately gas or electricity as an illuminating power.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

Henry Southard Charged With Stealing Clothing.

Henry Southard, a well-known character around this city, was arrested by Policeman Giese this morning on the complaint of a farmer, who claims that Southard stole a coat and vest belonging to him. Mr. Giese caught Southard in Prudden's alley, but he denied all knowledge of the theft. On his way to the station house Southard got a half-pint of rum out of his pockes and attempted to take a drink. The policeman caught him in the act and knocked the bottle out of his hands. After Mr. Giese locked Southard up in the station house he called upon Marshal Rutledge and informed him of the theft. The latter found the missing articles in the store of a peddler named Sharkart on Race street where Southard, it is said, pawned them. He will probably be given a hearing this evening.

Policeman Giese later arrested the Jewish peddler who purchased the clothing from Southard.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Samuel Pyatt, of Samptown, Severely Injured Tuesday.

Tuesday afternoon Samuel Pyatt, a farmer living at Samptown, was kicked by a horse and severely injured. He was engaged driving a team, which were hitched to a road-shovel at the time While turning the horses around, one of them got the hind leg over the trace, and it was while trying to get the animal in the harness again that Pyatt was kicked.

The wound is a dangerous one, as it is right in the hip joint, and Mr. Pyatt will be confined to the house for some time.

Will They Be Arrested?

Sporting circles in Bound Brook were much stirred yesterday morning by the report that Supt. Smith, of the American Engine Company, in which Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, is interested, has gathered the names of fifty persons who were present at the prize fight Saturday night, both as spectators and interested parties. It was said that he would procure warrants for their arrest on the charge of trespassing on and injuring the property of the Engine Company. The fight took place in a barn, on property which the company recently purchased. On their arrival the crowd found the barn locked. They at once proceeded to effect not only one, but several entrances.

Shot the Mayor's Dog.

A valuable pug dog, the property of Mayor Rankin of Elizabeth, fell a victim yesterday to the dog ordinance which His Honor is so vigorously enforcing. The dog got out of the house when its owner started to make his usual visit to Police Headquarters. A big policeman armed with a double-barrelled shotgun, put in an appearance. The officer blazed away at a group of dogs and the Mayor's pet fell. It is said the Mayor felt very angry when he heard the news, and for days at the past has not enjoyed any promotion if the Mayor has any say in the matter.

A Kitten With Seven Feet.

William Michaelfelder, of South Broad street, Elizabeth, is the proud possessor of a black kitten that has seven feet. The kitten is only six weeks old and is one of a litter of five. The other fellows are all perfectly formed. The cat has two paws on each fore leg and two on one hind leg. It is much the strongest of the litter, and never pawes rest evenly on the ground when the animal walks. Several attempts have been made to steal the kitten, and the owner has refused a good price for it.

THE REFORM CLUB EXCURSION

How the Plainfielders Enjoyed Themselves Yesterday.

As reported in THE NEWS of yesterday the Plainfield Reform Club went on its eighth annual excursion. It required nine cars to convey the excursionists to their destination, Black River Falls Park. In order to reach the place it was necessary to go by the Central Railroad to White House Station and then via the Rockaway Valley Railroad to the Falls. There are several heavy grades on the latter road and at White House Station it was necessary to divide the train into two sections. The Central Railroad locomotive took the first section and a Rockaway Valley engine, with a whistle similar to that of a tug boat, the second section.

Potterswille was the jumping off place, and the excursionists, headed by the Plainfield Cornet Band, then marched to the Park, three-quarters of a mile distant.

When they arrived there, some of them went fishing, others boating, and others enjoyed themselves on the dancing pavillion. In that way the excursionists enjoyed themselves until it was time to return home.

City Judge Codington went on the excursion, as did also Chief Carey and Freeholder Vanderbeek. The former spent the biggest part of the day fishing and succeeded in landing a large eel which he presented to a friend.

At five o'clock the excursionists left the Park on the return trip. At a place named "Station" they were delayed for about a half an hour awaiting an engine to convey the second section to White House Station. The grade was again so heavy that it required two engines to haul the second section to the above-mentioned place and then another locomotive went back after the second section which consisted of three cars.

At Somerville the train was again delayed by a "hot" box on one of the cars, after the train had been pushed into the excursion proceeded on its way to the city of Elizabeth, arriving here at about 7.15 o'clock.

Everybody apparently enjoyed themselves. The scenery was very picturesque. There are two natural water falls, an observatory, mineral springs, etc., and no doubt in a short time the Park will be a popular resort for excursionists.

During the afternoon Mr. Edward Dawe, one of the members of the band chose a nine and played a game of base ball with a nine from Pottersville. The latter team won the game by a score of nine to two.

While the train was delayed at Sutton several of the excursionists, including City Judge Codington and Chief Carey indulged in a game of ball. Mr. Carey acted as pitcher, and as one of the bystanders remarked, pitched the ball "out of sight," as no one appeared to be able to hit it.

During the afternoon several persons who indulged in a boat ride were treated to a ducking, the boat having capsized.

A party of Plainfielders went out for a drive. They procured a "buckboard." While driving across the mountains the wagon parted in the center and the occupants were thrown out. Miss Hilda Ross, one of the party, was badly bruised.

The ball nines we speak of above were made up as follows:

Plainfield—Ed. Dawe, George Zieg, Sheppard, Reed, Shattel, Sharp, Sullivan, Shannon and Townley.

Pottersville—Thurston, Latourette, Vauderbeek, McCrea, Anthony, Rhinebart, W. Latourette and Lockwood.

Limewater.

It has come to be a usual thing if "anything sils baby" to be advised by the physician to make a free use of limewater, which, he says, must be put with the milk. Now, lime is a strong alkali, and it should be used with care and caution, and its effect on the baby closely watched.

It is in itself such a harmless looking and tasteless medicine that many mothers think it scarcely necessary even to measure the quantity used, and great detriment is done the baby because of such carelessness. If used freely it causes constipation, and in consequence many ill effects follow its use. Taken in small doses, carefully measured, lime water is of great benefit to infants.—Detroit Free Press.

—The query has been made "Where does the slang phrase 'He isn't in it' come from?" Authorities differ, but it is generally conceded that is was invented and at one time worn threadbare by use by the inventor, a certain Mr. Noah, who used it in referring to those persons who criticised the building of the ark.

—An explosion of pentup sewer gas took place yesterday on Jersey street as a car of the Elizabeth street railway was passing over a manhole. The report was terrific, and the big iron cover of the manhole was shattered to pieces against the bottom of the car. The shock lifted the car from the rails and pitched all the passengers from their seats. A minute after the first explosion a second one occurred, and a manhole just ahead, the cover being sent up about twenty feet. This so scared a horse attached to the car that it ran, and Frank Hawkes, the driver, was dragged from the car. He escaped unhurt however.

Died.

PEARSON—On July 21st, at Mount Horeb, Oliver R. Pearson, in his 73d year.

It will be seen by comparing these figures with those of last year that the total increase in county valuation is $1,238,905, of which more than half is in the city of Elizabeth, $698,835. Plainfield shows a good increase, but Rahway appears at a standstill, as are New Providence and Springfield.

Summit comes up rather better this year than usual, probably the result of the tax valuation agitating. Last year the assessor returned $1,107,700. This was considered so low that the board added $50,000 to the figures, making them $1,150,700. This year Summit caps these figures by $42,000, and returns a total valuation of $1,190,800.

The figures, however, are creditable as they stand by comparison with the returns from the county at large in former years, do not, in the minds of some, come up in proportion to the increase in the values in the city of Elizabeth. It is admitted by a large number that the valuations in the lower wards ought to be larger, but the rest of the county is hardly, as yet, proportionately up to the city of Elizabeth.

Not the Private Soldiers, But the Politicians.

The Paterson Press asks, very pointedly, what agonies the Democratic papers would suffer if all that is done at the Girl encampment were to be done under Republican rule. The operations of the Democratic "dude" brigade have been removed to the military camp, even to the extent of having the State corps of parsons sit there. The second point well set forth is as follows:

"It must be born in mind that it is not the private—not even the line officers—of the State Militia who are "in it" for the lunketing business, but the "brass collar fellow," the politicians in gold lace and feathers who surround the governor's office, who have the royal good times with champagne lunches galore and all sorts of costly lay outs. It is only expected that quite a number of these attaches of the State's military department have, through the crushing progress of Democratic ideas in this Democratic State so managed affairs that they now spend a good part of the Summer at the governor's headquarters at Sea Girt, and, under cover of the "military department of Capital" under Democratic control of the camp grounds and military establishment, and that under Gov. Abbett the breaking point would appear to have about been reached. We do not know whether any exposure of the "dude" brigade or Encampment will be made or attempted, but if it should be attempted, would do any good. The Democratic masses of this State are incurably like to be plundered and played with by their unscrupulous leaders, and especially anything that Leon Abbett does, "goes." But it ought to be suggested all the same, engaged as the Democratic party is in democratic business, that it does not fit with the traditions and teachings of democracy that a few bayonets and cannon be dredged with bayonets and run to the sound of cannon. We are sure that if Leon Abbett were not governor, or if he not a Democratic organ in New Jersey he would be foot hot in the matter of indignation at the "military satraphy" implied, and the bad look of the thing. And if Governor Green were to send for the "boys in blue" was such that during the war time it wanted to pass a law forbidding the Democratic party to approach within a mile of the polls on election day. Matters have bravely changed. The New Jersey National guardsman wears exactly the uniform that the Union army did in the civil war, but he has a vote. And he helps make a halo of glory for Leon Abbett. Do you see the difference?

Having long felt the need of a reliable Tooth Powder in which we had perfect confidence, and being able to secure the co-operation of parties familiar with and capable of the manufacture of a first class article, we are now ready to present to the public a powder equal to any and superior to many of the high price powders now on the market. Having gone into the manufacture on a large scale to supply dealers throughout the country, and being desirous of introducing it to our friends in Plainfield and vicinity, we have determined to offer this superior article known as the ROYAL TOOTH POWDER for a limited period at the low price of ten cents. Each bottle put up in handsome style, full weight and guaranteed strictly pure, and unsurpassed in quality.

To satisfy any doubt, we mention the fact that Mr. W. A. Campbell, with a long experience as a pharmacist and for some time employed in a prominent drug store in our city, has entire charge of the manufacturing department.

Some of the political utterances of this summer sound as though the orators had broken their crank pins.

Matthew Marshall, the financial writer, says: "Whatever any kind of property or security is really worth at this moment, it will in my judgment be worth more next spring. Only be sure that it is really worth what you are going to pay for it before you buy it."

What are we coming to? In New York a De Peyster of the De Peysters, a general at that, is sued by his wife for divorce on account of his cruel treatment of her. for all the world just as any common Tony, Paddy, Tom, Dick or Harry might have been arrested for giving the loving partner of his life's black eye. The blood has not become sanctified from this shocking affair when one is immediately all worked up again by the announcement that a Schiefflin, faith! yes, a Colonel Schiefflin too, has been called to account for his appropriation of money by a Rhine lander, a Rhinelander Waldo. These things, happening among the 400 who assume to give the law of morals and manners to the rest of the United States are food stocking for anything. Divorce among the 400! It cannot be that blue blood is red after all, can it?

Startling Figures.

In 1887 the states of the Union spent altogether over $113,000,000 on the public schools. The same year the army and navy combined cost the general government less than $54,000,000, that too, though there must be kept in the west a considerable force at all times in active service on account of the Indians. The reader is to remember that the sum for public schools is spent by the states individually and not by the general government.

Now let us turn to some military and educational figures in the countries of Europe. It appears $90,000,000 a year for the army and $4,000,000 for education. Spain expends $100,000,000 for her army and navy and only $1,500,000 for the education of the coming Spanish citizen. The ordinary Spanish peasant who can read and write is the exception. Germany spends $183,000,000 a year for her army and $10,000,000 for schooling her children. The German is restless, popularly supposed to be the best educated people in civilization.

The military of Austro-Hungary costs $84,800,000 a year, while $6,250,000 are paid for education. France spends $151,000,000 annually on her army and $21,000,000 for schools.

To close, it may be remarked that the city of New York alone spends yearly over $4,000,000 on her public schools, as much as the whole Italian nation.

A Bit of the New South.

Some years after the war Mr. William P. Aldrich, aged twenty-one, went from New York to the mineral regions of Alabama. His idea was to develop the coal mines of the district in which he settled and grow up with the new south. Young Aldrich was full of American vim and ambition, and determined not only to get what he could out of Alabama coal mines, but also to put what he could into the state in the way of beautifying the country and improving the condition of his miners.

The result is one of the things people like to read of. Mr. Aldrich had certain theories of his own that people attract to them their own like. If a man is honorable, progressive and determined to do the square thing this young man believed he would draw about him the same sort of workmen. The young northerner had therefore a theory to prove as well as a fortune to make. He had a company store on the coal lands, but it was one that favored the purchasers quite as much as the seller. He built picturesque cottages with gardens about them for the miners, and settled his men in them. Both white and black people were among the workmen, so that provision had to be made for their entertainment separately. White and black alike called him familiarly "Mr. Will." Mr Will built two school houses for the children of the miners, one for the colored, the other for whites. It is interesting to know that the colored people pay their teacher themselves, while Mr. Will is obliged to pay the white teacher out of his own pocket.

Wherever there is a fight those who participate in it are all banished from the mines for a term of months, according to the enormity of the offense. Mr Aldrich is judge and jury both, and he "makes the punishment fit the crime." Since, however, the colony is about the pleasantest place the miners have ever struck in which to live and labor, fights are very rare. There has never been a strike, although the mines have been operated under the present management nearly twenty years. Except the rule about fighting, there are few regulations. The landscape in the neighborhood of the mines has grown steadily more beautiful and blooming. It is pleasant to know that "Mr. Will" has not only made his fortune, but has done what is still harder, proved his theory.

A MONARCHY OF WEALTH

The People's Party Restive Under Its Yoke.

AN ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS.

Members of the New Political Organization Believe That Foreign Capital Rules America—Government Control of the Telegraph System.

MILWAUKEE, July 23.—The address of the national executive committee of the People's party has been sent out by Secretary Schilling. It starts out with the information that times which try men's souls are here once more. The descendants of British Tories of 1776 and other Euro bean and American capitalists have bound the country in chains. The Declaration of Independence from British arrogance needs to be supplemented by a declaration of independence free from the powers of concentrated wealth. The political independence gained by the revolution is but a shallow sham unless our country can secure industrial independence.

Foreign Capital in America.

The address enlarges on the subtle power of money to oppress the poor, and then declares the railroads of the country are capitalized at $9,000,000,000 and the great majority of their stock is held by people in England and other foreign countries, who have drawn from the toil of United States than the vampire has in its victim.

At a reasonable estimate foreign capitalists have invested $10,000,000,000 in our country. What have they given us in return? They did not give us gold or silver, because these metals have been carried abroad by the shipload and are mined now not in Europe but in America. Valuable property these foreigners have merely loaned us their credit, in bank, checks, drafts and notes, and they are paying these with the dividend they draw from our people.

The Eastern Unions.

Comparing the fabric capital invested here with the total wealth of the country, the address declares that reckoned at compound interest the former will reach the amount represented by the latter in less than twelve years. The statement is made that the Western Union Telegraph company is capitalized at $200,000,000, and makes 15 per cent, but that its plant could be duplicated with $15,000,000, showing that the actual rate of interest is 20 per cent, and that the same applies to numerous other corporations, thus making a source of great national danger.

The Treasury's Paltry Affluence.

The policy of the government in paying high premiums for so many years to take up bonds not due so as to dispose of the accumulations of the treasury is denounced, and the inference is made to the professed inability of the treasury department to redeem the $50,000,000 of 4 per cents about to fall due. The address makes the remarkable statement that the treasury contains $750,000,000 of money, but that the bankers who control the debtor nation fear that the release of $50,000,000 of ready money would break down the money market and ease the grip that unproductive capital has upon the people of the country. It is said that the figures given on the people, as shown by farm mortgage statistics, is discussed and the following remedy proposed:

"If the billions of dollars of bank and corporation paper, mortgages and other paper evidences of debt issued by individuals were placed in the hands of stationers and the usurpers, paper notes issued by the people jointly in the form of government notes are better."

The Sub-Treasury Scheme.

The address then refutes the charge that it would be improper for the government to loan money to individuals. It calls for the control of telegraph lines by the people the same as the postal system, and says that the People's party does not propose to stop at the reforms proposed, as it is a permanent organization and cannot stand still. An earnest appeal to the people to join the organization closes the address.

Thayer Cannot Hold Over.

OMAHA, Neb., July 23.—John C. Watson, chairman of the Republican state central committee, announces that General Thayer, who was declared governor after the failure of James E. Boyd to qualify, cannot hold over and that the committee will shortly call together the people for the purpose of considering the nomination of his successor. The chairman states that the political pot is boiling in the state have taken a similar position.

Almy, the Hanover murderer, has been traced as far as this city, where he traded his silver watch for a second class ticket to Montreal on Monday morning, and left at 6 a. m. Jack Tars Who Deserted.

Wiltse, of the flagship Minnesota of the war squadron, has sent a communication to police headquarters giving the names and descriptions of six sailors who have deserted from his ship. He offers a reward of ten dollars each for the arrest and return of the truant tars.

The Old Warship Brooklyn Burned.

Carbon County Prisoners Mutinied.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., July 23.—The prisoners in the Carbon county jail mutinied and refused to clean the jail when ordered to do so. They have all been put in solitary confinement on a bread and water diet.

SLAIN WITH A BUTCHER'S KNIFE.

Brutal Murder of a Young Girl Near Hazleton, Pa.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 23.—Lastimer, a small mining town four miles from here, was the scene of a most brutal murder. Mrs. Genoyer lived in Lastimer and in an early hour in the morning and left her daughter Mary, aged thirteen, at home to attend to the baby. Upon her return she found the child stretched on the floor, bolted, and upon forcing them found the dead body of her daughter lying on the floor in a pool of blood with her throat cut from ear to ear. A bloody slab lay a big butcher's knife.

At first it was thought that an assault had been attempted, as the clothes were badly torn and disarranged, showing signs of a fierce struggle, and that the murderer killed the girl to cover the crime. But this is not sustained under further examination. It is supposed that a man entered the house to rob the family of their savings, which were very large. The box containing the savings of years is gone, and it is supposed the robber was caught in the act by the girl whom he murdered to conceal his identity. There is no clew to the thief.

CAMPBELL AT PITTSBURG.

He Says the Farmers' Alliance Is on His Side.

PITTSBURG, July 23.—Governor Campbell, of Ohio, arrived in Pittsburg to attend the Randall club's first champers at Silver Lake. The governor was met at the depot by a large number of prominent Democrats and escorted to the Seventh avenue hotel, where breakfast. After breakfast a grand reception was tendered him at the Randall club, and in the afternoon a brilliant reception was given in his honor at the Duquesne club.

In an interview on the political situation in Ohio Governor Campbell said the Democratic party was in high spirits, and he said he expected a helping hand from ex-President Cleveland, and that Cleveland will be invited to make six speeches during the campaign. Governor Hill, of New York; Jerry Simpson and Senator Peffer will also take the stump for the Democrats. Simpson and Peffer will be invited by the Farmers' Alliance, who, the governor says, are hand in hand with the Democrats in Ohio.

OTHER BARDSLEY PERQUISITES.

A Report That Philadelphia Magistrates Bought Their Appointments.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—It is rumored that discoveries have been made which will implicate others in the police magistrates of this city in the Bardsley matter.

The charge is that they bought their appointments as mercantile tax collectors, and each paid for his appointment the sum of $250. Furthermore, upon making their returns, each was compelled to "put up" $200 additional to Bardsley.

If the charges are true the magistrates will have to resign, and this will will give Governor Pattison an opportunity to appoint nine Democrats.

The G. A. R. at Silver Lake.

SILVER LAKE, N. Y., July 23.—Wednesday was the anniversary of the Republic day, the 6th of days at Silver Lake assembly. There was a large attendance, and the weather was fine. General Veazey was not present, but his place was filled by General W. H. Gibson, of Tiffin, O., the senior vice commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and other prominent veterans. Rev. H. C. Wyckoff, president of the assembly, delivered the address of welcome, and "The Battle Cry of Freedom" was sung by the choir, Dr. George F. Root. Being encored, he sang "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." The address of General W. H. Gibson was a brilliant one. The officer for the ensuing election elected C. H. Freeman, the department commander, president; all past commanders present vice presidents, and Rev. T. F. Parker, of Avon, secretary.

A month ago a couple were married at the Methodist parsonage here whose names were the same as those of Woodward and Mary Foster. Woodward pleaded not guilty and was released in $600 bail. Woodward declares that he is innocent and that his arrest is the result of spite.

THE MINERS VICTORIOUS

Tennessee's Governor Will Call an Extra Session.

BUT THE CONVICTS MUST RETURN.

It Begins to Look as Though the Trouble May Be Settled Without Bloodshed—To Remedy the Evil by Legislation Instead of Armed Force.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 23.—The miners of Coal Creek valley now pause to consider. They are not as anxious to fight as they were a few days ago, when only a handful of men opposed them. The governor had barely reached the city when a committee waited upon him asking indulgence and begging for further time. They say that they think that they can induce their insurgent army to put down their arms and allow the convicts to return to the mines if the governor will promise to call an extra session of the legislature and ask that the lease law be repealed. A committee of citizens of this city met the governor with the miners and joined in the appeal.

The Miners Will Treat Fairly.

After hearing arguments from both operators and miners and consulting many leading citizens of Knoxville, Governor Buchanan declared that he had decided to call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of modifying, if not abolishing, the convict lease system. He stated, however, that in the meantime the miners must allow the return of the convicts to Briceville and Coal Creek. Should they agree to this, the militia would be withdrawn, but refusal would necessitate an order that the troops carry the convicts back at any cost.

The Troops Want to Fight.

The troops are anxious to move and settle the question as to which is king—the state of Tennessee or the miners of Anderson county. They are thoroughly disgusted with the attitude of the people of this section and are not backward in expressing themselves.

When a mass meeting of citizens broke up last night its participants ran through the streets pulling "Hurrah for the miners!" and jeering Governor Buchanan. The feeling is becoming intense, and if the governor is inclined to peaceful measures, such conduct will change his disposition. General Carnes is inforuing rigid discipline and the soldiers are demeaning themselves quietly. Only a few who are on special mission can be found on the street.

Attorney General Pickle bears the governor out in his action. His decision has been complimented and followed up to the governor. He asserts that the governor has a perfect right to order out the troops and preserve order in a county that is in a state of insurrection.

To Wipe Out the Militia.

There has been a big demand for rifles here in the city and today may bring forth a terrible conflict. If the miners decide to fight their available force will reach 5,000, and if they attack the troops it will probably be begun when the troops reach Clinton. The Gatling guns of the militia are to be mounted on flat cars.

On Coal creek the miners have, it is reported, thrown up a rude fort of rock on the bluff under which the troops will have to pass and have loaded them with dynamite, which they intend to explode and wipe the whole militia off the face of the earth if they ever get that far.

In League with the Miners.

Although denied by a majority of the soldiers who came in contact from Briceville, the charges that the troops invited the attack of the miners is doubtless true, and serious dissention in the ranks of the Memphis Battalion of Cadets is one of the results. Lieutenants Kenner and McCormick have informally tendered their resignations and make charges against Lieutenant Lauter and three privates of unsoldierly conduct. Lieutenant Lauter in a published card denounces as false the charges against the privates and against himself as lies made from whole cloth. The charges in brief are that Lauter and several privates told the miners they were right and that the troops sympathized with them and would not fire upon them.

Pothall, of this city, has begun suit for defendant in a libel suit brought in New York by Alfred Purdy Vredenburgh, secretary of the American Kennel club, and August Belmont, president of the aggressive. Shotwell and William C. Rogers, and he asks from each the sum of $100,000.

Ocean Grove Bathers Excited.

They Are Charged with Using Improper Costumes on the Beach.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 23.—Women who are passing the summer here are greatly excited over the order issued by the officers of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting association as to bathing suits and bathing costumes. Since the early days of Ocean Grove women have daily walked to the bathing grounds from their cottages and tents to the beach and after taking their bath have walked home in dripping garments. Now the policemen of the association stop all persons who walk through the streets of the Grove in bathing suits and send them back home.

The policemen have interpreted the recent order against scant bathing suits rather curiously. One of the women who bathe here regularly said to a reporter that as she came down from Lilligore's bathing grounds a burly policeman stepped up to her and stated that nude bathing was against the law.

"I think the policeman was either blind or cross eyed," she said, "for I did not have an improper or gaudy suit. I had a long black shirt, black stockings and long sleeves."

When Rev. Dr. E. H. Stokes, the president of the Camp Meeting association, was asked, "Is Ocean Grove a Camp Meeting association can run its own affairs without any assistance from the newspapers."

FATAL WRECK AT ELMIRA.

One Man Was Killed and Two Were Fatally Injured.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 23.—One of the worst railroad wrecks in this vicinity for a long time occurred about midnight. A Lehigh Valley passenger train due here at 11 o'clock, while crossing a switch opposite Waverly station, ran into a caboose, struck a Northern Central freight train with frightful force. The freight cars were piled thirty feet in the air, the locomotive was wrecked and thrown down an embankment and the tracks torn up for a considerable distance.

The engineer, James Hopkins, of the Lehigh train, was killed; his fireman, M. W. Tillman, of Waverley, and Baggagemaster John Daniels, of Wilkesbarre, fatally injured. Hopkins lived in Waverley and leaves a widow and several children.

GLADYS EVELYN LECTURES.

Her Effort Only Increases the Public's Belief in Hartwell's Innocence.

Lorraine Gladys Evelyn, the plaintiff in the recent action against Mr. William Henry Hurlbert for breach of promise, delivered her much advertised lecture on the subject of the case from the point of view in the Aquarium theatre last evening before a small audience.

The lecture was a repetition of that delivered in Hartwell Tabernacle to a crowded house on Sunday night. It was not only in its attacks upon Mr. Hurlbert, but in its comments upon the conduct of other prominents citizens. The result of the lecture has been to spread still wider the belief in Mr. Hurlbert's innocence of any connection with Miss Evelyn and to convince the few remaining believers that if he were retained toward her the intentions alleged he was remarkably fortunate in ridding himself of her.

FIRED ON A FRENCH WARSHIP.

The Chilian Insurgents Are Now in a Pretty Fix.

VALPARAISO, July 23.—The congressional party have got themselves in a very pretty muddle with the French government. The warship Esmeralda, so well known in connection with the late pirate, and which, with the Amasone, Acongagua and Cochrane, has been threatening to bombard Coquimbo, fired twice on the French corvette Volta, near Coquimbo bay.

The French admiral will demand an apology for this outrage, and the insurgents will hasten to make it, as they cannot afford to antagonize so powerful a nation.

The Alleged Foraker-Sherman Plot.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The alleged outbreak of the war between Sherman and Foraker is said to be causing a deal of uneasiness among the Republican politicians. The wrangling to-day between a prominent Ohio Democrat said the other day—that in the Democratic ranks the fighting has mostly been on the surface, while in the Republican ranks the bitterness was deep-seated—that the troops sympathized with them and would not fire upon them.

A Family That Was Doomed.

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 23.—A strange fatality pursues the Welch family of this city. William Welch, who was employed as yard brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was caught under the wheels of a shifting engine and instantly killed, numbers the fifth member of the family that has met with a violent death within the last few months—four of his brothers were killed in various ways, and his father and sister died recently of grief. Welch was unmarried and the sole support of the family, the only remaining member of the family.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 23.—The will of Leonard B. THE FIGHT A BIG FIZZLE

Law and Order Are on Top in St. Paul.

NEW ORLEANS SPORTS MAKE A BID.

They Want Fitzsimmons and Hall to Contest Before the Olympic Club for a $10,000 Purse Within Ten Days—Both Pugilists Are Greatly Disappointed.

ST. PAUL, July 23.—After four days of stout contention against the hosts of moral reformers, who took up arms against the proposed fight between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall, the Minnesota Athletic club was forced to surrender and declare the fight off. This conclusion was not reached until the club had exhausted every means of securing an adjustment, and not until the sheriff had announced his intention to prevent the fight at any and all hazards and the governor had ordered four military companies under arms to assist the sheriff did the club weaken and consent to be counted out.

The club had for twenty-three days advertised to the world its purpose to give a purse of $12,000, and in the belief that there was no law which forbade glove contests, being so advised in writing by a well known lawyer of this city, proceeded to erect a temporary pavilion at a cost of about $5,000.

Widely Known and Published.

All this was widely published and thoroughly known to the state, municipal authorities, and the people generally. Not a voice was lifted in protest against the contest until last Monday, when the people held an indignation meeting.

Even then it was not known that the fight could by legality prevented, but somebody finally got a hold of a passed in the session of the legislature of 1889, which was neither indexed nor classified in the published laws, and she had been outright overlooked by everybody. For the first time the Minnesota Athletic club learned on Monday that it was proceeding contrary to law. Tuesday night centered two prize fights—Kennedy and Murphy at the Olympic theater in St. Paul, and the Black Pearl and Joe Ellingsworth in Minneapolis.

Not a finger was lifted to prevent either of these events. The Minnesota Athletic club protested against such apparently unfair discrimination, but all to no purpose.

Brought Him to His Knees.

But the religious element was determined to stop the big battle if possible. The mayor was opposed to it on principle, and to committees which waited upon him declared that the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight should not be interfered with. Then the opponents of the fight turned their batteries on Governor Merriam. Three days ago the governor said he should not interfere, because in no case would such a commission would be grossly unfair, and he expressed the hope that the fight would come off.

He even expressed a strong desire to be present, but thought it would be unbecoming to do so. Monday night's mass meeting brought him to his knees, and on Tuesday he issued a proclamation calling upon the officers to prevent any infraction of the law. This placed the strain on Sheriff Bean.

The Sheriff Appealed To.

The sheriff was asked by the club officers to be moderate and reasonable. "Enforce the law," said they, "but don't strain it so as to injury and loss. Arrest the principals in the fight if you will, and we will give bonds on the spot, and go on with the fight." This was the understanding on Tuesday night, but Wednesday the church committees got after the sheriff again. He went to the governor for advice, and the governor told him to obey orders and stop the fight.

Later in the day the governor threatened to depose him if he failed to do his full duty, at the same time ordering four militia companies to be in readiness to assist the sheriff.

The Fight Declared Off.

A meeting of the sheriff, county attorney and the club officers was held. When informed of the situation, and fully convinced that the sheriff had not the courage to do his duty in his own way, but was bound to break up the fight, the club then abandoned all attempts to bring off the fight.

Fitzsimmons Was Very Angry.

The news that the fight had been declared off was received by the principals shortly after it was made. Fitzsimmons was in bed at the house of a retired banker in one of the most fashionable quarters of the city when he was told there would be no fight. Fitzsimmons was furious. He declared it was a trick of Hall's to get out of meeting him. "I want to wipe out old score," said Fitzsimmons, "and I will never have such an opportunity again. I cannot believe it is off, anyhow. I will stay in training until I hear positively that there is no chance to fight."

When assured that there would be no fight for at least another day Fitzsimmons charged Hall with having asked the police to interfere. "Why, I will go out now and fight him for ten dollars or ten cents, or anything, if I will fight him for $10,000 of my own money. I will fight him by any kind of rules. I want to get out that Australian defeat. I would ask no trouble with him whatever. I know it. I am positive that he would have no chance to stay ten rounds with me in my present condition."

Hall Disappointed, Too.

Hall felt fully much disappointed at the announcement, but he did not talk as bitterly as Fits. He simply said: "I am at 168 pounds, and I am feeling good. It took some work to get down there, but I am there and I am strong.

"I am sorry there will be no fight after I have put in five hard weeks at training. It is too bad. That purse is a great one, and I would like to have had a chance to show Americans what I can do. I am an American myself now, as I intend to make Chicago my future home."

The Olympic Club's Office.

NEW ORLEANS, July 23.—The Olympic club, of this city, have authorized their representative in St. Paul to make Fitzsimmons and Hall a liberal offer to meet in the club rooms within the next ten days. It is understood that the Olympic club offered a prize of $10,000.

Balfour's New Irish Bill the Issue.

LONDON, July 23.—At a private meeting of Conservative election agents Lord Salisbury gave the impression that the government have decided to appeal to the country in advance of the natural dissolution of parliament, presumably on the questions involved in the new Irish legislation which has been vaguely outlined by Mr. Balfour.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Active competition in rubber goods has ceased, and the price will go up.

The report that a canned goods trust is to be formed is denied by Maryland canners.

Jacob Rubenstein, aged forty-two years, a member of the firm of Rubenstein & Co., importers, at 80 East Broadway, New York, was killed by a horse car.

About thirty members of the Young Men's Christian association from all parts of the United States have sailed to attend the international conference at Amsterdam, Holland, Aug. 13 to 16.

C. Williams was shot and killed near La Grange, Ky., by Milton Ferguson, who had paid his fine for drunkenness, in a quarrel over a horse.

Henry Patterson, a Newburg (N. Y.) business man, under circumstances which would be grossly unfair, and he expressed the hope that the fight would come off.

He even expressed a strong desire to be present, but thought it would be unbecoming to do so. Monday night's mass meeting brought him to his knees, and on Tuesday he issued a proclamation calling upon the officers to prevent any infraction of the law. This placed the strain on Sheriff Bean.

The Sheriff Appealed To.

The sheriff was asked by the club officers to be moderate and reasonable. "Enforce the law," said they, "but don't strain it so as to injury and loss. Arrest the principals in the fight if you will, and we will give bonds on the spot, and go on with the fight." This was the understanding on Tuesday night, but Wednesday the church committees got after the sheriff again. He went to the governor for advice, and the governor told him to obey orders and stop the fight.

Later in the day the governor threatened to depose him if he failed to do his full duty, at the same time ordering four militia companies to be in readiness to assist the sheriff.

The Fight Declared Off.

A meeting of the sheriff, county attorney and the club officers was held. When informed of the situation, and fully convinced that the sheriff had not the courage to do his duty in his own way, but was bound to break up the fight, the club then abandoned all attempts to bring off the fight.

Fitzsimmons Was Very Angry.

The news that the fight had been declared off was received by the principals shortly after it was made. Fitzsimmons was in bed at the house of a retired banker in one of the most fashionable quarters of the city when he was told there would be no fight. Fitzsimmons was furious. He declared it was a trick of Hall's to get out of meeting him. "I want to wipe out old score," said Fitzsimmons, "and I will never have such an opportunity again. I cannot believe it is off, anyhow. I will stay in training until I hear positively that there is no chance to fight."

When assured that there would be no fight for at least another day Fitzsimmons charged Hall with having asked the police to interfere. "Why, I will go out now and fight him for ten dollars or ten cents, or anything, if I will fight him for $10,000 of my own money. I will fight him by any kind of rules. I want to get out that Australian defeat. I would ask no trouble with him whatever. I know it. I am positive that he would have no chance to stay ten rounds with me in my present condition."

Hall Disappointed, Too.

Hall felt fully much disappointed at the announcement, but he did not talk as bitterly as Fits. He simply said: "I am at 168 pounds, and I am feeling good. It took some work to get down there, but I am there and I am strong.

"I am sorry there will be no fight after I have put in five hard weeks at training. It is too bad. That purse is a great one, and I would like to have had a chance to show Americans what I can do. I am an American myself now, as I intend to make Chicago my future home."

The Olympic Club's Office.

NEW ORLEANS, July 23.—The Olympic club, of this city, have authorized their representative in St. Paul to make Fitzsimmons and Hall a liberal offer to meet in the club rooms within the next ten days. It is understood that the Olympic club offered a prize of $10,000.

Balfour's New Irish Bill the Issue.

LONDON, July 23.—At a private meeting of Conservative election agents Lord Salisbury gave the impression that the government have decided to appeal to the country in advance of the natural dissolution of parliament, presumably on the questions involved in the new Irish legislation which has been vaguely outlined by Mr. Balfour.

Barkalew & Dunn,

MOST MOTHERS KNOW HER.

The Thoughtless Woman Who Hinders Her Neighbors with Her Gossip.

We are all acquainted with her, the woman who never goes, who drops in for a call in the busiest part of the morning—it little matters whether it is washing day or ironing day. It is all the same to her. Your buns may grow cold and the clothes may boil over, but still she stays. She casually mentions that she has dropped in on a little errand. It is probably a borrowing errand. Only after she has exhausted your patience and produced as much disorganization in your household as she can is she ready to go.

But oh, the going! If you have any idea that she is really going you are quite certain to be disappointed. She comes back to tell you about some neighbor you had never seen or ever desired to see, to explain the ways and wherefores of certain goings on in the small hereafter, in which you take no interest, and then she lingers at the door and keeps you standing far beyond your strength. It is impossible to calculate the time that is wasted by well meaning women in such ways as these.

It would be a great thing if calls of all kinds could in some way be limited to a ten minute rule. In the social world among women of leisure it is considered in bad form to lengthen one's visit beyond a set period, and when a woman has numerous acquaintances she usually has a visiting day and can be certain of freedom from interruption during the rest of her time. There is nothing of the kind in the much abused "not at home" which is frequently used by women of society, and which simply means not at home to visitors, or engaged, and there is no reason for any one's taking offense in the matter.

Only working women, the busy farmers' wives or women who do their own work, are subject to the annoyance of the unannounced visitor, who is bound by no social law as to her arrival or departure or her length of stay. She is one uncertain quantity in all the routine of the household. It would take a keen mathematician to calculate the amount of spoiled dinners, spoiled washing and actual loss of money value for which she is responsible, to say nothing of the loss of temper and general misery consequent upon a disarranged household delayed duties and work put out of joint.

The very worst effect is that upon the visitor herself. Her own work must go awry while she spends her time gossiping about the neighborhood. Her own character deteriorates, while she becomes what our grandmothers were wont to call a "gadabout." Though she may have the most amiable intentions when she unprofessionally repeats the interesting stories of the neighborhood, the temptation to enlarge, to impugn motives when possibly there were no motives, is likely to prove her in time a veritable scandal monger, upon whose word no person of sense will place any reliance.

It is not necessary to dwell upon the folly of borrowing, but it is enough to say that all providident and sensible housekeepers provide for the future and do not allow themselves to impose upon the good nature of their neighbors.—New York Tribune.

Boarding versus Housekeeping.

The question of boarding versus housekeeping has so far been discussed almost entirely from the standpoint of city life. But in the country we have more people than in the cities. The average country girl would consider it fearful extravagance to go boarding. It is quite possible in the country for a young couple to keep house and live well on what it cost the husband for his board in a city, say thirteen dollars a month. To pay the double of that for board would absorb the entire income, and, of course, is not to be thought of. Just aside from the question of expense, most country girls prefer housekeeping, as it gives them a feeling of independence.

They are doing something for a living as well as their husbands. It would be just as well if city girls had more of this spirit. The divine ideal of a wife is a helpmeet for a man, the boarding house idea is simply a help-eat. What does she do with her life anyway? She begins, perhaps, by weaving crochet or some species of fancy work, reads a little, grows weary of being alone, and strolls a mile or so for a pattern or a flirtation with some one who is as idle and useless as herself. She is offering a premium to the gentleman who "finds some mischief still for idle hands to do," and if he does not avail himself of his opportunity it is because he is too busy with others of her class.

When Charlie comes home he can't catch her up in his arms and give her a big hug and a kiss as he could and probably would do in a cosy little home of their own. All this must be suppressed, and if the woman considers darling nothing to do as an equivalent for what she misses in this line, she is a mercenary little wretch unworthy of being loved. Then, as a rule, boarding houses are usually where a poor man, but who are willing to marry any man who asks them, provided he can keep them in boarding house style. Better in a stylish house with a retinue of servants or in a boarding house with nothing to do?

When the love is all one side it does not last very long, and a boarding house is as good a place to end it as any for it, for even a Romeo would soon cease to be a home to the man who has married a woman without a heart. If the parties are mutually in love when they marry, a boarding house will starve their love to death or at least to emaciation. Don't risk it girls.—Cor. Toronto Globe.

Renovating Feather Beds.

I have renovated three large feather beds, and I found it to little trouble I would like to tell my sisters how I did it. I bought ten yards of cheese cupping, cut it in two, made a sack of each half by putting the ends together and sewing up the sides. I then put in half the feathers, which I had put into each sack and sewed them up. The next morning I put the boiler full of water on the stove. When it was almost hot I put one of these sacks of feathers in the pounding barrel, poured in the hot water and with the potato masher pounded them until thoroughly wet. Then I laid a board over the barrel and let them stand while I went to work. In the afternoon, turning the feathers over and pressing the water through them several times during the day.

In the meantime my husband made a rack, taking two long strips of board, a little longer than my ticks, and nailing them on them like a picket fence, set a couple of narrow strips across and would strike them all day, and laid the sacks on them. We turned the feathers from the barrel, laid them on the rack, turned the sackcloth over them and left them all the morning, when they were thoroughly drained and ready for spreading out to dry. Served the other sack the same way.

Lay them out of the dew nights, and if you have hot, sunny days to dry them in you will feel well paid for your trouble. Get a new tick for your feathers. Take the old one, rip apart at the sides, cut in two, hem the ends, wash the pieces and use to put over the new ticks between it and the sheets. In the spring feather beds should be laid out in the sun every day until they are thoroughly aired. Beat them up, turn them over in the sunshine and they will seem like new beds.—Lotta in Ohio Farmer.

A Plea for Common Sense Dress.

The rain is falling in torrents; men, women and children are hurrying along, returning from a circus matinee.

A look with envy at the men so placidly enjoying the shower, as with umbrellas over their heads they walk and talk. I look at the women, poor wretches! and a groan escapes me.

Why are they—why are we, so long suffering?

Every one with wet ankles, drabbled skirts, soiled shoes and ruffled tempers. Not done in mischief and love. They go home nursing all sorts of ailments and distempers which a wetting is supposed to furnish, and as a matter of course, "the thing they fear comes upon them." I am going to ask you to give the matter of common sense dress some grave reflection.

When the matter is well canvassed and understood let a convention be called, and let those who have genius and artistic ability take to this meeting a costume to be worn at the reception given. Also let there be offered a medal of gold to the woman furnishing the best utility suit, the decision to be placed in the hands of competent judges.

The idea of a prize would be to stimulate some who would not otherwise make an effort toward emancipation. This medal is not intended to be one for "heirlooms" to be proud of. The woman who emancipates her sex from the slavery of petticoats—properly speaking, who gives women the freedom of her legs—deserves to be "sainted," and she will be.

Is it not a reflection on the all wise Creator when we assume our present style of covering for our lower extremities? If he intended us to use our legs as mum mutchers, we have no right to restrict their freedom in walking. Let us either adopt a manner of locomotion consistent with our dress, which I suggest be a hop, skip and jump, or let us adapt our dress to our limbs and their free use.—Ellen Peeke Pratt in Homemaker.

Beauty in the Hair.

Fluffy hair, which was the envy of every girl that did not possess it, has given place to glossy, well kept locks, which, however, are curled and frizzed into the crinkly waves which are very fashionable. The great fluffy banks covering the forehead and ears, and reminding one of a Shetland pony, are today scorned. The smartest way of arranging the hair is the way to which a fashionable Paris hairdresser recently did it. Dividing the hair on either side he plaited it upon the top firmly with a little pin. He then braided it in a single braid and doubled it underneath, pulling it through a strand of the braid at the nape of the neck. In this way the braid does not lay down or look tangled. Then he took the ends of the braid, following its curve up to the crown, when it is combed apart, divided and the ends made into a mass of curls and puffs.

The long hair cut into different lengths and curled it in five distinct curls, those on the top, curling them crosswise. Next to the top the remaining long, save a very little on the forehead, and curling it toward the back of the head, he finished it with the curls he considered proper the fore head. He then waited until it was all entirely cool, when he pulled the curls all apart, touching none but the very light hairs on the forehead with the comb, in this way keeping them in little curls setting close to the head.—Exchange.

A Wealthy Widow.

There can be little doubt that a Chilian widow, Donna Isadora Cousino (called the "Countess of Monte Cristo"), is the wealthiest woman in the world, her coal mines alone bringing her $4,000 a week. She is the possessor of millions of acres of land as well as millions of money, is the owner of coal, copper and silver mines, acres of property in Santiago and Valparaiso, and a fleet of eight iron steamships, smelting works, a railway, and other productive property that yield her a stupendous income. Mme. Cousino owns every house in the town of Lotta, and its 7,000 inhabitants depend on her for support. In Consul nine-tenths of the 8,000 inhabitants are on her pay rolls.

She pays about £300,000 a year in wages in these two towns alone, most of which comes back to her through her own supply stores. The widow lives most of the time in Lotta to superintend her business. Her vineyards supply nearly all the markets of Chili with claret and sherry, and her cellars—a building 500 feet long and 100 feet wide—are likewise full. Madam is about forty-five years old, and says she will never marry again.—London Tit-Bits.

A Minister Forty-nine Years.

Rev. Lydia Sexton was born in Sussex county (now Rockford), in the state of New Jersey, April 12, 1796, and is therefore ninety-two years old. During the past forty-nine years she has been preaching as a Unity Brethren minister in various portions of the country with remarkable success. She is remarkably vigorous, and predicts that she will live to the year 1900, thus extending her life into three centuries. Mrs. Sexton was appointed chaplain of the Kansas state penitentiary on Jan. 1, 1870, and held the office two years, during which time ex-Congressman Harrison Kelley was one of the board of directors.

She has many relations in New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Washington. Her memory is excellent and her sight remarkably good. While on a visit to Little Rock recently she made a silk quilt. Her voice is clear and melodious, and she delights to sing sacred songs in the congregation. The grandfather of this remarkable woman was the French marquis, Anthony Cozon, who came to America to aid in the Seven teenth century.—Seattle (Wash.) Letter.

Kerosene Oil and the "Fire Test."

Dr. O. B. Bird, of New Jersey, says reasonably: "What we want in our families is kerosene that might be spilled on the carpet or floor from a broken lamp and not take fire from the burning wick falling into it. Oil that is really 130 deg. fire test will do this. Such oil may be heated to 130 or 140, and even then will extinguish a burning match like water. For the fire test take a large coffee cup nearly full of kerosene, place it in a washpowl and pour warm water around it, gradually increasing the heat so that in five minutes the oil reaches 100. Hold a burning match an inch in the oil, with the bulb near the surface. The test may be applied at frequent intervals, always finding the thermometer before applying the test. Solid test consists in pouring a flame—a match will answer, but a waxed threads if cleaner—over the oil, exposure of an inch from the surface. When ever it takes fire the figures on the scale show the 'fire test.'"

The Easiest Way to Clean Lace.

An old lacemaker, who has woven many a snowy web for the connoisseurs of laces Mme. Modjeska, and has taught the fair actress to fashion some of the daintiest patterns her deft fingers delight in doing, gives this simple receipt for lace cleaning:

Spread the lace out carefully on wrapping paper, then sprinkle it carefully with cold, fine magnesia; place another paper over it and put it away between the leaves of a book for two or three days. All it needs is a skillful shake to scatter the white powder and then it is ready for wear, with slender threads intact and as fresh as when new.—New York Herald.

How Women Sleep.

A German physician says: "The fact is women require a larger amount of sleep than men. The nervous excitability of the female constitution is generally greater than is the case with the stronger sex, and a woman's sleep is consequently lighter. Her dreams are more vivid and leave a more lasting impression on the memory. Women addicted to dreaming usually sleep an hour longer than those who do not dream, for dreams induce weariness. Any one who sleeps without dreaming rises on the morrow refreshed from his couch, which is otherwise not the case."—Nueva Revista.

A Notable Bedspread.

Mrs. J. Milton Gavitt, of Holden street, has an old bedspread that was woven in 1776 as a portion of the setting out of Miss Vannie Hopkinson on her marriage with John Rathborne, the great-grandfather of Mrs. Gavitt's mother. What makes the spread such a choice relic is the fact that Miss Hopkins was the great-great-grandaughter of Stephen Hopkins, of the Mayflower. It has been handed down from one generation to another until it has fallen to Mrs. Gavitt. It is very handsome and has been carefully preserved.—Norch Adams (Mass.) Transcript.

Wholebone Seldom Used Now.

There was a time when the corsets and stays of the fashionable girl could have told tales of wondrous romance of dauntless sailors fighting under leaden skies against the monsters of the deep; of privation and suffering undergone by men whose wives and daughters waited with aching hearts for their return from long and terrible voyages. That time has practically past, and its history is told by the epitaphs upon the monuments in the graveyards of the Massachusetts fishing towns, or in the traditions of their groceries and barrooms.—Mercer.

The Utility of the Pretty Girl.

The pretty girl is a universal factor in modern life. She possesses the advantage not only of ornament, but of utility. She has been utilized in an endless variety of ways. She has become a bowling success in the operatic ballet, and is as complacent and as original in front of a typewriter or behind a counter as she is on dress parade in a new spring suit or luxuriously lolling

A Little Girl's Dress.

CHILD'S SUMMER DRESS.

The child's frock depicted in the cut is simple of itself, but it is picturesque simplicity. The full waist, back and elbow sleeves of this dress are in the moss colored nun's veiling.

The blouse front is gathered into a pointed yoke.

The vest fronts and side panels are in figured ponges silk, as is the yoke and standing collar.

Cockscomb lace frillings down the sleeves add a light and airy appearance to the very pretty frock.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1891 PRICE TWO CENTS.

—The Italians employed in laying the mains of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, are at work on Front street.

—Sharbart, the Jewish peddler, who was arrested by Policeman Giese for receiving stolen goods, was discharged this morning by Justice Nash.

—About twenty young ladies, went, on their safeties, to Westfield, yesterday, over the County road. This "dove party" report having "a real jolly time."

—Travel by the railroads is very dull just now. About all the people who are going away appear to have gone, and the passenger list has been smaller than usual.

—A rain-storm of unusual severity burst on Plainfield this morning. The water in the gutters, in many places, floated away the board bridges for wagons in front of driveways.

—United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association quote special prices on certain goods to-day and warn you to look out for their new advertisement on July 31st, 1891, which they say is to be a big affair.

—Three of the colored men who engaged in the street fight at Dunellen Saturday were fined three dollars each by Justice Coles. They gave their names as DeWitt Brown, William Saunders and Winfield DeMott.

—The young man named Dixon, who was arrested on the charge of swindling George Becker, was given a hearing before Justice Crossley last evening and as the evidence was insufficient to hold him, he was discharged.

—A Manch Chunk paper says that a red herring rubbed on the face will keep mosquitoes away. This plausible; a face rubbed with a red herring will be likely to command all the solitude its owner may desire. — New Brunswick Home News.

—An old soldier looking at the gang of Italians digging a trench for the water-pipes, was heard to remark: "If these dagoes were soldiers, and this street out in the woods somewhere, and if it was war-times, that trench they are scooping would look like old times."

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist Church will hold their regular meeting this evening at eight o'clock. Topic: "Christ the Only Way." As a very interesting meeting is expected it is hoped that all the members, with their friends, will be present. All are cordially invited to attend these meetings and take part in them. The leader this evening will be Robert Love.

—A well-known society-lady of this city, remarking about the weather, said: "It does not seem like Summer to me. Almost all my friends are here; some of the houses are closed; if you go downtown you meet every-one, you know, driving about or shopping; and then, more than anything else, the weather is so delightfully cool." When you think of it, how very few people, comparatively, leave home to their usual Summer resorts this year! It is said that one of the largest and most fashionable hotels at Long Branch, closed, temporarily, after opening, on account of the few arrivals — having about fifteen — not enough to pay the gas bill.

Bitten By a Dog.

A young daughter of Mr. Geo. Demarest of lance street, North Plainfield, was badly bitten by a dog Wednesday afternoon. The canine jumped on her back, caught her left ear and tore a piece therefrom. The child was taken to the residence of Dr. Carman, who cauterized the wound and she is reported as doing as well as can be expected. The dog was shot.

—To-morrow will be a big day at Ewers' Bros. They will close out ladies' ties in russet at 20 cents. Ladies russet, tipped-leather trimmed, at 35 cents. And the same great cut-prices on all stock, until August 1st.

PRISONERS ARRAIGNED.

Several are Discharged for Want of Sufficient Evidence.

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions, Wednesday morning, Judges Rice, Hyer and Wiley, were on the bench, and the following prisoners were arraigned and sentenced.

Patrick Dooley, charged with the larceny of four brass hose couplings, valued at $60, from Mrs. Brown of this city and who was held for the Grand Jury by City Judge Codington, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in State prison.

Charles Keiper pleaded guilty to stealing a suit of clothes and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Joseph Vetromile, the young Italian charged with having assaulted a son of ex-Chief Rabig on July 4th by shooting him in the ear, was discharged, Prosecutor Marsh informing the court that from what he had learned through witnesses the shooting was purely accidental.

James Masterson, charged with carrying burglars' tools, was discharged, Prosecutor Marsh saying that the State was fully satisfied that it had no case against him.

There being no further business to be transacted court adjourned.

A Smart Plainfield Darkey.

A Plainfield gentleman recently hired a colored coachman who was born and brought up in Georgia. The coachman is a typical Southern darkey of the better class and is a Chesterfield in manners. A week ago the colored gentleman's employer took his family to his Summer place on Lake Champlain, and left word with his coachman that when he telegraphed him to start immediately with the family horses and carriages. The coachman got everything in readiness, and yesterday the telegram came. The coachman opened it. He read it over several times and examined it critically. It bore the telegraped signature of his employer. But the darkey was not satisfied. Finally he blurted out to the messenger: "No, sar, I will not take master's horses and carriages on that telegraph, sar. That is not master's writing, sah. You can't deceive dis colored person, sar." It took the messenger several minutes to satisfactorily explain the matter of sending a message.

Westfield's New Station.

The plans and specifications for the new station at Westfield have been drawn up, and estimates on the work are being received. It is proposed to have the station completed before January 1st.

The building will be 73 feet long and 33 feet wide. The style of architecture is gothic, with a central elevation and projections front and rear. New Jersey sandstone from the Stockton quarries will be used. The trimmings will be of Indiana stone. A platform, ten feet wide, will surround the building, for which granolithic pavements will be used. The interior will be finished in hardwood. The new station will be heated by steam and lighted by electricity. The present station building will be use as a freight office.

Sons of Temperance at Asbury Park.

The July session of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance of New Jersey was held at Asbury Park Wednesday with an attendance of about one hundred and fifty delegates. Twelve were initiated, including a clergyman and a physician, Mrs. Campbell, of Newark, was elected grand worthy associate to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. Benjamin Cogan. An application was received for a division at Asbury Park. This city had representatives in attendance.

A Youthful Prisoner.

Policeman Kiely Wednesday evening arrested a fourteen-year-old boy named James Hickey, on the charge of stealing lead pipe from houses in the course of erection. The officer found the little fellow asleep in a cellar in a heap of old rags. He claims that he has no home and is almost starved. He spent yesterday in the station house and this morning he was committed to the county jail in default of bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Sent to Jail to Await Sentence.

The case of Henry Southard, who was arrested yesterday by Policeman Giese on the charge of stealing clothing from a farmer's wagon on Front street, came up this morning before Justice Nash. Southard pleaded guilty to the charge and the justice sent him to the county jail at Elizabeth to await sentence, which will be passed on him next Wednesday in the Court of Special Sessions.

Hen and Kittens.

D. D. Applegate, of Dayton, a few weeks ago set a hen on a dozen duck eggs. When the time came for the little chicks to put in an appearance he found the old hen carefully nursing four little kittens. They are now four weeks old and the hen still covers them. The old cat is trying to get them away, but the old hen won't give them up. They quarrel every day about the ownership.

Powers Committed to Jail.

James Powers, who was held for the Grand Jury on the charge of robbing his friend Peter Garrity of eighty dollars, was committed to the county jail at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon in default of $250 bail. Since Powers was convicted he has been quite ill. He is a man in the neighborhood of eighty years of age. Captain Grant took him to Elizabeth yesterday on the three o'clock train.

MISS YATES' TRAVELS.

AND WHAT SHE SAW IN THE HOLY LAND.

As Told by Her at a W. C. T. U. Meeting Last Night at Their Rooms on West Front Street.

In a delightful talk, yesterday p. m. Miss Yates took the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and their friends with her across the ocean, and through Alexandria, Cairo, Goshen, Joppa and Jericho.

"From Joppa to Jerusalem the trip was particularly interesting, traveling in a vehicle similar to the "Jersey country wagon" (the canvas coverings white instead of black) we pass large fields of lilacs, and the Rose of Sharon spoken of in the Bible, the latter flower resembling, as described, our red poppy and emitting fragrance only when crushed or trodden upon.

Cactus ledges line the roadside and *prove a very effective foil for the tres*passing boy; while in Palestine high fences with broken pieces of glass cemented on top act as proof against thieving intruders.

Obliged to take shelter from a shower (at what is termed by the guides of that country the House of the Penitent Thief," lepers (though not of the contagious character) crowd round begging for money.

Pitiable and repulsive, it requires a great deal of Christian charity to tolerate the presence of these street beggars, whose faces are in many cases partially eaten away, and whose skin shows the leprous pallor saw where it has been exposed to the burning rays of the sun.

Reaching Jerusalem just at sunset we get a charming glimpse of the "Blue Hills of Judea," round about the deep blue of the sky, as the stars come out, and reverently, the Holy City, and the Mount of Olives are mentioned by the speaker.

Leaving Jerusalem for Jericho, friendly Bedouins meet us and invited us to visit and examine their tents. And at these kahns or resting-places no charge is made, and if the traveler has his own blanket he may spread it in welcome and make himself comfortable.

On our way we pass Elijah's cave, Elisha's fountain with its bubbling waters, sycamore trees, henna, (from which a dye is made to stain the fingernails red as a mark of position in life); and many bushes, of the same kind as was used for the crown our Saviour wore.

Returning from Jericho, (now no longer the proud "City of Palms"), but one laid waste and desolate, after a three days' absence we came reverently to Bethany, and in single file back to the Holy City."

And here the narrator told of a lost lamb, and compared its bleating cry and its final recovery by the shepherd to the poor, lost, wandering souls of this earth rescued by the W. C. T. U.

"Sister members of this local Union," said Mrs. Yates, "are we, each one trying to do all in our power to bring poor fallen, suffering, hopeless ones back to to the *fold of Christ? Let us keep con*stantly in mind the comforting words of the Great Shepherd. "For inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these, ye did it unto Me."

Miss Yates' "talk," was natural and easy throughout, listened to with pleasure and profit by all present, and interrupted, (womanlike) by many questions on the part of the auditors, which were all good-naturedly answered by the speaker.

A visit to Jerusalem is kindly promised by Miss Yates in the near future.

Press Supt. of W. C. T. U.

ALL EYES WEPT.

A Practical Joker Puts Red Pepper on the Floor of a Ballroom.

The young society people of Plainfield attempted to hold an informal ball in the Castle of the Union Country Club on Seventh street on Tuesday night, but their pleasure was ruined by the work of a practical joker. The joker sprinkled all over the polished floor of the ballroom a pound of red pepper. When the dancing began the pepper was stirred up by the trains of dresses until the air was filled with the fiery dust. Every one of the 100 dancers in the room began to sneeze violently and all eyes wept. The dancers left the ballroom, and the officers of the club attempted to make it all right by sweeping the floor with dampened sawdust, but the dancers had suffered too much from their experience to return.

The practical joker has been warned by the club men not to enter the building again. The officers of the club refuse to divulge his name.—New York Sun, July 24th.

Robbed a Servant Girl.

A colored man named Pendleton was arrested by Policeman Kiely Wednesday evening on the charge of robbing a servant girl who is employed in a house on the corner of Washington avenue and Front street. It appears that Pendleton was employed occasionally to pump water in the tank for family use. On the day above mentioned he broke open the servant's trunk and took $4.50 therefrom. When arrested he pleaded no hard time, the woman refused to prosecute him. He confessed his guilt and promised to refund the money and he was released from custody.

THE GAME POSTPONED.

An Amicable Arrangement for Next Saturday.

The game scheduled with the Crescents in Plainfield last Saturday did not come off, the Storm King interfering. In the early morning it was plain to be seen that the grounds would not be in a fit condition, and occasional showers all through the day added to the general dampness. The players all went to Plainfield on the two o'clock train, but finding there would be no game, immediately returned to town. The managers of the respective clubs met in a private room at the Crescent League and agreed upon a date to play off the game.

It was the desire of our management to play the game August 8th, the Wednesday before the next game with the Crescents in Somerville, which occurs on August 8th. This was objected to by the Crescent management, as they said Wednesday games did not pay, and that it was impossible to get a crowd out in the middle of the week. Owing to the feeling of good fellowship which exists between the two towns at the present time, and which Mr. Mack wished to perpetuate, he agreed to play the game as they desired (on next Saturday). Mr. Mack, in thus giving them next Saturday, is granting them a great deal, as we had a game on with the Elizabeth Athletic Club, which, I have no doubt, would have drawn a large crowd of people. That this magnanimous act of our management will be appreciated I have no doubt, and we can look forward to meeting "our friends, the enemy," with no little pleasure.

For that day and game I have but three wishes: That the day may be glorious; that the game may be closely contested, and that, no matter on whose banner victory perches, it may be of such a character that the victorious shouts and exultations may be justly indulged in.—Somerville Messenger.

PROPER PRONUNCIATION.

The Bad Results Which Come From Careless Habits.—A Few Examples.

How many people are there who pronounce any proporation of their words correctly, not merely by reason of clipping and mounting, but by ignorance of good usage? We find them everywhere, *and they lay the accent on the first in*stead of on the second syllable of acclimate, for example; they pronounce the second syllable of accoustics coo instead of cow; they do not put the accent on the second syllable of robust, they should do; they leave the u sound out of buoy; they pronounce duke with the sound of oo instead of with the simple long u; emphasize the first instead of the second syllable of enervative, and sound the t in often. They are astonished to know that precedence has the accent on the second syllable and placard on the last; that quay is called key, that cough is suf; that the z instead of the s sound is to be given in sacrifice, and the reverse in rise; that saddle and sadle are two different words; that the last syllable of tortoise is pronounced "tis" instead of "tus" that it should be used and not ust; and that it is not the "noo" but the zoological gardener where one goes to see the chimpanzee and not the chimpanzee. It is quite time, we think, when we hear one of these talkers, for some of the fancy work and fancy studies of the law to be dropped and a little hard work on the dictionary put in the place.—Harper's Bazar.

Dyspepsia in Women.

A London medical journal, in a long article, recently exploited the causes of dyspepsia in women, citing as the main ones lack of exercise and the eating of indigestible food at unholy hours. But a woman physican shook her head. "Not so," she said, "that belittles the sex. Laziness and indulgence are not the greatest causes of dyspepsia in women. Laziness and self-indulgence are men's attributes rather than women's. I have found that women are usually victims of the atonic variety of dyspepsia—that variety which comes from lack of tone in the stomach, rather than from any disarrangement of its functions. It is sometimes caused by a generally enfeebled condition of the system, but is oftener the result of their getting overtired and then attempting to rest themselves by eating a hearty meal. Women are so reckless in their expenditure of their strength—they go shopping for a whole afternoon, or they call or entertain, or are entertained, without a thought of their bodies, until they suddenly find themselves utterly wearied out. When this exhaustion occurs, instead of lying down for an hour's complete rest before eating anything at all, they sit down to a hearty meal, in order to rest themselves, they think. And the tired out stomach is too weak to digest the load of food that is thrust upon it. By and by a dyspeptic condition is induced, and the poor souls have begun the train of ills that has brought on dyspepsia.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Another Jersey Race Track.

Charles Fleischman, the millionaire yeast manufacturer of New York, is starting a large stock farm near East Millstone, in Somerset county. The Fleischmans have a large distillery at that place. The stock farm is a new venture. A track is being laid out at an expense of $6,000, which will be the finest trotting track in the country. It is proposed to construct a running track also.

Scientific Miscellany.

DOMESTIC SERPENTS.

An essential part of the home in rat-infested districts of Brazil is the gibóia, and small species of boa about 12ft long. This snake is perfectly harmless, sluggish in its movements, and passes the day at the foot of the staircase in the house, scarcely noticing anything that is passing about it. It is kept for the purpose of destroying the rats, for which it hunts after nightfall, crawling here and there, and even penetrating the space above the ceiling and beneath the flooring. As serpents seldom eat, the rats are sought and crushed for the pleasure of the killing. The gibóia becomes attached to its home, finds its way back when taken away, and is duly prized with other fixtures when the house is being sold or let.

TO CURE MALARIA.

Essence of cinnamon has been tried as a spray in hospital wards, and is said to have proven even more useful than eucalyptus in cases of malaria.

THE AVERAGE SIZE OF FAMILIES.

Statistics show the following to be the average size of families in the different European counties: France, 3.05 members; Denmark, 3.51; Hungary, 3.70; Switzerland, 3.94; Austria and Belgium, 4.05; Italy, 4.25; Germany, 4.36; Greece, 4.45; Servia, 5.13; Holland, 4.22; Scotland, 4.47; Italy, 4.56; Spain, 4.65; Russia, 4.83; Ireland, 5.20.

PLANTS THAT GROW IN THE DARK.

Some plants appear to be able to grow and develop in total darkness. A committee of the Royal Horticultural Society has been told of hyacinths that developed colored flowers, although prevented by some accident from coming above the ground.

DEAF MUTES.

According to Rev. A. W. Mann, the pioneer deaf mute preacher, the ratio of the deaf mutes to the hearing is as one to 1,000, so there are over 40,000 in the United States and about 1,000,000 in the world.

EFFECT OF WEAK SIGHT.

An investigation of the eyesight of coal miners has been made by Dr. J. Court, of Stavely, England. It has been his supposition that one of the leading causes of nystagmus (a peculiar oscillation of the eyeballs with which workers in English collieries are much affected) was the position taken in working the coal, but he found that it is chiefly or solely due to the insufficiency of the light supplied by the safety lamps. Out of 524 person using safety lamps, 164 were afflicted with nystagmus, 127 with night blindness, and 61 with photophobia. Among 544 miners always used naked lights, there were only three who had nystagmus, *and they worked with can*dles. In 238 men using torchlights there was not a single case of eye disease.

HAVE BATS A WITH SENSE?

Bats are often seen in the dusk flying rapidly back and forth through the foliage and avoiding even the slenderest branches in a way that seems quite wonderful. An Italian naturalist, Spallanzani, has found that a bat enclosed in a dark space could even pass rapidly through an intricate network of threads without touching any of them. This puzzling power has been suspected to be due to a sixth and unknown sense, and Spallanzani showed the suspicion to be well founded by the cruel experiment of blinding the bat and always using among the threads, when it avoided them with as much ease as before.

ANOTHER WASTE-SAVING IDEA.

All pieces of glass formerly wasted are now put to use for decorative purposes by a firm of manufacturers in Paris. Fragments of various colors are placed in a fire-resisting mold and raised to a high temperature, when a coherent mass is produced, which can be dressed and cut into blocks. These are, of course, irregularly colored. They may be used as artifical marble, and one service of cutting has been found to be ornamental. They are readily secured to walls by mortar. Designs in relief may be pressed upon the surface while still plastic.

ELEVATED RAILWAYS.

The elevated railway proposed for connecting the central part of Naples with the high ground will rest, in some places, on towers 238 feet high, and the sections will be reached by elevators. Electric power will be supplied by a waterfall on the river Serreno.

Rurallistic Whiffs.

In the village of Millington, situated on the line of the Central Railroad between Stirling and Basking Ridge and about eight miles from Plainfield, the farmers are complaining that the corn is drying up in the field, for the want of rain, and because the weather is so hot and dry.

Most of the hustlers are through with the hardest of their work. The hay having been about all gathered and put in the barns and barracks, excepting some on the lowlands, such as bog hay. Water-grass and rye. Their wheat is also almost all housed. Soon the time will be at hand for making cider; then the gay and festive farmer's boy will appear with his long straw, round the cider-barrels, and many are the sour remarks he will receive from his parents, when caught, along with the sly sups of sweet-cider which he may happen to secure without detection.

Gas and City Governments.

Mr. Albert Shaw, writing in The Century, reminds us that to Paris and the French we owe the remodeling of the modern city, making it a bright, clean, healthful and beautiful abode for mankind. An entire change has come over civilization in modern times. A new race of mankind is springing up, the race of city men instead of countrymen. The majority of the inhabitants of a country are gradually drifting from the farms to the cities. This is true all over the world. But Paris alone has first recognized this fact and remodeled the city to make it meet the needs of the new race.

Paris is the model on which the new modern city must be built, with cellars under its streets, with its huge, clean, riverlike sewers, through which a boat may be rowed. Paris, with its broad, straight, brilliantly lighted streets, its shade trees, its miles of parks and everything that can be brought to bear by man in making a city like a beautiful country landscape, is the place after which the rest of the world must pattern in city building. As for us Americans, we may well sit at the feet of the French and learn of them not only in city building, but in municipal administration.

Paris is governed by a council, elected by the people for four years. All come in together and go out together, though they are eligible for re-election. The council itself elects the mayor, and he is sole executive officer under the council. Every department of city administration is under severe inspection. In the matter of gas manufacture, for instance, the French long ago discovered what many Americans have not yet found out, that no real competition can exist between gas companies occupying the same territory. Therefore the six companies which supplied Paris with gas were all thrown into one in 1855 and put under rigid city inspection. There is a municipal gas bureau, whose duty it is to test the gas, watch its manufacture and look after the excellence of the gas fittings that are put into buildings. There is a great engineer-in-chief, who has a hundred assistants. Paris under this system is the best lighted city in the world, and will become still more brilliant when the present plans for lighting by electricity are carried out.

There will be no question about trouble from overhead wires, for in the roomy street cellars of Paris there will be space for all. It must be remembered that to make these cellars under the streets the enthusiastic French ruthlessly tore up everything that obstructed their way, and did not hesitate to destroy sewer or gas main or any existing work. The spirit of the French revolution was still on when the French began to remodel Paris.

Meanwhile Americans may well read and consider how Paris makes a large revenue out of the gas company:

The financial aspects of this charter can be briefly summed up. The company must furnish gas to individuals at a price not exceeding a fixed maximum. It must supply gas for public uses at what is practically the cost of manufacture. It must pay the city 20,000 (ultimately 250,000) francs a year for the right to pipe the streets. It must pay a tax of .50 franc on each cubic meter of gas supplied in Paris. Finally, it must not "water" its stock, but must keep the capitalization at 94,000,000 francs, and after paying 5 1-2 per cent. of net profits as dividends to the shareholders it must divide the surplus profits with the city. Finally, at the expiration of the charter, all plant will revert to the city, which becomes also owner of all the railways, piping, etc., that pertain to the plant. The city's share in the profits has steadily increased until the receipts from the gas company have become a large item of revenue.

In 1870 about 8,000,000 francs were received from the company. For the year 1875 the amount exceeded 8,000,000 francs. In 1885, 12,400,000 francs were received, and in 1888 more than 15,000,000. For several years past the annual payment of the gas company to the city has been approximately 20,000,000 francs. As compared with American cities, this large sum is clear profit, for in no city in this country ordinarily obtain any public revenue from gas companies.

The industrial and commercial resources of the Spanish-American countries are being developed as they never were before. In the same proportion their trade increases with the United States. In the country to which they all look up as to a protector and friend. Our commercial interests of the future point to Mexico, South America and the West Indies more strongly than to Europe. This will be the case more and more as we increase our manufacturing industries. It is plain, therefore, that Spanish is the language to be learned by young people who wish to advance themselves commercially. Spanish-speaking clerks and stenographers are already at a premium.

"Cornering" a staple, such as grain or meat, is against the law in Russia, but in the face of the famine there at present some speculators have succeeded in cornering rye and putting it up to tremendous prices. They accomplished this by bribing government officials. In Russia anybody can do anything by simply paying a high enough price to public officers for the privilege. How thankful we ought to be that we live in a republic where no official ever takes money for winking at an unlawful transaction.

THE MINERS SURRENDER

They Say the Militia Will Not Be Harmed.

PACIFIC PROPOSALS ARE REFUSED.

The Governor Will Not Agree to Anything Except That He Will See the Laws of Tennessee Enforced—The Brutal Shooting of a Convict.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 24.—The miners' meeting at Coal Creek to hear the committee's plan of compromise was attended by about every man in the valley. Speeches were made by J. C. J. Williams, of this city, a candidate before the Democratic convention for congress, and one or two miners. General Williams urged a compromise. The meeting lasted some time and it was difficult for the miners to agree upon a conclusion.

The Governor's Sole Proposition.

The governor denies that there has been any proposition made by him, but that of sustaining the law. He is willing, however, he says, for peace to agree to what could be done to settle the difficulty, as he is a warm supporter of labor.

Finally the miners agreed on a course of action and drew up resolutions containing a proposition to be governed.

Proposal of the Miners.

This proposition is that the troops must be taken home from Knoxville. The convicts can be taken to Coal Creek for sixty days only. The legislature is to meet and the governor is to propose the repeal of the convict lease system. The chief executive is to agree to appoint to the committee, which was last night in conference with Governor Buchanan. The committee arrived here at 6 p. m. It was finally decided at Coal Creek that the citizens' proposition to the miners would be accepted. Men who have watched the proceedings closely say it would have the revolutionary speech of Chancellor Gibson.

The governor was obstinate at a late hour this morning in his conference between the miners' committee and the governor broke up. The committee is much depressed. They say the governor would do nothing at all. Mr. Ingraham, the man who has been prominent in the trouble in Coal Creek, says not a soldier will be harmed if they go to Coal Creek, not a man hurt; but the convicts will be turned loose just as soon as they leave. He says the miners are determined that the convicts shall not be worked in the mines.

A Virtual Surrender.

Several of the committeemen are very angry, but quite in such a mood troops will not be resisted if they go. This city is perfectly quiet and orderly and no trouble of any kind is feared. One of the most conservative men in the city says the proposition to Governor Buchanan from the miners was an insult, and that it would have been a disgrace to the state for the governor to have agreed to open violation of the law, and, more, that he has no power to do so if he desired it.

The Troops Will Move.

Governor Buchanan has just been seen and asked if he would order the militia to Coal Creek today. He replied by saying that the law would be enforced. This is construed in the face of all foregoing statements that the troops will move today.

A Convict Shot Down.

A convict named Harris, who is a sleep walker, was shot here by a guard. The sleep walker awakened and, in his fright, caught hold of the guard's arm. The guard shook him off, then took a lick, and pointed his Winchester. The negro turned to run. The guard fired and the negro fell mortally shot. At the explosion the convicts all rushed themselves from their beds. When they saw what the cause was they sank back and lay without stirring. At their rising the four guards jumped into line ready to open general fire, and the wretches knew that the slightest movement meant death, for none ever heard of a guard being punished for discharging his duty.

Harris died in twenty minutes. Ten minutes afterward the guard relieved from duty came outside, and after puffing a cigar and laughing over the entertaining details of the affair.

They Are All Dead Shots.

Those who have not been in this region can get no exact idea of what a war between mountaineers and state troops would mean. In the first place, these lofty precipitous mountains, which offer some so unknown to all but the mountaineers, are covered with a forest which stretches eighty-five miles in every direction.

The miners and their friends, the mountaineers, know every foot of it. They know all the paths and trails and the innocent looking fortifications. These men are trained in the use of arms from boyhood. Their sole recreation is shooting matches. They all have rifles, and Benjamin Harrison, is president general, and Mrs. W. D. Ca bell, of Virginia, first vice president. Al the state of Georgia has been withdrawn to Washington. The organization is already reported to be the most numerous patriotic society in the country which is made up of ladies.

WELCOMED BY THE PREMIER.

Lord Salisbury's Warm Reception to the World's Fair Commissioners.

LONDON, July 24.—The World's fair commissioners, accompanied by United States Minister Robert T. Lincoln and Mr. Robert S. McCormick, the World's fair commissioner in England, proceeded to the foreign office in Downing street. On arriving there they were ushered into the presence of the British prime minister, Lord Salisbury. Mr. Lincoln then presented Messrs. Butterworth, Peck, Handy and Bullock to his lordship. After cordially greeting the gentlemen of the commission Lord Salisbury entered into an animated conversation with his visitors, closely pressing them with questions with regard to the prospects for the success of the great undertaking and the progress made in the endless details of the work of preparation.

The premier said that from reports which had from time to time reached him he had been led to doubt whether it would be possible to open the great exhibition at the appointed time. He added that he well knew how much trouble attended the prompt and successful execution of such gigantic undertakings. Lord Salisbury listened with the utmost interest to the careful and exhaustive explanation of the preliminary work which was furnished him by the commissioners. The occasion was a most pleasant and satisfactory one, the absence of formality permitting of a rapid interchange of question and reply.

Before the commissioners withdrew Lord Salisbury arose from formally announced that the queen had expressed her august approval of the gentlemen whose names had been submitted to her as members the British royal commission on the World's fair. Mr. Butterworth, replying for the American commissioners, returned the thanks of his colleagues and himself for the prompt acceptance by her majesty's government of the invitation to be represented at the coming exhibition. The cordial and almost particular gratification with which the American commissioners had noted the designation of members of the British council of arts to act with them was pleasing.

Lord Salisbury then invited the American minister, Mr. Lincoln, and the World's fair commissioners to be his guests at a banquet party which he will give in their honor on Saturday next. The American commissioners and the active members of the royal commission were entertained at a dinner given by Sir George Chubb, director of the naval exhibition.

IN THE ELECTRIC WORLD.

Action by and Against Edison—A Decision Against Him.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Judge Wallace has signed an interlocutory decree granting a perpetual injunction against the United States Electric Lighting company. Commissioner Shields was appointed master to determine the amounts of damages and royalties to which the Edison Electric Lighting company or the Edison Company are entitled. The Edison Company says for the United States Electric Lighting company filed notice of appeal.

An Electric Decision Worth Millions.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Judge Alfred J. Coxe, of the United States circuit court, has handed down a decision in the suit of the British Electric company vs. the Electrical Accumulator company, which creates a monopoly for the British Electric company in the manufacture of secondary batteries having a mechanically applied coating of active material. This will be worth millions to the company and the Consolidated Electric Storage company of this city and Philadelphia.

A Wet Indian Cable.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A new cable to the West Indies is among the probabilities of the near future, Mr. F. N. Gisborne, the electrician of the government of Canada, having recommended the construction of a new line. His report has been submitted to a London syndicate and the necessary capital is at hand. The line recommended will be an extension of the cable between Halifax and Bermuda and will terminate at Denmark.

The Edison Company Sued.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Charles J. Perkins has filed a bill of complaint in the circuit court asking for an injunction against the Edison General Electric company. He alleges that he is the first to have improvement in circuit breakers for electric lamps, which he assigned to the United States Electric Lighting company, and which, he charges, the Edison company is making use of without authority.

A Suit for a Shock.

BOSTON, July 24.—Thomas Gately has brought suit against the Boston Electric Light company for $30,000 damages for injuries received by coming in contact with one of the company's wires. He claims that he has been unable to work since.

THE INFLUX OF HEBREWS

Their Kinsmen Preparing to Receive Them in America.

DRIVEN FROM THE CZAR'S COUNTRY.

Plans of the Jewish Alliance of America for Caring for the Thousands of Refugees from Russia—Every Jew Is Expected to Lend a Helping Hand.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—The Jewish Alliance of America has issued the following appeal and plan of action with regard to the Russian-Jewish immigration: It may be stated beyond question that if the annual influx of the many thousands of immigrants could by some effective system be quickly distributed through the vast interior of the United States it would prove a desirable acquisition to the respective localities in which they settled and also speedily better their own condition. It is, however, manifest that the assimilation of these immigrants is retarded through their concentration in the larger communities. If some outlet into the more thinly settled districts could be devised by which the numerous places throughout the country, particularly in the southern and western states, which are soliciting new settlers, could have their demands supplied from the overcrowded cities, then a great desideratum would be accomplished and the most beneficent result obtained.

United Efforts Needed.

To compass such ends the Jewish Alliance of America has been organized, and the movement has now become sufficiently extended to permit practical work; this direction being undertaken. United efforts by Jews in all quarters of the Union will be potent in doing what is required. Wherever there are Jews ready to assist in placing a few of the newcomers. Ietevery member of the company give a little time and effort to guide them where they can settle profitably for a living, and it will be found that in one place a few families may be provided for, in another place opportunities can be given to still more. Peemlary help will be given by members of the alliance, from the Baron de Hirsch trust, and from the liberality of our community.

Their Forced Expatriation.

The immediate purpose to be kept in view is the settlement of small Jewish communities in the towns and villages of the interior throughout the country. It is manifest that if two or three families could be settled anywhere under self supporting conditions they would soon become the nucleus of further growth. Such has been the history of many well established communities of Jews in the smaller towns of the country. The only reason why the present immigrants cannot will be left to their own devices, as were their predecessors, is that the immigration of the latter was a normal process, while that of the Russian Jew is abnormal through their forced expatriation and consequent poverty and helplessness.

With these facts in view it is now proposed that the established branches of small Jewish communities be furthered by the Jewish alliance through the medium of its branch organizations.

The Officers of the Alliance.

The principal officers of the alliance are as follows: President, Simon Muhr, of Philadelphia; vice presidents, Ferdinand Levy, New York; Dr. E. W. Schoneberger, Baltimore, and Dr. Charles D. Spivak, Philadelphia; secretary, Barnard Harris, Philadelphia; treasurer, Hon. Simon Wolf, Washington. The central office is at 622 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

THE SHARON CASE RECALLED.

A Woman Threatens to Publish Some Sensational Correspondence.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—A sensation was caused here by the publication of the fact that a bundle of letters written by Justice Field and Francis J. Newlands, Senator Sharon's son-in-law, and bearing on the peculiar procedure in the Sharon case, were in the hands of Mrs. Sarah Mitchell, the landlady of Newlands' confidential manager, Charles Livingstone.

Many shady things are alleged to have occurred in the famous divorce trial. Senator Sharon spent money like water to defeat Sarah Althea.

Mrs. Mitchell demands $50,000 from the Sharon estate for the letters, as she declares they are worth that money should she deliver them to Sarah Althea. Young Sharon and Newlands both assert that no such letters are in existence. Justice Field also says she may print any letters of his which she holds.

DEATH AT NINEVEH.

Three Men Killed and a Mill Wrecked by an Explosion.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 24.—The boiler of Lee's steam sawmill at Nineveh exploded late Thursday afternoon, killing James Shaw, Frederick Wheeler and another man whose name could not be learned.

The building was blown to atoms and the bodies of all the men were torn to pieces. The cause of the accident is not known.

President Polk Defines the Issue.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Polk, of the Farmers' Alliance, says he has been quoted incorrectly as saying that the great issue was the tariff and free coinage, and that while these issues the Alliance would all rally around the sub-treasury bill. "The issue is the reform of our entire financial system. Neither the issuance of more money nor the reduction of the tax taxes will alone do the people any good."

Willing to Go on in Gum Boots.

PITTSBURG, July 24.—The presentation of "As You Like It" on the lawn at the Kennawr hotel, which was to have been given Helena was to be put off until tonight on account of a storm. Miss Coghlan was willing to go on in gum boots, but it would have been impossible to get an audience to brave the elements.

Kate Kirby Arrested.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Kate Kirby, alias Nettie Hamburger, alias De Ford, alias Howe, the woman said to have been associated with Howe, the diamond thief, was arrested in Baltimore. Her father, Captain Kirby, owns a number of tugboats and is a wealthy man and universally respected in Baltimore.

Secured by "Straw Bondsmen."

NEW YORK, July 24.—The World claims that several bondsmen of the paving contractors in New York are not worth a cent. One of them, Joseph H. Marshall, is on record as being worth $130,000. Mr. Marshall is now a fugitive from justice, and has admitted on oath that he is not worth a cent.

WITH THE SEARCH LIGHTS.

The Naval Militia Press the Clouds Into Their Service.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The second day's exercises of the naval militia were very interesting and a great improvement on their previous effort. Russell B. Harrison was the interested spectator, and the afternoon and evening drill was witnessed by thousands of people. By far the most interesting exhibition was the instruction in search light and signaling given last evening. At 9o'clock fourteen powerful search lights got a focus on the fleecy clouds above. At the end of the rays from each light, which were cut out short by the interposition of the clouds, sharply defined spots were noticed. By means of these spots a system of electric telegraphy similar to the Morse system can be carried on in the clouds, and can be read, all conditions being favorable, a distance of sixty miles.

After a thorough explanation of this feature to the reserves the lights were turned so as to sweep the horizon and the surface of the water. It was a novel and interesting exhibition of rapidly changing views. Then came the search for torpedoes. The disks were reflected still further, exposing to view with vivid distinctness objects far under the water.

After the search light display was over an instruction was given in electric light signals. The signaling consists of flashing white and red colored electric lamps at the masthead. The Morse system is used. The signals which were given from the flagship Minnesota were read almost immediately answered by repeating the signals on each ship of the line. It was a beautiful and impressive sight. Then the very pretty system of signaling consists of colored signal balls fired from a pistol made for the purpose, was fired. This ended the night's drill.

The formation of the naval reserve and its connection with the presence of the white squadron has had the effect of calling attention to the importance of the navy and has placed it more in touch with the people.

READY FOR FRANK SLAVIN.

Sullivan Has Put Up a $1,000 Forfeit. The Fitzsimmons-Hall Match.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Charley Johnson, of Brooklyn, on behalf of John L Sullivan, called at The Herald office and deposited $1,000 to bind a match with Frank P. Slavin, to fight for the championship of the world. The money is to be held until Sept. 1, Slavin or Sullivan here to cover. Johnson insists that the fight take place in America. The news that Sullivan had posted money was cabled at once to England.

Killed in a Prize Fight.

PITTSBURG, July 24.—Henry Boyd killed John Myford in a prize fight near Monongahela City. The men had quarreled over a girl and decided to settle their dispute in the prize ring. After the fourth round Boyd landed heavily with his left on Myford's jugular. Myford fell heavily to the ground and died in a few minutes. Boyd surrendered himself to the authorities. Both men were young coal miners.

That Offer from New Orleans.

ST. PAUL, July 24.—In behalf of the Southern Athletic club, George M. Franks made a final proposition to bring Fitzsimmons and Hall together in the Crescent City within ten days for a purse of $9,000 and all expenses or a purse of $10,000 and expenses for a fight in October. Fitzsimmons is favorable to the acceptance of the first proposition.

He Has Killed Two Women and Says He Will Slay Many More.

PARIS, July 24.—Within a week two murders of the Jack the Ripper type have occurred in Marseilles. On each occasion a man engaging in a Italian game, accompanied by a woman, took a room in a lodging house.

In each case the woman was found dead in the morning, having been unmistakably strangled to death and the body afterward horribly mutilated. A letter has been received by the police authorities, purporting to have been written by the murderer, stating that the crimes were the beginning of a series.

"BLAINE AND GORMAN."

That Is the Ticket Colonel Dudley Has Named.

MAINE'S STATESMAN A CANDIDATE

At Least That Is What His Intimate Friend, Ex-Postmaster Manley, of Augusta, Is Reported to Have Said—The Secretary Steadily Getting Better.

BOSTON, July 24.—Colonel W. W. Dudley, of Indiana, who passed through the city today, was not at all averse to unbosoming himself regarding next year's campaign. He thinks that Blaine and Gorman will be the opposing standard bearers. As to the latter, the colonel said: "If I were a betting man I wouldn't be afraid to wager a pretty good sum on his nomination. He is satisfactory to the south. The delegates from that section are not going to support northern men who are opposed to what they suppose to be their best interests."

Blaine the Man.

When asked about the Republican position he said with equal promptness: "President Harrison will not be nominated if Mr. Blaine will consent to have his name used in that connection. In the event of Blaine's wishing to be a candidate the question simply becomes a doubtful one. I can say for President Harrison that his administration has been a clean and honest one of public affairs. During the past sixty years but two presidents have been re-elected—namely, Lincoln and Grant. Outside of those two incumbents have been renominated at the expense of unity in the party."

Concerning Quay's Resignation.

Colonel Dudley does not believe the Republican national committee will accept Chairman Quay's resignation, which he supposes will be tendered at the approaching meeting.

"I am," he said, "personally opposed to accepting his resignation, and the members of the committee with whom I have talked feel just as I do about it. This is no time to let Mr. Quay go. The members of the national committee have the highest regard for him. They esteem him as a worthy and able man, and there is no good reason why they should let him go at this time."

He Says the Alliance Will Fail.

In reply to a question about the Alliance he said: "In my opinion it will fall of its own weight. It's a sporadic movement, which had its origin in the dissatisfaction of the agricultural interests, growing out of crop failures. As soon as the cause which brought it into being are removed it will disappear. It is already fast losing ground. The last time I was in the west it was plain to see that the Alliance was losing whatever foothold it had possessed. No, I don't think there is any likelihood of the Farmers' Alliance amounting to very much next year."

He Says Blaine Will Run.

DETROIT, July 24.—Joseph Manley, ex-postmaster of Augusta, Me., and a warm friend of Secretary Blaine, says that Mr. Blaine's health has been almost fully restored and that he will accept the presidential nomination if it is tendered to him in 1892.

FORGIVEN BY THE WOMEN.

Parnell's Marriage to Mrs. O'Shea Has Helped Him with Them.

DUBLIN, July 24.—The feature of the Parnell convention which opened in this city was the large proportion of ladies who crowded the galleries and the exuberance of their enthusiasm. Every utterance of Mr. Parnell was cheered by them, and the cunning fire of his eloquence was among them attested the efficacy of his marriage as a factor in re-establishing his popularity, at least with the women. The day's session was devoid of especial interest, one of the delegates in the heat of discussion called Mr. Harrington a "Pasha" in resentment of his arbitrary tactics, whereupon the delegate was grabbed and incontinently hustled into the street.

Several other disturbers later essayed to inject an element of liveliness into the proceedings, but they, too, were cast out amid the applause of the occupants of the galleries.

In his opening address Mr. Parnell, in referring to Mr. Balfour's promises with regard to the Irish local government bill, said that he would join Mr. Healy in making the measure as comprehensive as possible. Mr. Parnell then charged the Healyites with being overanxious to take office, and urged the Irish members to refuse to do so until Ireland had obtained complete control over its own destinies. The convention has adopted a programme which includes demands for manhood suffrage for the people of Ireland, reforms in the land laws and the reinstatement of evicted tenants upon the holdings from which they have been driven.

The Czar Lionizes the French.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 24.—The French squadron was enthusiastically received at Cronstadt. The Grand Duke Alexis, admiral of the fleet, met the French admiral and his officers on board the Russian cruiser Asia. The bands played the "Marseillaise" and the French sailors cheered. The French officers were entertained at a banquet at the Peterhof palace by the czar last evening.

Eloped with a Constable.

Rev. Ballard Accused.

A Bridegroom at Ninety.

Mrs. E. L. Davenport's Obsequies.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 24.—The remains of Mrs. E. L. Davenport, accompanied by her daughter, Fanny Davenport, the actress, were taken in a special car from here to Sestro, where the funeral was held today.

WHY NECKS ARE BONY.

AMERICAN GIRLS' NECKS NOT AS PLUMP AS THEY SHOULD BE.

Why the Corset Is to Blame for Many Irregularities in the Forms of Handsome Women—How Many Deformities May Be Corrected by Vigilance.

How many American girls do you know with a well poised head supported by a graceful neck rising from straight, well set shoulders? How many have arms of which it can by any stretch of the imagination be said, as Heine wrote of the arms of Gisli, "They are those the Venus de Milo has lost?" How many have not those horrible hollows on either side of the throat, known for some mysterious reason as "salt cellars," instead of kissing dimples? What is the reason of it all, and what are we going to do about it?

One must be forgiven for a repetition of ancient history, but it cannot be denied that the corset is responsible for much that is disappointing in the beauty of the American throat and shoulders. A western physician, who has been devoting the past fifteen years to the study of the human figure avers as the result of his investigations among different nationalities that the American girl chest is deformed and has a waist all out of proportion to her body.

The average waist measure is 39 per cent. of the height of the figure, while the waist of the immortal Venus is 47 per cent. of her stature. But the fragile American woman wears a waist that is only 34 per cent. of her height. It isn't romantic, but it is true to say that a woman's liver is larger than a man's, though her heart is smaller, and she is more disastrously affected by pressure about the waist than a man would be. The compressed liver is the secret of many a bad complexion, but of course has nothing to do with the hollows in the neck.

The image with which provident nature has inclosed our vital organs is an obstinate and aggressive piece of mechanism. You press it in about the waist and it is bound to throw itself out somewhere, and, that to the shoulders, chest or abdomen, where in the most undesirable place. But that isn't the worst of it.

Take a young girl in the transition period, when from rapid growth all her organs are easily disturbed and indolently inclined, and do her up in a corset, and the poise of the body, which is as delicate as it is beautiful, is destroyed about the waist. The body doesn't hold itself up at all, but depends entirely upon the steel support, and leans this this way or that, as the corset allows.

That throws the head out of poise, too, and lest it fall too far forward on the spine, because it seems easier to support itself there, and so the different processes crystallize into womanhood, all out of trim and just as they happen to feel inclined, and that is the chief reason that artists complain that they find few women with a good back and shoulders, or if they have those they develop an awkward angle at the neck by carrying the head too far forward, or have prominent shoulder blades, or a trick of holding one side of the figure in advance of the other.

Corsets are not so detrimental to the fully developed woman as the rantern try to establish, and a woman dressed in anything but a Mother Hubbard wrapper is more comfortable with them than without them. If mothers would insist on dressing their daughters in the loose, comfortable freaks worn by children, and never introduce them to corsets until they were eighteen years old, there would be more throats that didn't need covering, like that of beautiful Queen Louise, whose pictures are always taken with a scarf across the neck.

Another thing that mothers could do to insure the beauty of the coming woman is to feed her well, for just at the time when a girl needs most nourishing food she is apt to cultivate a morbid taste for sweetmeats and pickles, and few mothers appreciate that the diet of such a girl needs quite as much supervision as that of a budding boy.

And, finally, taking a lesson from the little, straight peasant maiden, with the beautifully poised, graceful neck, who spends her life carrying burdens on her head, let the slight, stooping girl walk for ten, twenty or even thirty minutes a day with an ever increasing weight upon her head, until the lazy muscles of the throat, through exercise, become firm, and unconsciously hold the burden of the head steadily and gracefully.—New York Sun.

There is, of course, no necessity of adding that light gymnastic exercises of various kinds, and particularly outdoors, are more desirable than any of the patent braces, which are as cruel to wear as they are ineffectual in result. But there are plenty of women who are quite a long time ago that are still obliged, through conventionality, to uncover a neck and shoulders of which a cold and cruel world makes unkind criticism.

Your efforts are not so certain of success as they would have been twenty years ago, but it's worth trying now to fill the hollow with firm flesh.

In the first place, don't take off your corsets, but loosen them. Of course we understand that you will sight now, and you could turn around in them without unfastening their clasps, but untie the laces and let your long, deep inhalations fix their size for a little while.

Every night and every morning throw your hands back until they strike behind you, at first ten, then twenty, fifty, and a hundred times.

With your chest held high and your eyes on the frieze of the room, take twenty full breaths, inhaled slowly and exhaled forcibly.

Turn your head slowly around on the trunk one way until you see a few consecutive pictures, then the other, and then another way, all very slowly and carefully, and only a few times in the beginning. You have heard all this before, but have you tried it? And if you did try it, how many nights in the week did you forget it, and how many mornings were you too late to spend time? And how much over a month did you persevere in your efforts?

And while you are working thus about your neck your arms will have been growing plumper and fuller all the time above the elbows, and if you take a pair of dumbbells and turn them sharply and vigorously in your hands, the hands down at the sides, right and left, and the hands stretched out at the sides the same number of times, straight in front of you, over your head, each eight times, you will know by the aching muscles in your forearm that you have exercised them most decidedly.

These motions are simple and natural rather than erratic effort. Five minutes' exercise every night is of more value than ten minutes every other night, or half an hour once a week. Don't be disappointed if no very marked results appear for six months, and then you will have the happy reward of success, and success is worth the effort in these days of low-cut afternoon gowns and transparent sleeves.—New York Sun.

LOVE.

Let dear my brothers, what shall my heart say
Of love, the fair theme of song told by God
On earth, by the angels? Love is the sweetest
Thing was brown, and make them beautiful.
And radiant as a sun brimmed May morning.
It is a staff to help men up the heights
Where saints sit throned, and fair virginities,
Where never sweet spring, to hide or pallor,
Or lyre, or others. Yea, it is a soul
Set in the heart of life, to guide and bless,
And make all fair and lovely. Love is sweet
Of more consummate preciousness; a god,
Whose service hath called back the golden days,
Where men sat in the sun, and luted lead,
For very joy of living; when clear stream
Ran laughing to the pitchers maidens held
Aprone to catch them, and fair fruited boughs
Shook sun kissed treasures down to waiting mouths
As red as pomegranates, and sweeter far.
Yea, more than this is love; it is the Christ,
The very spirit of life, that shuns not death,
But grows the brighter for the hand clasping!
Though ye lose all things, see ye lose not love;
Without it, all my words are thistle down,
Or loose of pen that, or breath of desert dust.
Unfruitful, save to ride on the wings o' the wind.
Farewell, my brothers! see ye lose not love,
—Evelyn Pyne in World's Advance Thought.

KATE SANBORN'S HOME.

An Old Country House Near Boston and Its Queer Host for 349 a Year.

After the din of travel and the intricacies of the streets of Boston, it is more than agreeable to hear the railway conductor call "Merry Meadows" in the quiet, exceedingly rural suburb of the "Hub" is reached. "Breezy Meadows" is but a few steps away, just far enough for the visitor to observe the eccentricities of an ancient farmhouse turned into prettiness and a most hospitable appearance in the midst of wide fields under culture, gardens and many of the adjuncts of farm life.

A wide piazza has been stretched around one corner of the old domicile, which is filled with easy chairs, while lanterns of all kinds and shapes, pretty and grotesque, and a wire stretched from post to post, filled with cow bells, sleigh bells and dinner bells, forms a screen to and from the roadside. It is a rambling old house, with many additions, and when Miss Kate Sanborn says, "Welcome to my home, and see how funny it all is," one is unprepared for its many comforts, its quaint tastefulness and elegancies. The corridor is "funny." It is rough with an abrupt terrace, but has been made attractive with an ancient Dutch clock and pictures lining the walls.

To the left is a small drawing room,

Postmaster E. R. Pope, of Plainfield is recuperating from official cares at the Grummercy.—Asbury Park Journal.

Mrs. Thomas E. Warman and daughter of Grove street, North Plainfield, are enjoying the mountain air at Mt. Pocono.

Miss S. E. Rogers, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. L. W. Rogers of this city, were the guests this week of Mrs. H. K. Ramsey of Bound Brook.

Mrs. VanKueren and children of Easton, Pa., are the guests of Mrs. VanKeuren's father, Mr. A. S. Coriell of New Market.

Mr. F. S. Browne and family, who are guests at the Albion, left to-day for Asbury Park. They will register at the Belvidere House.

Mr. Seeley Edsall and Mr. Halsey C. Compton of this city have been spending the week at Woodbridge and Seaward on a sailing trip.

Mary Wagoner of Dunellen, who fell from a cherry tree and injured her spine a short time ago, has been admitted as a patient to the Muhlenberg Hospital. Her friends do not think she will recover.

Mr. Charles B. Brown, accompanied by the delegates who expect to participate in "Northfield" gathering at Halfway to-morrow afternoon, will leave the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. rooms at 2.30 p. m.

John Clark, who for a number of years past conducted a peanut stand on the corner of Front and Somerset streets, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital at about nine o'clock last evening. One daughter survives him. His son died about seven months ago.

Borough Councilman Sebring, after having passed through a very serious illness with pleurisy, is believed to be out of danger, although he will be unable to leave his bed for several days yet. Mrs. Sebring, who was taken ill at about the same time is now convalescent. Mr. Sebring got wet in a rain storm while out visiting and caught a cold which resulted in the disease mentioned.

Miss Elsie Blackford of New Market is sick at the advanced age of 16 years. Her recovery is not probable. The farm on which she lives, that of Mrs. Augustus Blackford, has been in possession of the same family for many generations. Upon the place are several relics of olden times, among which is a sleigh which was in use during the Revolutionary war and which, according to family tradition, was frequently appropriated and used by the British during their occupation of this section at that time.

OLD REMINISCENCES.

AS TOLD BY AN OLD RESIDENTER.

Freeholder Vanderbeck Tells How They Did Things in the Old Days When Plainfield was Young.

Mr. Andrew Vanderbeck, Sr., celebrated his sixty-second birthday yesterday. You wouldn't guess it from his appearance, but it's so. Mr. Vanderbeck has a wonderful stock of pleasant reminiscences from his long residence in Plainfield. He moved here when Plainfield was a village, and the smallest kind of a village at that. All that portion of Plainfield surrounding aristocratic Crescent avenue was a common where cows were pastured. Fourth of July celebrations held, and games played. Parkavenue, or, as it was then called, Cherry street, was a street of a few blocks only and was laid out to its present length by Messrs. Vanderbeck and "Jim" Martine.

These enterprising gentlemen then decided that Cherry street was not a suitable name, and quietly took down and repainted all the signs one night and replaced them with Park avenue on. From that time dates the new name.

The Central Railroad was then a wonderful novelty, and not in very good working order either. About two or three trains were run daily. A big bell on top of the station warned the inhabitants when a train was coming and there was a general "skurry" to see it pass. Frequently on a grade the passengers would have to get out and push the train.

"Old Dave" Bolce used to go to Bound Brook in the morning with a coal car drawn by two horses. He would load up with coal, and come back in the afternoon after the last train had passed.

In 1857 an amusing thing (to us in 1891), happened. There was no currency of any kind.

To overcome this difficulty slips of pasteboard were used, with "I promise to pay Bill Smith 25 cents" or some such legend thereon. These obtained general circulation.

Later, when money came in, these slips, by general consent, were taken to "old man" Pruden for redemption. After redeeming them, he, for awhile, tossed them into a waste-basket, and emptied them into the back yard. Some smart urchin discovered them, and, with his companions, re-passed them on Mr. Pruden.

The fraud was not discovered for some time, after which Mr. Pruden was very careful to burn all the slips received.

Property also was interestingly low then. A large tract of land, covering in extent, embracing from Plainfield ave. ane eastward, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth street, to Crescent avenue, with the old homestead, was sold for $10,000. The villagers thought the purchaser crazy. The idea, $10,000 for a 60-acre farm!

Three years later he sold 40 acres for $10,000; leaving him 20 acres and the homestead.

Think of 40 acres of ground on Seventh, Eighth or Ninth street now-a-days. $10,000 wouldn't buy an acre.

DAMAGES FOR THE PLAINTIFF.

An Award of $35 for Poisoning Chickens.

The case of Lyons Walpole vs. Thomas and Mary Boyle, came up for trial before Justice Nodyne and a jury yesterday afternoon.

All the parties interested hail from Scotch Plains. Walpole is a chicken fancier and claims to raise some valuable game fowls.

Through his lawyer, Wm. A. Coddington, he brought suit to recover $200 damages.

He claimed that the Doyles had poisoned about eighteen valuable fowls by distributing Paris green and other poisonous drug along the fence line of his property and theirs.

Mr. W. K. McClure defended the Doyles. Witnesses testified pro and con and at 3.30 o'clock the jury retired. After deliberating about three-quarters of an hour they returned with a verdict awarding the plaintiff $35 damages.

Was the Place Robbed?

A few days ago a young man who keeps a tailoring establishment on North avenue reported to the police that the place had been robbed. The affair was reported in The News at the time. Captain Grant has been investigating the matter and this morning he visited Dreier's pawnbroker's establishment.

Among the articles the proprietor of the clothing store claimed were missing was a silver watch. In looking over the pawn-broker's books the captain discovered that a silver watch had been pawned in the name of the owner of the establishment two days before the alleged robbery. He then came to the conclusion that the place had not been robbed at all and gave up any further search for the missing articles.

—Three Dunellen young men took a ride on Wednesday to New Market behind a speedy pony. While on their way they encountered another party inclined to race. All went well until the driver of the speedy pony went to turn a corner, when the carriage upset and the occupants spilled into the street. It was a general smashup. What was left of the wagon was taken to Adams' repair shops, and the owner, accompanied by his friends, calmly led the animal home.

ANOTHER SECRET MEETING.

According to a Story To-day in a New York Paper.

The combine had a supper together last evening according to their usual custom prior to doing some mischief. The Plainfield correspondent of the New York Times is employed in the office of the combine organ, and it is supposed speaks by the card in the notice above referred to from the Times, and which is given in full below:

SCHEMING TO DEFEAT KEAN.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 24.—A secret meeting of the "Big Six" of the Plainfield Common Council that may result in important public measures, is to be held at the home of Charles K. Moore this evening. Mr. Moore is the contractor to whom was sold, by the Plainfield Common Council of last year, a franchise for the construction and operation of water works in Plainfield. He was prevented by John Kean, Jr., of Elizabeth, from completing his contract, and Mr. Kean himself got control of the works and is pushing them to completion.

Now that Mr. Kean, who openly boasts of his control of the city of Elizabeth, is seeking to secure a similar monopolistic grip on Plainfield, Fanwood, Westfield and Crawford through wholesale water works, sewerage, and other enterprises which have for their foundation the looting of the townships affected. Mr. Moore and the "Big Six" have determined, it is said, on a plan to fight and defeat his machinations. At to-night's secret meeting their scheme to thwart Kean is to be put into practical shape. The public awaits the result with great interest.

The question which will naturally occur to the reader is why a public body—or a majority thereof—should allow itself to be overreached by Mr. Kean secretly, if there is nothing crooked in its doings? The public certainly have some rights in the matter.

Mr. Moore seems to be acting like the dog in the manger. He obtained a franchise from the Common Council some two years ago and every reasonable chance to build us a system of Water Works. In the opinion of persons familiar with the subject it is probably fortunate for Plainfield that he proved himself incapable of carrying out his schemes, and that when he failed his successors changed to a method which is practicable and seems infinitely superior.

As our readers may remember Mr. Kean loaned Moore money, and all Moore had to do was to pay or secure the comparatively trifling loans to hold his prize. It was his failure which compelled Mr. Kean in self-protection to take the property—then of little or no value—over. Instead of combining with the company holding a State charter and composed of old and substantial citizens of Plainfield who are now making the works valuable.

Mr. Moore has a perfect right to construct the works, but he cannot claim he may feel he has a grievance against, but what business has the Common Council of Plainfield—merely to serve Mr. Moore—to become mixed up in any differences—if any exist—between the Plainfield, Fanwood, Westfield and "Crawford" (wherever that may be)? Verily, as the correspondent puts it, "the public awaits the result with great interest," but the interest is to see the combine taught that they cannot disgrace a city like Plainfield, and jeopardize public interests generally, and to have them prevented from doing further mischief during their few remaining months of power.

Knights Templar Field Day.

Grand Commander Joseph E. Fulper, of Washington, N. J., has issued a general order, directing the various commanderies of this jurisdiction to assemble for inspection, parade and review at Atlantic City on Thursday, August 27th, and dismissed at the United States Hotel of that place, as his headquarters. For several years these affairs have taken place at Asbury Park, and have usually attracted large gatherings. Commanderies throughout the State are making preparations to attend, and in many cases large numbers as to make the gathering one of unusual magnificence. Distinguished brothers from other jurisdictions are expected.

Fell in a Fit.

Shortly after nine o'clock last evening a young man whose name is John Stover fell in a fit on West Second street. In falling his head struck the curb and an ugly gash was inflicted from which blood flowed profusely. When he recovered sufficiently he was carried to a near-by drug store where his wounds were dressed. He was then taken to his home on Broadway in a carriage.

Mrs. Gabic's Appeal.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Will you please state in your paper (and send a paper to the New York World so that my husband, who is in New York, will see it) that our child is dangerously ill—so low that I fear it will not live. I am overcome with grief, and feel that if my husband knew of our distress he would come and do something for his sick child. I am in great need, and have not the proper things to give my baby.

He told me he would do what was right, but he didn't give me a cent, when he was home.

He is working in New York, I do not know where, but I know he reads the Sunday World, and must do something for us.

Mrs. Avery is living with her sister in New York, and my husband is paying her board, while his family are here starving. He may get his pay some day, for God is just.

Please publish this, and oblige

The McKinley Bill in a Nutshell.

These seven things are a few results of the McKinley bill, which went into effect the first day of July:

1. Giving 22 pounds of sugar to the consumer instead of 12, for $1.

2. Large reductions in nearly all articles of iron and steel in common use.

3. Large increase in the free list on articles not produced in America.

4. Placing on the free list all the fibres from which binding twine is made; hence the reduction of binding twine from 35 per cent. to 7-10 of 1 cent per pound.

5. Increased duties on farm products, which favor the farmers of this nation.

6. A duty which is now giving poultry raisers 2 and 3 cents extra per dozen for their eggs.

7. Reciprocity, which is opening up new and rich markets for the products of our farms and manufactories, and breaking down barriers which nations in Europe have erected against American pork and beef.

To Celebrate Labor Day.

A committee of the Plainfield Gesang and Turning Society met in the Saengerand Turner Hall on Somerset street last evening and decided to properly observe Labor Day. There is to be a street parade, which will be participated in by visiting societies, shooting, etc. The festivities will conclude with a grand picnic in Keller's Grove.

KEEP YOUR ROOM COOL.

Even in the City the Trials of the Dog Days May be Avoided.

Some people never know what is meant by the "expression" of a living room, or that rooms have characters, and peaceful sometimes and sometimes restless. To these practical, elemental folk, a room is simply a place to stay in, and should be orderly; a chair is simply a thing to be sat in, and should be comfortable. They are bewildered by the sufferings of their over-sensitive friends, whose parlors are their worlds and whose invitations to dine, dress or house, furnishing; to whom an ugly, gaudy hearth is a distress even when covered over with a rug, and whose appetites are completely taken away by the sight of purple lilacs in a bright blue jar.

Between these extremes are the vast majority of us who are, consciously or unconsciously, influenced for weal or woe by the aspect of our rooms, soothed by the peaceful interior or wearied by a glib, inharmonious one. And since Summer is here, it behooves us to make our homes so fresh and cool in appearance that we shall be deceived into comfort when the thermometer is reaching out toward 100 degrees.

Masses of green or foliage in the corners of our living rooms aid greatly in giving a cool aspect. It is a good reason for a country tramp that we need new specimens of green branches for our city parlor; and in the blessed country can be found many a fern to take home prettily by keeping in them jars—always freshly filled—of flowering shrubs or tall ferns, the three-branched brake, for example, or even boughs of silver birch. It is true that the glass jars fashionable for the corner cupboard are rather too dear, but fifty cent flower pots, with corks in their drain holes, answer quite well, and the cheaper sort of umbrella jars are also satisfactory

A NEW JERSEY PARLOR.

A deliciously cool room was a little parlor in a New Jersey village last Summer. It was freshly papered and painted in delicate buff; there was gray and blue matting on the floor and an unnecessary but pleasing Japanese rug. All this was ordinary enough; what was out of the common was the drapery in the room, which had all come from the Sandwich Islands. A woman who lived in Honolulu had noticed and commended the little blue and white towels which her native cook wore as turbans. He was delighted with the compliment, and volunteered to get some of them for her. They cost her, indeed, very little, and, he said, and were as cheap as possible. For months afterward he watched the importations of two-penny towels, and three or four at a time, collected a vast supply, choosing the biggest and best, or those which he considered prettiest. Of them his mistress fashioned portieres, window curtains, table cloths and furniture covers for the far away parlor, where she had known many happy days. She patiently joined the largest towels in a sort of continuous cork, applying discs cut from the similar ones where the seams were ugly. As far as she could she carried out the original designs, which, since they had not been destined for the American market, were excellent. On one curtain were those breezy swallow flights, in which the Japanese revel; on another rat little flies were swimming in most sketchily indicated water. The designs were in a very good blue, on a creamy ground. The towels were like Japanese cheese cloth though much heavier.—Newark Journal.

OVER A CENTURY OLD.

Mrs. Sarah Heath of New Jersey, who was Born in 1780.

Near the village of Pequack, Somerset county, there resides Mrs. Sarah Heath, who passed her one hundred and second birthday yesterday.

Mrs. Heath was born about three miles from Flemington, the county seat of Hunterdon, near what is now known as Rockafellow's Mills, July 24th, 1789. She lived with her parents at her birthplace until she was thirteen years of age. Here she received her schooling in rural Somerset county, to a farm now owned and occupied by John Whitenack. She remained with her parents until 1809, when she married Robert Heath. Mr. Heath built a house near by, where they resided until his death, in 1866. Then she lived with her son and grandchild until July 24th, 1884, when she commenced boarding with the family of Justice of the Peace David M. Todd, where she still is.

The result of her union was four children, but one of whom survives. This one is William Heath, who is hale and active at the age of seventy-four years. He lives in Lambertville, Hunterdon county. There are living five grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren. One grandchild, Robert Heath, resides in Denver, Col., another, J. Anderson Heath, at Columbia, S. C. The others reside in adjoining counties.

Mrs. Heath's health is good, and the same can be said of her appetite. Her sense of sight is nearly extinct; she can but discern day from night. She walks around the house with the aid of canes. Her memory of events that transpired more than half a century ago is excellent, but of things of a late date it is not so perfect.

YANKEE TARS DROWNED

Cruiser Condell Makes a Fatal Mistake.

THE PENSACOLA'S LAUNCH SUNK

Balmaceda's Warship Mistook the American Boat for an Insurgent Craft and Blew Her Up with a Torpedo—Five of Our Sailors Were Lost.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The World's special from Callao, Peru, says: The famous old man-of-war Pensacola, of the United States navy, has just arrived here after an exciting run along the Chilian coast, and I send you the first news of a thrilling accident at Arica, Chili, by which five sailors of the Pensacola lost their lives. The steam launch belonging to the man-of-war was blown up in the harbor of Arica by the Chilian torpedo boat Condell and every man on board killed.

A List of the Dead.

The list of the dead includes:
O. Smith, New York.
William Hayes, Brooklyn.
Frank Peckham, Newark, N. J.
Teddy O'Rourke, Huntington, L. I.
Arthur E. Dykeman, Pearsalls, L. I.
And the coxswain of the launch.

The attack took place on the evening of June 1. The Condell is one of Balmaceda's torpedo cruisers from the port of Santiago, and was on the lookout for the ships of the insurgents. She stole into the harbor of Arica shortly after sunset on a night of fog and objects at a distance of 100 yards could not be discerned with any distinctness. The steam launch had left the Pensacola on the regular evening trip to the shore, and was making her way slowly when suddenly those on the man-of-war saw the little boat lifted completely out of the water, as if a subterranean monster had risen up under the launch and tossed it in the air.

Sank to Rise No More.

There was the dull echo of a half smothered explosion, and then wreckage was scattered in every direction. Not a sound of a human voice was heard. The awful thing that followed told plainly that the five men aboard the launch had either been killed outright or so maimed as to be unable to make their condition known.

It Was a Serious Mistake.

The search light of the Pensacola was brought into play and at the same instant orders were given to man the boats. When the broad rays of the flash light made specters against the great curtain of fog the Condell was discovered, only a short distance away.

The Chilian cruiser had mistaken the launch for an insurgent boat and had used a torpedo with fatal effect. There was intense excitement aboard both vessels for the next twenty minutes. Signaling continued between the man-of-war and the torpedo boat for some time.

The Chilians Apologized.

When the situation of affairs became known on the Condell her commander dipped his flag and sent his chief officer aboard the Pensacola. It then became known that the explosion of the torpedo was a stupid blunder on the part of the cruiser. Reparation as could be offered were made, but the feeling among the comrades of the dead sailors was very bitter. The bodies were not recovered.

OUR CRUISERS CRITICISED.

They Turned Their Search Lights on During a Battle.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A gentleman in this city, with extensive business interests in South America, has received a letter from a correspondent in Santiago dated June 10. Matters, it says, have assumed a better aspect for the government. The enemy has allowed them to prepare and thoroughly equip its army, and now, instead of 20,000 "raw" recruits, the government has the same number of thoroughly disciplined men.

It is stated that six prominent citizens of Caldera were put to death because it was said they were in the plot to blow up the Blanco Encalado. Several prominent persons are involved in the recent attempted poisoning of the president and his cabinet. A young English woman is said to have been engaged in the plot. She was to have been the attraction and by her wiles was to entice the government officials to partake of a wine supper at her house.

The Condell and Imperial have just arrived from an expedition to the north. They bombarded Iquique, captured Taltal and pursued the O'Higgins, but the latter managed to escape. The government vessels arrived at Iquique and found most of the insurgent fleet in the harbor. The United States steamers Baltimore, San Francisco and Pensacola were also in the bay. As soon as the Condell began to fire the American men-of-war turned on their search lights and kept them open during the entire shooting. This was by the express order of the admiral in turning on the search lights of the vessels so that the government cruisers were illumined, thus showing the insurgents where the enemy was, in order to prevent upon here as showing that the Americans are violating the law by protecting the rebels.

THE WAR IS OVER.

The following is a copy of the agreement which the miners and the citizens' committee have consented to and considered a settlement of the mine trouble:

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 24, 1891.

We, the undersigned committees, acting in behalf of the miners and their friends of Knoxville and Coal Creek, said in the interest of peace and harmony, do submit the following agreement, and we request that it meet with your favorable consideration:

First—Status quo to be restored and the guards and convicts not to be molested on their return to the mines, and we will use all ordinary means and honorable means to prevent any interference with them.

Second—Reposing confidence in our governor and believing the general assembly, when it meets in extra session, will give us the necessary relief from the oppression that now hangs over us, we pledge ourselves to conduct ourselves as law abiding people, so as to maintain the confidence and sympathy of the public in the future as well as in the past.

Third—And we do hereby express our thanks to Governor Buchanan for the kind consideration in holding the militia in this city and there by preventing a conflict that might have resulted in bloodshed.

Fourth—And to the committee of citizens we also express thanks for the interest they have shown in their endeavors to advise in the efforts to adjust the existing difficulties.

Signed by J. P. Thomas, J. W. Harding, S. R. Peterson, D. D. Dewitt and W. F. Smith.

We, the citizens' committee, hereby approve the above.

Signed by Dennis Lealey, W. M. Pale, J. C. J. Williams and D. A. Carpenter.

This agreement was reached after Governor Buchanan had been advised that it was certain in any way the resolutions adopted at the miners' mass meeting, and informed the strikers that the convicts would be sent back to the mines.

THE KRUPP GUN EQUALED

Our New Twelve Inch Cannon Is a Terror.

DEATH DEALT AT A DOZEN MILES.

The Test of the First Completed Coast Defender Proves That the United States Can Make as Good a Piece of Heavy Ordnance as Any Country.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The first high power gun of 12-inch caliber built in this country was fired yesterday at the United States proving ground, on Sandy Hook Point. The results, as expressed by the ordnance officers present, were satisfactory from every standpoint. They show that American ordnance making is equal to the best in the world, and that seacoast defenses with American guns can be made effective against any ironclads on the face of the ocean.

Not Fully Loaded Either.

This gun, which is a steel breechloading rifle, was sent from the National foundry, at Watervliet, N. Y., to be tested more than a month ago. It has taken this time to transport the gun from the government dock and mount it in its present position.

Lieutenant Gibson superintended the firing and loading, with the assistance of Sergeant Joseph Orr, Corporal and a party of ten soldiers. The tests were not for the ordinary service charge, which consists of 440 pounds of powder, but were conducted under a reduced charge of 250 pounds of German brown prismatic powder and a projectile weighing 1,000 pounds.

He Touched the Electric Button.

At 2:30 Lieutenant Gibson reported to his senior officer, Captain Rucker, that the new gun was loaded and ready for firing. Red flags were waving along the line of fire warning passing vessels that a one-ton solid shot would soon be skipping along the waters from Sandy Hook Point.

At 2:35 Lieutenant Gibson gave the signal for everybody to leave the gun and go under the bombproof quarters, and then touched the electric button which fired the first 12-inch steel breechloading rifle, a type that is destined to become an important factor in the problem of protecting our almost defenseless seacoast.

It Shook the Very Earth.

When the shot left the muzzle of the great gun there was an explosion that shook the very earth. As the heavy mass of steel cut its way through the empty wires 400 feet distant it plowed its way through the water for miles to the eastward. It first struck the water about 1,000 yards from the shore and then ricochetted, making a beautiful skip, first to the side. It struck again about 400 yards further, throwing aloft a great volume of water, made another plunge and was lost to view.

Initial Velocity 1,473 Feet.

As soon as the gun was cool Lieutenant Gibson and his corps of assistants swung open the 1,000-pound breech plug and made an examination of the effect of the first fire. The pressure gauges showed 21,000 pounds on the square inch, with an initial velocity of 1,473 feet per second. These results differed but little from those estimated by the experts before the gun was even completed.

Equal to the Best Foreign Guns.

Yesterday's test was an important one in the history of heavy ordnance in this country, and shows that American guns are equal, if not superior, to any that can be built abroad.

The great Krupp rifle of the same caliber can only fire a charge of 397 pounds of powder; under ordinary service conditions the American gun can stand 440 pounds and attain a range of twelve miles. The Krupp gun has a muzzle velocity of 1,600 feet per second, while the velocity of the projectile from the American gun is 1,473 feet per second. These results differed but little from those estimated by the experts before the gun was even completed.

NO BRIGHT'S DISEASE AT BAR HARBOR

An Eminent Specialist's Opinion on the Blaine Case.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—The Post-Dispatch prints a story that Secretary Blaine's illness and the visit of a St. Louis physician to the secretary when he was ill in the Indian territory in 1887. The St. Louis specialist was Dr. Henry H. Mudd. Dr. Mudd is now in San Francisco, but his brother, who is associated with him in his practice, said today: "My brother went to Fort Gibson when Blaine became ill in 1887 and took charge of the case. My brother told me that the trouble was pneumonia. He never mentioned any trouble of the kidneys. Dr. Mudd is away, and going over the case in detail, as he did, he would certainly have spoken of it had he detected the presence of any symptoms pointing to a trouble of that kind."

"Had it been there he would have discovered it, for the examination he made of the patient was of such a nature that the kidney disease would have been exposed by the tests. I am confident that there was not a trace of disease in Mr. Blaine then, and I am sure that he has no disease of the kind."

He said life had been a blank to him since Mrs. Shepherd's fatality could remember nothing. He refused to return here, however. Rumors were circulated that he had been living a double life with the wife of the mayor of Wilkesbarre. Immediately after Shepherd had left here Mayor Sutton's wife also left. Detectives were sent to look for the couple but no trace could be found of them.

TWO LOVES IN A LIFE.

The Most Thrilling and Passionate Love Story Ever Written.

[This story will not be published in book form.]

CHAPTER I.

Strangers once, but lovers now.
He presses a kiss on a snow white brow.
Oh, the dreary past is sere and brown:
Take an ax and hew it down.

Reginald Travers leaned carelessly against the fauteuil. He held a scented billet doux in one hand, and smoked his Havana with the other.

"Ha! ha!" he laughed, that low, rippling, musical laugh that had thrilled the proud heart of Ethel Beanpoddy, the aristocratic heiress of Thornfield manor—but to return to the ha! ha!

Then Reginald Travers' eyes glanced around the luxurious apartment and a scornful smile rippled across his face and broke in billows against his classic pompadour. At that instant there was a loud ring at the door.

"Fool that I am!" muttered Reginald Travers. "Why did I ever let myself to that white faced girl, Ethel Beanpoddy, she knows not that I am an excise commissioner. But if I am betrayed"—and a pallor of death overswept that mobile countenance.

"But no," he resumed: "that can never be. She awaits me at the little vine covered cottage in Hoboken. The little thinks that Archie McGuffy, the artistic kalsominer, her husband and Reginald Travers, the excise commissioner, who is soon to wed the peerless Ethel Beanpoddy, the rich heiress, are one and the same."

Far over in Hoboken the sad faced girl wife, Bedalia McGuffy, was cooking flapjacks on an oil stove. Her face was pale and haggard. One on her pretty face, while her big, wide, pansy eyes were filled with tears that anon fell down on the griddle and spoiled the flapjacks. Then all at once a sudden resolve seized her. Taking a large cloak that hung behind the door, she enveloped her lissome form. "Heaven help me!" she cried, as she sped onward to the grim and ghostly ferry. "I must blik them, for I haven't a penny!"

CHAPTER II.

"She refused to wed when I was reporter called, but only said that it was box plaited with a shirred waist, the front being frocked, and a slit inch here in the overskirt, with according plait, the whole affair of golden gauze fir screen wire."—Romance of a Wire Dress.—Adv.

In a brilliantly lighted Murray Hill mansion sat Ethel Beanpoddy, the heiress of Thornfield manor. On every side were strewn the evidences of wealth and luxury. A Broadway rose shed its fragrance from an Ives sale Japanese vase, real coal burned in the open grate. Ah, Ethel Beanpoddy had ne'er felt sad before.

Her beauty was of the rich, dark, south ern type that costs money. Her argent lidded eyes glanced carelessly over a silver to of "Daily and the 400." Ethel Beanpoddy was one of those bright butterflies that bask in the sunshine and have pie three times a day.

The footman in the bird's eye maple plush announced in rich Castilian accents, "Mishter Reginald Travers." The next instant her form was locked in his embrace and they had gone to press.

None noticed the slight girlish figure, clad in a shabby sealskin cloak, that crept up the marble steps. It was Bedalia McGuffy. In an instant she had reached Ethel Beanpoddy's boudoir, silently sandlagging the lackey at the door. She burst inside and fell on the floor. Travers covered with confusion and Ethel Beanpoddy, who sat in his lap.

The frightened girl wife raised her hands and shrieked.

THE GOVERNOR WAS BUSY

But He Will Appear at Any Future Time.

HE COULD NOT BLUFF WANAMAKER

A Witness at the Bardsley Investigation Says Marsh Told Him That the Postmaster General Refused to Use His Influence to Save the Keystone Bank.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Those who anticipated a sensational session of the Bardsley investigating committee were rather disappointed. A list of twenty-six witnesses had been subpœnaed, but many of them did not testify and those who did adopted the plan of Postmaster General Wanamaker and appeared with written statements which cleared them of any criminal connection with Bardsley and his affairs. Chairman Van Osten read a letter from District Attorney Graham asking him and his colleagues to refrain from examining the bank officials who had been summoned to be present as it might interfere with an investigation he is making and be prejudicial to their trial if they were brought into court.

The Bank Officials Excused.

The district attorney backed up his request by stating that the report of the experts showed conclusively which banks had paid interest on state and city moneys. The bank officers were then excused for the present from testifying.

The officials summoned were William H. Kern and John S. Hopkins, of the People's bank; Samuel W. Bell and Henry C. Hyroop, of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National bank, and A. T. Broomfield and H. H. Paul, of the Seventh National bank.

The Governor Did Not Come.

Mr. Hicks asked if Governor Pattison had been summoned. Chairman Van Osten said that a request had been sent to the governor to be present, as he was not amenable to a subpœna. He had not responded, however, as he was too actively engaged in official business. Attorney General Hensel then spoke on behalf of the governor. He was with Mr. Pattison at Mount Gretna Thursday night, but up to that time that official had not received the communication of the committee, but even if he had he could not appear, as he as commander-in-chief of the state militia was engaged in reviewing the encampment at Mount Gretna. However, the attorney general stated that the governor would appear at any time the committee would designate and fully explain all the transactions of the Chestnut Street National bank while he was its president prior to his election as governor.

Why He Loaned Bardsley Money.

William H. Kemble was the first witness called, and he was asked to explain his stock transactions with Bardsley. These purchases in all amounted to about 5,000 shares, and were carried for Bardsley by the People's bank. These loans were paid by Bardsley in 1890, and Mr. Kemble said he believed that it was done with Bardsley's own money, as he had an average profit of 60 per cent. on his purchases. He believed Bardsley to be thoroughly honest, after a business acquaintance of twenty years, and loaned him the money to buy stocks on that friendship.

McCamant Denies the Rebates.

Auditor General Thomas J. McCamant stated that as his counsel was in Europe he had prepared a statement justifying himself, but would decline to answer any details until the return of his lawyer in September. Mr. McCamant denied receiving the fifty dollar check the expert's report credit him with having gotten as half of the rebates from advertising of the mercantile appraiser's list.

Captain H. M. Gradden, now dead, had charge of part of the affair. In reply to questions the auditor general said that he had reason to believe a rebate was paid because certain colored bills that certain political debts had to be paid by the newspapers who got their advertisements. Grafton also told him, he said, that the newspapers which did not get the advertisements were taken care of by those which did.

Documentary Evidence.

After Mr. McCamant had left the witness stand Mr. Sitting stated that he had documentary evidence against him, upon which he proposed to examine him, but had been advised not to do so by both District Attorney Graham and City Solicitor Warwick. He had, therefore, decided not to make public the contents of these documents as it was against the wishes of the officials who would have to proceed against the auditor general if such a course was adopted.

Wanamaker Would Not Be Bluffed.

When J. S. Singer, the assistant cashier of the Fourth Street National bank, was called the testimony took an unexpected turn. Singer testified that he met Marsh two or three days after the closing of the bank. The missing president said that everything was all up. He had tried every means to keep the Keystone open without success. "The other words," Marsh said to me, "I have tried to bluff Wanamaker, but it would not work. I wanted him to use his influence to have the bank kept open, but he would not be bluffed."

Singer said that he did not know what Marsh meant at the time, but has since learned that he referred to the over issue of stock the postmaster general held.

The Rebates They Paid.

Several newspaper publishers were then summoned to tell what rebates they had paid. They said the rebate was 40 per cent. except Joseph Morwitz, of the German Democrat, who said he gave 65 per cent. Those who admitted paying the rebate were Clayton McMichael, of The North American; R. J. Cook, of The Press; W. F. McCuley, of The Bulletin, and James Elverson, of The Inquirer. Each witness said that before his death they had paid the rebates to Captain Grafton, but declined to say who had collected it since then. None of them knew whether or not Bardsley or McCamant had received any of it.

If alcoholic stimulants are prescribed and he fills such prescriptions his legal places of residence is: the county jail, and in addition thereto his pocketbook should be legally mulcted of a handsome sum. THE CURIOSITY SHOP

AN EMPEROR'S MANNERS.

The Habits and Tastes of Napoleon Bonaparte—His Rudeness to Ladies.

The most characteristic of Napoleon's habits was unremitting and most successful industry. Few such intense workers have ever been seen, and yet his physical strength was never great, and he could not do without a large amount of sleep—a peculiarity which had something to do with his failure to trace Blucher on the 17th of June, 1815. Bourrienne tells us: "His orders were that I should call him every morning at 7. I was therefore the first to enter his chamber, but very frequently when I awoke him he would turn himself and say, 'Ah, Bourrienne, let me lie a little longer.' He in general slept seven hours out of the twenty-four, besides taking a short nap in the afternoon.

"Napoleon's general manner was brusque and abrupt, but when he tried to please could almost fascinate. His conversation was full of strong sense and occasional richness with original thought; but when he became familiar he was often vulgar, made bad jokes and used coarse expressions. He was not respectful or courteous to women, and the sex has furnished his most bitter critics.

"He seldom said anything agreeable to females, and he frequently addressed to them the rudest and most extraordinary remarks. To one he would say, 'Heavens, how red your elbows are!' To another, 'What an ugly headdress you have got.' He said one day to the beautiful Duchess de Chevreuse, in the presence of all the circle of the Tuileries, 'Ah, that's droll enough; your hair is red.' 'Perhaps it is, sire,' replied the lady, 'but this is the first time a man ever told me so.'"

Napleon's natural taste in dress was simple: in his proper sphere, at the head of his troops, he usually wore the coat and the plain uniform of an officer of the Chasseurs of the Guard were in marked contrast with the gold lace and plumes of the generals and political men around him. His attire on state occasions was, however, gaudy, and the imperial mantle and splendid court dress, it must be confessed, sat ill on him.

The History of Written Almanacs.

The history of written almanacs dates back to the Second century of the Christian era. The Alexandrian Greeks in the time of Ptolemy, A. D. 100-160, used almanacs. Prior to the written almanacs of the Greeks there were calendars or primitive almanacs. The Roman fasti and Ides were similar to modern almanacs. Knowledge of the calendar was at first confined to the priests, whom the people had to consult not only about the rules of the calendar, but also concerning the proper times for instituting various legal proceedings. But about B. C. 300 Cneius Flavius, the secretary of Appius Claudius, learned the secret, either by the stealthy use of the documents in his master's possession, or according to Pliny, by repeatedly consulting the authorities and by collating the information he obtained. It was really published as an almanac when, as Livy relates, he exhibited the fasti on white tablets around the Forum.

LIGHT AND VISION.

Hygienic Qualities of the Three Principal Sources of Light.

A German physician has investigated the influence upon acuteness of vision of the three principal sources of light—daylight, gaslight and the electric light—as well as their hygienic qualities. He finds that by gaslight the acuteness of vision is lessened by about one-tenth as against daylight, while it is increased with the electric light, especially as regards the distinction of colors. The effect-ness of the electric light, however, is much diminished by fogs, but this can be easily offset by increasing the intensity of the light.

Upon some folks the electric light finds many objectors, but this can be avoided by means of a glass ball, lessening the brightness of the light about 20 per cent. The brightness of the white and violet rays of the electric light is best overcome by a yellow shade; the yellow and red of gaslight, by a blue shade. In using gaslight it must be kept at a certain distance, on account of the immense amount of heat evolved, while in using the electric light it may be brought near by, the disagreeable intensity of the light being lessened as much as necessary. According to the investigations of Renk, a gas jet furnishing as much light as an Edison burner will give off twenty times as much heat as the latter.

The Munich Court theater was the scene of some interesting experiments to prove this point. The theater, while empty, was lit up with gas, and in an hour the temperature in the gallery was raised from 10 degs. C. to 27 degs., while electric lights of the same power the change was from 16 degs. to 17 degs. When the house was filled the difference was not so great, for human beings also produce a great deal of warmth; with gas the final temperature was 22.8 degs. R.—a distressingly warm temperature—while with electricity the last temperature was 17.6 degs. R. (72 F.), a temperature which is easily borne.

Some of the Best of Epitaphs.

Some of the best epitaphs in the language are among those which were intended for materials no more lasting than paper and printer's ink. These jeux d'esprit partake of the nature of the epigram; they seize upon some foible or weakness, and inclose it, as though it were a fly, in the amber of sparkling verse. Such an "epigrammatic epitaph" one may be excused the term —is Garrick's couplet upon Goldsmith:

Here lies Poet Goldsmith, for shortness called Noll,
Who wrote like an angel and talked like "poor Poll."

The sting, such as it is, of these lines is more than compensated for by the honey which precedes it. The following epitaph on Sir Nathaniel Wraxall is far more severe:

Misplacing—mistaking—
Misquoting—misdating—
Men, manners, things, facts all—
Here lies Sir Nathan Wraxall.

Vanbrugh, in his capacity of architect—not Vanbrugh in his capacity of poet—referred to in the following lines:

Lie heavy on him, earth; for he
Laid many a heavy load on thee.

Occasionally the epitaph is light and playful, and even borders on the verge of the pun. This, on Foote, might almost have been written by Hood:

Foote from this earthly stage, alas! is hurled,
Death took him off, who took off all the world.

Thomas a Becket's Bones.

Thomas a Becket's bones are to the fore again, and this time it seems as if the matter were really settled, says The Pall Mall Budget, and that the saint's remains might henceforth be left in peace. It will be remembered that when the skull and bones were discovered which gave rise to so much controversy in the antiquarian world three years ago, there were several objections urged against their being those of the murdered archbishop, the principal one being that the contemporary Pope spoke of a "double sacrilege" having been committed by Henry, in that he had not only murdered the saint, but had also burned his sacred bones.

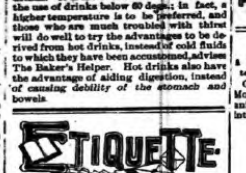
This argument has now been met by the discovery in the British museum of some notes for a sermon to be preached at St. Paul's Cross some time after the murder, in which the preacher jokes down that he was by the king's command to contradict the statement that Becket's bones had been burned. Then come some lines which are crossed through in the MS., but which have now been deciphered and read as follows: "They (the bones) are buried beneath one of the central bayses of Canterbury cathedral." This should be conclusive.

Nervous Headache.

One form of nervous headache, which is unmistakable, though not always understood as such, says Good Housekeeping, consists of a dull, grinding pain at the back of the head near the base of the brain, where the nerves of the spinal cord enlarge and ramify for the formation of the brain. Pain in this locality, frequently extending down the neck, is a sure indication of impaired nervous action, and should be treated accordingly. In every direction nervous trouble produces a violent headache—that is from the medium of the stomach. With many people any deep or sudden emotion, such as grief, fear or even joy, may partially or entirely paralyze the action of the stomach; there is an utter absence of appetite, and the serious headache which results is simply the indication of the trouble. When it is removed, and the stomach resumes its accustomed action, the headache will disappear.

Hot Drinks for Thirst.

It is a mistake to suppose that cold drinks are necessary to relieve thirst. Very cold drinks, as a rule, bring on the feverish condition of the mouth and stomach and so create thirst. Experience shows it to be a fact that hot drinks relieve the thirst and "cool off" the body when it is in an overheated condition better than ice cold drinks. It is far better and safer to avoid the use of drinks below 80 degs.; in fact, a higher temperature is to be preferred, and those who are much troubled with thirst will do well to try the advantages to be derived from hot drinks, instead of cold fluids to which they have been accustomed, says The Baker's Helper. Hot drinks also have the advantage of aiding digestion, instead of causing debility of the stomach and bowels.



COMMON MISTAKES.

Some Lapses in Politeness Not Unknown Even in the Well Bred.

A common lapse in good breeding, noted by Marion Harland in The Housekeepers' Weekly, is the habit of reluctantly accepting an invitation. If a friend or acquaintance invites you to her house she is be stowing a compliment upon you, and you, as the honored person, should consider it as such.

If you can accept, do so gracefully, not condescendingly. One young man, whose youth must be his only excuse, told an elderly lady that he would like to dine with her as she never will give off twenty times as much heat as the latter.

The Munich Court theater was the scene of some interesting experiments to prove this point. The theater, while empty, was lit up with gas, and in an hour the temperature in the gallery was raised from 10 degs. C. to 27 degs., while electric lights of the same power the change was from 16 degs. to 17 degs. THE MONTE PINCIO CLOCK.

A Beautiful Piece of Work Run by Water Power and Requiring No Winding.

One of the attractions of the beautiful Monte Pincio gardens, at Rome, is a really unique clock, which is usually an object of interest to groups of passersby who stop to minutely inspect it. A general view and description of this curious and artistic piece of mechanism is given, as follows, by The Horological Review:

The very charming case is composed of three branches in rustic work. It stands upon a square stone block, surrounded on its four sides by beautiful leaf plants, ivy and grasses. The stone foot stands within a water basin. The upper part of the case contains a dial covered with glass on each of its four sides. Upon the cupola stands a staff which carries the two bells for the full hour and quarters. At its upper end is a small vane in the shape of a battle ax.

The frame for the wheel and levers of the striking work, in which a small centrifugal pendulum takes the place of the fly, is close underneath the dial. At the back of the clock frame oscillates the second pendulum, and before this is located a mass of rustic work, similar to a large coral growth, from which issue small jets of water at regular intervals. Two of the uppermost coral branches are water conduit pipes, from which empties alternately at each swing of the pendulum, a small quantity of water into two leaflike spoons underneath, imparting to them an up and down motion. The peculiar motive power furnished by the water keeps the clock in motion, by a very remarkable escapement, so that it never requires winding. The construction of the clock is due to a monk, as is the case with so many old pieces of art work.

Theories of the Great Pyramid.

There has always been more or less mystery surrounding the origin and purpose of the pyramids of Egypt. Popular Science News says we may turn to certain facts which indicate that the builders of the pyramid of Cheops possessed a certain amount of astronomical knowledge. In the cut a vertical section of the pyramid in a north and south direction is given. From the entrance at C a passage leads to chamber (A) excavated in the rock underneath. The sides of the pyramid exactly face the four cardinal points of the compass, and an observer standing in the chamber A, about 8,500 B. C., and looking through the passage A C would see the pole star, or rather the star Alpha Draconis, which was the pole star at that time, but which, owing to the precession of the equinoxes, has since been replaced by our present pole star, Alpha Ursa Minoris.

The construction of this passage gives an approximate date for the erection of the pyramids which agrees with that established by the best authenticated traditions.

P P represents a supposed platform of observation; R, queen's chamber; K, king's chamber; G, natural grotto in the rock; Z Z, accumulated debris; A, subterranean chamber; D E, grand gallery. Branching off from the descending passage C A is an ascending passage, B D, leading to the grand gallery, E D, which in turn leads to what is generally known as the king's chamber.

A new theory advanced by F. de Balore in La Nature is that the pyramid was only completed during the lifetime of the reigning monarch as far as the fifteth course of stones, thus forming a platform of observation upon which astrologers could observe the movements of the heavenly bodies and cast the horoscopes demanded by the king. After his death the platform was completed into a pyramid, and the observatory of the monarch became his tomb and monument.

Two Novel Modifications of Sulphur.

According to industries two novel modifications of sulphur have been recently discovered by Engel. The first, like that proved to exist in Wackenroder's solution, is soluble in water and very unstable. The other is crystalline, soluble in carbon bisulphide and chloroform, and polymerizes slowly in the cold and quickly at a temperature of 100 degs. C., but, unlike prismatic sulphur, which changes on heating into the octahedral variety, it becomes converted into the white insoluble form which commonly sometimes as large a percentage of the material known as "flowers of sulphur."

Paper Horseshoes.

The composition of horseshoes of compressed paper, which have been introduced into the artillery and cavalry of the German army, is described by The English Mechanic. The shoe is made of sheets of parchment paper cemented with a preparation of turpentine, Spanish white, lac and boiled linseed oil. The separate layers are stamped out, cemented and consolidated by a hydraulic press. When dry the shoe is rasped to fit.

Successful Cake Making.

The successful baking of cake, etc., depends so greatly upon the oven that it is well to test the heat unless one is so experienced as to tell almost by instinct when the temperature is just right. The following rules are given by a French cook: "Try the oven every ten minutes with a piece of white paper. If too hot the paper will blaze up or blacken. When the paper becomes dark brown the oven is fit for small pastry, pies, etc. When light brown—that is, the color of nearly ripe pastry—it is ready for tarts. When the paper turns dark yellow—the color of deal—you can bake bread, large meat pies or large pound cake, while if just tinged the oven is right for sponge cake, meringues, etc." In mixing cakes always add the whites of eggs last at the last before baking. Do not beat them into the mixture, but stir them in lightly and as quickly as you can, especially for sponge cake. Buns are said to be much lighter and shorter when the dough is set overnight and the eggs and flavoring mixed in next day.

Blackberry Vinegar.

To make blackberry vinegar choose the finest and ripest berries gathered on a bright day. Put one pound into a basin and bruise them well, then pour on them one quart of the best cider vinegar. Let them stand a couple of days, then strain the liquor over one pound of fresh whole fruit; Let this stand three days, pass through a jelly bag and boil for five minutes, allowing one and one-half pounds of loaf sugar to each pint of juice. When cold put in clean, dry bottles.

Dessert Cake.

Make a jelly cake batter, bake as usual. Take for the filling one cupful of sweet almonds (blanched, dried and pounded to a pale brown in a slow oven), two bitter almonds, one cupful of raisins, chopped fine, the whites of four eggs, sugar to taste. Whip to a stiff froth and spread between the layers. Ice with orange icing.

Escalaped Onions.

Slice onions as for frying, cook them in water a few minutes, turn off the water and put a layer of the onions in a pan; add a layer of bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper and butter. When the dish is nearly filled in this manner pour a little cream or milk over all and brown in the oven.

Hints for Housekeepers.

Molasses used the same as if it were soap is said to remove grass stains from children clothing.

Some people put a spoonful of horseradish into a pan of milk to keep it sweet, but the horseradish taste is apt to be disagreeably apparent if the milk is used in tea or coffee.

It is claimed that oil of sassafras will keep little red ants out of sugar and cake boxes, ice boxes, safes, cupboards and other places where food is kept.

Vinegar and salt removes wine stains.

To remove splashes of paint from window glass melt some soda in very hot water and wash the glass with it, using soft flannel.

Lemon juice will whiten frosting, cranberry or strawberry juice will color it pink, and the grated rind of an orange strained through a cloth will color it yellow.

In making custard, pumpkin or lemon pies it is better to partly bake the crust before adding the mixture, so that it may not be absorbed by the paste.

After the animal had quenched its thirst the three young men thought it a good opportunity to perpetuate a joke on their friend in the wagon, and immediately proceeded to push horse, wagon and driver into the canal. The driver sat there up to his neck in water, drunk enough not to feel the least alarm at his awkward position.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

He says he was "held up" between Fanwood and Netherwood. He has no idea as to who the highmen were, but thinks they were either Italians or tramps.

BITTEN BY DOGS.

A Plainfield Boy and an Elizabeth Boy the Victims.

Eric Moraller of West Second street, a boy employed by Mr. William Boe to deliver Sunday papers had an exciting experience with a large bull dog belonging to Amos Jackson of Plainfield avenue yesterday morning. Young Moraller was passing along the above-mentioned avenue at the time when the vicious canine pounced upon him and threw him to the ground. The little fellow fought the brute off as best he could but before assistance arrived his right arm was badly mutilated.

He was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital but as no physician was present he was removed to the residence of Dr. Long. That physician cauterized his wounds and he was then taken to his home.

Mr. Boe visited the residence of Mr. Jackson for the purpose of having the dog shot, but when he arrived he ascertained that the animal had already been killed and that a member of the family had taken it away to bury it. The canine was said to be a vicious one, having only last week bitten a little girl.

James Steve of Elizabeth, aged 8 years was attacked by a big mastiff belonging to John Edgewood last night while in Edgewood's yard, and was nearly killed. Half of the boy's scalp was torn off, and he was bitten in three places on the neck and face. The child's screams brought people to assistance and they saved his life. He was carried to the City Hospital, where fifty-eight stitches were put in his scalp. The doctors hope to save the boy's life. The dog was shot.

LOST ITS BARK.

A Dog which Lost its Voice Somewhere Between Pills and Nux Vomica

Robert Dingee, who lives on East Fifth street, has a full-sized healthy New Foundland dog which has no bark. This extremely desirable condition was brought about by Mr. Dingee quite unintentionally.

Last Spring the dog had the distemper and there being no dog doctor within calling distance, Mr. Dingee decided to treat it. He began with the rudiments of medical knowledge and gave the dog medicine for a cold. First he administered two anti-bilious cathartic pills and six two-grain quinine pills, which he concocted into a mixture. The effect of this dose was so depressing that a big drink of whiskey and milk was given to cheer the dog up. The next morning a few drops of nux vomica were put in its meat to tone up its system. Then the dog got well.

Somewhere between the cathartic and the nux vomica the dog lost its voice. When the dog wags its tail and opens its mouth you know it would bark if it could.

The dog is no longer a terror to tramps and cats and has developed great popularity with the neighbors, who are recommending this course of treatment to their friends who take more or less interest in dog flesh.

The Northfield Gathering.

One of the most successful meetings for young men held in this vicinity in a long while, was that conducted by Mr. Charles B. Brown, in Rahway yesterday afternoon. In response to a special invitation from the Y. M. C. A. the Plainfield delegates to the recent Northfield student's conference, to come to their city and conduct a meeting. Ten young men accompanied Mr. Brown to Rahway. After a service of song the latter delivered an address on "Northfield", taking for his text first John 1: 3. The various delegates then made short speeches, which were followed in turn by a short addresses from Mr. Williams of Rahway, and the president of the local Y. M. C. A., Mr. S. D. Marriott.

The exercises were varied by several solos and singing of stirring hymns.

The enthusiasm of the young men was very noticeable, and those present predicted that Rahway will be well represented at Northfield next Summer.

The Plainfielders were loud in their praises of the attention received from their brethren in Rahway.

BASE BALL.

THE CRESCENTS AGAIN DEFEATED BY THE WEST ENDS.

The Somerville "Boys" too Much for the Home Team.—They Have Now Won Two Games of the Series.—The Score 10 to 2.

The second game of the Crescent–West End series was played on the grounds in this city last Saturday afternoon and the home team was again defeated by the visitors by a score of 10 to 2.

A large audience was present to witness the contest between the two clubs, which, it was thought would be very exciting throughout, but when in the first inning the West Ends placed five runs to their credit, interest in the game began to dwindle and it was a forgone conclusion that they would win the game, and on the Crescents own grounds, too.

Cory, the new short stop, the Crescents signed, proved a very poor acquisition to the team. His playing was miserable. He made four errors, everyone of which was costly. The two errors made by James, the Crescent's catcher were also costly, netting two runs. In fact the game was lost in the first inning and everybody on the grounds knew it; consequently it was devoid of interest.

Three weeks ago when the Crescents visited Somerville they were defeated by a score of 11 to 2.

During Saturday's game Carbonell and Harkins were hissed by the audience, the former because he made it a point to get hit by the ball and get first base every time and Harkins because he knocked Hammill, the Crescent's pitcher, down after he had put him out in running from third to the home plate.

The only feature of the game were Lafferty's long hit to center field, and Bonnell's running catch in left field. McIndoe covered first base in his usual good style, having only one error.

The decision of Umpire Berryman were not questioned and gave entire satisfaction to both teams.

But this is the way in base ball parlance the game was lost:

In the first inning Carbonnell, of the West Ends, secured first on balls and Parrell made a slow hit and secured first on McIndoe's error, Carbonell going to second. Moorehead's long hit to center brought Carbonnell home and advanced Parrell to third. Kennedy's hit to right field was promptly returned to the plate, but Jones's muffling allowed Parrell to score, and Moorehead to third and gave Kennedy "life" at first. Harkins's two-bagger to centre brought both Moorehead and Kennedy home and he secured third on passed balls. Leidy's hit to left centre brought Harkins home. Then came Jones's three-bagger in their half of the inning got Jones on first by a bunted ball, after which he stole second and third, but there he was left by Lafferty, McIndoe and Hammil, who were put out in one, two, three order.

In the second inning both clubs failed to score, and in the third the Crescents secured their only runs thus: Keeler's low fly to center secured him first, and Jones' hit was gobbled up by Moorehead. Lafferty then made the heaviest hit of the game, a long sky-scraper to centre, and secured third, Keeler scoring. Carbonnell's quick throw to Moorehead enabled the latter to make the only costly error of the game for the West Ends. He threw wild to third, whereupon Lafferty scored. McIndoe struck out.

In the fourth inning the West Ends added three runs to their score and the Crescents were goose-egged. In the sixth and seventh the West Ends added one run and two, respectively, leaping up their score to ten. The eighth and ninth were barren of fruit for either side, and victory settled upon the West Ends.

Following is the score in detail:

SEEMS AFRAID TO DO HIS DUTY.

Open Bars and Sunday Drinking.—A Surprise by Capt. Grant.

Captain Grant and Special Policeman Schermer visited Miller's saloon yesterday morning and made discoveries which the captain says he proposes to submit to Mayor Gilbert and the Police Board to-night before making any arrests. It is enough to make every law-abiding citizen boil with indignation at the way in which the laws in this community are openly violated by at least one saloon-keeper and seemingly connived at by the powers that be. Captain Grant seems to think by the experience of Chief Carey that it does not pay for a public officer to do his duty in Plainfield, and who will say he has not good reason? But it is high time the public should know what they are to expect for the money they are paying to have the laws properly enforced.

The story is that when the officers named surprised the parties, five men were found drinking at Miller's bar with Miller and his bar-tender present yesterday morning at ten o'clock, the half empty beer glasses being on the bar; that after the departure of the officers Miller sent for Councilman Smith and Hetfield, and that these two worthies got Capt. Grant into Grant's office, and were closeted with him for an hour, and that after the interview Capt. Grant said outside he only saw Miller's barroom door open, and ordered him to hereafter keep it locked; that he was persuaded to say this by the Councilmen to save Miller from arrest, and from fear that he would be treated as Chief Carey was treated if he did his duty, and that that is the story he to-night is to tell the police board, so that they, not being suspected of any intention of carrying out the law, will have some excuse to ignore the case. Others however, were present, and tell a different tale.

Capt. Grant to-day was interviewed by a News' reporter and denied the story, but is very reticent, saying that he did not want to say anything more until after he has conferred with the officials named. Even if Miller's bar-room was open that is sufficient to cause his arrest and punishment if our laws are to be enforced at all. Miller seems to be able to treat the ordinance with impunity, while the constable rules the roost.

Captain Grant ought not to be afraid to speak the truth. The respect of the people of Plainfield is better to have than their contempt.

There are more drunken men to be seen on the streets of Plainfield Sunday nights than are usually seen on Saturday nights or holidays. And our neighbor The Times says open bars are the reason for this.

The proprietors of these places, it charges, are not conforming to the city ordinances, and adds: "Unquestionably there was plenty of opportunity for action on the part of the police force on Sunday night. A study of the blotter at the City Judge's Court on Monday morning, however, failed to disclose the name of any saloon or bar-keeper in town as a violator of the city's ordinances. The men who were swaggering down the street, singing ribald songs, and indecently exposing their persons, might have been considered worthy candidates for police attention. The police, however, seemed to think otherwise. They were evidently as oblivious to the presence of drunkards as they were to the fact that liquor was being sold last Sunday, as it has been said for several Sundays past, with no effort on their part to restrain this flagrant violation of the law. There is plenty of work for the police to do in Plainfield if they only take the trouble to do it."

AMUSEMENTS FOR TRAINMEN.

The New Jersey Central Provides Recreation for its Employes.

It is a rule of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company to take good care of their conductors and brakemen and to provide for their amusement during the "lay-over" in this city.

At the Jersey City depot rooms are fitted up for the conductors and brakemen, as well as for the Pullman conductors, where they can make out their reports, read, play cards or dominoes, or amuse themselves according to their desires.

Each room has connected with it a dormitory, where the men who come in on the night trains can sleep. The beds are very comfortable and, all in all, the off hours of the conductors and brakemen are pleasantly and comfortably spent at the Jersey City end of their runs. The men are free while waiting to make the return run to go to New York or elsewhere in search of pleasure.

At the Seaside Assembly.

AVON-BY-THE-SEA, July 25.—The Rev. Samuel W. Clark, of Paterson, the secretary of the New Jersey State Sunday School Association, led the devotional exercises on the grounds of the Seaside Assembly here yesterday morning. Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, of Phillipsburg, instructed the classes in the school of Bible study and Sunday school work. Miss Anna T. Pearce, of Philadelphia, conducted the normal Sunday school classes. In the school of expression, Madame Alberti, of Plainfield, taught the classes in elocution and physical culture. At the kindergarten the children painted scenes and arranged them in the form of a panorama. In the evening John Wyatt Simonson, superintendent of the New York Institute for Artist Artisans, lectured in the Auditorium upon "Form Reasoning in Nature."—Newark Evening News.

Veterans' Re-union.

The New Brunswick veterans who are members of the 28th N. J. Volunteers' Association met at Justice Ford's office Friday night to make arrangements for the coming re-union. The re-union this year will be held at Plainfield, Aug. 22.

A GAY LOTHARIO.

He Has Gotten Himself Into Serious Trouble in His Old Age.

A Herald representative, in visiting the county jail Saturday morning, was shown an aged prisoner committed to that institution on Thursday from Plainfield.

The prisoner's name is James Powers, his age 62 years, and his offence grand larceny, he being charged with stealing from Peter Garrity of Plainfield the sum of $66.00.

Notwithstanding the fact that he is so far advanced in years and compelled to walk with the aid of two stout canes or crutches, he is still a gay Lothario, his chief delight that of being in company with the fair sex.

Were it not for this fact it is doubtful whether he would be in the position he now is in, for it was from his consort he stole the theft with which he is now charged solely for the purpose of enabling him to afford one or more "giddy" females a "good time in general."

It is said that he used the money, or a part of it at least, in hiring a fine equipage and driving about the country with the frail ones, giving them to understand that he had suddenly become the possessor of a snug fortune, and that he intended to spend the remainder of his life in ease and comfort.

When seen this morning he was sitting on a stool in the jail corridor as neat as a pin. His silvered hair was nicely combed, and a white vest and necktie he wore gave him a rather ministerial appearance.

This is not the first time he has been confined in jail, he having been discharged from that institution several months ago, after serving a term for an offense in which a woman was at the bottom of it.—Elizabeth Herald.

Co-operative Progress.

Encouraging indeed for the well being of the world of worker is the report from the congress of co-operative societies in Great Britain. The movement is there a grand success as far as co-operative stores are concerned. The problem of cheap distribution among working people of the necessities of life has been solved, and, best of all, by the intelligence and harmonious feeling of the workers themselves. Two difficult problems yet face the co-operators. One of these is how to apply co-operation successfully to production and the agricultural industry; the other is how to interest trades unions in co-operation and make them understand that their highest welfare lies in this direction.

Meantime, there are already in the United Kingdom 1,500 co-operative societies. They have a membership of 1,117,655. Sales of the co-operative stores and societies amounted during 1890 to $216,000,000, the profits being $30,000,000. When it is remembered that this sum is all based on the little savings put by by poor working people, one may begin to understand what co-operation can accomplish. It is the mightiest lever in the hands of working people today. These co-operative societies in Great Britain are doing for the people there something of what the building and loan association is accomplishing in America. Harmonious working together and looking for light is the secret of it all.

Co-operative dairying is making rapid progress in Ireland. So successful have the stores been that the question now before their managers is, What shall'be done with the surplus capital? To answer this question Mr. Alfred Baskery read a paper:

As to the way the work might be carried out, he suggested that, first, any large estate in the market might be purchased by the Wholesale for the purpose of building on it a manufactory for some particular class of goods and for the houses of the trades, and houses and stores for the workpeople should be erected. The factory should remain the property of the Wholesale, and the workpeople be under their control, but the workers should have the opportunity of gradually becoming the owners of the houses, stores and the portion of the land not required by the Wholesale. An undertaking like that could easily be made to pay interest on the outlay of at least 5 per cent. per annum. Secondly, the Wholesale could assist the Society or a number of small societies who wished to purchase a farm for themselves by lending them two-thirds of the purchase money at 5 per cent. interest, such loan to be a first charge on the land. Thirdly, a number of co-operative societies with a weekly might be desirous of purchasing a farm for the purpose of dividing it into small holdings and gardens, allotments, or larger holdings for agricultural purposes or market gardening; the Wholesale could assist them with money in the same manner. The sum so advanced could be repaid by yearly installments of principal and interest. In all cases it must be an understood thing that the land should be purchased outright and not rented. Those societies desiring to purchase land with the land would, he contended, gradually but surely retain on the land the agricultural workers who now crowd the towns. He was firmly convinced that if such a programme as he had sketched were carried out an immense impetus would at once be given to the co-operative movement, and the strife between capitalist and worker cease, and peace, contentment and prosperity be the common lot.

Public Schools in England.

It looks now as if Great Britain, swinging in 230 years behind the United States, was going to have genuine free schools. The old part of it, 1806, is that they will have best established upon the Conservative party instead of the Liberal one in power. It shows political parties are reaching out after the popular vote so desperately and eagerly that they will do anything, even to going back on their own record, to get it.

Among the most singular of the objections to the free education bill of Great Britain was this, that it was a step toward secular schools. The objection had only to look across the water and see a public school system that is older than the government of the country in which it exists, and yet that country has not got into state socialism. In truth, there is more danger of state socialism in Europe today than in the United States. Another one of the queer objections made by the opponents of free schools in Great Britain was that they would break up the denominational schools. Here again these cranky individuals had only to look across the water to see that such fears are groundless, but again they refused to do so. We of America congratulate Great Britain heartily on her adoption of our public school system.

The best way is to come out plainly and admit that the microscopists at Chicago, officials employed by the agricultural department, have found trichinæ to a considerable extent in pork slaughtered in that city. The professor in charge of the examinations says plainly: "The inspection of pork under the microscope has revealed more trichinæ than I expected to find." The government has appropriated $200,000 for these examinations, and the result shows that it was a wise thing to do. If trichinous germs are ever to be expelled from American pork it will be by the most rigid system of inspection that can be devised. The more thorough the examinations are, too, the more confidence foreign nations will have in the American hog.

At any rate, whatever others think of him, Mr. Blaine himself believes that he is "good for many years yet."

TWO RAILROAD WRECKS.

Fifty-three Were Killed and Many Injured.

BOTH WERE EXCURSION TRAINS

One Accident Occurred in Ohio, the Other in France—Official List of Killed and Injured Near Dayton—The French Were Horribly Mangled.

DAYTON, O., July 27.—All night the Union depot was thronged with crowds of people impatiently waiting for listings of relatives or friends on the National Cash Register picnic excursion train, which had been wrecked by a collision near Middletown. The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad company, on whose road the accident occurred, controlled the only telegraph line to the scene of the wreck and it was impossible to get anything like accurate information. The first train to arrive bearing a portion of the excursionists came in about 4 a. m., and two hours later another arrived with the dead and wounded. Then it was learned that three people had been killed outright and seventeen others injured, some of them seriously.

Eight Hundred Were on the Train.

The wrecked train consisted of fourteen coaches and one baggage car, and was bearing about 800 employes of Cash Register works and their friends to this city from Woodsdale Island park, near Hamilton, where they had spent the day in enjoyment.

A broken drawbar necessitated a stop on a siding near Middletown. This trivial accident had been repaired and the train was just getting under way again when the engine of a fast freight crashed into the rear coach. Then ensued a frightful scene. Three coaches were completely demolished and three others badly jammed.

Saw the Danger Too Late.

Engineer Schwind, of the freight train, saw the passenger train in front of him. He reversed his engine, whistled for brakes and applied them, but it was to no purpose. The momentum of the freight train was too great to prevent a collision. The engineer and fireman jumped in time to save themselves. The excursion train was just pulling off the side track when the collision occurred, and the engine struck the hind coach, knocking it off the track. It ripped the side out of the next one, and lifted the third one up on top of the steam dome. It was in this car that three persons lost their lives and most of the injured were seated. There have been wild reports all day of the loss of life, some persons declaring that they had seen half a dozen dead bodies taken from the wreck, and others placing the number as high as eleven, but the company's surgeon here declares that the only names are given, were the only ones killed.

The following is an official list of the killed and injured:

The Killed.

Frank L. Simonton, aged seventeen years.
William N. Matthews, aged fourteen.
Minnie Freier, aged twenty six.

The Injured.

Frank Patterson, aged nineteen, left arm amputated.
Joseph D'Cleal, left arm amputated.
Katie Schein, both feet badly injured.
Mary Gorman, left leg broken.
Eldon Beason, left side of body and leg bruised.
Jacob Beason, left foot badly contused and abraded.
Edith Tuttle, right leg bruised.
Mary Barker, slightly bruised.
Geo Grant, hand cut.
Millie Wolf, slightly bruised.
Mary Beese, Osborn, O., slightly injured.

THE ACCIDENT IN FRANCE.

Fifty of the Sixty Injured Excursionists Are Dead.

PARIS, July 27.—Fifty bodies have been recovered from the scene of the St. Mande disaster, and the search continues.

Of the sixty injured in the collision, fifty are dead, including two children mangled beyond recognition. Most of the bodies recovered are without legs, through the seats having jammed together and cutting off their limbs. The scenes most heartrending as the victims were extricated. The driver and fireman of the second train were buried alive. The station master, on whose oversight the blame is now placed, has, it is reported, gone mad and disappeared.

Caused by a Cow.

CHATTANOOGA, July 27.—The suburban train on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad left last evening, met with a terrible accident beyond Missionary Ridge. The engine was ahead of the train, but running backward, when it struck a cow, which turned the engine completely over on its side. The fireman, Lewis Potts, is buried beneath the engine and presumably dead. Engineer Thomas Burchell was severely injured on the head and shoulders. A wrecking train has left for the scene and it will take several hours to clear the track. The full extent of the damage is not known.

Tried to Wreck a Train.

PETERSBURG, July 27.—A daring attempt was made by three boys to wreck the express train for Richmond, which left Petersburg shortly after 11 a. m., by placing spikes and other obstructions on the track a short distance from Port Walthan, six miles north of Petersburg. The obstructions were fortunately seen by the engineer in time to prevent an accident. The boys were arrested a short distance from the railroad, where they had been concealed.

Jumped in Front of a Moving Engine.

SUNQUEHANNA, Pa., July 27.—In the Erie yard a man jumped in front of a moving engine and was instantly killed. It is thought from several pawn tickets found in his pockets, one from William Sinipeni, 181 Bowery, N. Y., dated July 13, that he was M. or N. O'Brien, of New York city. He was evidently insane.

Five Reported Killed.

CINCINNATI, July 27.—A brief bulletin from Galion, O., says another collision occurred there and that five people are reported killed.

Angry at the McKinley Law.

LISBON, July 27.—Employes thrown out of work by the McKinley law set fire to a cork factory at Evora.

A BLACK BRUTE.

He Tried to Kill a Whole Family—Buckshot Settled Him.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 27.—Last Friday morning George Craig, a negro confined in the Cynthiana jail for killing a negro, made his escape by bullying the jailer's wife. Next day he appeared at the residence of Nathan Conway, in Bourbon county, near Paris, and asked for a drink of water. William Conway, the eldest son, opened the door, got him a dipper of water, and when in the act of handing it to him the negro struck him a terrific blow on the head with a rusty scythe, laying open the scalp and fracturing the skull. He followed this up with other blows that cut the young man all to pieces and he fell to the floor. His father at this juncture came to his assistance, but the black brute turned on him, and with the first blow split the old man's skull open. He fell dead beside his bleeding boy. Old Mrs. Conway then came up, only to be slaughtered by being cut from ear to ear. She died late in the afternoon.

Charles Conway, another son, aged twenty-eight, arrived upon the scene and attempted to disarm the murderer. He was attacked and nearly killed. The other members of the family, all women, then ran to a neighbor's house and got two men armed with guns and corn knives. They rushed to the scene to find Charley running and the negro after him. A shot was fired at the negro from a rifle, but the ball, although striking his skull, failed to injure him, and two loads of buckshot were then fired into his body. He turned upon his pursuers and showed fight, saying he had killed seven persons and that he was going to kill seven more. The two men drew their corn knives and the negro fled. He ran half a mile to a hay stack, where he dropped dead. William Conway's wounds are fatal, but Charley may get well. Craig killed his mother-in-law at Cynthiana.

MRS. HOPKINS-SEARLES.

Death of One of the Wealthiest Women of America.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The death of Mrs. Hopkins-Searles, Lawrence, Mass., was something of a surprise to her friends. The widow of Mark Hopkins was regarded as one of the wealthiest women in America. Mrs. Hopkins-Searles' fortune is estimated altogether at $30,000,000, and nearly half of that is invested in New York real estate. When Hopkins died he left all but $4,000,000 of his immense fortune to his widow.

He had no children, except an adopted son, an Irish boy, who took the name of Timothy Hopkins and married a niece of Mrs. Hopkins. He was well provided for in the millionaire's will.

Mrs. Hopkins-Searles was the daughter of a New Yorker, William Sherwood, a teacher and author, who moved to Great Barrington, Mass., where Mark Hopkins' father lived. The future Mrs. Hopkins herself taught music there for some time. Mark Hopkins died in 1878. After his death the widow made a magnificent palace, costing $2,000,000, at Great Barrington. On Nov. 8, 1887, she was married to E. F. Searles, the New York architect who planned her building.

Nettleton Pronounces It Rot.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Nettleton, when shown a story that was published in the Washington Sunday Herald to the effect that there had been a disagreement between Superintendent of Immigration Bureau Mr. Owen and himself which would likely result in his resigning, and that his superiors refused to allow him to employ his son as his private secretary, said that the story was the simplest rot from beginning to end, without the shadow or shade of truth. Secretary Nettleton said his relations with his superiors in the department are exceedingly pleasant, and as to his wishing to appoint his son as his private secretary, the statement is false in every respect, from the fact that his eldest and only son is but nine years of age.

A Little War Impending.

DENVER, July 27.—The Denver, Golden and Lakewood railway officials have sent an armed force of twenty men to Veldale, eight miles from this city, to prevent the Denver and Western people from building a line over two and a half miles of its right of way on the edge of Table Mountain, which is now about the only remaining pass through the mountains a railroad can cross. The men are armed with repeating rifles. The Denver and Western people have 400 laborers on the ground awaiting the arrival of teams with ties and rails. The Golden officials declare that they will shoot down the first man who raises a pick or shovel. A hard fight is looked for.

The Unloaded Gun Again.

WHEELING, July 27.—There was a picnic at Woods' Run, about ten miles from here. Andy Hite came along with a gun and stopped to see the fun. Barney Fahey and Jack Hite, sons of Table Mountain, and being told no. fired directly toward where Sarah McGowan, George Weitsell and Annie Kinnie were sitting. Miss McGowan fell wounded and Weitsell put up his hand to his face and sank down. The second girl was not hurt. Miss McGowan died twenty minutes. Weitsell is dreadfully mangled about the face and may lose both eyes. Fahey gave himself up. He is distracted.

Senator Quay Says It's a Fake.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—Senator Quay was shown the dispatch from Philadelphia which stated that the political friends of his throughout the state said he was determined to resign his seat in the United States senate upon the meeting of congress in December next. When asked if the statement was true, Senator Quay replied: "It's a fake pure and simple. I have not the slightest thought of it and really I don't see why the story was started, for there is no foundation for it whatever."

A Count Dies of Yellow Fever.

NEW ORLEANS, July 27.—Vera Cruz (Mex.) advices to The Times-Democrat state that yellow fever is spreading. Baker, the British consul, who was suffering with the disease has died. Pedro Barona, the noted Mexican general, died recently.

Her Companions Were Executed.

PARIS, July 27.—The woman Berland, sentenced to death for the Courbevoie murder, has been reprieved. Her son, also named Berland, and Dore, his companion in guilt, were guillotined at 5 o'clock this morning.

Murdered His Wife.

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa., July 27.—Mrs. Wall, the wife of a well known citizen of this place, was found murdered in her husband's house. The husband, Charles Wall, gave himself up and confessed that he killed her.

WRECK OF A CATAMARAN

A Pleasure Party Thrown Into the Sound.

THREE ARE BELIEVED TO BE LOST.

Judge Dailey, of Connecticut, and Two Companions Thought to Have Been Drowned—Captain Austin and a Little Girl Rescued by the Margaret.

NEW HAVEN, July 27.—The catamaran Typhon, having on board Judge Hugh Dailey, his little niece, Captain George Austin, Clarence Beebe and Rufus Shepard, of this city, went to pieces about four miles off Branford beacon, in Long Island sound. The sea had become unusually heavy without any warning and the catamaran was unable to stand the strain.

Captain Austin and the little girl took the only skiff with which the boat was supplied and had a desperate row of five miles, after having put on evening a few minutes Captain Austin broke an oar and had to get along as well as he could while the little girl bailed the boat with her hat, until sighted by the steamer Margaret and rescued.

The Others May Be Lost.

It is thought that the others were lost. The last seen of Judge Dailey, Beebe and Shepard they were clinging to the wreck, with the water up to their necks, the waves threatening to carry them under any moment. The Margaret brought Captain Austin and his charge back to this city, and when the calamity became known searching parties were organized. At midnight, after a thorough search, the hunt was abandoned and the parties returned.

The Boat Considered Seaworthy.

The Typhon was regarded as a crack yacht, and two years ago was entered in the New Haven Yacht club by Commodore Beecher. The boat is well known by all yachtsmen.

Judge Dailey was one of the leading Republican politicians of Connecticut, and had filled several offices, besides being on the bench. He was a man of means. Mr. Shepard was well known in social circles of New Haven, and Mr. Beebe belonged to one of the city's best families, and was prominent in social and business life.

Captain Austin's Statement.

Captain Austin returned to the city, and speaking of the disaster, said:

"We were sailing along nicely, with no idea that trouble was imminent. The sea was rolling, but not to an extent to cause any apprehensions to the party. There was only a moderate breeze blowing.

"Suddenly, as my gaze shook abreast of the beacon, the water suddenly began to roll heavily, and the little catamaran labored hard under the strain. Judge Dailey began to fear that we wouldn't be able to weather the gale.

The Boat Capsized.

"He spoke to me, and asked what we should do. While we were considering ways and means the catamaran quickly capsized. I took his little niece and jumped into the boat.

"We had an awful time before we were picked up, the waves dashing into the little craft. We succeeded in keeping her afloat, however, until we were rescued by the Margaret.

"I am afraid the judge and the others were drowned. They were clinging to the wreck the last I saw of them."

Governor Pattison Will Attend.

HARRISBURG, July 27.—Governor Pattison has written a letter to the councils in regarding the sinking of the Pensacola, in which he says he has been informed that the chairman of the committee mailed him a letter on the 23d inst. requesting his appearance at a meeting of the committee on the 28th. The governor says he has not yet received the letter, and that it will give him great pleasure to be present at any meeting of the committee, if given reasonable notice as to the time and place of such meeting.

The Strike of Switchmen.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 27.—The situation in the Big Four switchmen's strike has assumed serious proportions. Most of the strikers' places have been coming all day, accompanied by special officers appointed by Governor Campbell. The company has possession of the yards declaring the strikers discharged and directing them to call at the office and get their money. The discharged men declare that before their families suffer they will create more trouble by attempting to prevent new men going to work.

Think They Have Almy.

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 27.—The supposed murderer of Christie A. Warden, of Hanover, N. H., who has been seen arrested at Woodford by Deputy Sheriff Rooney and brought to the county jail here. He was examined this morning. There is positive evidence that the supposed Almy is none other than Eleazer Davis, a tramp weaver. He does not answer the description of the murderer very closely.

Will Look for Weiss' Remains.

GLEN HOUSE, N. H., July 27.—Two young men walking on the southeast slope of Mount John Quincy Adams found the watch and chain belonging to Gould Weiss, the Mount Washington violinist, who was lost last summer while on his way from Glen House to Mount Washington. A party has started from the Glen House in the hope of finding the remains of the unfortunate man.

From Cape May.

CAPE MAY, July 27.—President Harrison with Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick and Postmaster General Wanamaker attended Beadle Memorial Presbyterian chapel in the morning. In the afternoon the president was called upon by State Senator McMillan, of Buffalo, and Colonel D. S. Alexander, United States district attorney for eastern New York.

Lawyer Newcombe Dead.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Richard S. Newcombe, the well known New York lawyer, died at his residence, 900 Madison avenue.

RIOTS IN CHINA.

The Catholic Chapels in Various Places Looted and Fired.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Advices from China received by way of Victoria give further details of the anti-foreign riots in various parts of North China. The most anti-Catholic attack reported was made at Yankao. The father in charge fell on his knees before the crowd and begged them not to murder him, but the doors were soon forced and everything looted, the crowd passing things from hand to hand in a chain, so that nothing might be missed. The house was then set on fire. In Kiangsi, near Fuchow, four chapels have been destroyed in the last few days. The Lazarists expect daily to hear of the destruction of their establishment at Nanchag Fu. The chapel and school at Size Kow Hsien, as well as the residence of the priests, were attacked, looted and burned down June 26.

A disturbance has taken place in the Fukiel province. It is stated that the rebels are several thousand strong and have captured the city. The intelligent Chinese think it will be difficult for the foreigners in Canton to escape.

The steamship Hankow, from merchants, a crew of seven and nine passengers was attacked shortly after dusk by a few junks containing armed men on June 15 off the port of Kiu Kiang. They were resisted, and a fierce fight raged for half an hour. Two passengers were killed and 3 others, two shot and three stabbed so seriously that they died within a few minutes. The pirates seized the junk and sailed away with her.

THE LANDLORD WAS SHOT.

He Wanted Possession of the House, but the Tenant Fired at Him.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 27.—A sensational shooting affray occurred at Kirkwood. In March last Charles Mills, wife and adopted son moved to that town from Pennsylvania, renting a house owned by John H. Walker. But little was had elapsed when it was discovered that they were undesirable tenants, and they were ordered to vacate. This Mills would not do. Walker had rented the land with the place for a certain period and proposed to stay.

In the meantime Walker sold some furniture which was stored in the house, and Mills would not allow him to get it. Accompanied by several neighbors, Walker went to Mills' house to get the furniture. As they approached the house Mills, who was in the second story, thrust a gun out of the window and ordered them to halt. Walker paid no attention to him, and attempted to enter the yard. As he did so Mills fired, the shot taking effect in Walker's face and neck. Walker was carried home and a surgeon summoned. An examination showed that carpet tacks had had been used for shot. Walker is badly injured, and will probably die.

Killed the Warden.

DORTMUND, Germany, July 27.—A native of Silesia named Michalski, having been convicted of brutal murder, was sentenced to death, had vainly petitioned for a commutation. He was in the Dortmund prison awaiting the executioner to carry out the sentence. He behaved in a moody manner, but nobody suspected his design. The warden treated the man with the consideration usual in such cases. He went about to die, and paid for his leniency with his life. The prisoner suddenly seized the warden unawares, and, notwithstanding the struggles of the latter, succeeded before assistance could arrive in strangling him to death.

The Report Not Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The report from Chili that the steam launch of the United States steamship Pensacola accidentally blown up and five men killed by a torpedo from the Chilian government torpedo boat Almirante Lynch cannot be confirmed at the navy department. No credit is placed in the report, and from a close investigation by the department officials it is learned positively that the Pensacola was not in Chilian waters on this date. Had such an accident happened Admiral McCann would, if possible, have reported it immediately to the department.

The Chicago Stock Yards Fight.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Interest in the fight between the Union Stock Yards company and the packers who comprise the Big Four combination was revived by the receipt of a telegram from E. D. Martyn stating that the Tolleston Stock Yards company had been incorporated at Trenton, N. J., with a capital of $1,000,000 and the privilege conferred instead of condemned on the big tract of land in Warren, Ind. This is perhaps the most important move that has yet been made in the stock yards fight.

Killed for Five Cents.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—Frederick Buchner, a cigarmaker, was shot and killed in the fruit store of Canuutilla Somella. It is alleged, and it is said, that Somella shot Buchner in the heat of a dispute over the shortage of five cents in Buchner's change, but Mrs. Somella, who had the devotion to her land to shield her husband, declares that Buchner assaulted her and she fired in self defense. Somella and his wife were locked up.

Strikers Excited.

HARRISBURG, July 27.—Word has been received here that there is a great excitement among the Hungarian and Polish strikers at Steelton, and trouble is feared. The company has started up No. 2 furnace with non-union men. The striking workmen and they threaten to raid the furnace. The company's officials says that 1,600 men will be at work in the mills today. The men at the Lochiel works are still out.

Mr. Cox Is Missing.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., July 27.—James Cox, a wealthy business man of New York, left his home in South Brooklyn on July 11, ostensibly to go to Richland, a small town eight miles from this place. He never reached his destination. As Mr. Cox is known to carry large sums of money on his person the family entertain fears that he has met with foul play.

Mr. Havemeyer Critically Ill.

NEW YORK, July 27.—It was reported from his home at Throgg's Neck that Frederick E. Havemeyer, the sugar king, had passed a very restless day and had grown worse during the evening. His physician, Dr. Lewis said, "Mr. Havemeyer is now critically ill, and there are very few hopes for his ultimate recovery."

Killed in a Brawl.

TROY, N. Y., July 27.—During the progress of a brawl in South Troy Daniel Barron was stabbed by Edgar Aurelius. Barron died half an hour later. Aurelius is in jail.

EXPECTING AN ATTACK.

Coquimbo, Chili, in Danger of a Battle.

WARSHIPS CONCENTRATED THERE.

The Armies of the Government and the Insurgents Pretty Evenly Matched and the Result Will Depend Upon Their Fighting Abilities.

COQUIMBO, Chili, via GALVESTON, July 27.—Once more the prospect within a short time of a battle between the forces of Balmaceda and the insurgents causes great excitement in this town. The junta's troops are massing at Huasco, and it is expected that they will soon be on the march toward this place.

The Fleet Will Help.

The congressional fleet will operate here in the combined attack that is to be made upon the government stronghold.

The Amazonas, Aconcagua, Cochrane and Esmeralda were seen hovering on the outside of Coquimbo bay a few days since, and an attack on the town is hourly expected.

Again Seen Near Coquimbo.

For some reason or other they did not storm Coquimbo, probably because the land forces of the insurgents were not then ready to co-operate. At any rate they withdrew as suddenly as they appeared. Now they have again been seen not far from Coquimbo.

An Early Attack Feared.

It is the general belief that the combined attack will take place within three days from this date.

The government forces here are now stronger than ever. They have been reenforced by men brought from Valparaiso on Balmaceda's transports.

The Armies Evenly Matched.

The Balmaceda army at Coquimbo now number some 10,000 men, and it is said that the insurgent troops are about as numerous.

The result of the engagement between the two armies, therefore, will depend on the respective fighting qualities of the Balmacedists and insurgents. One thing is very much in favor of the government troops. They are led by experienced and brave officers.

The Land Forces to Have It Out.

It is not likely that the insurgent fleet will have it all their own way in making the attack. The best ships in the government service are now on their way north to engage their attention, so as to let the land forces have it out between themselves.

ARMS WANTED.

The War Will Be Ended in Thirty Days If They Can Be Got.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 27.—Carlos Krug, captain of the port of Iquique, arrived here in the steamer Montserrat, which left Iquique on July 3. Krug reports that when he left Iquique the insurgents had control of everything, and would settle the war inside of thirty days if they succeeded in getting arms, which they are amply able to pay for.

They derive a revenue of over $2,000,000 a month from the nitrate fields and are using the money to carry on the war. The government, Krug says, is issuing paper money to such an extent that it is only worth about 40 cents in gold. Krug also states that a shipment of arms is expected to arrive at Iquique, which will enable the insurgents to resume aggressive measures.

Suicide of a Young Lady.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., July 26.—The body of Jennie Kurtz, the pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of Charles W. Kurtz, of this city, was found in the Wabash river. Mr. Kurtz objected to his daughter receiving the attentions of Ellwood Good, and last Monday evening severely chastised her with a strap for disobeying him. Tuesday morning she started for the factory where she had been employed, and that was the last her family saw of her alive. She had removed her shoes and stockings and sprung into the water.

Mr. Stanford Not a Candidate.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Senator Leland Stanford, when asked if he would accept the Republican nomination for the presidency, said he was not a candidate and did not propose to be. He denied that protection and free trade were issues between the two great parties. The money question he regards as the most important now before the people, and he is in favor of free coinage. If elected he will introduce his 2 per cent. bill at the next session of congress.

Blaine Went Out Driving.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 27.—Secretary Blaine drove out in an open carriage with his son Emmons, the secretary holding the reins. The recent reports of Mr. Blaine's serious illness and likelihood to retire from public life were flatly denied by a member of the family. Mr. Blaine expects to remain here until the cool weather sets in, when he will return to Washington and resume his duties.

Death of a Noted Lawyer.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., July 27.—Judge Hiram C. Clark, a well known lawyer of Jamestown, N. Y., died at the Pilgrim House, in this place, in his seventy-sixth year. For many years during the reign of the vigilance committee he was a judge in California. He passed practical law in Virginia City, Utica, Lockport and Toledo. His father was Lot C. Clark, of Niagara Falls fame.

Seized by the Rush.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 27.—The schooner E. D. Marvin has arrived here, having been seized by the American cruiser Rush while attempting to enter Behring sea after she had been warned against doing so. The Rush pursued her into Ounalaska, seized her and turned her over to the British warship Nymphe, which ordered her home.

Youthful Murderers.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—Ida Reed, aged sixteen, and Frank Cromwell, aged fourteen, have been arrested charged with the murder of their newborn infant. Doctors say the child was strangled.

No Crew for the Errazaris.

LISBON, July 27.—The Chilian cruiser Errazaris will have to depart without a crew, the government and foreign consuls having prevented the engagement of their respective subjects.

Six Persons Killed.

LONDON, July 27.—The condensers of the chemical works at Gateshead collapsed, killing six persons by crushing them to death.

George Gasser, of Newark, N. J., whose two sons and son-in-law were drowned recently, is to be admitted to the Krueger home. He is seventy-two years old and nearly blind.

Mysterious Murder.

CLEVELAND, July 27.—A special from Painesville, O., gives details of a mysterious murder. William Wood lived alone near Mentor Marsh. Not far from him resided Charles Schwind, whose daughter Agnes had been paid some attention by Wood. Schwind employed a young German named Hermann, who had proposed to Agnes and been rejected. He was jealous of Wood. Last night a neighbor of Wood heard shots fired on the latter's farm followed by cries for help. He ran over to the premises. Hermann was discovered with blood on his clothing and he was arrested. The sheriff had to hurry him to the jail for his protection. Wood was found in an out field and still alive, but he died in an hour without regaining consciousness.

Arrested for a Joke.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 27.—Frederick Conley, a prominent merchant of Farm Ingdale, N. J., has been arrested at Ocean Grove on a charge of begging on the beach. The officer brought Conley before Chief of Police Patterson, who instantly released him. Conley, who is noble grand of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, councellor junior of the Order of American Mechanics and clerk of the judiciary committee of the New Jersey house of assembly, is very indignant and declares he will sue the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting association for false arrest. He believes that a fellow member of one of his lodges caused his arrest as a joke.

Held Up by a Woman.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 27.—Editor C. M. Dickinson, of the Binghamton Republican, was held up by Mrs. Elijah Drake Friday in a lonely pass near his summer home in the mountains, a few miles south of this city. Mrs. Drake placed a pistol to Mr. Dickinson's head and threatened to shoot Dickinson. The woman mortgaged her property a year ago and Dickinson has secured possession of the papers. She had demanded the surrender of the papers, and had threatened to shoot Dickinson if he did not give them up.

Almost Killed by a Mastiff.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 27.—James Steva, aged eight years, was attacked by a big mastiff belonging to John Edgeworth and was nearly killed. Half of the boy's scalp was torn off, and he was bitten in three places on the neck and face. The child's screams brought people to his assistance, and they saved his life. He was carried to the City hospital, where fifty-eight stitches were put in his scalp. The doctors hope to save the boy's life.

Rewarded for Bravery at Sea.

SARNIA, Ont., July 27.—Captain Martin Mahoney, who gallantly rescued the ship wrecked crew of the American steamer C. C. Ryan, has received from the president of the United States a gold watch, chain and compass, valued at $350, as a mark of appreciation for his bravery.

WHY WOMEN LOOK COOL

HOW A WOMAN KEEPS HER TEMPER A-TURE DOWN ON HOT DAYS.

Her Clothing Is Lighter Than Man's, and Then She Doesn't Care About Every One Knowing That She's Worn While a Man Does—Praise for the Wife.

"What a wonderful thing a woman is!" mused a man in a window as the afternoon procession swept along the avenue in the scorching sun, the men heated, flushed and perspiring, the women serene and unruffled. "That she'll pick up her own handkerchief or carry her fan, she is so frail sometimes, but she can row a boat like an athlete, climb mountains that phase me and run down slopes in the descent that make me dizzy to look at.

"If a fellow happens to be tired and hot and hungry, and snaps out a thing or two at her that he doesn't half mean, it makes her sick with grieving, but when the baby dies, or you're down on your luck, and she has to sell her jewelry to pay the rent, she does it without a word. She will tease and tantalize and torment you with her wiles but let some one else go back on you, or even let you do something awful thing that gets found out, and she will promptly endow you with more virtues than a canonized saint, and the best of it is she will actually believe that you have every one of them and are ripe for glory.

"But there's one thing she can do that I really would like to have explained. You know on a hot, scorching day how a man, the handsomest and best of us, looks hot, red, shiny, disreputable, wilted and villainous. Did you ever see a woman look like that, or anything else but a fresh rose in a refrigerator or a white marble Venus in a fountain spray, no matter if the mercury has climbed to kiss the boiling point and old Humidity is on hand with all his flamed moist troops.

"Now the thing I'd like to know is whether she is as cool as she looks, and, if she isn't, how she manages to keep up that frappe appearance? Why doesn't her nose shine as flash light? Why doesn't she ever get mussed or cross or disagreeable or dirty at the end of the trip, instead of looking as if she just came out of the top drawer? Why doesn't she grow blowsy and common and 'ornary' looking as we do when it is 100 degs. in the shade?"

"That's just what I was asking my wife the other day," answered his friend, "and she said the difference was not so much a matter of temperature as of common sense. 'You see,' she argued, 'women endure any kind of sustained discomfort better than men. I suppose it's having to bear with men all these years that trains them.

"'Mothers hand down this gift of endurance to daughters, and unconsciously they apply it to whatever annoyance comes in the way—tight shoes or tipsy husbands, death in the family or unbecoming bonnets and dresses that don't fit—anything and everything, including the heat. Now, if a woman fumed and fretted about the heat as a man does she would look like a fiend in human form, for, added to the warmth of the atmosphere would be added the heat of agitated nerves, which increases the action of the heart and quickens the circulation.

"'Besides, if you men do feel and look warm you want every one to know it and to feel it and be warm too. If a woman gets heated she keeps still, partly because she knows she doesn't look pretty and doesn't wish to call attention to the fact, but more because she understands by wise, womanly instincts that the man she wants to please is not at all entertained by hearing of her discomfort, and will give her precious little sympathy if she complains and fusses.

"'A man isn't so fond of giving out his soul in sympathy as a woman is, and is more comfortable with the women who don't bother him with cold or tired or disgruntled about something, whether it's heat or religion. But that isn't all,' she continued. 'A woman doesn't wear on a day such as wilteful of things to—

"'What do you get a glimpse of when a woman gets down from a coach or gets a spill of any kind? Nothing but ruffles.

"'And of what are the ruffles made? Lace, and how much warmth is there in lace? Instead of starched rough bands and collars, nothing but smooth, soft surfaces and frills. How much do you suppose it all weighs, anyway? One day we were agitating the question of the weight of women's clothes in comparison with those worn by men.

"'Every dud I had on weighed just two pounds and twelve ounces, while your things tipped the scale at seven pounds. Some day when you want to be really cool put on a pair of fine Nainsook trousers under a nankeen petticoat and India silk or muslin dress skirt, and see if you don't feel as if you were dressed in a cloud film or cobwebs.

"'Every actress who wears men's clothes will tell you how warm and heavy they seem, how close and confining they are about the legs, how stifling about the feet. It is to be boxed up in a starched linen collar and cuffs. Woman's most uncomfortable garment is of course her corset, but only about women are obliged to wear heavy or tight corsets. The slight woman revels in a bit of boned lace which she wears very loose or dispenses with altogether under her lovely girdled summer gowns and blouses, and besides, if the corset is tight and the gloves and shoes as close as well, doesn't it all unpede the circulation and keep the woman's blood from rushing through her veins in rivers of fire?

"'Still, some of the high uttering dress lords, ringdums and fools are not such cool gowns as they appear, for they are often close in fit and lined with firm, warm silk, but the woman who wears them doesn't half know how to wriggle in them as a man would, and would she if she were in man's attire."—New York Sun.

Women Not Angels.

It is evident that women as we now find them are very far from being perfect and angelic beings. In the matter of pecuniary honesty, while they are far above men, they have hitherto had far less of temptation or opportunity than men. In lawless races, as the English gypsies, where women have great freedom, this distinction does not exist. On the contrary, while the men's range of action in this respect goes no farther than cheating in a horse trade, to the women alone is intrusted what is known as "the great trick," by which all the allver of an unsuspecting family is appropriated under pretense of changing it into gold.

There is no reason to suppose that women are not capable of being dishonest, and there is every reason to suppose that whenever they become so the recognized sharpness of the feminine wit will place them high in their chosen vocation.—T. W. Higginson in Harper's Bazar.

MY LOVER.

I often see on a summer morn
While the dew is bright on the blades of corn,
The dawn let down her silvery tears
Over the lichs of my early years,
Where the dappled waves o'er the pebbles glass.

A bridge of mist is over the stream,
And looking across I can almost see
My long lost lover appear thing me,
His brow is brown with wearing the ruddy hat
That summer made when our love was new.

Over the road where the shadows lay
I waited his coming day by day;
And the banks of the mill stream,
Where the moon looked down on a lover's dream,

And the swain baptized in its misty light,
Where crowned with blossoms like stars of sights,
Where he twined their sprays in my golden hair
That I yet in the heavenly fields may wear,
And Heaven be fairer and more sublime
That I had a lover on earth, one time.

—Mary Baird Finch in Arkansas Traveler

MARGARET ACH IFAN.

The Remarkable All Around Accomplishments of a Welsh Woman.

In Welsh lore we sometimes find things of doubtful authenticity; but the readers of this brief sketch may rest assured that it is no fiction. I find it in "Pennant's Tours in Wales," first published in English something over 100 years ago, and lately brought out in the Welsh language. I take it from the Welsh edition. This phenomenal person was born about the year 1606 and brought up at Llanbedr, North Wales. Nothing is said of any of her relatives Mr. Pennant says:

"At the head of the lake there lives a very noted woman, Margaret Ach Ifan and I was sadly disappointed on not finding her at home when I called. She is the last specimen of the strength and spirit of the daughters of the ancient Britons. At this writing (1776) she is about ninety years of age. In the line of hunting, shooting and fishing, her active days, she had no equal. She kept at least, a dozen dogs of the best breed—bloodhounds, greyhounds, setters and terriers. She would scarce be defeated. She received offers of marriage by the score, but for a long time she threw them all aside. At last, however, she smilingly accepted an offer from the feebliest of the lot."

In a Welsh volume in my possession—"Cymru Fu" (Wales of the past), I find the following, which abbreviated I insert as an addition to Mr. Pennant's account: "One day her little dog Ianth stole the dinner of one of the miners. This so enraged the man that he instantly killed the dog. When Margaret heard of this she went to the miner's lodging place and found him standing with others outside of the house. "She said that she was willing to pay for the stolen dinner four times over, and that he in return must pay for the dog. The man, who was one of the largest and strongest in the neighborhood, laughed at her scornfully. In a threatening manner he approached her and commanded her to depart or she might share the fate of Ianto. No sooner had he finished the sentence than a tremendous blow from Margaret's fist laid him senseless on the ground, where she left him and departed toward her home."

She died at the ripe age of 102, and it is said that she never, even for a day, was confined to her bed by sickness.—Utica (N. Y.) Herald.

Wear a Good Dress When Traveling.

Whatever you do, don't wear a "tacky" traveling dress. Tacky? Why tacky—is—Well it is the only word that expresses it whether it is described in an "unabridged" or no. It is a dress so far down the road of wear and tear that its respectability is shaky, supplemented—and it is piled on. So many women think an old dress is "good enough to travel in." It is a mistake. An old dress may do very well to wear among friends at home, but it is not a fit, but it is not a desirable standard by which to have the opinion of a stranger gauged.

However unassailable the worth and social position of a woman may be in her home circle, she becomes a nonentity in traveling. She retains but two claims to respect and attention. One is that she is a woman and the other is her personality. It does not take long or very close observation to discover that, somehow, personality is a much more powerful claim than the simple fact of belonging to the gentle sex. Her best friend and her worst enemy among entire strangers is her personal appearance. "Pity 'tis, 'tis true." If she double is let the woman with the "old dress" look about her.—Chicago Herald.

They Like Fat Girls in Tunis.

A Tunisian girl has no chance of marriage unless she tips the scale at 200 pounds, and to that end she commences to fatten when she is fifteen years old. She takes aperients and eats a great deal of sweet stuff and leads a sedentary life to hasten the process. Up to fifteen she is very handsome, but at that period she is immense, unwieldy mass of fat she becomes. She waddles, or rather undulates along the street, and becomes the very picturesque, especially if she be of the richer class. They are clothed in fine silks of resplendent hues of a bright red, yellow or green, and wear a flat, conical-shaped headdress from which depends a loose, white drapery. Turkish trousers and dainty slippers, the heel of which barely reaches the middle of the foot, complete the costume.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Women Who Receive as Much as Men.

It is sometimes urged that women are never so successful as men in any business they enter, for the perfectly natural reason that they are always looking out for the interests of some man who will relieve them of the necessity of bothering about business. But occasionally one does find a case where a woman has her own living to make and do not desert their posts. The case of Miss Ella B. Sabin may be cited. For thirteen years she has been installing various branches of knowledge into immature heads, and now is superintendent of schools in Portland, Ore. And there is Professor Harriet Cooke, who has occupied a college chair of history for twenty-five years, and receives the same pay as the male professors.—New York Recorder.

AN EVENTFUL DAY FOR A BABY.

How Little Estelle Amused Herself and What Happened to Her.

The following letter, which we find in Little Men and Women, was written to a little girl called Lady Gay by the pages of a very tiny friend of hers named Estelle:

DEAR LADY GAY—I must tell you about our baby's mishap. I know you will be sorry she had it. You see, they have so much whooping cough around here that our little girl has no one to play with, so she has to amuse herself. On that day she had called in vain at the Jones for May, the next door neighbor, and had done all a baby knows how to do, in the house and out of doors.

She had spent two hours washing her dollies. She washed their faces, and their hands, and their feet, taking pains with their ears. She had chatted with the birds on the cherry trees and with the chickens in their coops; with the cats, and even scolded the spotted cow. Then she played company was coming, and in getting ready for her visitors she had her mishap.

There stood by the gate, where the spotted cow drinks, a large tub of water half full. Estelle had found a chip on the ground and was playing it was a hair brush, and she went to this tub to wet it. After doing this a dozen times she leaned too far over into the tub, and on the thirteenth time her feet slipped and in she went, head first.

How she managed to keep her head above water I do not know, but she did and so was not drowned. But she was badly frightened when her grandma took her out; she cried for two hours and was sick all night and the next day. Whenever we mention the word "tub" to her, Estelle now spreads her two precious hands before her eyes, and turns away her face, as if to say, "If you please, I would rather not think about that."

Estelle would send her love if she were not fast asleep. Her mamma and I send a good deal, and we are, dear Lady Gay, your loving friends. GOODWIN and ESTELLE'S PAPA.

Edible Birds' Nests.

Edible birds' nests, of which we have all heard, form an important article of commerce between the Malay, Eastern archipelago and China, where they are considered to be quite a luxury. They are the nests of a species of swallows, not unlike the bird with which we are familiar at home; it is about four inches and a half in length, with a great expanse of wing. The nest, which is small, is found in vast numbers in the great rocky caves which abound in some of these eastern islands; they are formed of a gelatinous substance, nearly transparent, and now believed to be a species of seaweed. The nests, which are so numerous as to be adhering to one another, are collected by means of ladders and ropes; it is after the young are fledged that the nests are thus taken. In the Chinese market they are sold at such a high price that they can only be purchased by wealthy persons. They are used to thicken rich soups, and are considered to be a very nutritious food. Each nest weighs about half an ounce.

The Spelling Match.

They'd all sat down but Bess and me,
I surely thought I'd win.
To lose on such an easy word,
It was a shame and sin!
We spelled the longest in the book,
The hardest ones—right through,
"Xylography," and "trichydermn,"
And "gneiss," and "phthisic," too.

I spelled "immalleability,"
"Pneumonia"—it was fun!
"Phlebotomist" and "zoophyta,"
Each long and curious one.
Then teacher gave a right queer smile
And whispered, "Isabelle,"
And back ward, quick, she turned the leaves,
And then she gave out "spell."

I'm sure I never stopped to think
About that "double I."
It seemed like such an easy word:
But one can never tell.
"S-p-e-l." I spelled it—
And how they all did laugh!
And teacher said, "I think, my dear,
Too easy 'twas by half."

Now, Bessie was not proud nor mean:
She said, "No wonder, Jane,
For we were thinking of big words;
You'll spell it right again."
I'm glad that it was Bess who won,
And not those girls.—Well!
If I did miss one little word,
I showed that I could spell.
—St. Nicholas.

Where Violins Are Made.

There is said to be one place, Markneukirchen and its surrounding villages, where the Germans do nothing but make violins. There are altogether about 15,000 people living there, and all, from the little urchin to the old grayheaded man, the small girl and the old grandmother, are engaged in making some part of a fiddle.

Making Money in a Homely Way.

Two women in New Jersey, hearing ten years ago that the butter made in certain dairies in the south of France brought very high prices in London, saved their wages until they had enough to go to the dairies where the butter was made and learn the secret of the French dairies.

They returned home, began with the manufacture of a few pounds each week in their father's house, and in two years were able to set their own price upon their butter in New York.

We trust this will not discourage the ambition of any of our girl friends who wish to earn their living, provided they consult, when choosing their occupation, their own ability and knowledge.

If they are fitted by nature and study to be authors, artists, or even navigators, let them keep to their calling; but if not, why slight the homely, commonplace occupations which offer comfort, shelter and success in the quiet ways of life?

Superfine butter commands a high profit in all of our cities. Many of our farmers' daughters can make ordinary butter. Very few can make superior butter. How many educated Americans women are trying to succeed in honest trade, as their French sisters have done?

If circumstances require a woman to take upon her more of the world's cares than that which comes to her as a daughter, wife and mother, let her do it and be honored in the doing.

But let her remember that the baker who makes a good loaf of bread is more to be honored and is of greater benefit to the world than the artist who paints a poor picture.

Let her choose to do only that which she can do best.—Youth's Companion.

Diet and Impurity.

"Keep thyself pure" is God's command. Purity is freedom from all that contaminates and defiles. Whether or not it will be secured for the children depends largely upon the care taken of them by the parents. There seems to be a close connection between cleanliness and purity. God's way of teaching purity to his ancient people (rather his way of making it an ingrained part of their nature) was by the washings in clean water. The rods of the priests of "fine linen clean and white." The perfect cleanliness of all vessels used in his sanctuary. The "without spot or blemish" required of every sacrifice offered to him. Similar means will teach the same lessons in our homes.

See that the child's skin is always kept clean by bathing in pure water. That its clothes, no matter how coarse and patched, are clean and whole. That the dishes from which it eats and the bed in which it sleeps are clean. Dirt and indecency seem to be twin brothers.—Mary Allen West.

To Brighten the Carpet.

If a carpet is wiped now and then with a flannel cloth wrung out in ammonia and warm water, it will look much brighter. It must be wiped dry with a clean cloth. After a room has been well beaten, it will brighten it to wipe it over with a flannel cloth dipped in kerosene, and well wrung out. Care must be taken, and perfectly dry, not to allow any matches or fire in the room. Tea leaves or wet bran sprinkled over a carpet before sweeping will brighten it, but if the carpet is of delicate tints either of these will stain it. A velvet carpet is cleaned by sprinkling it thickly with damp bran and brushing it off with a stiff broom.—Louisville Journal.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1891. PRICE TWO CENTS.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

TWENTY-THIRD MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

The Farcical Proceedings whereby the Combine Grant a Certain J. M. Low & Co. a Water Works Franchise (?)—The Little Six Much Mixed.

The City Common Council met in special session last evening. It was 9.15 o'clock when the meeting was called to order. Besides the President Councilmen Ackerman, Glinns, Gallup, Hetfield, Johnston, Moffet, Roberts, Rushmore, See and Spangenberg responded to roll call.

On motion of Mr. Hetfield the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with.

Mr. Hetfield moved that the corporation counsel be instructed to draw up an ordinance to be presented at the next meeting, prohibiting the holding of concerts in any saloon or any room adjoining. It was so ordered.

The Corporation Counsel said that he desired to correct a statement published in one of the evening papers (not THE NEWS) to the effect that he had been appointed to unsuccessfully to stop these concerts. He further said that this was the first time he had been appealed to.

The call of the meeting was then read.

Mr. Hetfield moved that the ordinance concerning the granting of a Water Works franchise to J. M. Low & Co., be placed on its third reading.

Mr. Ackerman called for the ayes and nays on the question.

A vote resulted as follows:

Ayes—Messrs. Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—six.

Nays—Messrs. Ackerman, Glinns, Johnston, Rushmore and See—five.

The president declared that the motion was carried.

Mr. Hetfield moved the adoption of the ordinance on its third reading.

HERE IS WHERE THE FARCE BEGAN.

The clerk called the roll. Mr. Ackerman voted no. Mr. Gallup followed suit and Mr. Smith, the presiding officer, did likewise. Mr. Hetfield looked at Mr. Gallup and whispered something in his ear. Mr. Gallup immediately arose and asked to change his vote from nay to aye. The president granted the request. He did not then dream that he had voted the same way that Mr. Gallup had. The clerk informed him that the motion was lost by a vote of 7 to 4. The president looked surprise. Mr. Spangenberg asked to change his vote. The president denied his request as the vote had already been announced. Mr. Hetfield whispered something in Mr. Moffett's ear. Mr. Moffett took a book from his desk and began to examine its pages very carefully. The curtain fell for the present. The audience "caught on" and were convulsed with laughter. The big five were a broad grin on their faces. It was evident to all present that the little six were humbled, and did not know what any school boy could have told them, how to proceed in such a blunder. Mr. Hetfield whispered to President Smith and again resumed his seat.

He then moved that the ordinance granting the sewerage franchise to J. M. Low & Co., be put back to its second reading. The motion was lost.

Mr. Hetfield next moved that the same ordinance be adopted on its third reading. The motion was lost by a unanimous vote.

This may be explained from the fact that the ex-Chancellor Runyon had discovered a number of errors in the ordinance and had advised Council not to pass it without correcting the errors.

On motion of Councilman Spangenberg the Committee on Public Lights were instructed to place three electric lights in the vicinity of Prospect avenue and the Railway road.

Mr. Glinn inquired if by granting the lights it would exceed the appropriation.

Mr. Spangenberg replied that it would not.

Mr. Moffett went to the president's desk, book in hand, and pointed out a rule of order. "Oh! ye gods, we are saved," was the look visible in the face of every member of the "combine." Mr. Moffett resumed his seat, but he was no sooner seated than the president requested him to take the chair. Mr. Smith then moved to reconsider his vote on the Water-Works ordinance. Mr. Spangenberg did likewise. Their motions were carried by a vote of 6 to 5.

Mr. Spangenberg then moved that the Water-Works ordinance be placed on its final passage.

Mr. Ackerman arose and said: "I have remained silent while these farcical proceedings were going on."

Mr. Smith called him to order.

Mr. Ackerman said he thought he had a right to term the proceedings what he saw fit, and continued: "At a conference before the meeting it was decided not to pass the ordinance until the several errors contained therein had been corrected, and I do not believe in making it a law without those corrections."

President Smith informed Mr. Ackerman that it was the sewerage ordinance that contained the errors.

Mr. Hetfield said the ordinance before the Council at present contained no errors. The gentleman did not know what he was voting on.

Mr. Ackerman retorted that he knew what he was voting on, but evidently several of the gentleman on the other side of the house did not a little while ago. "I voted right," he said.

Mr. Hetfield said, "Then you evidently do not know what you were talking about."

Mr. Ackerman paid no heed to that remark.

The ordinance was then adopted by the usual vote of six to five.

Mr. Hetfield moved that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to draw up an ordinance compelling gas, water and other companies to put the streets in proper repair after they had laid pipes. The motion prevailed.

The meeting then adjourned.

The following is from the New York Tribune of this morning:

POLITICAL TRICKERY IN THE COUNCIL.

A political trick was played in the Plainfield Common Council Chamber last night, when the Democrats forced through an ordinance granting to J. M. Low, of Kingston, N. Y., a franchise to build and operate a water-works system in Plainfield. For several weeks the "Big Six" Democratic "combine" in the Council has been manipulating things to suit Low, who applied for both water and sewerage franchises. Owing to the fact that the Plainfield Water Supply Company, which owns exclusive water franchises in Plainfield, has been building its works in the city, the Republican Councilmen refused to recognize the new application.

Before the Council convened last night it was agreed among all the Councilmen that both of Low's propositions should be laid over for more consideration. Especially was it desired that the water contract should receive careful attention before any franchise was awarded. The Republicans doubted their right to award a franchise, and sought to save the city from entering into long and expensive litigation to uphold any of their municipal actions which they feared might prove unlawful. The Democrats took an entirely different view of the matter as soon as the Council convened, and tried by motion and counter-motion to tangle up the Republicans.

The trick was not suspected, however, and the Republicans refused to allow themselves to be inveigled into voting for the scheme. Before the franchise was awarded the Democrats themselves got badly mixed up on amendments, and narrowly escaped being defeated in their project by the Republicans. Force of numbers on the Democratic side, however, overwhelmed the Republicans, and Low won the prize which the Democrats promised he should have. The Council's action last night will prove expensive for the city. All legal advice on the subject was thrown to the winds, and the city's interests have been jeopardized through the political trick.

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

The Board of Education Discuss Various Bids for Coal and Painting.

The Board of Education met last evening in Franklin School building.

President Jacob Kirkner, Mr. E. L. Finch and Dr. J. B. Probasco of the Board and Clerk Clark were present.

The reading of the minutes of the preceding meeting was dispensed with.

In response to the advertisements for coal and painting a large number of bids were received. They were read by Mr. Finch. The prices per ton for coal varied from $3.90 and $4.05 to $5.

On account of non-conformity with the specifications of one, and the undesirable coal offered by the other, the two lowest bids $3.90 and $4.05, were thrown out.

The bid was awarded to Mr. Chas. W. Thomas of New York, whose bid was next lowest.

The bids for painting the school building, etc., as advertised ranged in price from $310 to $467. Mr. Ayers was awarded the contract, if suitable bond is furnished.

A few bills for small amounts were ordered paid. Meeting adjourned 9.30.

Frank Hand, a Somerset street blacksmith, has a fast horse which he sometimes drives faster than the law allows. Citizens who have repeatedly observed him tearing through the streets at a break neck speed have been surprised that he had not been arrested, and have complained to Marshal Rutledge, who finally after much difficulty succeeded in arresting Hand Saturday night.

Mr. Hand was given a hearing before Justice Crossley, to whom he apologized, promising not to be guilty of the offense in the future. The Justice accepted the apology, and permitted Hand to go on paymept of the costs, a mere trifle. This angered the Marshal, who thought Hand ought to have been fined, and told him he could ride as fast as he pleased hereafter without fear of the Marshal arresting him. Mr. Hand, however, will probably have sense enough not to offend in this way again, lest the Justice may not next time be so lenient.

Held an Autopsy.

At the request of the only surviving member of the family, a daughter, Dr. J. H. Carman, assisted by Drs. T. H. Tomlinson, M. B. Long and W. C. Boone, representing the medical staff of Muhlenberg Hospital, on Sunday afternoon performed an autopsy on the body of the late John R. Clark, who died at the hospital on Saturday last. The autopsy took place at the undertaking rooms of Terril & Cole on East Front street, where the remains were taken after life was pronounced extinct, and but few persons ourside of the medical profession knew of the proceedings. The autopsy was entirely successful, but the result was not stated. It is understood, however, that the case is a very interesting one, and that some new diagnostic points were brought out which will prove of vast importance to the medical fraternity.

The Faithful Big Five.

The minority in Common Council will not let the interests of the city suffer for their personal interests or pleasure. Whenever occasion demands they are on hand. They know only too well that it requires their presence to watch the "combine" and they are determined to be present at every meeting. Councilman Ackerman was away on a business trip, but in order to get here in time to protect against the high-handed methods of the "combine," he traveled from three o'clock yesterday morning until late in afternoon, but as the saying is "he got here just the same." Councilman See of Jersey is keeping her end up. Old he is Summering. The big five are bound to do all in their power to protect the city's interests, consequently they were out in force at last night's meeting of Common Council.

The Royal Arcanum Growth.

The July report of the standing of the order in New Jersey is out, and shows a total membership of 7,245, and increase of 128 for two months. The membership of the entire order on June 30th was 119,644. In spite of the hot season New Jersey is keeping her end up. Old Pioneer, No. 23, leads all the councils in the State with an increase of 9. There will be at least three new councils started during September. The first bulletin will be issued in about a week. It will be in the shape of an eight-page pamphlet and will be a splendid campaign document.

A Remonstrance in Circulation.

An East Front street merchant is industriously engaged in circulating a remonstrance for signatures which is designed to present to the city Council, asking for the removal of the fat and tallow factory, situated along the raceway in the rear of French's mill. The place, it is said, has long since been declared a nuisance, and a determined effort is now being made to have the place removed.

—Boynton Beach is made the objective point of one of the New York Press excursions, as well as the favorite resort of the Journal Fresh Air Fund excursions.

—An attempt to set fire to the Bound Brook freight station was discovered being made by an Italian boy last evening. He was arrested by Officer Hutchinson and locked up.

BIG FIRE AT NEW BRUNSWICK.

A Shoe-Factory Burned.—Sparks Set Fire to a Dwelling Half a Mile Away.—Where is the Watchman?

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 28, (Special)—The large shoe-factory on Livingston avenue, this city, occupied by Felter Bro's. was totally destroyed by fire this morning.

At about two o'clock the alarm sounded. Flames were bursting from all the windows of the long, low, frame building, by the time the firemen arrived with the engines.

In spite of all that could be done the building was totally destroyed.

About $40,000 worth of stock was destroyed. The building was insured for $4,000. About 100 employes are out of work on account of the fire.

The sparks from the burning building were carried immense distances. A house quite half a mile away was set on fire by these "flying incendiaries" and damaged $1,500 worth. Houses in the immediate vicinity were considerably damaged. The nearest to the burning factory caught fire and was partially destroyed. Loss, $6,500.

Other homes were saved only by extreme vigilance on the part of the occupants, who kept deluging the incipient flames, which the shower of sparks caused, with water.

A watchman was stationed in the factory. He has not been heard from.

—Marshal Rutledge arrested William Pangborn in the borough of North Plainfield Sunday morning for disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace. Pangborn being supposed by some to be intoxicated, although others say he never drinks liquors of any kind. The Marshal had a number of witnesses on hand to make against Pangborn, but withheld it until Pangborn began circulating stories about the circumstances leading to the arrest which the Marshal denounced as utterly false, and then made his second complaint charging Pangborn with indecent exposure, which he gave as one reason for his arrest. The case was to have been heard last night before Justice Crossley, but was adjourned over until to-night.

There are nice distinctions in law and theatricals. It has been decided that stage kissing does not count as kissing in the proper sense of the term at all, and that a jealous husband or wife can base no kind of an action on the "professional kiss," as it is called.

Our beef and pork exports for the month of June were a third less than for the corresponding month last year. Perhaps the time predicted by the economists is already near when we shall need all our meat and grain at home on account of increase of population.

Pope Leo's decision that "no innovation regarding the established method for the appointment of bishops will be tolerated" in the management of the church in America will endear him anew to all American Roman Catholics. He considers that the American church is moving on harmoniously to a great destiny, and he will not see this grand whole split into petty, non-English speaking communities by the appointment of a Polish bishop for Polish Catholics, an Irish bishop for Irishmen, and a Chinese, Hottentot or Zulu bishop for persons of these nationalities. The pope, Italian though he is, understands better than some born Americans that this is an English speaking country, and that except as a matter of sentiment and poetry all other nationalities should be swallowed up in that of the republic of the United States of America. His holiness has proved himself statesman as well as pope.

So Glad to Know It.

The New York Herald has a medical professor on its staff, whose duty is to look after the health of the common people and tell them what is the matter with them. In a recent article the great public is informed of a wonderful new antiseptic named microcidine. Our readers will thrill with thankfulness when we tell them that "microcidine is a whitish powder made up principally of naphthalate of soda, the rest being naphthoic and carbolic compounds." You can make it by bringing naphtha to a melting temperature"—just the time for a melting temperature now, you observe—"then add to the naphtha half its weight of caustic soda."

But the gem of the paper is where the public is told, in three kinds of one disease. All the kinds, however, are attended with three great symptoms—polysuria, glycosuria and loss of weight; so you pays your money and takes your choice as to which one you will have. The public is also informed that when it loses its pancreas it brings on the above three great symptoms every time. The Herald medical man is to be congratulated on discovering his own particular kind and differentiating it. But we are well be appalled when we are told we are liable to get at any moment not only this, but also

Temporary glycosuria, which is quite a common result of mental or bodily overwork, but which is easily frequently observed in the course of certain acute diseases, and in addition nervous glycosuria, demonstrating in clinical medicine Claude Bernard's experiment on the fourth ventricle, and which is the functional expression of some lesion of the medulla oblongata.

Dear, dear!

"Number Seventeen."

A new railroad was being built through a Pennsylvania county. Gangs of Italian laborers worked on the road as usual, doing the heavy and rough tasks which it seems no Americans, Germans or Irish will do any longer. No. 17 in one of the gangs was smaller even than the other short, swarthy sons of southern Italy. He was delicate featured and in the first few days of work he blistered his hands painfully, but he never complained, toiling on patiently with the rest, doing his full share of work. He lived in a hut by himself, apart from the rest, and gave no name in particular to anybody. All that was known was that he was No. 17.

One day a newly arrived batch of Italians was put to work along with the others. When No. 17 passed out in the morning, one of these new men glanced at number him, and rushing up to him called him by a name. Then No. 17 gave himself dead away and burst into tears like a woman. For "Seventeen" was a woman. She made a confession to the superintendent. She had come to America a year ago. A wild longing for her kindred overcame her, and she resolved to give money to bring her father and mother to America. She worked as a woman, but got little wages for what she was in despair. Then she boldly cut the knot. For love of her father and mother she dressed as a man and went out as a railroad laborer, earning a man's wages. In the months she had been digging and shoveling dirt she had already saved nearly the amount necessary. After making her tearful confession she said she was willing to quit and resume her sex if the superintendent said so.

But he did not. He told her to go on still and work like a man if she desired, and she should have a fair show among his laborers. She did, and is working yet, for love of father and mother.

ON BOARD THE BIG SHIPS

The Naval Reserves Are Still Hard at Work.

THEY GIVE THE REGULARS POINTS.

New London's Mayor Pays the Squadron a Visit, and Governor Hill Will Take a Look at the Boys Soon—Drill with the Big Guns.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 28.—On board naval reserve steamer Stonington, off Fisher's Island—"Silence." "Cast loose and provide." "Load." "Point." "Port gun aim 200 yards at Concord's stern." "Starboard gun 500 yards on bow on steamer coming down—keep it covered."

It was well for the Concord and that steamer that the guns were not loaded. Four of the naval reserves stood on board the Chicago at each of the 57-millimeter Hotchkiss revolving cannon, handling them as if in battle. Lieutenant Nickles, who gave the commands, was proud of their quickness. Admiral Walker complimented them highly. Twenty-nine more reserves were forward with Lieutenants Kilbon, Sheets, Hubbard and Knight, working the other guns of the secondary battery.

One hundred more were busy at the same drill on board the Boston, Atlanta and Bennington. Over on the latter officers were losing similarly instructed on the Concord and Yorktown.

Mayor Tinker's Call.

One steamboat approached the Chicago. On her a big white flag was inscribed, "Ship of state." Mayor Tinker, his staff and a committee of the common council had a set of resolutions aboard to deliver to Admiral Walker.

"Is this officer of the deck in?" Mr. Tinker shouted.

A few "jackies" snickered, and there was a peculiar look about the mouths of the naval officers. "Why don't he ring the bell?" asked one in a whisper.

The officer of the deck smiled. "I am the officer of the deck," he shouted back. "Nobody is allowed aboard until after the drill." Then he noticed the big flag. "But," he added, "the city of New London can come aboard."

"We are those!" shouted back the mayor, at which the officer of the deck retired behind a mast for several seconds to get his face in proper shape to properly receive the gallant mayor.

Governor Hill Will See Them.

"Governor Hill is coming" was the news that put new pleasure in the work. A letter from Colonel Williams to Commander Miller says that the governor and his staff will visit the Stonington on Wednesday morning.

This means that the governor will witness the firing at the targets of the big guns by the reserves.

They Are All Jolly Tars.

The early morning watch aboard the Stonington saw the belated Newark glide past the flagship and anchor above her. Soon after the Newark's crew got their day's work for the reserves began. It is surprising how their interest and zeal keep up. Most of them are heavy swells ashore, and every one is jolly Jack tar afloat. Half-past 8 saw them pulling away in their cutters and whaleboats for their reperspective ships.

The guns crews, as soon as they reported, formed in rear of the regular crews and saw them drilled at great guns for an hour. Then the crews took a hack at it. They did just what the others had done. They "cast loose and provided" by scampering to the ammunition and other rooms and bringing up everything necessary to load and fire them. They did it with a snap and dash lacking in the regular blue jackets.

They Know It All.

By noon every naval militiaman had been told all about the big guns—how they are made and how to fire them. Then it was a pull back to the Stonington for dinner and then a pull back to the ships for instructions at the Hotchkiss guns of the secondary battery and in the various kinds of ammunition and their service.

What the reserves do not know about armor piercing shells, common shells and shrapnel the inventor never thought of. They handled all sorts of ammunition, studied the sectional drawings and opened their eyes very wide when a 6-inch gun weighed, how far it would send a projectile and how much iron or steel it could pierce.

"Will you kindly tell me about this gun?" asked a spectacled, pale faced looking reserve of a regular blue jacket.

"Certainly, sir," replied the "jackie" with an air of superior wisdom.

"Is the gun's geometric position between the initial force and the muzzle energy, the foot tons and the weight of the projectile? If so, will you please demonstrate it by a proposition?"

The regular gave a gasp. "You better see the commanding officer, sir," he replied with profound respect, as he fled back.

To Fire at Targets.

The reserves fairly broke to get at these big guns in earnest. Their chance will come on Wednesday. Uncle Sam will have to expend a few pennies then for the volunteers. Five of the cruisers will fire two shots at the target from their port main batteries, and five shots from their starboard secondary batteries.

On the Chicago, for example, that means that four shots from the 8-inch guns will cost $300, eight from the 6-inch $234, two from the 4-inch $80, ten from the 47-millimeter Hotchkiss guns $16.20, five from the 57-millimeter gun $5.00, five from the 1-pounder, $0.10. Total, $635.30. Multiply this by five and the total is $3,076.50. Add to this certain other expenses not included and the total cost to the government for the target practice of the naval reserves on Wednesday will be about $3,700.

SMITH EASILY BEATEN.

Middleweight Pritchard Worsts His Heavyweight Opponent.

LONDON, July 28.—The hardest match last night between Jem Smith and Tel Pritchard for £5,000 was easily won by Pritchard in ten minutes, Smith behaving in a cowardly manner.

No surprise was shown at the result, which had been anticipated. Smith's backers having done all they could to put off the fight. Pritchard brought, however, that Smith would be beaten so easily.

Two Boys Drowned.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 28.—George Brosby and William Peacock, aged six and eight years, respectively, were drowned in the Lehigh canal at Catasauqua. George accidentally fell into the water, and while William was trying to rescue him both were drowned.

THE BLACK BAG FOUND.

New Developments in the Notorious Edgar Mystery.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Recorder prints another installment of its alleged discoveries in the Edgar mystery.

On Sunday The Recorder told the story of the still greater tragedy in the mystery. It happened in London, in the home of the beautiful Gabrielle Henderson.

In her absence her father made a large sum of money. Kavanaugh and one of the Edgars lost. Kavanaugh laid a plot to recover the money. One morning she awoke with a burning taste in her mouth. She was dead half an hour. Little did she dream that her parents had been drugged, murdered and robbed and their bodies buried under the adjoining house.

Kavanaugh appeared and said her parents had been forced to fly to escape prison and disgrace. She was to follow by the first steamer. He told her that the Edgars had also sailed and they would all be happy in America. So they came to these free shores.

It was not until the drugging and killing of George R. Edgar at Yonkers was revealed in the papers that the truth flamed upon her. Kavanaugh is said to hold secret of the most crime-fighting those who are dead, but sacred and dear to the living. Besides, women and children are to be shielded, and to do this Kavanaugh, Edgar has been hunted down and blackmailed.

The story of the black bag which has figured so conspicuously in the mystery is now told by The Recorder. When George R. Edgar was found drugged and dead in his room at the Getty House the black bag in which he carried his papers was missing.

Kavanaugh, who had claimed to be his friend, also disappeared. The general supposition was that the murderers of Mr. Edgar had carried off the bag, and that it was to get possession of this bag and papers that the murder was committed.

James H. Farnam, a friend of Kavanaugh, at once set about hunting for Kavanaugh and the bag, and to this end he employed Mr. Edward Farnam, the son of one of the oldest and most respected leather merchants in this city.

Farnam found Kavanaugh and George R. Phoenix, who had possession of the bag, and together they took it to Boston.

Farnam claims to be the person who was robbed and drugged at a hotel in Philadelphia in the month of May, 1891, by Kavanaugh.

Cleveland Will Not Stump Ohio.

BOSTON, July 28.—Ex-President Cleveland says: "I do not expect to take part in the Ohio campaign, and I have never given the slightest intimation of an intention to do so. I am convinced that Governor Campbell will understand that if I decline to go upon the stump there are perfectly good reasons for my action, entirely consistent with a most earnest desire for the success of all Democratic candidates in Ohio or elsewhere."

Mayor Bradley Twice Defeated.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 28.—In the case of the State of New Jersey, on the prosecution of Griffin, Jr., of Long Branch, charged with running an "ark" in Asbury Park and selling beer contrary to law, Mayor Bradley was the complainant. The judge dismissed the case.

The case against Brigadier Coleman, charged with selling cigars on Sunday, was also dismissed.

Engaged, but Eloped.

KEYPORT, N. J., July 28.—Walter J. Foster, the junior partner of the dry goods firm of Fanning & Foster, eloped on Friday last with Miss Ella McCue, a leading dressmaker of this place. Miss McCue had been engaged to Harry J. Quigley, a Keyport man, and Foster is reported to have been engaged to a Brooklyn lady.

Murdered and Left on the Track.

BILLINGS, Mon., July 28.—Two Indians belonging to the Crow tribe were run over by the Atlantic express. It is believed that they were killed and placed upon the track, as the remains were cold when the train hands found them after the train passed. An investigation is being made by the authorities.

Manhattan Athletes Return.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Eugene Van Schaick, manager; Mortimer Remington, C. A. J. Queckberner, L. L. Nicoll, H. L. Mallock, Lorimer Lee Worthington and Dudmun, members of the Manhattan Athletic club team of athletes, have returned from Europe.

Sing Is Very Unhappy.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Anarchist August Spies' widow, Nina Van Zandt, who two weeks ago married Raphael Malato, is in this city with her husband and is, it is said, very unhappy. The husband, though but a boy, is said to be something of a tyrant.

Injured in a Tornado.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., July 28.—A small sized tornado struck this place in the southeast side of the town about 4 o'clock. A house occupied by J. T. Lee was torn to pieces. Lee, his wife, brother-in-law, J. W. Rodgers, and two children were seriously injured.

Death Came Suddenly.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 28.—While sitting in her cottage at Chelsea Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bonsall, wife of Henry Bonsall, the prominent Philadelphia confectioner and restaurateur, suddenly expired. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Kingston Will Run Tolls Blackburn.

NEW YORK, July 28.—J. N. Mullholland's fast mare Tulla Blackburn and M. F. Dwyer's gelding Hunter Kingston have been matched for a race at a mile and a furlong, to be run at Brighton Beach on Wednesday, July 30.

The Pay Roll Cut Down $87,000.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The secretary of the treasury has issued a circular of instructions in the force and salaries of employes in the collector's office in New York city, which will reduce the pay roll of the office fully $87,000.

Ferrell's Shot Was Fatal.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 28.—Andy Ferrell, a well known saloon keeper, shot and instantly killed Chris Harris, a Big Four railroad conductor, on sight. It is said that Harris had been unduly intimate with Mrs. Ferrell.

Ugly Girls with Pretty Hands.

Speaking of pretty hands, I asked a girl in a glove store the other day if the old saying "Ugly women have pretty hands and feet were true. "I don't know about the feet," she replied, "but it's usually true that our homeliest customers have the prettiest hands, and vice versa." She cited Mrs. Langtry as an instance of the latter fact. The Jersey Lily's extremities are slender but extremely long and English in size. And Mrs. Cleveland's feminine enemies could always rely the same of her when the subject of her unquestioned beauty came up.—Chicago News.

ROMANCE OF THE STAGE

How Frank Frayne Stole Little George McCormick.

DYING HE CONFESSED THE CRIME.

A Strange Story of Real Life That Reads Like a Play—Young Frank Frayne Is the Grandson of Rose—The Secret Revealed After Many Years.

NEW HAVEN, July 28.—Frank I. Frayne, the actor, on his deathbed confessed a crime which has just reached its denouement at Silver Sands, a beautiful seaside resort a mile east of the New Haven lighthouse. Twenty-one years ago Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, prominent people of Baltimore, were visiting in Chicago with their young children, a girl aged ten years and a boy of two years. Mr. McCormick was attacked with paralysis on the street and soon died. In order to have the baby provided for until the widow could make arrangements to return to Baltimore the child was left in a convent in Chicago in the care of the mother superior. Within a week or two Mrs. McCormick was taken suddenly ill and died, leaving the little daughter alone and friendless.

Baby George Disappeared.

Almost on the same day that the mother died the great Chicago fire began. The convent in which the little baby was being was burned to the ground and its inmates were scattered all over the city. The little girl was sent back to friends in Baltimore after a time by the Chicago authorities, but the baby George disappeared, as they finally believed, forever. Every effort to find him failed. In the meantime the mother superior had taken the boy to a private house in the suburbs of Chicago, where he happened to catch the eye of the original Frank I. Frayne.

How the Boy Was Stolen.

The actor wanted the boy to use in sensational parts of his play, and, learning the name of its mother, sent his wife with Father Dunne, priest, to ask for the boy. Mrs. McCormick, asking the mother superior to give the boy to her.

The boy was given up, and soon after Frayne and his wife left the city, having the boy adopted as their own. Baby George always supposed himself their child, and was known as Frank I. Frayne, Jr. The woman whom he supposed was his mother was soon afterward estranged from her husband. She died in later years, and the youth had a monument erected over her grave bearing this inscription, "Deserted by all but her loving son."

He Told the Secret.

The original Frayne soon married again, and, until he was dying, his second wife supposed that young Frayne was his own son. On his deathbed, overcome by remorse, the actor told his wife the awful secret and made her swear to restore the boy to his family, giving her the mother's name. Mrs. Frayne faithfully carried out his instructions. She has advertised and employed detectives by the score.

The McCormick sister married a wealthy merchant in Oshkosh, Wis., and has always thought her brother was her half brother. One day recently she discovered one of Mrs. Frayne's advertisements, and at once packed up and sought the widow. She told her story, and found the boy well known as Frank I. Frayne, the young actor, was stopping at Silver Sands, New Haven, the summer home of E. J. Hasson, the theatrical manager.

He Was George McCormick.

On Thursday Mrs. Gannon, the sister, reached Silver Sands, and young Frayne for the first time in his life met one who had Frank Frayne, but George McCormick, and that he had a sister who was very wealthy. The meeting was, of course, sensational and touching. A banquet was given by Mr. Hasson in celebration of the event.

ARE WOMEN MERCENARY?

Two Diverse Opinions on the Question of Feminine Acquisitiveness.

Two women were discussing a very delicate subject: Is woman as a sex mercenary and calculating?

"I think I am very well acquainted with my sex," said one, "and I am forced to acknowledge to myself that women are apt to be on the continual watch for what may be gained from friends. They make themselves particularly agreeable to people of influence and ignore those that are of small consequence. The more innocent young girls seem most brightly on the young man who sends flowers and candy, and the fast ones play a regular game to get gifts of a more substantial kind. Men are so foolish too. They fancy women sincere and honest, and consider it a privilege when they are allowed to make a present of value to a beauty that has flattered their vanity.

"Alas! I mourn that my sex is so hypo*critical and grasping. I remember the* time when it was considered an insult for men to give presents to young ladies. Now, however, woman has changed all that, and after a man has known a girl a week he can hope to accept a diamond bracelet or some other expensive trinket. It is really too bad."

The other lady laughed heartily at what she called her friend's pessimistic misconception. "Nonsense," she cried, "I'm astonished at you. Where have you been living of late? Among wild Bohemians, I'll be bound. Now, my dear friend, I insist that you are all wrong in your conclusions, and I claim that, except for a little community of women found in every metropolitan, the general modesty and pride of the feminine sex are as pronounced as they were when we were a good deal younger than a time by the Cherwell. Also enough that you would not allow one of your daughters to accept a gift from a man, and you know that they would never dream of marrying one who was poor. Are you so conceited as to think you are different from other mothers, or your daughters superior to all other girls?

"Why, the world is crowded with just such people, and in them is the great spirit that keeps the race alive. The only way that your conclusion is to be arrived at is by confining your studies to a narrow cotorie of ill bred, high strung and badly regulated women that makes itself conspicuous in a city like New York. These women make a noise and are vulgar, and it is their habit to get all they can out of people they meet. But you ought to know that they are a wholly small part of the world, and cannot affect that fine feminine character that objects to common contact, and whose chief feature is the quality of pride. Fie! believe in your sex, my dear. Woman is not mercenary or calculating."

The last speaker was so vehement and convincing that the other smiled over her teacup and said: "Well, dear, perhaps I was mistaken. I'm sure I hope so." And every one else must hope so too.—New York Sun.

About Smiling.

There is one big "don't" which nine-tenths of women should write in letters of vantage hang up over their dressing tables, and it is this: "Don't smile perpetually!" Is there anything more wearisome than the person who ceaselessly expands and contracts the lips over the teeth, without mirth or meaning, for that is what the continual smile eventually becomes. Let any woman stand before a mirror and endeavor to produce an animated smile of welcome. She will be surprised at the witless grimace that will respond. That is what smiling with no soul behind it. Learn to smile with the eye, and keep the mouth and facial lines in repose. We speak of the pleasing gravity of the countenance. The secret of it is kindly light in the eye, with a quiet expression of the face. There is no copyright upon it. Let her and him who will imitate it.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Some Women Work for Small Pay.

In a report on the factory and workshop industries in which women are employed Carroll D. Wright remarks that the material absence of the American born girl. Here are some cold blooded statistics as to the amount of wages earned by women in some industries in New York: Milliners average $2.50 a week; shirtmakers, $3; underwear makers, $3; cloakmakers, $3.50; box coverers and finishers, $4; men's clothing makers, $4. No wonder the American girl is not to be found in these industries. How could she live on such an income? But the question remains, Where is she?

Royalty That Made Bonnets.

It may encourage the humble maiden of limited resources and busy life to know that during the life of the Danish king's daughter she was the most extensively poor, and consequently the two most popular and powerful women of, Europe—the Princess Alexandra of Wales and the Czarina. Both were fond of trying their own bonnets, fashion their own gowns and do up their own laces, besides looking after several other things not nearly so easy of accomplishment.—Exchange.

IT WAS A DAY OF DEATH

Horrible Scenes on a Johnstown Excursion Train.

THREE MEN THROWN OFF THE CARS

During a Fight a Policeman Was Forced Between Two Cars and His Life Crushed Out—Three Men More Men Were Buried in Their Dooms.

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 28.—An excursion train from Johnstown, Pa., brought about 1,200 people to this city on a pleasure trip. They left at 6:30 p. m. on the return trip. When near Rockwood, Pa., a fight took place between some drunken men on the platform of one of the cars, to quell which James Kelly, a policeman from Johnstown, drew a revolver.

Forced Under the Cars.

This action angered the crowd, and they made a rush for him and forced him between the cars while the train was running at a rate of forty miles an hour. The conductor signaled the train to stop, the coupling broke and Kelly dropped under the wheels and was crushed to death.

Two More Men Killed.

Lucius Meyers, of Latrobe, was thrown from the platform under the wheels and killed. Milton Pyle, of Somerset, was thrown against some rocks in the ditch and had his skull fractured and leg broken, from the effects of which he died soon after at Somerset.

DEATH CLAIMED FOUR.

A Frightful Accident at a Railroad Crossing in Elmira.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 28.—Erie train No. 24, due in this city at 6 o'clock, struck a wagon in which were a man and his wife and five children at a street crossing in the northern part of this city last night. Four of the party were instantly killed and two others are fatally injured. The wagon was approaching the tracks from the east, and a freight train was out in two leaving a space between the cars sufficient to drive through at the crossing. The party were driving in a covered wagon, and came upon the tracks at a rapid pace. The fast passenger train from the west came down upon them at a speed of forty miles an hour.

The engineer rang his bell, blew the whistle, and endeavored in every way to warn the occupants of the wagon, but failed to attract their attention. He then reversed his engine, but too late. The train struck the wagon at the rear wheel. The wagon was thrown high in air, and the occupants were hurled against the cars of the freight train and in front of the passenger train.

The train was quickly stopped and a ghastly sight met the gaze of the passengers as they alighted from the train. Four mangled bodies were strewn along the track and three others, bruised, bleeding and unconscious, lay among the dead.

The dead are Wellington White, his daughter Lillian, aged nine years; Katie Hastings, aged nine years, and Susie McCarthy, a little nurse girl, aged twelve years. Mrs. White sustained a severe fracture of the skull, as did also her infant daughter, and neither can recover. Of the party of seven only one is likely to survive.

Mr. White was a missionary in China. He was a graduate of Amherst college and of the New York Theological seminary. While a student at the theological seminary he married a young lady in New York, and after his graduation from that institution they sailed for China as missionaries. They had been there ten years, and were on their way home on a leave of absence, which would expire in September, when they expected to return.

There is due depositors, who number 8,000, the sum of $600,000. The officers declare that the bank is solvent.

Finland Hates the Czar.

LONDON, July 28.—News from Finland shows a grave increase in popular discontent in that country. During the recent stoppage of the czar along the Finnish coast he had painful evidence of the growth of popular antipathy toward Russia. The cause of the discontent is the persistent attempt of the Russian authorities to efface all the old Finnish customs and even the very language of the people.

The Peach Crop Not So Large.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Dispatches from the Delaware peninsula state that the anticipated great peach crop has rapidly fallen to very moderate proportions by reason of the ravages of the mysterious "yellows." SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—In the suit of George W. Taylor to recover $6,000 alleged to be due him from twenty-four members of the legislature for services rendered as lobbyist, Judge Wallace denied a motion for a continuance for further time to look up missing witnesses. Taylor's counsel agreed to a non-suit being entered.

Elected Because of Their Color.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 28.—Annie Jones and Mattie J. Lee, colored, have made suit against H. A. Gray and J. A. Tucker for being ejected from a public ball given at Beacon villa, Fair Haven, on account of their color, on the evening of July [illegible].

DASHING EARL VAN DORN.

THRILLING EPISODES IN THE CAREER OF A CONFEDERATE LEADER.

Ready and Bold, He Failed Through His Rashness and Found His True Place at Last as the Cavalry—His Tragic and Untimely Death.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

HE avenging bullet which cut short the military career of Gen. Earl Van Dorn in the spring of 1863, undoubtedly changed the course of the minor, if not of the greater, events of the war in the west. Forrest's exploits from 1862 to 1865 showed what great service could be rendered the Confederacy by mounted men led by dashing commanders. Van Dorn had all of Forrest's personal courage and restless energy, and he had at the outset what Forrest won only by slow and painful effort—the confidence and approval of his superiors, and at the moment of his tragic death was at the head of a corps of cavalry in a field offering every advantage for brilliant results. Forrest was at the time a brigadier commander under Van Dorn, and the death of the leader broke up the corps.

Van Dorn entered the fight in 1861 with the prestige of a trained West Point soldier of the last century service, and, moreover, he was a cavalryman with a record. He had served in the border troubles in Mexico, and against the wild Apaches and Comanches, and his name was a familiar one in many a home in the south west, where the veterans of those wars recounted the deeds of their comrades into the receptive ears of the boys growing up to be warriors, too, when the time came. In the news from Cerro Gordo Van Dorn had been gazetted as hero; so, too, at Chihuahua, Chapultepec, and the gates of Mexico he had come off with scars and credits.

When the Southern army was regularly organized Van Dorn's promotion was rapid, for he was under the eyes of men who knew his record, and, in fact, had served with him while he was doing it. He entered the Confederate service as colonel of cavalry in March, 1861, and before the year closed was a major general commanding the transmississippi department. This last assignment was given him While he was in Virginia. He hastened to the field of action, which was along the Missouri and Arkansas border, with his plans all laid for a campaign. He would attack St. Louis, break up the Union headquarters there, cross to Illinois and erect powerful batteries, and so control the upper Mississippi channel and hold Missouri in the confederacy.

The people of the west who sided with the Confederacy took hope, for they looked upon the dashing and graceful, though small statured Van Dorn, as a young Napoleon and a savior. Gen. Sterling Price was at the head of an army of Missourians, organized for state defense against the Federal government, and lay at Springfield, in the southwestern part of the state. Van Dorn at once ordered all the Confederate forces in the south west to report to Price and to his own headquarters at Pocahontas, just across the border in Arkansas. Before the concentration of forces could be effected Price was driven out of Springfield and across the border by a strong Union force under Gen. S. R. Curtis. Van Dorn then turned his attention to Curtis and pushed all the scattering detachments forward to Price's camp. Curtis had followed Price into Arkansas and held a strong position in the mountains. On the 6th of March, 1862, Van Dorn moved against Curtis with 16,000 men, divided into two columns. A force of 10,000 remained behind, Ben McCulloch and James McIntosh, was ordered to begin a direct attack, while Van Dorn and Price would make a detour and strike the Union army on the flank. This turning column was pushed out on the night of the 6th with secrecy and boldness worthy of a "Stonewall" Jackson.

The battle was joined on all sides on the afternoon of the 7th of March on the field known as Pea Ridge. The column under Van Dorn and Price carried everything before it, but nightfall put a stop to the movement, just when victory was within grasp. McCulloch and McIntosh had well done so well however. Both of these leaders had fallen, and Gen. Hebert, who took chief command when they fell, was a prisoner. On the morning of the 8th Van Dorn found that Curtis had taken up a new position, and that the main column of his own army was badly broken up by its experiences of the previous day. He renewed the battle without success.

GEN. EARL VAN DORN.

This took place a month before the battle of Shiloh, on the east side of the Mississippi, and at that very time Gen. Halleck was sending troops down the country to attack Beauregard at Corinth. Van Dorn was ordered by his superiors to place his army within supporting distance of Beauregard. He answered the instructions by saying that he would "relieve Beauregard by giving battle to the enemy at New Madrid" (on the Mississippi), or by marching "boldly and rapidly toward St. Louis." Either of these moves would have been a blow in the rear of Grant, who was struggling on toward Shiloh, and had they been made the history of the war in the Mississippi valley would doubtless have been changed. But while on the march toward the Mississippi Van Dorn was suddenly ordered to take his command as quickly as possible to Memphis. He did so, but too late to save Beauregard at Shiloh, and his opportunity to strike a blow at Grant's rear on the upper Mississippi had passed.

After the Confederates abandoned Corinth and the new commander, Bragg, had transferred the bulk of the forces to Chattanooga to invade Kentucky, in the summer of 1862, Van Dorn was placed in command of the district of Mississippi with orders to hold the defenses of the river. Gen. Grant was at Jackson, Tenn., holding a force at Corinth under Gen. Rosecrans. Gen. Buell was in Kentucky leading off Bragg, and Grant was describing heavily from his army to aid Buell. Van Dorn was correspondingly ordered to do something to menace Grant and prevent him from detaching against Bragg. After weighing all the circumstances he decided that an invasion of west Tennessee to the Kentucky border by the Confederates in Mississippi would fully accomplish what was expected of him. As a preliminary he would fall upon Corinth and dispose of that Union stronghold so as to leave nothing in front when he threaded his way marching in west Tennessee. Under the belief that Rosecrans had been weakened by loss of detachments sent to Buell, he ordered the main army around the town on Oct. 3 and bivouacked that night within an easy rifle range of the citadel. "One hour of daylight," he said would have given him victory." He ordered the attack renewed on the morning of the 4th, but owing to the sickness of Gen. Hebert, one of his division leaders, the fighting was delayed until Rosecrans got his troops in hand at the threatened points and saved the day by a narrow chance. Van Dorn retreated, and west Tennessee was safe for a time.

Van Dorn fell into temporary disfavor on account of his failure at Corinth, but he had a friend at court who was no less a personage than Jefferson Davis himself. Davis had really brought about the Corinth affair by ordering that Van Dorn should control all the troops in Mississippi. But for that Van Dorn would have been less presumptuous. After Corinth he was superseded by Gen. Pemberton and took command of a corps. Neither failure nor loss of prestige, however, could dampen his ardor, and after the excitement over Bragg's invasion had subsided and Gen. Grant had resumed the forward movement down the Mississippi overland, the long exposed line of Union communications in northern Mississippi and west Tennessee invited such attacks as Van Dorn had heretofore planned but had not been able to carry out. The supply depot of Grant's land column was at Holly Springs, Miss., on the Mississippi Central.

After Bragg's failure in the Kentucky invasion he had settled his army down at Murfreesboro, in the central part of the state, to cover Chattanooga, Grant's threatening movement toward Vicksburg was so alarming in the eyes of the Richmond people that Bragg was called upon to send troops back to Mississippi. Feeling that he had enough to do at home to take care of the Army of the Cumberland that had hounded him out of Kentucky, and was still hot on the trail, he sent Gen. Forrest to raid west Tennessee and, if possible, distract Grant's plans. Forrest did his work with his usual thoroughness, but did not strike below Jackson, Tenn., seventy miles north of Holly Springs. By one of those lucky strokes that often turn the tide in war, Van Dorn, acting on his own book, made a swoop with a band of cavalry from Grenada, Miss., to Holly Springs, cut the telegraph by which Grant kept up his correspondence with Washington and with his subordinates on the lines north of him, and for several days, with one enemy raiding in the rear and another hovering about its camps, the Army of the Tennessee was in a state of isolation as great as though steam roads and telegraphs had never been invented. Van Dorn also destroyed many stores valued at $600,000 to $1,000,000, and misled the troopers sent out by Grant to intercept him. So rapid were his movements that Grant's outlying posts were beaten in the race to camp.

Unquestionably Van Dorn's dash was a godsend to Forrest, for it diverted attention from his movements in the direction where his danger was greatest. It was the first brilliant success to come to the Confederates out of Mississippi, and Van Dorn became the hero of the hour, past ill fortunes being forgotten. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston had become the Confederate leader in the west, the superior of Bragg and Van Dorn, acting on the one hand and recognized that his true place in the army by reason of his past experience, his temperament and training was in the cavalry. He was, moreover, a full major general, and the cavalry brigadiers would not demur at coming under his orders. Johnston placed him at the head of a corps of cavalry, with Gens. Forrest, W. H. Jackson and Armstrong under him.

With this force Van Dorn entered upon a campaign in central Tennessee, on the flank of Rosecrans' army, in support of Bragg. Early in March, 1863, he lay at Spring Hill, skirmishing in the direction of Franklin, an important Union outpost. Rosecrans sent the brigades of Sheridan and Col. Colburn against him, and in a sharp fight at Thompson's Station on the 5th, Colburn's brigade was routed and nearly all captured. Early in April rumors reached Van Dorn that the Union troops were evacuating Franklin, and on the 10th he moved his whole command boldly forward to the attack. But instead of evacuating, the Union commander was strengthening the position, and the impetuous Confederates were met in front with fortified batteries, while strong bodies of cavalry fell upon their flanks. Van Dorn again drew back to Spring Hill.

Meanwhile, Rosecrans and Bragg stood at arms' length in central Tennessee scowling and doing nothing, and Van Dorn's movements were subordinate to Bragg's. His cavalry lay idly in camp, and then that bane of the soldier's leisure, dissipation, crept in to enervate and destroy what the weapons of honorable warfare had spared. One day while Van Dorn sat in his headquarters conferring with his staff, a prominent citizen of the neighborhood pushed his way in and demanded satisfaction for a personal wrong which he charged upon the gentleman. In the melee which grew out of the hand Van Dorn ordered him out of his presence; a shot with a ready revolver was the answer, and an assassin's pistol cut down in a second the hero of scores of battles and of twenty years of martial strife. His last act was characteristic—reckless, unlaunched, handling all upon a single chance. Yet his career as a cavalry commander was just opening, and with a sprinkle of caution, which was certain to follow his years, his destiny would have been a high one. GEORGE L. KILMER.

CHURCH OF ST. MARK.

An Illustrated Description of One of the Famous Churches of the World.

The magnificent structure depicted in the accompanying cut was erected at Venice as the mausoleum of St. Mark the Evangelist. The first church was destroyed by fire in 976. Its rebuilding, as what is now known as the Cathedral of St. Mark, was immediately commenced, but it was not consecrated till 1085. It is one of the famous churches of the world, and its architecture has had an important influence upon the architecture of all Europe since it was built.

THE CATHEDRAL OF ST. MARK.

The tradition which ends with the transportation of St. Mark to Venice and the building of the first church, goes back to the supposed martyrdom by dragging over rough stones, and the venerated tomb at Alexandria, where the remains were said to have reposed for many centuries. Two Venetian merchants, it is said, carried the body from Alexandria by stealth in 815 and transported it to Venice. Over the porch doorways of the cathedral are four mosaics, representing the translation of the relics from Alexandria, the landing of the relics, the grand ceremonies upon their arrival and the enshrining of the relics.

Uses of Ants.

Ants are terrible fighters, says The Examiner. They have very powerful jaws, considering the size of their bodies, and therefore their method of fighting is by biting. They will bite one another and hold on with a wonderful grip of the jaws, even after their legs have been bitten off by other ants. Sometimes six or eight ants will be clinging with a death grip to each other, making a peculiar spectacle, some with a leg gone and some with half the body gone. One singular fact is that the grip of an ant's jaw is retained even after the body has been bitten off and nothing but the head remains. This knowledge is possessed by a certain tribe of Indians in Brazil, who put the ants to a very peculiar use. When an Indian gets a gash cut in his hand, instead of having his hand sewed together, as physicians do in this country, he procures five or six large black ants, and, holding their heads near the gash, they bring their jaws together in biting the flesh, and thus pull the two sides of the gash together. Then the Indian pinches off the bodies of the ants and leaves their heads clinging to the gash, which is held together until the wound is perfectly healed.

A True Story.

In Hollie Daisy's dimpled hand two bright, new pennies shone;
One was for Rob (at school just then), the other Daisy's own.
While waiting Rob's return she rolled both treasures round the floor,
When suddenly they disappeared, and one was seen no more.
"Poor Daisy, is your penny lost?" was asked in accents kind:
"Why, no, mother, I have!" she quickly said. "It's Rob's I cannot find."
—St. Nicholas.

Two Namesakes.

Arthur Halliday was a manly little fellow, you would know that by the way he tossed back his curly hair and set his Scotch cap on his head, and by the clear, fearless look in his eyes. His mother named him for "good King Arthur," and from his babyhood she told him he must be pure and brave like the one who bore the same so long ago. On his eighth birthday she wrote a little poem to place among his birthday gifts:

King Arthur lived in days of old,
So brave, so pure, is story told;
His name has become as symbol stood
For perfect type of true knighthood.

Recalling him, we look to see
His namesakes all such men as he:
The Arthurs now as in days of old,
Courteous and pure, and true and bold.

ARTHUR AND DOM PEDRO.

Arthur had one trusty friend who went with him everywhere; that friend was not a boy—he was a dog. Pedro was not so old as Arthur, but he had as much courage and as much common sense. Pedro was "short" for Don Pedro," Arthur said he would not call him Nero, for Nero was such a bad man; still he must have a royal name, and this was before Brazil had gone into the fashion of doing without a king. Dom Pedro was nearly as tall as Arthur and much larger. He was a Newfoundland with some St. Bernard blood in his veins, and when you have said that, it means the uppermost kind of upper tendom in dog life.—Little Men and Women.

A Popular Game.

A game which is very popular with young people is played with all of the guests in a line. The first whispers to the second a long sentence, she repeats it in a whisper and very rapidly to the third, and so on until the end man repeats what he heard aloud, and the one who gave the sentence repeats it as he gave it. Never do the two sentences bear the slightest resemblance to each other, and the fun comes in comparing them and looking how far the last given sentence misses the mark.

Chinese and Japanese in New York.

I saw a well dressed young woman on the street the other day above whose tall, finely molded form was the unmistakable head and features of the Mongolian, only slightly modified. She was evidently the result of the mingling of types, and by no means unpleasing in appearance. The most curious thing was her height, which was remarkable for a woman of the Caucasian race and closely so in a Chinese. Her hair was black and, of course, her complexion the usual opaque yellow, only a little lighter in tone than the hue of the average Mongolian, while the features only differed in being more finely cut, except the mouth, which was the delicate, small, fine mouth of the Anglo-Saxon of good blood.

A pair of liquid, pathetic dark eyes gazed out of this strange face, and the whole ensemble was so peculiar that every one turned to look at her as she passed. Scarcely a block further on I saw a curious little party boarding an up town car. A Japanese gentleman and his little girl, both in European costume, while the wife was bareheaded and attired in every respect as the ancient Japanese customs for women direct. Even in New York the sight is very unusual, and most of the passengers were craning their necks, regardless of good breeding, in order to get a look at the self possessed little lady wrapped in her voluminous green kimono, with her hair rolled against a small scarlet cushion and stuck full of pins, and her slight body wound around with a wide sash of bright rose pink and gold.—New York Free Bureau Free Press.

The Garters Worn by New York Women.

The 800,000 women and girls of the metropolis all wear garters, and it is not an overestimate to allow two pairs each to them in the year. Scores of thousands of them wear topsy garters, which are nothing more than a torn strip of cotton or flannel, and all those old ladies with antique notions, especially if they were born in the country, tear the pink selvage off the flannel they buy for winter petticoats and other winter undergarments. A great many of them do not think that it is either lucky or proper to wear any other kind of garters than those made from this selvage.

But this hardly affects the great garter trade now, which in the line of "notions" is one of the most important branches in New York city. Let any give what can be deduced from the actual commercial figures. Two pairs for each female, at the lowest price, which is ten cents, reaches the sum of $160,000. Nearly every female, big and little, with any pretensions to "style," drops into the notion store or general dry goods store and gets a pair of garters from ten cents upward. The cheap ones are common cotton elastic, but shop girls, factory girls and thousands of others fit up the plain band with dainty bows and ribbons, and the more pretentious with some St. Bernard blood in his veins, and when you have said that, it means the uppermost kind of upper tendom in dog life.—Little Men and Women.

A Pretty Dish.

The following is a very pretty dish for a company tea: First make orange lemon jelly in the usual way. If you have no tried recipe, the directions on the package of gelatine can be followed. Into some pretty little teacups put a few of the large strawberries. Turn the jelly over these while it is still just warm enough to do so. When you wish to serve the jelly, invert each little mold into a saucer plate, and around the base of the jelly pour a little rich sirup made with fresh strawberry juice and sugar. Keep as cold as possible till served.

Dr. E. W. Hedges desires us to state that he has not yet departed for the White Mountains. It appears to have been a case of mistaken identity on the part of our informant.

Mrs. Hilaire Ortts, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, and her sister Mrs. Susan Chambeitaz, of New York, returned Monday from a visit to the Capitol of Maryland and to Cape May. They had rainy weather almost continually. It marred their pleasure in some ways, but did not, however, prevent their having a very enjoyable trip.

Mr. R. F. M. Chase of Edgewood North Plainfield is the owner of a young colt which gives promise of being a wonderful jumper. It is a thoroughbred, of beautiful shape, and has great intelligence. When very young it evinced a strong liking for clearing, with a spring, all obstacles in its way, and with its growth, its jumping powers also developed. A five-bar gate was cleared with ease. Later the intelligent animal would, at the word of command, jump easily a whip held at arm's length. With the master on a bike a Gamb Friend, and will nose him gently for caresses and sugar, and will put up either forefoot for a hand-(?)-shake, showing in many ways its gentleness and intelligence. One day, however, while grazing, the colt discovered a bald-wire fence in its way and went at it, as usual, with a spring. Unfortunately, it was to close to the fence, and in rising, caught its fore-legs in the top wire, and "came to grief." It took many weary weeks to heal the cuts, but now that they are healed and the stiffness is disappearing, the horse will, doubtless, soon jump into prominence. Mr. Chase, who is thorough horseman, takes great pride in his pet, which shows in every action the result of his intelligent kindness.

—Sherwin's special sale is elsewhere advertised, and he invites particular attention to the ladies' shoes he is selling.

—A number of Plainfielders will go on the excursion to Chautauqua to be present at the opening of the Chautauqua Assembly on August 3d.

—It was rumored last night that Charles Bland had exchanged his property on West Second for the Crescent Rink property. The rumor cannot be verified.

—Boynton Beach is daily thronged with pleasure seekers from all over New Jersey. One day last week a party of picnickers came from Tarrytown, N. Y., and spent the day at this pleasant resort.

—Foster, the famous weather prophet, in his forecasts last week tells of another storm wave that will cross the continent from the 24th to 28th. He says: "The important feature about this storm wave will be, that it will complete the last heavy rain period of the 1891 crop season. I do not mean that there will be no more rain, but that for about fifty two days following August 1st, the rains will not be general."

TEN DOLLARS OR TEN DAYS.

The Result of Wm. N. Pangborn's Violation of the Borough Ordinances.

The new Borough Police Court was crowded to suffocation last night by the friends of Wm. N. Pangborn who was present on trial for being drunk and disorderly, and indecent exposure on the streets of the borough last Saturday night. The evidence showed that he had been drinking more or less all day and by eight o'clock p. m. was unable to walk without staggering. About 10 p. m. he attracted the attention of the Marshal and Special Marshal VanHorne by using loud and profane language. The Marshal spoke to him and told him he must not use such language on the street. Pangborn then said that the whole police force of the borough could not arrest him. Later he was seen staggering about the street, and Special Marshal VanHorne testified to the charge of indecent exposure. About 1.30 on Sunday morning the Marshal found Pangborn and several others congregated on Harmony street and remarked to them that he was glad to see that Pangborn was in an ugly mood and announced that he would n't go home until he got ready. The Marshal informed him that he couldn't stand there and if he didn't go on he would arrest him. Pangborn dared the Marshal to arrest him, and was accommodated. The Marshal endeavored to get Pangborn to go home before taking him up but unsuccessfully. Pangborn's own witness admitted that he was drunk. William Archibald Codington appeared as attorney for Pangborn on the trial, and as he had no evidence to aid him, made a socialistic speech denouncing law, order and virtue pertaining to the Marshal, whom he denounced as a coward, a cur, a sneak and called other choice names, much to the delight of the crowd in the court-room, some of whom, it was said, had at various times been arrested for offenses, and finally, rising to the fullest height of his majestic figure and shaking his finger in awful menace at the Judge, he exclaimed in clarion tones, "If I had no more liberty than that"—understood to mean if he could not indecently expose his person, and be drunk and disorderly in the Borough streets without danger of arrest "If I had no more liberty than that, I would plunge a knife into this bosom and hurl back this life into the face of its maker, for it would not be worth having!" (Wild and prolonged applause from the audience).

After the talking was over the Justice calmly said there was no doubt from the evidence that Pangborn was guilty, and pronounced sentence of $10 fine or ten days in the lock-up.

Lawyer Codington informed a News reporter this morning that he would certiorari the case.

No Action Yet in the Miller Case.

Inquiry is being made as to what is being done in the Miller case.

A story current is that Councilmen Smith and Stillman met Monday evening and said to him. "What is—is the matter with you? Are you getting the big head now? You had better leave these saloons alone if you want to hold your place. We expect to rule here another two years, and you had better be careful."

We have been unable to verify the story, and do not know whether or not it is true, but it seems strange that Capt. Grant does not make any complaint, and do his duty according to his oath. It is probable that the citizens will have to take some action in the matter, as our whole police force seems at present so cowed by the combine as to be afraid to greet any saloon-keeper caught violating the law. Our ordinances are more openly violated now than ever before.

It is understood that Smith expects to be nominated as Councilman at-large on the Democratic ticket, as a reward for his services to the Republicans, but, if this is so, it may be discovered too that there are enough respectable Democrats in Plainfield to help the Republicans protect the city's good name.

Dowd Acquitted.

The case of the City Treasurer vs. Thomas Dowd, Jr., came up for trial before City Judge Codington and a jury at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dowd was arrested on two charges, one was for drunkenness and the other for using profane language.

Corporation Counsel Marsh moved that the charge of drunkenness be tried first. Several witnesses testified pro and con. After hearing the testimony Mr. Marsh moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground of insufficient evidence. Carried.

The next charge was then preferred, the testimony was of such a character that the jury acquitted the accused. Mr. Marsh did all in his power to convict Dowd, but it was evident from the start that he had no case, consequently it was not his fault.

A Broken Wire.

The breaking of an electric light wire on West Third street last night caused a grand electrical display. The policemen in that vicinity thought it was a fire. They noticed the electric light of the wire and were sent immediately to repair the damage. A colored man who was assisting received a severe shock of electricity.

A Small Fire.

At about nine o'clock Monday evening a spark from a passing locomotive set fire to the wood-work on the Liberty street railroad bridge. Policemen Giese and Fredrickson extinguished the flames with a few buckets of water. The damage was slight. No alarm was sounded.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Gov. Campbell's Singular Prayer Confronts Him. — Some Tariff Pointers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27, '91.

At last an actual and promising beginning has been made in the work of providing the country with adequate coast defenses. The great, 12-inch, high-power, rifled steel, breech loading gun, recently completed at the Watervliet Arsenal, has been mounted at Sandy Hook, and has undergone the specified tests with satisfactory results. Indeed, it is believed by experts to be superior to the best ordnance of European manufacture. It takes a heavier charge than the 13-inch muzzle gun by ninety pounds, yielding a muzzle energy of 36,000 foot tons, an initial velocity of 1,940 feet per second, and a range of twelve miles.

Governor Campbell said, while addressing his Republican friends in 1887, while his voice trembled with subdued emotion: "May my right arm wither and drop palsied to my side if ever I attempt to raise it to cast a Democratic ballot." As a companion piece to Bishop Vodaa's opinion on a monument smiling at grief we might have "Folly on the stump" represented by Campbell invoking a paralytic stroke.

The price of steel rails fell from 1870 to 1890 from $106.75 a ton to $31.75 a ton, or considerably more than two-thirds of the price twenty years ago.

The price of tin plate in 1870 was 5.11 cents a pound. The price in 1890 was 3.07 cents a pound. Instead of a reduction of 70 per cent., as in the case of steel rails, this is a reduction of but 37 per cent.; barely half as much.

Steel rails are made in this country. Tin plate is all made abroad. A heavy duty built up competition in this country in the case of steel rails. Until the McKinley tariff, the duty on tin plate was "for revenue only," and practically prohibited the manufacture of tin plate. If steel rails had had a like duty, and we were confined to an English supply, as in the case of tin plates, they would have fallen no lower, and would now be $60 a ton, or considerable more than twice their present price. If tin plate had had a duty high enough to create domestic competition, they would have been as low relatively as steel rails, or 1.53 cents a pound in 1890, instead of 3.07 cents. Yet there are people who think that protection does not pay.

Presidential possibilities continue the principal topic of gossip at the National capital. The interest in this subject is not at all lessened by the absence from Washington at this time of almost everyone who is mentioned in connection with the nomination of either party. The absence of the statesmen, however, does not stop the flood of talk about them, especially in this community, where almost every man, woman or child is directly or indirectly concerned in politics. The announcement that Senator Quay wishes to resign the chairmanship of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee, and that he is likely to be succeeded by Vice-Chairman Clarkson, has revived the old talk about anti-administration influences within the Republican organization, which Democratic newspapers have so often regaled their readers. As regards the relations between the president and his great premier, it has been said so often and so authoritatively that repetition ought to be unnecessary that the most perfect understanding and cordial good feeling exists between President Harrison and Secretary Blaine. Any assumption as to the policy of the administration, or as to political ambition which does not take this into account, is necessarily valueless. Among the Democratic Presidential candidates the situation continues to be more or less complicated by the coming struggle for the Speakership of the next House. There is no honor in the gift of a party which involves more compromises, more delicate negotiations or more sectional considerations than this. The power of the office of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is often said, and quite truly said, to be second only to that of President of the United States. It is no wonder, then, that the contest for the position is one of intense interest to the men who aspire to nomination by the next Democratic National Convention.

"West Virginia is for Blaine for Presidency, first, last, and always," said ex-Congressman G. W. Atkinson, of Wheeling, at the National last night. "At the same time I do not expect to see him head the ticket. My belief is that he doesn't desire the nomination, but will lend his aid to Mr. Harrison.

"The respective tickets will be Harrison and Cleveland, and mark my words, the Republicans will, metaphorically speaking, meet the face of these United States with the prostrate forms of our friends the enemy. Yes, sir; the opposition will find a Waterloo in the ides of November. '92. Why, even West Virginia may be confidently set down as the Republican side in the next national conflict.

INJUNCTION SET ASIDE.

Sanford Avenue Bridge May Now be Built.

While a lot of workmen employed by Charles Hyde were building the stone abutments for the proposed Sanford avenue bridge, the sheriff served Mr. Hyde with an order from the Chancellor to stop work and show cause why an injunction should not be granted. Mr. Hyde complied with the order of the court and handed the paper to his lawyer, Craig A. Marsh, with instructions to fight the case for all it was worth. It seems that the order of court was obtained by Abram D. VanSciver, who claims to own the land on which the abutment is being built, and who, through his Counsel, W. V. Steele, had filed a bill in Chancery to have Mr. Hyde enjoined and to have the portion of Sanford avenue going through the premises claimed by VanSciver, declared to be his private property, and to cause Mr. Hyde pay damages.

The argument came off at Jersey City on Monday and resulted in the Chancellor setting aside the order previously made with costs to be paid by VanSciver.

Mr. Hyde immediately resumed work on the abutments and will complete them in a few days. Meanwhile the suit will go on. All that is settled so far is that Mr. VanSciver is not intitled to a preliminary injunction.

General Crop Conditions.

The observers and crop correspondents of the Jersey Weather Service report that during the week ending July 24, the temperature and sunshine have been about the seasonable average in all portions of the State.

The rainfall has been more evenly distributed than on former weeks falling on three days, at the beginning, middle and close of the week. In the extreme northern, southeastern and southern portions the total for the week was slightly above the average, while in the middle portions it was below it. The largest totals reported were: 1.30 inches at Deckertown, Sussex county, and 1.05 inches at Belvidere, Warren county; 1.35 inches at Bridgeton, Cumberland county, and 2.15 inches at Egg Harbor City, Atlantic county. Remaining stations report amounts varying from 0.88 to 0.40 inch.

The conditions were, on the whole favorable to all crops, especially corn, which is now in a most promising condition. Potatoes in some districts, notably the portions of the northern and middle counties, have been seriously affected by the drought and the yield will not be near as great as indicated from the growth of the vines earlier in the season. In portions of Middlesex the yield has also been impaired by insect pests.

Fruits continue to mature well and early orchard varieties are now in market. Grapes are reported doing nicely, also that the black rot has not increased during the week. In the extreme southwestern portion heavy rains have retarded the harvesting of oats and were also injurious to vine truck.

May Die of Bee Stings.

Ella, the nine-year-old daughter of Caleb Clawson, a farmer living near White House, fell from a tree yesterday, toppling over a bee-hive in her descent. The disturbed bees nearly stung her to death. The whole hive settled upon her. She was rescued by her father, who threw a blanket over his head and so beat the insects off. Her recovery is doubtful. The family formerly resided at Scotch Plains and are well-known in this vicinity.

Charles Williams Arrested.

Charles Williams, a well-known character of this city, was arrested this morning by Special Marshal Job Codington on a warrant sworn out by Mr. J. C. Dyre of Craig Place. Mr. Dyer charges that Williams stole flowers from his yard. Williams has recently been released from State Prison, after serving a year for stealing chairs from the Crescent Rink.

A Disorderly Crowd.

At about one o'clock this morning four young men who were under the influence of liquor disturbed the peace and quietness of Central avenue by singing ribald songs, howling and carsing. They were in a wagon and when near the corner of Third street they drove the horse on the sidewalk, the wagon collided with a telephone pole, and was badly wrecked.

—The autopsy in the case of the late John Clark, referred to yesterday, we are requested to state was not made at the request of the daughter, the only surviving member of the family.

THE RIVER MIGHT GO DRY.

Cranford's Citizens Aroused Over the Water Question.

The citizens of Cranford are in a "state of mind" over the important and all-absorbing water question. Everybody agrees with everybody else that the town must have a first-class water supply system, but just how that system shall be procured and what it will be is the snag upon which the good people of the village strike. All the fuss seems to have been brought about the re-organization of the Union Water Company, an organization incorporated about twenty years ago.

Alden Bigelow is the chief opponent of the new Company and his main contention seems to be that the reorganized Company proposes, as it is alleged, to draw its supply of water from the Rahway river, which runs through the town.

It was mainly through Mr. Bigelow's efforts that a mass-meeting of citizens was called for Thursday night to discuss the matter. The meeting was held and it was a rousing one.

Lawyer Wilbur opened the oratorial tournament on behalf of the progressants, who were among the original incorporators of the Union Water Company. He charged the Water Company with scheming to get control of the charter so as to drain the Rahway river dry, perhaps the only way the town could be made to go, etc. He gave his auditors a vivid pen picture of how the river would look when the Company got its pumps to work. Mr. Wilbur's main point was that the new Company could not possibly, under the charter, get water from any other source until the river water was exhausted.

Ex-Assemblyman Foster M. Voorhees, who represented the interests of the company, made a dignified reply to Mr. Wilbur. He told how the company would supply the town with an abundance of sweet and pure water from a source entirely apart from the Rahway river, it being the intention of the company to buy a main from Netherwood to Cranford, the water to be drawn from the works of Netherwood. He was authorized to say that if the people of Cranford thought the new company was illegally incorporated, there would be no objection to the calling of another meeting and if the people desired to organize an entirely new company, the directors of the Union Water Company would pledge themselves not to move under their charter for two years. Mr. Voorhees said further that a local company was essential in order to get with the Plainfield company. The latter company had already arranged to lay supply pipes to Fanwood and Westfield, and the pipes would be continued, but under no circumstances would the company take water from the Rahway river. The people didn't want that water and wouldn't take it, and it would therefore be very poor policy to try to force it on them. It would cost $100,000 to put in a separate water plant in Cranford and a local company could not maintain such a plant, much less build it.

E. W. Hale was in favor of having a water supply for the town, but if the new company or any other company proposed to take over the city plant he would like to see its charter "Mc-Gintyized" and never be brought to light again.

"The Almighty gave that stream to this people," he cried, and the citizens of Cranford will protect it.

Mr. Brymer protested as a property-owner against the water company taking the river water.

Alden Bigelow claimed that the signatures to the petition to reorganize the Union Water Company were obtained by misrepresentation and falsehood, and if such means were employed the people had a right to discredit all who were engaged in the movement. One of the signers learned that B. F. Harn, Sylvester Cahill and the latters nephew were managing the matter, they withdrew.

A committee was appointed to inquire into the legality of the organization of the new company, and whether the organization of the company "may imperil the health or property of Cranford, and if so how best to meet the question." The committee consists of J. Hegeman, Ed. Booth, Charles Lee and George Damon and E. R. Horton. The meeting adjourned to meet at 8 p. m., Aug. 6.

—Some one who says she has tried it, says that a little camphor placed on the window sill will keep out flies, except in the kitchen, where the temptation is stronger, and the remedy must be of necessity a little more stringent. But a little camphor sprinkled on the cook stove, now and again, will drive out the pests and keep them out, while it will also neutralize the unpleasant smell of cooking.

Investments.

A paper by Mr F B Thurber in The North American Review contains useful information on the safest investments. Mr. Thurber's article is called "Industrial and Financial Co-operation." The writer regards the gigantic industrial trusts such as Standard Oil, the Sugar Refiners' combination and the Cordage company's syndicate, as instances of "financial and industrial cooperation. The stocks of these great combinations and of others similiar in character are now bought and sold on the markets under the name of industrial stocks and securities, and of such stocks Mr. Thurber on the whole thinks well. The worst possible investments he declares to be railroad securities, quoting as follows to show how railroad investors are swindled:

The Chicago Railway Age publishes a compilation showing the foreclosure sales and receiverships of railroads in the United States during 1890, which strikingly reflects the depressed condition of that interest. Within the past year twenty-nine companies were submitted to foreclosure sales, with a funded debt of $99,951,000 and a capital stock of $91,854,000. Discounting as this showing large appears, yet it is a fact still more discouraging that the foreclosures of the last fifteen years show a much larger annual average than those of 1890. Since 1875 the aggregate foreclosure sales cover 90,325 miles, with $2,000,000,000 of combined stock and bonds, or an average of $1,300,000 per annum. Of this huge total $900,000,000 occurred during the three years from 1873 to 1876, and yet so little was the moral effect of those disastrous years that, immediately following, a furore of speculative construction set in which resulted in the severe financial crisis from which we are now emerging. The lesson, however, is plain. It should never, tell only part of the story; for within the past year 2,266 miles of road have been placed under receiverships, with a combined total of capital stock and bonds amounting to $108,937,000. When may we expect investors to learn better than to put their capital into railroad schemes started on a wholly speculative basis?

Among the best forms of investment the writer mentions the poor man's friend, the building and loan associations. But these ought to be under strict state supervision, so that no speculators can form sham associations of this kind and deprive the poor man of his earnings. Of these associations Mr. Thurber writes:

The aggregate resources of the savings associations of the country are said to 40 per cent. of the entire assets of all state, savings, loan and trust companies and private banks and bankers from which reports were received last year. Their deposits were less than 10 per cent. below those of the national banks, and were more than twice as large as the total capital stock of the national banks. With this true picture of ordinary savings banks are practically confined to a small part of the country, what will happen when the new form of savings bank gets its growth throughout the Union?

Those Census Bulletins.

They are all right, of course. Experts have counted up the figures and professors have prepared them. But there is one thing that is to be regretted from the standpoint of the people who, unlike government experts and professors, have not plenty of time. Busy men and paper writers would like to give a summary of the statistics of their country in a vastly and anxious readers; but what newspaper writer in America can spend three hours a day summing up, averaging and perceniing the figures the experts and professors have strung out so bountifully?

Let us take the education bulletin, for instance. Look at page 4. There is one of those learned and ejaborate tables. It contains the names of the states and territories. After these is printed over and over again, hundreds of times, in long columns, the word "yes" or "no," sometimes one and sometimes the other. Now, might one ask without offense, what is the particular point to repeating these words yes and no hundreds of hundred times? They are fascinating, thrilling words, but not in a census bulletin. Newspaper writers are shallow. Oh, yes, they are superficial, too, we are told. But if the newspaper people of the country had these statistical documents to make out they would condense the information about half, give it in more completeness and at the end of each table provide a summary and per cent. of it all that other newspaper writers would have to hold of in a few minutes and give to the public. As it is—well, no wonder valuable public documents lie unused and rat eaten for ages and are then carted off for waste paper.

If the government statistics published by the republic of Colombia are reliable, life under the tropics is by no means unhealthful. The death rate in Chiriqui, a province of Panama, in years when there is no revolution, is only a little over seventeen to the thousand, a rate the most healthful city of the United States might envy. The state of Panama, according to the government census, contains 283,000 inhabitants, yet in its one province of Chiriqui above mentioned there are 199 persons 100 years old and upward. There is one old fellow who confesses to being 151 years old, but his neighbors say there is a document in existence which he signed 143 years ago. He takes a bath every day and drinks nothing stronger than coffee or chocolate. He owns a coffee plantation and works on it every day. What is more this truly marvelous tale goes on to narrate that the old gentleman enjoys excellent health and gives promise of living several more years. How tired his heirs must be of waiting to inherit that coffee plantation!

DIXON WINS VERY EASY.

Australia's Lad Was Beaten from the Start.

BOSTON'S PRIDE THE FAVORITE.

It Took Him Five Rounds to Settle the Question as to Who Was the Bantam Champion—Great Interest Taken in the Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—The prize fight between George Dixon, of Boston, and Abe Willis, of Australia, took place at the gymnasium of the California Athletic club last night for a purse of $5,000 and the bantam weight championship of the world. Willis was practically unknown here and the betting before the fight was in Dixon's favor, ranging from $100 to $70 to $100 to $60. Great interest was taken in the fight and the clubroom was well filled.

The contestants appeared in the ring soon after 8:40 o'clock. Both men were in perfect condition. Dixon's seconds were Tom O'Rourke, Mitchell and Billy Akers. Willis was seconded by Martin Murphy and Billy Smith. Hiram Cook was referee. Time was called at 9:53.

First Round—The men sparred carefully for fully a minute. Dixon showing to greater advantage in reach. Then Dixon led and caught Willis on the jaw, sending him down. When he arose there was the liveliest kind of a rally, the men slugging each other at close quarters. Dixon plainly had the best of it. Willis lugged as much as possible.

Cheers for Both Men.

Second Round—After fighting cautiously for a minute Dixon planted a swinging left on the Australian's jaw. Several sharp rallies and much clinching followed, then they kept away from each other's jaws at the closest possible range. The round closed with cheers for both.

Third Round—Both men were very wary at first. Dixon then landed his left on Willis' eye and his right on the jaw. Neither blows did much damage.

Fourth Round—After two minutes of sparring Dixon landed on Willis' jaw and body several times, receiving two sharp raps in return. Both were very quiet and saved themselves by dodging.

Dixon Rushed the Fighting.

Fifth Round—Was opened like the others, neither seeming disposed at first to rush and force matters. Toward the close there was a sharp rally near the ropes in which it was give and take for a moment, though Dixon was plainly landing harder and heavier. Presently Dixon caught the Australian on the jaw with his left and sent him down. Willis rose to his hands and knees and took his ten seconds on the floor. He arose a little weak. He when Dixon rushed him he stood prepared to receive the attack. He was not able to do much, however, in the rally that followed and Dixon's right seemed to come into contact with Willis' jaw and the latter went down flat on his back. He fell heavily and lay still.

When ten seconds had expired Willis' seconds had to lift him from the floor, and Dixon was declared the winner. The colored boy received as strong as when the fight commenced.

THE CHINESE MASSACRES.

Much Anxiety Regarding the Killing of Missionaries in Interior of Celestials.

BOSTON, July 29.—The news from China regarding the massacre of missionaries creates much anxiety here. Secretary Baldwin, of the Congregational house, said the missionaries of his denomination had not, so far as he had heard, been molested. Secretary Murdock, of the Baptist headquarters, said that they had been fortunate to escape the fury of the Celestials. At the Methodist headquarters, however, it was said that news had occurred at Yang-Chow, Nanking, Wuchu, Kiukiang and other places in the Yang Tsi valley. The doors, windows and walls of the Wesleyan school and buildings at Wuhsieh were battered down and other damage done.

Rev. Mr. Argenta and Mr. Green, an Englishman connected with the customs service, were killed. At Nanking the Philander hospital was attacked by the Chinese, but they were kept at bay by Rev. D. W. Nichols until the soldiers arrived. As far as is known no New England missionary was killed in the riots. A gentleman of the Methodist Book Concern, speaking of the cause of these outrages, said: "There is a secret society in China which has for its object the overthrow of the government, who hope to accomplish their purpose by fomenting trouble in the hope that the home government will become involved with some foreign power and a war brought on that will end the present government."

The Bicycle Thief in Custody.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 29.—Detective Dukelow arrested a man whom the police believe to be the bicycle thief they have been after for some time, and who has operated largely in other cities. He says he is William Russell, not Chas. Hein. He is about thirty-two years old. His plan of operation was to steal a wheel in one city, ship it to Buffalo, and dispose of it, then steal another wheel and go on again. He is wanted here, at Buffalo, Syracuse, New Haven, Springfield and many other cities.

Lord Holdon Mysteriously Disappears.

BOSTON, July 29.—Lord Oscar Holdon, of England, accompanied by his sister, registered at the Hotel Brunswick in this city on July 21, and the following day he left for Magnolia to pass a few days. Last night Lord Holdon suddenly mysteriously disappeared, and nothing has been heard of him since. His sister says he has been subject to fits of melancholy and at times has acted strangely. Detectives have been employed to find him.

Reducing Custom House Expenses.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The letters sent to Collector Erhardt by Secretary Foster relating to the discharge of custom house employes have been received. Ninety employes are ordered discharged, and numerous reductions in salaries are authorized in various departments. The movement is for the reduction of expenses. Many of the offices are abolished.

Governor Hills Movements.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 29.—Governor Hill was the guest of Ferdinand P. Earle at Normandie-by-the-Sea yesterday. He is to remain over until Monday, New London today to review the evolutions of the white squadron.

Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt Affected.

NEWPORT, July 29.—Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt was seized with something like vertigo while bathing at Bailey's beach, and had to be assisted home in the carriage of a lady passing by.

THE QUEEN TOASTED.

The American Commissioners Enthusiastically Received.

LONDON, July 29.—The luncheon to the foreign committee of the Columbian fair commission was most gratifying in the evidence of cordial British interest in the fair. The British guests included a host of celebrities, and every member of the royal commission was present. Major Handley presided. The president of the United States and the queen were duly toasted amid great enthusiasm.

Major Butterworth and Messrs. Peck and Handy spoke in grateful terms of the hospitality with which the committee had been received, and explained the object of the fair.

Minister Lincoln, who was frequently interrupted by applause, related how cordially Lord Salisbury had met his overtures on the subject of a proper representation of Great Britain at the fair. He was authorized to announce that any provision of American law bearing adversely to alien importations that might be construed to operate against exhibitors would be amended in such a way as to remove any such objection, and every facility would be extended to foreign exhibitors. Chicago, he said, had never yet failed in any public undertaking, and never would.

The most significant speech of the evening was that of Viscount Cross, a member of the cabinet, as well as a trusted personal adviser of the queen. There is no doubt that the viscount spoke with an authority from above. He said he wished to assure the committee in the strongest terms that Great Britain was heartily and entirely with the United States in this celebration, and that every thing within the ability of the government would be done to insure the best possible representation of the United Kingdom, of India and of the colonies. He promised the heartiest co-operation of the government. This utterance evoked great enthusiasm.

Cunliffe Owen said he was convinced that the Chicago fair would excel any previous undertaking of the kind. Therefore the queen of Arts was resolved to see Great Britain properly represented. Sir Richard Webster promised the heartiest assistance of England.

Mr. Gladstone wrote to Major Butterworth:

"I cannot doubt that the exhibition will tend to materially enlarge commercial intercourse between nations, and there with those sentiments of friendship which are the usual result. I hope that those who come to see me will see the industrial glory of America freed from every fetter, and her unparalleled national resources turned to the best account."

Chauncey M. Depew wrote, wishing every success to the committee, and expressing every regret that he could not be present.

Mr. Owen said that the importance of the presence and speech of Viscount Cross could not be overestimated. It meant that the queen's government gave its full weight and influence to the fair. The committee will proceed to Paris in the morning, where various courtesies will be extended.

The Number of People in Jail.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The census office has issued a bulletin which shows that the number of prisoners in county jails during the census year was 19,568. The number reported in 1880 was 12,584, an increase in ten years of 6,847, or at the rate of 53.95 per cent. The increase in the total population was 24.86 per cent. In 1890 the ratio of prisoners in county jails to the population was 253 in each million: in 1880 it was 312. The increase therefore has been fifty-nine to the million. The largest increase has been in the North Carolina division, where it was ninety-five to the million.

New Men in the Steel Works.

HARRISBURG, July 29.—The Pennsylvania Steel works have 1,500 men at work. In the last mill there are enough men to run the day and night turns, and all the old men but three were at work. A car with fifty experienced mill hands from Sparrow Point, Md., arrived here and were quickly distributed through the different mills. The train bearing the workmen from the mill to Harrisburg was stoned by boys in sympathy with the strikers. Fifty more deputy sheriffs have been sworn in.

A BOLD HIGHWAYMAN

Creates Great Excitement in a Newark Office.

A LIVELY CHASE BY POLICEMEN.

Demanding Money and Brandishing Revolvers—He Jumps Through a Window Into the Street—The Remarkable Coolness of Two Clerks.

NEWARK, July 29.—One of the most daring robberies ever attempted in Newark in broad daylight was frustrated by the coolness of two employes of the New Jersey Oil company, at its office, 70 Liberty street.

While Bookkeepers Charles Chichester, of Brooklyn, and William Parsons were in the office about 1:30 o'clock, a young man, wearing a neat checked suit, tall, well built, and with a broad brimmed sombrero on the back of his head, walked up to the desk. He took a seat from a low chair in which he was sitting and walked to where the stranger stood. Suddenly the latter whipped out a pair of revolvers and levelled one at Parsons and the other at Chichester. At the same time he made known his mission by saying in a commanding tone:

"Give me all your money.

"Where's the Money?"

Neither Chichester nor Parsons was badly frightened by this unlooked for demand of the bold highwayman. In fact, they were uncommonly cool, but after it was over they could not tell just how they kept so. The latter moved cautiously along the desk until he reached a wire door leading into the private office. The door closed behind him with a spring latch, but he seemed to do so unnoticed. Walking up to Chichester, with the revolvers still elevated, he demanded in gruff tone:

"Where's the money?"

"Help Yourself."

There was, fortunately, but little in the office, and Chichester replied, "Help yourself," as he moved away from the desk. The man opened several drawers, and, finding nothing, turned again to Chichester and asked:

"How much have you in your pockets?"

Chichester drew some small change from his pocket, but the robber was not satisfied and searched Chichester's pocket himself, but took nothing.

While this was going on the bookkeepers talked as loud as possible, in order to attract the attention of President O. W. Young, who was in a private apartment on the floor above.

Caught in a Trap.

He heard the unusual noise and conversation and started down stairs. The robber heard him and made a break for the door. The spring latch made him a prisoner. Suddenly turning backward, he cleared the desk counter and sprang through an open window into the street just as Mr. Young got down stairs. Mr. Young, Parsons and several passersby started in pursuit of the fleeing highwayman.

Through Liberty street to Walnut street the chase led, and, after half a dozen blocks had been traversed, of which the number of pursuers had increased considerably, the fellow turned and fired a shot at Parsons.

Pursued by the Crowd.

It struck the sidewalk near him and caused him to halt, but the hesitation was only momentary, and the chase was again in full swing. Walnut street to New Jersey Railroad avenue the fellow went with lightning speed, and as he approached the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Elm street Officer Dwyer met the man. He easily shook the latter off and continued his run, hotly pursued by the crowd, which by this time numbered twenty or more, including policemen.

As he turned into New York avenue he stopped long enough to send another shot back at Parsons, the bullet narrowly missing him. The fellow continued on his course without once being headed off, until he reached the Cooper chemical works, on the edge of the meadows which skirt Newark on the east and southeast. Here he hesitated a second. An instant later he was taken to the swampy meadow land and his pursuers were baffled.

Hypolite's Forces Diminishing.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Atlas line steamship Alps arrived from Hayti. Her commander reported affairs in the island as being in a quiet state. It is feared, however, that serious trouble may yet break out with surprising suddenness. Hypolite's forces, the strongest, are thought to be diminishing and it is believed that should a war break out just now the government chances would be slim. The leaders of the opposition are quartered at Kingston, Jamaica, and from there comes the report that they are constantly receiving aid. Among Alvo's passengers was Professor Olinda, a German physician who went to Nicaragua to report on the prospects of the canal company for the German government.

President Inman Annoyed.

NEW YORK, July 29.—President Inman, of the Richmond and West Point Terminal company, said to a United Press reporter: "The reports about the road's embarrassments are without foundation. The interest on the 5 per cent. bonds will be paid on the 1st September. I cannot explain why people become frightened at every little report unfavorable to the road. Only last week I bought $30,000 5 per cent. terminal bonds yesterday. All talk of reorganizing the road is nonsense."

Boot and Shoe Workmen Go Out.

QUINCY, Mass., July 29.—The treers in John F. Drake's boot and shoe factory went out and the factory was shut down, throwing 300 hands out of work. One of the treers was requested to instruct a boy in the cleaning of vamps. This he refused to do and left the shop, the other treers following him out. Mr. Drake says he will not employ union men hereafter.

Young Lady Assaulted in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., July 29.—Sophia Fredericks, aged nineteen, of Lyons Farms, was assaulted at Badger avenue in the evening by Henry Warner, who struck her on the head with a monkey wrench and attempted to outrage her. Four men attracted by her screams rescued the girl and overpowered Warner and took him to the lockup. The girl's head is badly injured.

Cardinal Gibbons Won't Go to Maine.

BALTIMORE, July 29.—Cardinal Gibbons has arrived home from Cape May very much improved in health. He has decided that the invitation to go to Bar Harbor. His eminence will leave for Milwaukee soon, but is not able at present to fix the date of his departure.

PREPARING FOR BATTLE.

Governor Hill Watches the Preparations for the Encounter at Fisher's Island.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 29.—A large number of people are attracted to the vicinity of the naval drills off Fisher's Island, and everything in the shape of a water conveyance is being utilised to convey the sightseers to that locality.

Today the reserves went through another day's instruction and drill. They passed the big guns, the heavyweights that are gurat anteed to knock forts into stoms and blow ships to flinders and crews to eternity They fired heavy charges at long distance targets as the the vessels sailed past given points.

Today was the last day of the practice and preparation.

On Thursday the battle will begin, and on Thursday afternoon the squadron navy brigade and the naval militia battalion will be in small boats under the guns of the warships. Admiral Walker says that Fisher's island will be captured before the sun sets. It is hard to tell what 'preparations they are making. They may be this time aware of the intentions of the white squadron, and will, no doubt, be ready to repel the attack. Should they will make a strong effort to hold the island is apparent from the care with which Admiral Walker is preparing for the attack on the eastern mountain to the south. The harbor is full of smaller vessels bearing crowds who view the gigantic preparations with alarm. Their number is increasing as the battle draws near. They approached Up to this they have been at liberty to come close enough to the warships to be able to see nearly all that is going on, but after today they must keep at a respectful distance.

Governor Hill and his staff arrived here this morning, and will see the men drilled next to-day in the battle. It is said that Admiral Walker, who has assigned him quarters on the Chicago. The Stonington of the naval reserve will meet him here and will be joined by the tug Dolphin. Orderly Allen, bearing the flag of the state of New York arrived here last night from the state camp at Peekskill, and went aboard the Stonington.

OUR FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Statistics Showing a Large Increase Over Last Year.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The bureau of statistics of the treasury has issued its statement of foreign commerce and immigration for the month of June.

It will appear that there has been a large and gratifying increase the last fiscal year when compared with that of 1890. The total value of commerce of the past fiscal year was the greatest in the history of the government, and exceeded the total value of the commerce of 1890 by the sum of $82,191,903. The commerce of 1890 was the largest for any year in the government up to that time, exceeding the commerce of the prior year by the sum of $159,606,066, so that the value of the total commerce of the fiscal year far exceeded the total value of the commerce of 1889 by $241,797,969.

Our total commerce during the past fiscal year amounted to $1,729,703,685. The total value of our imports of merchandise during the last year was $884,905,841. The total value of our exports of merchandise during the same year was $845,797,905 which shows an excess in favor of exports during the fiscal year of $69,519,914. There was also an excess of domestic merchandise over such exports of the prior year of $26,941,787. Since the new tariff law has been in operation, from Oct. 6 1890, to June 30, 1891, inclusive, the total value of the imports of merchandise was $630,206,005, as compared with $598,769,905 the value of such exports for the corresponding period of 1890, which shows an excess for the nine months of 1891 of $31,436,100.

There has been a large increase in the volume of immigration into the United States during the last fiscal year.

The total number arriving was 555,495 as against 451,316 during the fiscal year 1890, showing an increase during the last fiscal year of 104,277. This increase is largely from the following countries Italy, 45,824; Austria-Hungary, 19,961; Germany, 21,122; Russia, including Poland 28,343.

The Body Wasn't There.

NEW HAVEN, July 29.—At the time of the interment of the remains of Adjutant Campbell of the British army, who was killed in Allingtown during the invasion of New Haven, it was supposed that the actual remains of the heroic young British officer lay beneath the stone that was dedicated to his memory. The fact is that no body, nor any traces of the body of Lieut. Campbell, could be found when search was made for erecting the monument, it was decided, in order that the monument might appear to better advantage, to have it erected on a slight elevation at a distance from the old grave. Workmen were employed to dig the remains up, but though they made careful search, nothing that differed in any way from a body could be found. In order that public interest in the event might not suffer by revelation of the fact, nothing was said of the discovery at the time of the dedication.

ATTEMPTED HARI KARI.

Colonel Leybourne's Tragic Act at Rome.

HIS BIG CATHOLIC BANK SCHEME.

Monetary Losses Are Said to Have Caused The Act—He Now Lies in a Precarious State and Cannot Possibly Recover from His Injuries.

ROME, July 29.—Colonel Leybourne, well known in New York in connection with the Catholic banking scheme, attempted suicide here in the Japanese style hari kari, by disemboweling himself with a razor. He now lies in a very precarious state, with little hopes of recovery. Money losses are said to have been the cause of the attempt.

Colonel Leybourne's Career.

Colonel George William Cameron Leybourne established his world nearly two years ago by exploiting a scheme as daring and as prodigious as any in the annals of financiering.

It was nothing less than the organization of an international Catholic bank with headquarters at Rome and subordinate houses at New York, City of Mexico, Caracas, Iquique, Buenos Ayres, Rio Janeiro, Valparaiso, Madrid, Vienna, Paris, London, Bombay and Melbourne. His idea was to unite the strength of Catholic capitalists the world over, and to make the capital stock of this great company a cool $100,000,000.

It Attracted Much Attention.

The story of this project was first published in the papers of New York. Leybourne explained all its details and got a great deal of space. The list of names of men who were alleged to be behind the plan was startling as the plan itself. First of all, it was to have the direct and public sanction of the vatican. This was said to have been already secured. Great Catholic bankers in London and in Paris were to throw all their energies and all their resources into it. Patrick Kelly, the biggest financier of the City of Mexico, was with the colonel; Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, and his brother-in-law, Eugene Kelly; Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul; Archbishop Ryan, of Chicago, and other prelates were mentioned.

It was announced that ex-Mayor William R. Grace, Henry Hoguet, Joseph J. Donohue and other well known Catholic bankers in New York were said to be deeply interested.

A Pretty Story.

It was a pretty story and good reading. But no sooner had it been published than denials came as thick and fast. Archbishop Corrigan didn't know Leybourne. Archbishop Ireland never had heard of him. Cardinal Seechari cabled from Rome that as secretary of the Index at the vatican he had seen no reason to put any confidence in Leybourne. Everybody men tioned denied the story in toto.

Little is known of Colonel Leybourne personally in New York. He lived in an exceedingly economical way in a boarding house at 133 East Twenty-sixth street. He had as "agents" George A. Rowe, an engraver, who lived on the top floor of 15 East Twenty-fifth street, and Rufus W. Leavitt, who lived in Flushing, and had desk room in the Boreel building.

Badly Wounded.

Leybourne is a splendid man of herculean proportions and is sixty-two years old. He stands 6 feet 3½ inches high and weighs 240 pounds. He is said to have fought through the Franco-Prussian wars. He belonged to the Royal engineers and has the Crimean medal with the words "Alma, Balak lava and Sebastopol" engraved on his breast.

He was badly wounded at Balaklava. He also had the Baltic medal of 1854-1855 and another, the Napoleon, for services at Montabello, Solferino, Turbigo, Margenta, Marigan and Solferino. After leaving the army he spent most of his time in Turkey Persia and Egypt building railroads and following his profession of civil engineer.

Can They Hold Him?

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The Republican national executive committee met at the Arlington hotel in this city today. The meeting was to have been held in Philadelphia, but a change of plan was decided on and several members of the committee did not know until the afternoon that they were to meet here. If Mr. Quay insists upon retiring it is supposed that Clarkson will be chosen chairman and either Fessenden or Mr. Payne will succeed Clarkson as vice chairman. Those members of the committee who are trying to prevent Mr. Quay's retirement have raised the question of the right of the executive committee to accept his resignation as chairman. They say that he was chosen chairman of the national committee, and is chairman of the executive committee by virtue of the other chairmanship, that he was chairman ex officio of the executive committee and must remain so as long as he is chairman of the national committee.

Journey of a Severed Hand.

COLUMBUS, Ind., July 29.—About July 1 Joe Warren, an employe of the cerealine mills in this city, had one of his hands caught in the machinery and cut off. The missing member could not be found. A letter has been received from Quakerton, Pa., stating that a man's hand had been found in a load of cerealine shipped by the company to that point and asking the whereabouts of the remainder of the man.

Attempt to Release Herr Most.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Charles E. Le Barbier has been retained by some of the friends of John Most to make application before the United States circuit court for the release of Most, on the ground that his arrest was in violation of the provision of the constitution of the United States which guarantees the right of free speech.

Parnell and the O'Shea Costs.

LONDON, July 29.—The registrar in the bankruptcy court held that Mr. Parnell's objection to Captain O'Shea's notice to pay the costs in the recent divorce suit, on the ground that he was not a resident of England, is untenable. It is still open to Mr. Parnell to appeal, otherwise he must pay the costs or be declared a bankrupt.

Strikers Arrested in Newark.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Frank Bowdish, of 103 High street, was last night arrested and held in $500 bail on a charge of being one of the three men who assaulted Motorman Hayward, of the Newark Electric railway. John J. Cochrane was also put under $200 bail, charged with assaulting Conductor McKange.

A Big Land Company Fails.

DENVER, July 29.—Two years ago the Berkeley Land syndicate purchased 1,800 acres of land from J. B. Walker, of New York. Today it made a $400,000 assignment for its benefit to Mr. Merrielle. The syndicate had a capital of $1,000,000. The liabilities are placed at $600,000, the assets at $600,000.

To Be Double Tracked.

DANBURY, Conn., July 29.—It has been decided to double track the Danbury and Norwalk division of the Housatonic railway. Operations will begin this fall. The business of the road has been too heavy for a single track for a year or more.

Unfortunate Elopers.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—Louisa Boggall, aged sixteen, and William Belcher, twenty-one years old, who eloped from Cleveland Monday night, were arrested here today and will be held until the arrival of officers from Cleveland.

Wouldn't Sign the Scale.

FINDLAY, O., July 29.—The 175 employes of the wire drawing department of the Salem Wire Nail mills have gone out because the Nail company refused to sign the scale of the Amalgamated association.

Insane with Half a Million.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 29.—A lunacy inquiry has been instituted to ascertain the mental condition of Samuel Dally, of Woodbridge," who is said to be worth $600,000.

BICYCLING'S BOOM

Interest in the Wheel Increasing Everywhere.

THREE HANDSOME CLUBHOUSES.

Homes of the Genesee, Lincoln and Louisville Cycling Clubs—The Remarkable Growth in Popularity of the Safety Machine—The High Wheel Has Gone Out.

There seems to be about as much of a tendency to quarrel among bicyclists as there is among any other class of athletic people, but despite that fact bicycling constantly grows in popularity. New clubs are formed, old ones strengthened in numbers and handsome clubhouses are rented or erected by the enthusiastic wheelmen. This is true the country over, but bicycling has made a particularly rapid advance in popularity of late in such large cities as New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Rochester and Louisville. The growth of interest in athletics, which decreases in the cost of wheels and, above all, the invention of the safety bicycle have been prominent factors in this great progress.

THE GENESEE BICYCLE CLUB'S HOME.

Somewhat like Cæsar, the safety came, was seen and conquered. As the fervet drives rats out of a house so the safety sent the high wheels revolving away into oblivion. The little lost in grace by the new machine was more than compensated for among ordinary wheelmen by the lessening of the perils of riding. "Yes," said a prominent bicycle dealer to me the other day, "we sell very few ordinary wheels now. As you will see by a glance at my stock, there are only a few high wheels in sight." What this dealer said is echoed by all the others. Racing men have been the principal users of the ordinary of late.

One of the best clubs in Rochester, N.Y., is the Genesee Bicycle club, which was organized in April, 1883, and rapidly became a wideawake body with fifty members. By a judicious process of weeding all elements not in harmony with the best interests of the club were eliminated, and today the seventy-five members all work for the advancement of the organization. A healthy rivalry soon developed between the Genesee and Rochester clubs, and many interesting contests were the result. The handsome home of the club, a picture of which appears in this column, is on Chestnut street near East avenue, the Fifth avenue of Rochester. The club house is elegantly furnished and enjoys the distinction of being the most elaborate and complete bicycle clubhouse in western New York. The Genesees are prominent members of the

THE LINCOLN CYCLING CLUBHOUSE.

L. A. W., and this fact has made them known throughout the state. The present officers of the club are Gaston S. Montgomery, president; Henry Lampert, vice president; C. W. McDonald, secretary; E. W. Craig, treasurer; M. F. Shafer, captain.

Few cities have many more wideawake bicycling clubs than Chicago. Her numerous famous riders, among them Lumsden, Van Sickles and Barrett, and the great Pullman road race have awakened an extraordinary interest in the wheel during the past few years. One of the flourishing clubs of the city is the Lincoln Cycling club, which was organized about four years ago, and which now occupies a handsome and commodious house at 1 Park Front. It is a three story and basement brick structure. The wheelroom and library are in the basement. A reception room and large parlors are on the first floor, billiard and cardrooms and bachelor's apartments occupy the second floor and the top story will be utilized as a gymnasium. The principal officers of the club are: F. W. Gerould, president; C. A. Iverson, vice president; W. F. Hoskirk, secretary; John E. Templeton, treasurer; W. D. Morris, quartermaster; J. M. Erwin, captain.

Wheeling is enjoying a healthy growth throughout the south, and Kentucky in particular has taken to the wheel of late with a vim. Louisville has one of the best racing tracks in the country and numerous thriving bicycle clubs. Prominent among them is the Louisville Cycle club, which is also the oldest organization in the city. Some of the brightest professional men in Louisville are among its fifty members. The handsome and roomy clubhouse home of the club is situated at 716 Second street. It is furnished elegantly throughout, and numbers among its attractions a 42 minestrip, poolroom, bathroom, reading rooms and reception parlors. The principal officers of this hospitable club are the following named: President, Dr. H. B. Tileston; vice president, G. E. Johnson, and captain, A. J. Lamb.

HOME OF THE LOUISVILLE CLUB.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The late Lawrence Barrett's estate foots up about $250,000.

Stuart Robson is a large holder of Denver real estate.

Henry Strange, a colored tragedian, created something of a sensation in London and Berlin last winter, and will appear in the United States next season. He is twenty-six years old and was born in Virginia.

Yvette Guilbert, the latest idol of "all Paris," receives $600 a night for public performances and $4000 for each drawing room appearance.

La Salle, "the water queen," recently died at Milwaukee. She was a great favorite with museum patrons. In 1879 she remained under water 3 minutes 45 seconds.

The suicide of James L. Edwards in Chicago recently was the result of despondency over his mother's death. He was thirty-five years old, and was rapidly winning an enviable reputation as an actor.

M. Sarcey, the great French dramatic critic, seldom goes anywhere but to the theater, and then never behind the scenes.

A story that the New Park theatre in New York was haunted caused a party, including two reporters, to stay up all night watching. They all declared that they heard ghostly footsteps but could see nothing.

Henry Irving proposes to produce Henry VIII in grand style in London before long.

Amelie Rives proposes to dramatize her story "Virginia of Virginia." It ought to make a very strong play.

Chicago is to have a new and fine theater. It will have "stalls" instead of chairs in the balconies, an arrangement common in England but almost unknown in the United States. Only those in evening dress will be admitted to the lower floor.

A CHAMPION CYCLER.

The Record Made by D. L. Sandoe, a Washington Wheelman.

Mr. D. L. Sandoe, the Arlington wheelman, who captured the District of Columbia safety championship at the recent Hagerstown meet, is just starting on a rapid career as a wheelman. He is well known in the cycle circles of Washington and Philadelphia, and will soon rise into a national reputation if he continues as he promises. Mr. Sandoe first pushed the pedals a year ago, and on Thanksgiving day, 1890, he broke the record in a sixty mile road race from Frederick, Md., to Washington on a solid tire machine. His time was 4h. 36m., and he eclipsed the previous record 32 minutes although he went six miles farther. On May 28, 1891, on the Capital City track, he made ten miles in 30m. 35s.—over four minutes faster than the District of Columbia record. On Decoration Day he was beaten three seconds by a pneumatic tire in a ten mile race over a very bad road. He rode a cushion tire on this occasion. On June 27 he won the two mile safety race in the field games of the Columbia Athletic club, making the distance in 5m. 53 3-5s.

Mr. Sandoe is thirty years old, weighs 140 pounds and holds his nose nearly six feet in the air. He is an expert boxer, oarsman and baseball player, and is never oppressed by "that tired feeling."

BICYCLING BREVITIES.

The Right Rev. A. Cleveland Coxe, of Buffalo, recently stirred up the wheelmen and wheelwomen of that city by stating that bicycling is grossly immodest as well as ridiculous for women when they ride on city streets.

Bicyclists will hold a big tournament at Chicago July 24 and 25. There are many live wheelmen in Chicago.

Wheeling flourishes in Buffalo, where many miles of asphalt streets fill a want in the bicyclist's nature. Riding on asphalt requires little effort, and the wheelman feels as we imagine a bird must feel as it flies through the air.

The big tournament at Peoria, Ills., will occur Sept. 15 and 19 this year.

C. S. Davol, C. E. Randall—who is the next man desirous of holding the position of chairman of the racing board of the League of American Wheelmen? Every chairman seems to stir up a nest of hornets and then resign.

It is said that broken glass in the path of a pneumatic tired wheel will win a race for the other fellow every time. The pneumatic once punctured is about as useful as a toy balloon with a hole in it.

Champion Princess Florence.

The champion St. Bernard of the gentler sex is said to be Princess Florence, owned by Hedley Chapman, of Frankleigh, England. She has been a competitor at numerous bench shows in England and Scotland, and has never met her superior. At the Windsor show of 1890 she captured the hundred guineas challenge cup, and other important prizes have gone to her owner. She was born Sept. 27, 1888, and when only a puppy 8 months old she weighed 165 pounds. She has since become an immense creature.

BASEBALL BRIEFS.

Grim is looked upon as one of the bright lights of the western association. Anson recently offered him $1,000 for him.

W. B. Franklin, of Lancaster, Pa., has been elected president of the Yale Baseball association.

Gilliland, the left handed pitcher, who did good work for New Haven, has gone to Beaver.

Dan Brouthers, of Boston, is keeping up his reputation as a batsman.

Henry Chadwick, the famous baseball writer, is nearly seventy years old, but he still turns out an immense quantity of good baseball copy every week.

The Late J. K. Emmet.

The late Fritz Emmet invested much of his money in government bonds and always made his purchases through Rufus Hatch, the famous financier. He was dark and swarthy, notwithstanding the fact that he made up on the stage as a blond German. He could always recognize acquaintances in the audience, and generally indicated it in some way, but as delicately that the person recognized was almost certain to be the only one to detect the attention.

The largest audience he ever appeared before was 2,000 in London. The smallest was in Columbus, O., where he played the first matinee the town had ever known, and only one person went to see him. The performance was carried through as carefully for the one man in Columbus as it was for the 2,000 in London. Emmet once presented Amos Cummings (who was then a reporter) with a pair of diamond cuff buttons because Cummings wrote kindly of him when others were abusing him.

The Great Sire Alcazar.

Alcazar, 2:20¾, is owned jointly by the Messrs. Palset and Uhlein Bros., of Milwaukee, and is doing stud duty at the Uhlein Bros.' stock farm. Alcazar was foaled in 1883, and has earned a great name for himself as a sire of trotters. He was purchased from Senator Rosa, of California, at the Kellogg sale in March, 1890, for $25,800, and when it is stated that $50,000 has been offered and refused for this splendid animal it speaks volumes for the popularity of Alcazar. At the same sale the get of this, the greatest son of Sultan and Minnehaha, brought the highest average of any horse's get ever sold at auction.

ALCAZAR, 2:20¾.

Alcazar is by Sultan, 2:24, sire of twenty-four in the 2:30 list; dam Minnehaha, dam of Sweetheart, 2:22¾, 8 years, and other handsomes. Alcazar, in the opinion of many good judges, has no peer in the world as a producer of speed in every colt, and, is a game race horse, who by his trotting race as a 3-year-old, endeared himself to all who saw him. Had he not gone lame he would doubtless have greatly lowered his record.

The Next Theatrical Season.

The theatrical season just passed has been the worst on record, and there is little prospect that next season will be any better. The chief characteristic of next season will be the great number of companies which will play farce comedies. In fact, there seems to be some probability that farce comedy will be largely overdone and that many of the 125 companies going on the road will lose money. Another feature of the season will be the large number of plays by American authors which will be produced. The era of worship for things foreign which has prevailed for some years has ended, and the Yankee playwright will have things all his own way for a while now at any rate.

THOUSANDS OF SINGERS.

The Recent German Festival of Song at Newark, N. J.

It is said that more than one-third of the residents of Newark, N. J., are Germans, and over the door of nearly every German family in the city there was hung recently a card inscribed "Willkomm en, Saenger," which means in English "Welcome, Singer." And there were enough singers in the town to warrant this plentiful assurance of hospitality, for it was the occasion of the sixteenth annual song festival of the German-American singing societies of the northeastern part of the United States, and was the biggest and best of the affair.

BUST OF SCHUBERT. [The First Prize.]

Four thousand voices swelled the grand mass chorus, and an orchestra of more than 200 instruments played the accompaniment for it. More than 15,000 people listened to this mighty harmony, and when the musicians played the stirring strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" they all joined in singing it. It is safe to say that our national song was never so grandly rendered before. One hundred and thirty singing societies took part in this magnificent demonstration, and visitors from all parts of the United States were present. The prize singing for individual societies was divided into three classes and there were three prizes in each class. The finest of these prizes was a bronze bust of Schubert. Herr Frank Van der Stucken was the first director.

How the Races Are Distributed.

The original and still central line of the white Aryan race extends from northern India, northwest to Scandinavia and Scotland, and at the opening of the modern era the almost uniform rule was that humanity degenerated as one departed either way from this line, the lowest races being found at the greatest remove—in South Africa and the tropical islands, at the southern point of South America and on the northwestern coasts of North America, as well as the remoter regions of Asia. For 400 years, however, the whites have been steadily pressing back the other races and taking their places, and with the sole exception of the African all the lowest races seem tending toward extinction.

As far as can be determined the distribution at present is about as follows:

	White.	Black.	Brown and Mixed.
Europe	330,000,000	Very few	15,000,000
Asia	10,000,000	5,000,000	785,000,000
Africa	4,000,000	100,000,000	16,000,000
All America	80,000,000	11,000,000	40,000,000
Australasia	5,000,000	500,000	100,000
All other	2,000,000	2,000,000	500,000
Totals	431,000,000	118,500,000	856,600,000

Of course the division on the color line cannot be strictly accurate, as in many countries, especially in South America, each person is enumerated in the race whose blood predominates in him or her.

First clean the surface of the shell by rubbing it with a rag dipped in hydrochloric acid until the outer dull covering comes off. Then wash the shell in warm water; dry in hot sawdust and polish with chamois leather. Shells destitute of a natural polished surface may be either varnished or rubbed with a mixture of tripoli powder and turpentine applied by a piece of wash leather. Afterward fine tripoli should be used, then a little olive oil rubbed in well, and finally the surface well rubbed with the chamois leather. Keep the hands from contact with the acid.

A MYSTERIOUS CASE.

Whose Baby Was This?—Considerable Quizzing.

Sunday evening a prominent Plainfield physician telegraphed to a woman in New York requesting her to hurry to a house on Duer street, North Plainfield. He afterwards left word with the night telegraphmaster that when a woman arrived she should be sent to his house instead of to the house mentioned in the telegram. The woman arrived on a late train, and was sent as directed, to the physicians. He accompanied her to the house on Duer street, and when she again arrived at the depot she carried a new born babe in her arms. The infant was well wrapped up. The woman placed it on one of the seats at the depot and she laid down on the window sill and went to sleep. Just before the 2.52 a. m. train she was awakened by Policeman Flanagan. He inquired what the bundle contained and she promptly informed him and told him she was going to take it to a foundling asylum. The officer was suspicious, but after learning the physician's name allowed her to board the train, which was then pulling into the depot.

—The Board of Education has awarded the contract for coal for the public schools to outside parties for $4.25 per ton for the best Lehigh coal delivered. The Board claims that it will save $175 by this contract over the lowest price ($4.75) asked by local dealers. The latter do not feel that they have been treated right in the matter. The Board insists that the fifty cents additional asked by the local dealers is because of a combine formed by them. They declare that any combine of their's is only to protect themselves from unfair competion with irresponsible parties who would palm off coal improperly screened and of short weight, and that they, the local dealers, do the work on the smallest possible margin that will insure against loss.

IN THE COURT.

A PRISONER MAKES AN APPEAL IN HIS OWN BEHALF.

Laying the Cause of His Trouble at Others' Doors. His Mother-in-Law to Blame.—Another Blames His Satanic Majesty. — Still Another Finds Fault With That "Accursed Stuff."—Sentences.

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions, held at Elizabeth yesterday morning, Judges Rice, Hyer and Wiley, the following-named prisoners were arraigned and sentenced:

The first prisoner was a negro named Spencer Williams of Rahway, who plead guilty to having assaulted his wife, Belle. Being told to speak for himself, Williams said that had it not been for his wife's mother and sister he would not have so far forgotten himself as to strike his wife, whom he professed to love.

His mother-in-law objected to her marrying him, he said, and had done everything in their power to bring about a separation. Wednesday last he accused his wife of something, which he did not want to make public, whereupon she became excited and called him a "liar," and he in a moment of passion slapped her face.

Feeling sorry for what he had done, he fell upon his knees and begged to be forgiven, and his prayer was listened to, for his wife "kissed and made up." The charge was not brought against him by his wife, he said, but by her mother, who compelled her daughter to sign it.

While telling his story to the Court the tears rolled down his face.

The colored people of Rahway, he said, were down on him because he succeeded in getting good situations, and when free again he intended to take his wife and leave Rahway so that they might live in peace.

The Court, evidently believing Williams's story sentenced him to one day in jail upon his promising to do the right thing in the future.

John Utter, alias Frank McDonald, the sneak thief who was captured on Thursday morning last by Mrs. Hendrick Forster of Smith street, was next arraigned.

Utter pleaded guilty to four charges. He said that he came to this city for the purpose of seeking employment in the Singer factory; that on his way there he had to pass the open door of a dwelling, when "the devil" put it in his heart to enter and steal, which he did in a moment of weakness.

When asked if he had ever been convicted before he said he had on several occasions, each time for a similar offence. The last time he was sentenced in the Essex County court to three years at State prison.

Henry Sothard of Plainfield, charged with stealing a coat and vest valued at $7.50 and selling the same to a junkman for $1, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Sothard informed the Court that he committed the offence while crazed by drink. He had not drank anything before for over eight years. This was the second time he had been arrested on a like charge and drink was the cause both times.

Upon Judge Rice asking him if he had a family the prisoner broke completely down, and for a moment could say nothing, the tears choking all utterance. He finally said, between his sobs, that he had a wife and four children—two girls and two boys.

The court said that it was fully satisfied that he was a man whose downfall was caused by drink alone, and that if he let rum alone he would become a respectable man. The court sentenced him to 90 days in jail.

James Hickey of this city, a youth of fourteen, pleaded guilty to stealing lead pipe to the value of 50 cents.

Prosecutor of the Pleas Marsh said that from what he could gather unable to learn the boy was incorrigible, his parents being unable to do anything with him.

Calling the little fellow to him, Judge Rice asked him why he did not stay at home and behave himself. The boy replied that his step-mother had driven him away.

"Wouldn't you like to be sent somewhere where you can be taken care of?" asked Judge Rice.

"Yes, sir," said Hickey.

Turning to Prosecutor Marsh, Judge Rice directed that the boy be sent to the Reform School as quickly as possible, saying that he did not like to see so youthful a prisoner sent to jail.

Owing to repairs now going on in the court room court was held in the Board of Freeholders room.

PLAINFIELD VS. SOMERVILLE.

The Colored Teams of Each Place to Play Ball To-Day.

The enterprising manager of the base ball players of sable hue of Plainfield has arranged a series of three games with the crack colored team of Somerville.

He says Somerville's white team knock out Plainfield's, so he is going to give the colored brethren a chance to uphold Plainfield's base ball pennant.

The dates for two of the games are Saturday, August 1st, at Somerville; August 8th, at Plainfield. The date for the third game will be settled on later.

—The highest price for seats to the Cleveland Minstrels will be 75 cents.

—During the extraordinary heavy downfall of rain to-day, the streets were flooded. Park avenue looked like a miniature river. It is doubtful if any ordinary sewerage system would have carried the surface water away so rapidly did it accumulate.

A MYSTERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A Pet Horse, Found Lame One Morning, Killed To-Day.

About ten days ago a gray mare, about 14 years old, Mr. P. M. French's, was turned to the yard in the rear of Mr. French's residence, on Somerset street, to graze.

It was in perfect health and condition. Next morning the mare had seemingly "gone lame." It could not be made, except after threatening (but not using) the whip, to get up from the ground where it was lying, and walk to its stall.

Since then it has not been used. Mr. French had it treated for lameness, but there was no improvement. This morning when he went to look at the mare he found she had a broken leg. This discovery necessitated, to relieve the animal's pain, that she be put to death. It was done by a veterinary by chloroforming.

The only explanation that Mr. French can give for the unfortunate accident is that when grazing some of the boys who play around flung a stone and fractured the bone. In the stall, the mare, in attempting to rise, prob[illegible] finished what the stone started.

The mare was a family pet, and Mr. French feels the loss keenly.

A Children's Party.

A pleasant and enjoyable afternoon tea-party was given last Monday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Baker, of Pleasant Plains, near Sterling, in honor of their two children, Lulu and Charles H. Baker. The school-mates from the Millington District School and some friends from the neighboring villages were present. The table was spread in the woods and loaded with seasonable fruits and delicacies.

The children enjoyed many different games which ended with a "Punch and Judy" performance. At an early hour, just after sunset, after singing and prayer in which all the children joined, as is the custom of the "Young Warriors," a band was organized by Rev. Arthur Dill who was present with them.

Among the older people who were present were: Rev. Dr. Rankin and Mrs. Rankin, of Basking Ridge; Mrs. Charles Dunham, of Millington; Rev. Arthur Dill, of Sterling; Miss Carrie Dunham, of this city; Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. Piker and Mr. and Mrs. Baker, of Pleasant Plains; Mrs. Oxley, of Elizabeth, and Miss Jennie Dunham, of Rahway, and a number sent regrets.

Mr. Charles H. Day of Westfield is a guest at the LeChevalier House, Ocean Grove.

Mrs. H. Simmons and child of this city are the guests at the West End Hotel, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Hallock and family of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, are Summering at Ghent, N. Y.

Miss Lu. Baleu is accompanying her brother, Mrs. Asbury Hoffman, of Plainfield, for a few weeks' visit at North Asbury.—Elizabeth Journal.

Miss Belle Bradshaw has returned to Plainfield after a two weeks' vacation at Asbury Park, where she has been staying at the Grand Central Hotel.

Frederick Nicholas, the infant son of Fred. W. and Maggie M. Hand, died at the home of his parents at Netherwood yesterday. The funeral will take place from his late home to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.

Miss Minnie L. Kendall of New Providence and Mr. Levi E. Crane, of East New Market, N. J., were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's parents in the former place yesterday by the Rev. J. Ludlow Kendall, of Lewisburgh, Pa., assisted by the Rev. W. A. Hooper, of New Providence. Among the guests present was Mrs. R. G. Silvers, of Westervelt avenue, North Plainfield.

Held for the Grand Jury.

The case of Charles Williams, who was arrested for stealing flowers from the yard of Mr. J. C. Dyer, on Craig place, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace A. W. Sperry, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Messrs. Hugh M. Harkins and Samuel Hedden testified that they saw Williams stealing the flowers. Williams had no witnesses and the Justice held him in $100 for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

As soon as the above case was disposed of, Williams was again arraigned on the charge of stealing umbrellas from residents of the borough. He waived examination and was held in $200 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. In default of bail he was committed to the Somerset county jail.

Threw a Stone Through a Window.

Some miscreant threw a stone through one of the windows in Reform Hall last evening during the progress of the Salvation Army meeting and the missile narrowly escaped hitting Mr. Charles Baybert, who was seated near the window. The authorities should endeavor to ascertain who the fellow was and punish him severely. Such dangerous practices should be stopped immediately.

Injured While Wrestling.

William Rooney, a young man employed by Mr. John Morton of West Front street, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. He and a friend engaged in a wrestling match in the rear of a store on West Front street, and in some unaccountable way young Rooney slipped and fell to the floor. His left arm struck against the blade of a knife and was badly cut.

THE COMBINE'S SCHEME TO ROB US.

Some Figures for Taxpayers to Study.—Why Gets the $100,000?

To the Editor of The News:—In reply to an advertisement published last February the Plainfield Water Supply Company submitted to the Common Council a proposition in writing to furnish the city with 250 hydrants for $15 each per annum—that is an average of 10 hydrants on each mile of the company's mains. As ten hydrants a mile are amply sufficient for protection against fire the cost to the city according to the company's proposition would be $150 a mile, a total of $6,750 a year. This proposition has never been withdrawn and is, presumably, still in force. Now is there any doubt about the ability of the company to furnish a copious supply of water on the terms mentioned?

In the face of these facts the "combine" have just passed an ordinance to give to "J. M. Low & Co., and their assigns" a contract to furnish hydrants at $25 a year each, and to have at least 12 on each mile of mains. The proposed contract with Low & Co., is to run for a period of 25 years. At least 25 miles of mains are now required to supply water to the people of the city, and of course, the mains must be extended as the city grows. A little figuring will display the size of the impending outrage on the taxpayers.

250 hydrants at $15 each will cost the city $3,750 a year, for 25 years they will cost $93,750.

300 hydrants at $25 each will cost the city $7,500 a year, for 25 years they will cost $187,500.

The cost of hydrants according to the "combine's" proposition is precisely twice as much as the cost according to the proposition of the Water Company, even if no additional hydrants were required for 25 years. But as every mile of mains laid by Low & Co., during the 25 years must be studded with at least 12 hydrants the outrage will constantly increase in size. Practical men say that it would pay a company about 10 per cent. a year to lay mains through cocoa nuts on the "combine's" terms, simply to get the hydrants rentable from the city, as the cost of 4 or 6-inch mains is less than $5,000 a mile.

Heretofore the "combine" have attempted to answer this objection to their plan by saying that it is necessary to give Low & Co. a water franchise on such terms, in order to induce them to put in sewers, but at last they seem to have thrown off their mask and propose to abandon the sewer project altogether, or possibly to go through the form of awarding a contract to construct sewers which they know will never be carried out. They do not know the people of Plainfield if they think such a transparent job can be put through.

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

Married in Dunellen

For some time past Miss Josie Loring has been employed by Mrs. John E. Beerbower of the City Hotel as a nurse for her children. Monday Mrs. Beerbower discharged her. Miss Loring's parents who live at Elizabeth were notified and her step-father came to this city Monday evening and took her home. She did not feel contented at home and she again returned to this city Tuesday. Within a few weeks she had formed the acquaintance of Michael Kennedy, a hackman, at the North avenue depot. When she returned Tuesday she met Kennedy and the two agreed to get married. Miss Loring, her newly-found lover, accompanied by Mr. James McCarthy and Miss Mary McGlenn, went to Dunellen, sought a minister and were quietly married. They then returned to this city and will reside here. Mrs. Kennedy's father is dead. His name was Butler, but she assumed her step-father's name—that is what she was known by here. She is not yet eighteen years of age and there is a rumor current that as soon as she attains that age she will inherit some property left her by her father. Her friends here feel provoked at her early marriage.

Bitten by a Dog.

Charles Godown was badly bitten by a dog belonging to John M. Schorb of East Front street last evening. Godown visited Schorb's saloon and began to pet the canine, when without any warning whatever it jumped up and caught him by the left ear tearing away the lobe of the ear and badly lacerating his face. He immediately went to a physician and had the wounds cauterized. The dog has not as yet been shot. It is the same dog about which Mr. Schorb was sued not long ago for damages.

An Unexpected Ducking.

Yesterday afternoon, Jacob Naylor, a carpenter, and John Vail, a laborer, engaged in a wrestling match on the banks of the raceway in the rear of Schorb's saloon. The contestants were evenly matched but eventually Naylor succeeded in throwing Vail. The latter began to roll down the bank and did not stop until he fell into the water. He was fished out by friends, none the worse for the unexpected "ducking".

GENERAL FAY'S CONDITION.

He Seems Brighter, But the Physicians Have Little Hope.

General Fay was another operation performed Friday at his home in Elizabeth, and the crisis in his malady has now been reached. Sunday he was so low that it was not thought he could last more than a few hours, but yesterday morning he had brightened up somewhat and began to talk about politics with his brother and County Collector Wood, his brother-in-law.

The patient's vitality is wonderful. He has wasted away to a skeleton. His mental faculties seem strong and clear.

The physicians think he cannot last much longer unless there is some unexpected favorable change. His brother was called by telegraph from Washington Sunday.

Glenside Park.

Have you "done" Glenside this Summer? If you have not, you have missed a very pleasant and romantic drive. The mountain hamlet, no longer "The Deserted Village," is now at its best; and the well kept streets, the trim lawns, and the nicely-arranged flower-beds make it an attractive an inviting spot. In three or four days, on well-contrasted backgrounds, you are informed, in letters of living green, of three facts which is as well to bear in mind; viz, that you are "Among the Hills," this is flanked on either side by a floral representation of a horse and anchor), that it is "1891," and that you are in the sacred precincts of "Glenside Park." The cottages seem to be all occupied, and so do the residents, too, for that matter—occupied in reading peacefully in one of the most charming and secluded spots that it is possible to conceive of within so easy a distance of the roaring metropolis. A solitary butcher wagon going the rounds, seemed almost an intrusion, but it served to bring the mind down to realization of the fact that beef and potatoes were necessities here, (probably great ones, too, from the character of the atmosphere), and that man must eat even though he live on the hills of the gods. Good roads lead to it from all directions, and it is but a few minutes from Westfield, Plainfield or Summit. The proprietor is Mr. Warren Ackerman, whose own beautiful place near Scotch Plains commands the involuntary attention of every passer-by. —Westfield Leader.

Reunion of the Thirteenth.

The Reception and Decorating Committee appointed for the re-union of the Thirteenth Regiment, which will be held in Bloomfield in September, met Tuesday night. This committee appointed several sub-committees. The line of parade will be discussed at the next meeting. Among those who will be invited to take part, besides Gov. Abbett, will be Congressman English, ex-Governor Ludlow, Mayor Hetfield of Elizabeth, Judge Fort and other county and State officials. President Harrison will also receive an invitation. The Decorating Committee will erect a floral arch at the centre of the town.

Planning for Emancipation Day.

The colored people of Plainfield will hold a big Emancipation Day celebration Thursday, Aug. 6. A great time is expected.

Gov. Abbett has signified his intention of being present, and Senator McPherson has written the Committee that he, too, will attend. There is to be a parade, in which societies from all the large towns in the State will participate. In the afternoon public exercises will be held in the Rink. Prayer will be by Rev. D. B. Jansen, of Jersey City. There will be a ball game in the afternoon, and the affair will conclude with a grand ball. The Chairman of the Committee is W. E. Johnson.

Did They Attempt Incendiarism.

A young man named William Frey last night informed Policemen Giese and Fredreckson that two or three men were acting suspiciously in the vicinity of the barn of Mr Charles Potter, which is situated in the rear of the Potter Press Works on South Second street. The officers hastened to the place, but when then arrived there the men had departed. A search of the premises revealed burned matches and the cigars always on hand. No. 7 Somerset street. Mrs. R. Trainman Grey's Close Call.

A coal train drawn by engine No. 412 on the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Bound Brook ran into the rear end of a loaded freight train at four o'clock yesterday morning and piled two dozen cars in a heap. The firemen and engineer of the coal train jumped in time to escape injury. Donald Grey, a trainman on the freight, was asleep in the caboose. The car was smashed to kindling wood. Strange to say, Grey was only slightly bruised. The track was blocked for several hours.

Saturday's Races.

An interesting trotting event took place on the grounds of the Gentlemen's Driving Park on Park avenue Saturday afternoon. The following entered were Philip Jenners' "Blanch Warwick," M. SENATOR QUAY RESIGNS.

He Gives Up the National Republican Chairmanship.

GENERAL DUDLEY FOLLOWS SUIT.

The Latter Hands in His Resignation as Treasurer—Their Departure Mourned by the Other Members of the Committee—Will Clarkson Succeed Quay?

WASHINGTON, July 30.—At the meeting of the executive committee of the Republican national committee last night.

Senator Quay tendered his resignation as a member and chairman of both the executive committee and the national committee in a note containing the information that he had sent to the Pennsylvania state committee his resignation as the representative of that state in the national organization.

W. W. Dudley, the treasurer of the national committee, also tendered his resignation of that office, and the executive committee adopted eulogistic resolutions setting forth the services of Senator Quay and General Dudley and expressing regret at their action. The members of the executive committee had been informed of Senator Quay's resignation, and there was no surprise manifested when Secretary Fassett, soon after the session opened, read the following communication:

Senator Quay's Note.

WASHINGTON, July 29.

Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, Secretary National Republican Committee:

DEAR SIR—I hereby apprise you that I have today forwarded to Hon. William H. Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania, my resignation as the member of the Republican national committee from that state. Very truly, M. S. QUAY.

The Committee's Response.

The committee then adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That we accept against our own inclination, and with much doubt as to the wisdom and expediency of it for the party's interest, the action of Senator Quay in his resignation as chairman and member of the national committee.

In submitting to it with so much of reluctance and regret, we desire to express, from our own knowledge of the facts of his pre-eminent service to the party, our sense of the deep obligation which he has laid upon it. He placed the Republican party and the cause of good government and honest politics under lasting debt to him. He took the leadership of a doubtful cause in a time when the Republican party was dishearten and the Democratic party confident in the power of supreme control in the government and the nation and when the odds of the contest were against our party, and by his matchless power, his unequaled skill in resources, his genius to command victory, won for his party an unprecedented victory in the face of expected defeat.

Honor and Fair Methods.

We know, as do our party friends that the contest which he waged was one of as much honor and fair methods as it was of invincible courage and triumphant victory, and that it was won largely by the power of his superior generalship and his unfailing strength as a political leader.

In the great contest of 1888, in the months of severe effort and the years of close personal association with him, we learned to know and honor the nobility of the man, and we desire in this formal expression to add to the public record for the present and for the future an enduring answer to the partisan assaults of a defeated enemy, our testimony to the unstained record of his public services and his personal worth.

Treasurer Dudley Resigns.

The committee on audit then reported that Treasurer W. W. Dudley's accounts had been examined and found correct, and expressed their appreciation of the treasurer's able and efficient services. The chairman then read the following letter:

WASHINGTON, July 29, 1891.

To the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee:

MY FRIENDS AND ASSOCIATES—Inasmuch as I am soon about to resign as the executive committee of the Republican national committee, I am tendering the approaching presidential election of 1892 and as my business engagements will demand all my time and attention during the coming year, I am compelled to sever the pleasant relations which have existed and still exist between us.

I therefore tender my resignation of the office of treasurer of the executive committee of the Republican national committee. Respectfully yours, W. W. DUDLEY.

General Dudley Complimented.

A resolution complimentary to General Dudley and accepting his resignation was read as follows:

Resolved, That while we are left by General Dudley's own wish no other course than to consent to his retirement from the committee, we shall feel his absence from our committee and from the party of the invaluable and loyal service of one who has ever shown himself one of the ablest and most faithful public men of his time. In every field of honorable contest and patriotic purpose, as a soldier, winning from his boyhood the stars of a general in the Union army; as a public official, serving with equal ability his party and the people in the highest public field with like ambition for the nation's good, he has proved himself always worthy of the regard and confidence of his countrymen. In the whole public career, in his unselfish service, and with his generous nature, he has illustrated the highest type of manhood, ever thinking of private profit or personal emolument. His life is a conspicuous proof of his manliness of purpose and his patriotism as a citizen. Speaking from what we know of his care and attention and unusual devotion to party and country, we would express this grateful evidence of what we know the Republican party owes to him for his services, not to many of the contests, and especially in the memorable struggle of 1888. We part from him officially with high regard, and in doing so we wish to put on the records of the committee this expression of that party gratitude and personal friendship in which we know he is so worthy to be held.

Clarkson for Chairman.

The resignations of Chairman Quay and Treasurer Dudley were then formally laid on the table and accepted subject to the action of the committee in the national national committee at its next meeting.

Mr. Clarkson was elected chairman of the executive committee, and Mr. Hobart was elected vice chairman in the place of Mr. Clarkson, the chairman being authorized to select a treasurer to succeed Mr. Dudley.

Mr. Clarkson will act as chairman of the national committee until a meeting of that body can be held to elect a successor to Senator Quay.

Those present were Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, the chairman; James S. Clarkson, of Iowa; J. S. Fassett, of New York; Samuel Fessenden, of Connecticut; J. Manchester Haynes, of Maine; Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey, and W. W. Dudley, of Indiana.

The chairman and secretary were then authorized to call a meeting of the entire national committee at such place and time in November as they may select for the purpose of deciding on the place where the next national convention shall be held.

IN THE POLITICAL WORLD.

Roger Q. Mills on Paternalism and Democratic Principles.

FORT RICHMOND, S. I., July 30.—Some 1,500 persons gathered at Prohibition park last evening to hear Hon. Roger Q. Mills speak. The subject of Mr. Mills' address was the conflict between paternalism and Democratic principles. He said:

"In the last thirty years paternalism has been extending its tendencies and liberty has been contracting here. The government has been prescribing the hours of labor. If it has the right to prescribe eight hours it has the right to prescribe twenty-four. It has neither.

"How long a man shall work and at what business is a question of his own determination. The government heads down one kind of butter with a heavy tax to decrease its production and give higher profits to another kind. The government taxes people to raise money to appropriate to fairs, to buy grain for those who have lost theirs by droughts or insects. It regulates the practice of medicine and law, and it is being urged by some to prescribe rates of pay for its practitioners, and now it is demanded by a great number of good people that the government shall lend people money and help them to live.

"Folly could hardly go further. The answer of Democracy to all these demands is that the government must stop at the boundary of natural right; that it must secure that against every invasion, and then leave every man free to fight out the battle of life for himself."

Concerning prohibition Mr. Mills quoted Horatio Seymour's words:

"Temperance is not the product of the legislator, but of education and religion," and said that any interference on the part of the government with the manufacture of liquors would be paternalism.

Still Balloting.

MALONE, N. Y., July 30.—Delegates to the Fourth Judicial District Republican convention met here to nominate candidates for the supreme court to succeed Judges Tappan, of Potsdam, and Potter, of Whitehall. Judge Tappan is seeking a renomination.

The ninth ballot was as follows: J. F. Badger, 21; Malone, 1; Judge Tappan, 30; of Judge Potter, 1; Judge Tappan, 3; Jesse Keck, of Johnstown, 1; S. D. Stover, of Amsterdam, 6; A. J. Cheritree, of Glens Falls, 1; Judge Kellogg, of Ogdensburg, 5, and D. B. Westfall, of Cambridge, 1.

War to the Knife at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, July 30.—It is to be war to the knife in the Erie county Democracy. This was definitely decided by the action of the Cleveland Democracy club last night in adopting resolutions denouncing the joint conference last Thursday. The point at issue in the battle is being daily more defined, and the lines are called Sheehan and Anti-Sheehan. It is really a Cleveland and Hill fight. Mr. Sheehan is an out and out supporter of Governor Hill, while the Cleveland Democracy are working for the interests of the ex-president.

Frank Brown for Governor.

BALTIMORE, July 30.—It is conceded on all sides that Frank Brown will have a walk over for governor at the state convention today. There is a disagreement about the proposition to have a free silver plank in the platform. Senator Gorman is not averse to such a course, but the Democratic leaders are generally opposed to free silver. They argue that the ticket will lose many votes if the plank is inserted.

Republicans at New York.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Republican state committee is in session at the Fifth Avenue hotel. The general sentiment seems to be that the state convention shall be held at Saratoga, Sept. 30. A call for that date and place will probably be issued today. It is said that General Knapp contemplates resigning.

Recognition for Women.

TIFFIN, O., July 30.—The state convention of Knights of Pythias, to be held at Springfield Aug. 6 and 7, will have as presiding officer Mrs. Stevens, a member of the editorial staff of the Toledo Bee.

A Newark Man's Romantic Marriage.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 30.—Henry Bird, of Newark, N. J., aged about fifty years, and Miss Carrie Scudder, whose age cannot be more than half that, were the contracting parties in a romantic marriage here. As the sun was setting the couple repaired to the center of the Suspension bridge, where amid the thunder of the cataract, juniper and the nuptial knot. A banquet at the Casino followed.

Knights of Pythias Choose Officers.

No Advance in Coal.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The agents representing companies controlling the interior and western anthracite coal markets at their monthly meeting decided that no increase in prices was warranted, and it was agreed to leave rates undisturbed. The agents then adjourned to Aug. 27. The same decision was reached at a meeting of the eastern agents.

The French-Russian Alliance.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30.—Admiral Gervais declares that he has not been intrusted with a political mission, but only to convey the felicitations of the queen of the French government. The object of the entente between France and Russia was explained in full by the people alliance and purely defensive in character.

Mr. Clarkson was elected chairman of the executive committee, and Mr. Hobart was elected vice chairman in the place of Mr. Clarkson, the chairman being authorized to select a treasurer to succeed Mr. Dudley.

Mr. Clarkson will act as chairman of the national committee until a meeting of that body can be held to elect a successor to Senator Quay.

Those present were Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, the chairman; James S. Clarkson, of Iowa; J. S. Fassett, of New York; Samuel Fessenden, of Connecticut; J. Manchester Haynes, of Maine; Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey, and W. W. Dudley, of Indiana.

The chairman and secretary were then authorized to call a meeting of the entire national committee at such place and time in November as they may select for the purpose of deciding on the place where the next national convention shall be held.

Ex-Speaker Reed Arrives.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Ex-Speaker Reed was among the passengers arriving on the steamer City of New York from Liverpool.

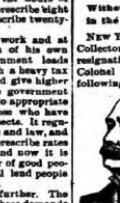
FASSETT IS COLLECTOR

Appointed by the President to Succeed Erhardt.

WHY THE LATTER STEPPED DOWN.

He Claims That, Although He Was Under Heavy Bonds, He Was Virtually Without Power and Had Little Control in the Custom House.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Speculation as to Collector Erhardt's reasons for his abrupt resignation was set at rest last night by Colonel Erhardt himself, who made the following statement: "I have resigned because the collector has been reduced to a position where he is no longer an independent officer, with authority commensurate with his responsibility. I have given bonds for $200,000. I have received for the government in the twenty months passed $222,697,135.40, and I am all the time personally responsible for enormous values in money and in merchandise. My duties are necessarily performed through about 1,500 employes. I am not willing to continue to be responsible for their conduct unless I have proper authority over them. The recent policy of the treasury department has been to control the details of the business administration of the port of New York from Washington at the dictation of a private individual having no official responsibility. The collector is practically deprived of power and control, while he is left subject to all responsibility. The office is no longer independent, and I am. Therefore we have separated."



J. B. ERHARDT.

He Was Further Irritated.

Mr. Erhardt, it is said, told the president two months ago, when the investigation was contemplated, that he would resign if the policy then proposed was carried out. When Secretary Foster appointed Messrs. Wilbur and Chandler to make the investigation he was further irritated. Then they, after investigating, suggested a reduction in the force to decrease expenses $150,000 a year, the collector stated that one-fourth that amount was all that the duties of the department would permit. As soon as he is relieved from the collectorship, Mr. Erhardt will join his family in the New Hampshire hills.

Ex-Senator Fassett the New Collector.

CAPE MAY, July 30.—The president has accepted the resignation of Collector of the Port of New York Joel B. Erhardt to take effect at once, and has appointed as his successor ex-Senator J. Sloat Fassett, of Elmira, N. Y.

Collector Fassett's Career.

Mr. Fassett was Collector Erhardt's chief opponent when the latter secured the position. He was born in Elmira on Nov. 13, 1853, and after his graduation from the Elmira academy, nineteen years later, began to study law, and was admitted to practice upon the motion of David B. Hill, who was then a struggling country lawyer. Four years after his admission to the bar he was appointed district attorney of Chemung county by Lucius Robinson, a Democratic governor.

Fassett Elected Senator.

He was elected to the senate for the term of 1884-85 from the Twenty-eighth district, comprising the counties of Chemung, Steuben and Allegheny. He has won three decisive victories in this district since, and during his last term was honored by being elected president of the senate pro tem. Mr. Fassett is a staunch Republican.

What Fassett Said Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Senator Fassett said yesterday that he did not want the collectorship and that he would not take it if the office were offered to him. He said also that he had no information which would warrant him in guessing who the nominee would be.

The remains were taken to the magnificent tomb in the Methuen cemetery for interment.

Hal Pointer's Record Breaking.

CLEVELAND, July 30.—There were two big sensations at the grand circuit meeting here. The first was the phenomenal record breaking, when Hal Pointer paced the two straight heats in 2:08¾, 2:10¾ and 2:10¾, and the second the expulsion of Temple Bar, Hal Pointer, George Spear, and his owner, Dr. E. S. Sale, of Morgan field, Ky., for suspicious work, at the conclusion of the 2:13 trot.

A DUEL TO THE DEATH.

Two Negroes Fight with Razors at Glen Head, L. I.

NEW YORK, July 30.—David Boucon and Thomas Channel, negroes employed at Glen Head, L. I., fought a duel with razors in their sleeping room in an old farmhouse about midnight. Channel was killed and Boucon was desperately wounded and just alive when found in the morning. The two men occupied a room about eight feet square. They went to bed as the usual time. Just exactly what happened nobody knows. Boucon's version of the affair is that they quarrelled before going to bed. Subsequently he was awakened to find Channel standing on him, and though it was dark in the room, he could see that Channel was brandishing a razor. He grappled with Channel and the two fell on the floor, Boucon on top.

Both men fought like demons, each receiving terrible wounds. Boucon remembers nothing after that except that he regained his consciousness and found Channel into bed, where he was found. Boucon has over thirty gashes on his head and neck, one of them within an eighth of an inch of his jugular vein. He also received a gash a foot long across the abdomen, nearly disembowelling him. But Boucon's wounds are nothing compared with Channel's. The dead man is mangled almost beyond recognition from the top of his head to his waist. Everything in the room was covered with blood, and the floor also was covered with blood. Boucon managed to get from the floor to the room below. Boucon's wounds were dressed and it is thought that there is a chance of his recovery. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict that Channel was killed in self defense. Two razors, a big knife and a club were found in the room.

A CAPTAIN'S BRUTALITY.

Two Sailors Tried Up for Trifling Offenses at Sea.

NEW YORK, July 30.—For a trifling offense Master James A. Thompson, of the ship J. C. Pennington, had Sailor Eric A. Ekland put in irons and triced up to the mast. He was held in $2,500 bail for assault by United States Commissioner Shields yesterday.

Ekland is about fifty-eight years of age, and was ship's carpenter. He told the following story: "We were about a month out, from Cape Horn, when some trifle or other the captain never seemed to treat me well.

"One day the captain came to me when I was inside my carpenter shop and yelled out gruffly, 'Come here!' He pushed me into a corner of the shop, and beat me on the head and face so badly that I could not comb my hair for ten days afterward. He and the second mate then dragged me out on deck and tied my wrists together with several sort of hawsers which hurt me fearfully. They put irons on my legs and they strung me up to the mizzenboom. My head began to swim around, like a boat in a storm, and I thought I and my nerves jumped. I begged to be let down on deck that my heels might rest upon a firm foundation, but I was only laughed and cursed at. Finally somebody cut me down.

"It was Billy Jackson, the man at the head, for doing that he was afterward put by the captain. I don't know how long he remained strung up. The bo'sun of the watch told me I was triced up an hour and twenty minutes, but I don't know why I was punished. He said I was lazy."

"Triceing up," according to stories of the sailors, was a common punishment with Captain Thompson.

O'BRIEN AND DILLON FREE.

Their Long Imprisonment Is Over at Last.

LONDON, July 30.—The report that John Dillon and William O'Brien, whose term of imprisonment expires today were freed yesterday, has been confirmed. Neither of them, however, will take an active part in the leadership controversy for the present. Mr. Parnell has already prepared for their inspection a statement of the disbursement of funds, which will be charged by his opponents, had been misapplied.

The sum of £8,000 was released before Dillon and O'Brien were imprisoned, and it was only after much hesitation that it was finally determined that a considerable portion of this money be allowed to the evicted tenants, but he holds it should be reserved for the home rule movement. He was intended before the split in the party. This raises the question whether the majority of the Irish party has a right to any portion of the funds for the purpose opposed by Mr. Parnell's leadership. Mr. Parnell at all events will not give up the money for use against himself.

The Dobbsos' Strike Settled.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—The trouble at John G. Dobson's Dobsons' plush mills has been amicably settled. The thirty-three weavers whom Mr. Dobson refused to allow to return to work met Mr. Dobson and after talking over the situation all but seven returned to work. These seven will not be taken back until they apologize to another firm, whom they are said to have insulted.

BUFFALO, July 30.—The Wagner Palace Car shops have completed work on two of the six palace sleeping cars to be run in the New York and Chicago limited service over the Lake Shore and Central. These cars are over seventy feet long and promise to become the standard palaces of railroad traffic. They are magnificent specimens of workmanship and luxuriously equipped.

A CAPTIVE IN THE CAVE.

An Old Man Dying in Several Outlaws' Den.

BATTLE WITH THE DESPERADOES.

Old Scot Moore, of Jeannette, Pa., Rescued from the Clutches of a Gang of Toughs—Many Other Mysterious Disappearances Now Be Accounted For.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 30.—Joel Moore, a wealthy citizen of Jeannette, who mysteriously disappeared several days ago, was discovered in the morning lying half famished and nearly perished in a damp cave in a lonely ravine some distance south of that place. He is suffering severely from starvation and exposure. The whereabouts of the old gentleman was disclosed by the arrest of Joseph and Madison Johnston, the two notorious speak-easy proprietors, who were captured through a most extraordinary efforts of five officers after a shooting conflict from behind trees.

The Terrors of the Community.

The Johnston brothers had been terrorizing the community for over a year, and their headquarters south of Jeannette had been a leading place for toughs of a most desperate character. On the evening of the disappearance of Mr. Moore he was seen in the company of one of the Johnstons. He was known to have a large sum of money with him, and when he failed to return home that night his friends became greatly alarmed and at once instituted a search.

A Prisoner in the Cave.

All sorts of rumors began to be circulated. The officers finally made a descent upon the Johnston place, and the two brothers were captured, together with several of their associates.

One of the men taken became frightened at the threats of the officers and revealed the place where the old man was hidden. The cave was visited, and he was found suffering great agony. His money was gone and he had been roughly treated. If he had not been discovered death would soon have occurred.

Several Mysterious Disappearances.

Very few people in the vicinity of Jeannette knew of the existence of the cave. The entrance is cleverly hidden, and the path to it faint and obscured. These revelations have caused an astonishing sensation. During the last six months there have been several mysterious disappearances from Jeannette and vicinity.

A searching party, accompanied with officers, are to make a thorough search of the cave to-day and-ravine, in the hope of making additional discoveries.

A Fight with the Desperadoes.

In the effort to arrest the Johnson brothers Constable Weishen's officers, Pitts and Fritz, of Jeannette, and County Detective Alcorn, had lively work. Madison was arrested without trouble, but Joe resisted and fled. Shots were exchanged between the revolver he compelled Weishen and Alcorn to get behind trees. About a dozen shots were exchanged before Joe's ammunition was gone and Madison were then brought here and placed in jail, Joe being held in $1,500 and Madison in $500 bail.

MANY NIHILISTS ARRESTED.

Their Plot to Kill the Czar and Procure a Constitutional Monarchy.

LONDON, July 30.—A Geneva paper says that the St. Petersburg police have arrested twenty-eight officers and twenty-six nihilists connected with a conspiracy to kill the czar and force the young czarowitch to establish a constitutional monarchy.

Many arrests were made only after a desperate resistance of two hours, in which they used revolvers freely. The military assisted the police. Seven nihilists were killed in the struggle and seven escaped.

Captain Armes Pardoned.

CAPE MAY, July 30.—The president has pardoned Captain George J. Armes, U. S. A., under sentence of court martial for conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman. The offense was committed during the inauguration of President Harrison. Captain Armes had some difficulty with the Pennsylvania troops. He afterward met Governor Beaver in a hotel and publicly insulted him. Court martial sentenced him to be dismissed from the service. The president commuted the sentence so far as to require Armes to confine himself within an area of fifty miles of Washington, D. C.

Hinman Still Missing.

NEW HAVEN, July 30.—Nothing has yet been heard from John S. Hinman, who disappeared from this city last Sunday. Very few believe, however, that he has committed suicide. Hinman's accounts are in perfect order and his family is well provided for. On last Saturday Hinman drew a large sum of money from Sargent & Co., with which firm he is connected, and took it with him when he disappeared.

Captain Walpole Wins on Appeal.

LONDON, July 30.—The breach of promise case of James Valerie Windeman against Hon. Robert Herson Walpole, in which the plaintiff asked for $100,000 damages, resulted in a verdict of $1,500 damages for the plaintiff. Captain Walpole took the case to the court of appeals, and that court reversed the verdict of the lower court.

Rowell's Challenge to Hughes.

LONDON, July 30.—Charley Rowell has posted $250 and accepted the challenge of John Hughes to run any distance from twenty-four hours to six days for $1,000 a side and the championship of the world. Should Hughes fail to back up his challenge Rowell will run any man in the world upon the same conditions.

Rev. Dr. Kidder's Death.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 30.—Rev. Dr. Daniel P. Kidder, formerly of this place, died at his home in Evanston, Ills., July 30, aged seventy-six years. The doctor was a member of the New Jersey Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. He was also for many years a missionary to Brazil.

A Warning to the Strikers.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 30.—General Manager Milliken has notified the 800 striking hands of the Pottsville Iron and Steel company's mill that unless they return to work within two weeks the mill will be closed to them forever and non-union men will fill their places under police protection.

Brush, the Indianapolis ball magnate, has secured a lease on the Young Men's Christian association ball park and has had the grand stand removed from the old Athletic park to that location, acquisitions. HOME AND HOME

AIR AND SUN BATHS.

Wonderful Effects of Nature's Aids on the Tired and Nervous Housewife.

Every woman has known evil hours in which she grew unaccountably nervous and out of sorts, in which she was too restless to remain idle, yet too dull and heavy to absorb herself usefully in any occupation. Now this condition is deadly in its effects upon the appearance.

It makes the handsomest woman for the moment less handsome, the prettiest girl—will be recollected by many readers. During the several years of Miss Farley's editorship she was the most copious writer for The Offering, and her article, always smilingly down the aisle so swiftly, so lightly and gracefully that, though she wasn't exactly a pretty woman, and had had both babies since she had bought a new bonnet, and she seems in her dress bodice weren't the right shape at all, any painter or post or man with an ounce of blood in his veins would have envied the fellow in the beautiful, who seemed a little bit ashamed.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Aids to Household Cleanliness.

A tablespoonful of household, or prepared liquid, ammonia to a pailful of water in which flannels are washed will keep them as soft as when new. It is also an excellent bleach for and whitener of white cotton goods. Borax is a valuable agent in keeping the color of muslin, lawns and prints from fading. A teaspoonful of borax to a pailful of water, put in the last water in which white clothes are rinsed will whiten them surprisingly. This is especially good to remove the yellowness that time adds to white garments that have been laid aside for two or three years.

It may not be generally known, but finely powdered borax is one of the best articles for a severe cold in the head. If a little is snuffed up the nose, the congested membrane will give way before this simple treatment and the nostrils be cleared out in a short time.

As housecleaning time, probably more than at any other, the worth of ammonia and borax is thoroughly appreciated as wonderful lighteners of labor. Painted walls and other surfaces can be quickly cleaned by washing with weak ammonia water. Floors scrubbed with it come out white and sweet smelling. It is good for window washing, scrubbing sinks, general dish washing, in fact for anything where the alkali of soap is needed to cut dirt or grease.

Many housekeepers use ammonia water to clean carpets. If ingrains, it is put in the water in which they are washed, but if brussels, moquettes or still costlier grades, after the carpets have been taken up and thoroughly beaten, the floors scrubbed and the carpets again laid and tacked down, the surfaces are thoroughly gone over with clean, white cloths rung out of warm weak ammonia water to remove any remaining dust and to freshen up the colors. Ammonia in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a teacup of warm water is a cleanser of silverware, silver and gold jewelry.—Golden Rod in Springfield Home stead.

It Was Only a Slip.

It was at an afternoon tea. At a piano sat a woman who was notoriously good at Chopin, but revealed also in Grieg and Tschaikowsky and Cesar of the weirdly fascinating northern composers. Every body listened, a thing which seldom happens.

In an alcove stood two women. One belonged to an old New York family. She was quietly adored by the nouveau riche But she was a woman of such unassuming character that assertion was impossible to her. Bred in the aristocratic set, and habituated to her environments, she took things for granted that other women took dizzy flights of ecstasy at. The woman by side her was by some cheerful affinity her close friend, but she had a humbler station in the world. She was a teacher, the head of a department in a grammar school. A woman of grace and refinement distinguished in carriage, she was as much at home as any woman in the room.

The woman at the piano finished playing something by Heller amid the fluffy patter of gloved hands.

"Charming!" exclaimed the teacher.

"How delightful she is!" added the other woman in the alcove.

"Does she teach?" asked the first speaker "Oh, no," came the reply, "she's a lady."

The teacher's face scarcely changed, but her friend, from whom the remark slipped in the most involuntary way, had scarcely pronounced the last word when she flushe to her temples. She clutched her companion's arm in the most painful embarrassment. "Forgive me," she stammered, "I do not misunderstand you," smiled the teacher, with a gentleness that crowned her with the highest title.

But it had been said!—New York Recorder.

A Happy Idea.

Some one the other day thought of this about a calendar. A daughter was to go away, to be gone a long time, on the other side of the earth. So the mother, thinking of her long, her good cheer, bought a calendar.

Now the ordinary calendar differs little from its fellow, except happily now and then in the way of gilt or plush, or the blithe some child, or maybe decorative fruit and flower. More than that, no ordinary calendar seems an individual's very own. An hour could it, with its counterpart on any body's desk and its mates all manufactured by the dozen?

But the calendar this mother made could be duplicated by no one, for this is what she did. Below the date on each leaf there was a blank space. She therefore took the calendar apart, sending its 365 leaves to as many different friends and relatives, asking each to write some sort of salutation on this blank space below the date. When these were returned they were bound together again, and the calendar was given to the daughter, who knew knothing of what had been done. She was made to promise, however, to tear off a leaf until the day had dawned when the leaf was due.

What a source of delight such a calendar would be to an exile from home can easily be imagined. Every day a different greeting from a different friend. Every day a new surprise, and never to know till the morrow what friend was to send a word of good cheer.—Harper's Bazar.

Common Sense Dresses.

"We bear a great deal about common sense shoes and rational dressing," said a matron as she crowded the last parcel into her traveling bag and shut the clasp breathing, as she did so, a little sigh of satisfaction, "but a good deal of what is called rational is but another name for what is old fashioned. To reduce the subject to its simplest terms, such dressing has anything but the elements of comfort to which its sponsors claim for it. I know for I have tried it. In fact, I think I have tried everything that promised ease and restfulness, and nothing pleases me as well as a dress of my own arranging.

"I use nun's serge, and make the skirt just to clear the ground. The waist is a Norfolk blouse and is belted in. The sleeves are loose enough to be comfortable, and the collar turned back from a rather high linen collar which is worn with it. If I do not care for a collar I wear a small kerchief inside the waist. Underneath I wear a silk vest, a buttoned waist of cotton, a short skirt of flannel and full trousers of heavy linen, made somewhat in Turkish fashion, but fastening just below the knees.

"With long wristed gloves of heavy leather and a moderately wide brimmed hat, with long veil for stinking, what can I wrapped around the throat, I am equipped for storm or shine, and can climb, walk, row or kneel in comfort and the certainty that my clothes will not suffer. Besides, I show less wear and tear of my journey or make me in any way conspicuous."—New York Ledger.

How Men Talk to Women.

I was watching, not long since, a man talking to a bright woman on the train, and his manner of comporting himself set me to thinking of the peculiar ways men have of addressing themselves to women. Some talk to the average woman as though she was a dish of ice cream. "How sweet." "How refreshing." "How altogether nice!"

Many behave in her company as though she was a loaded gun, and liable to do mischief, while a very few act as though she was above the wiles of flattery, and not to be bought by the promise of a new bonnet. Hasten the day, good Lord, when she shall be regarded as something wiser and nobler than an automaton, something more than a confection, more comforting and peace producing than a firearm, a veritable comrade for man at his best, not so much prized for the vain and evanescent charm of her beauty as for the steadfastness and the incorruptible purity of her soul.—Chicago Herald.

Mrs. Ayer's Jewels.

Mrs. Ayer, who is now the owner and occupant of the former home of the Duke of Mouchy in Paris, has in her possession two necklaces of fabulous value. One is made of six strings of perfect pearls, evenly matched, each one of about the size of a flat pea. The other is composed of two strings of pearls, each about as large as a good sized English gooseberry. Mrs. Ayer owns beside a pair of solitaire pearl earrings, for which she paid $40,000.

Mrs. Ayer was a Quaker girl of simple manners, living in Lowell, Mass., when she became the wife of the late Dr. Ayer. He had a wonderful fondness for collecting jewels, and never lost an opportunity to secure gems that struck his fancy and were to be bought. He left to his widow some of the finest specimens of jewels of their kind in the world.—New York Sun.

A Typical Suffragist.

The secretary of a state Woman Suffrage association says in a private letter: "I have been 'driven' the last few weeks with the most heterogeneous mass of things—suffrage work, alumnæ work, library work (I am librarian of a religious society), house cleaning, preserving. I have also had a fine crop of seventy quarts of berries. We grow them ourselves, hence the quantity. We have three small children, each with a sweet tooth; hence also the jam-pots." We commend this instance to those benighted individuals who still think that the divorcées or equivocal rage are not useful members of society in philan- ...ths, literature, that they never know h... to cook.—Woman's Journal.

Well Connected Women in the Treasury.

The daughters of Chief Justice Fuller were employed in the treasury until friends of their father raised a fund for their support. Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, married his wife from the treasury. A sister of General Robert Gould was a long time in the treasury. The poetess, "Florence Percy," held a place in the quartermaster general's office until she was married. Some of the most prominent women writers of Washington were once treasury clerks. The daughter of Pittigrew King, long a clerk in the postoffice department. The list could be made a very long one.—Washington Letter.

Mme. de Stael's Hair.

Mme. de Stael, the religious skeptic, scholar, wit and queen of the salons frequented by such men as Tallyrand, Schiller, Metternich, Voltaire, Rousseau, De Lafayette, Napoleon and Louis XVI, openly confessed that, although she might not wash her face once in a week, her front hair had to be brushed every day, and she wore a head dress of beaded crape with a frill of little spiral curls running across her forehead from ear to ear that kept in curl, but caught fluff, feathers and any dust that was flying.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Every mother should accept the fred fact that a sound and healthy child cries but rarely, unless it meets with an accident, is hungry, suffering or pleading for the gratification of some other desire; also that babies that are frequently peevish, fretful or crying must have some trouble about them which ought to be carefully and quickly looked to.

Macaroni should be used much more than it is. It is a very good substitute for potatoes when that vegetable is scarce and high. Many physicians object seriously to the use of old potatoes after they have begun to sprout, and on their own tables use macaroni instead. The simple ways of preparing this dish everybody knows.

Mrs. Martinot, the inventor, has taken out thirty-five patents, and five of these have been patented in seven countries. Among them are a steam washing machine, a gas stove, an ice cream freezer and a clothes dryer. The inventor makes all her own models and is very dexterous with tools.

Cleopatra wore her cow's tail red hair banged round her face and ears. Mother Eve is pictured with loose tresses playing about her brows and temples. Salome, the Carmencita of biblical days, wore a bang; so did Magdalen, the beautiful Queen Bess had the beaux and beauties that Van Dyke painted.

If the teapot becomes discolored inside put into it a teaspoonful of soda and fill two-thirds full of water; let this boil until the stain will wash off. Any vessel treated in this manner every two weeks will never get discolored, but keep as clean as when new.

Miss Jessie Fothergill, the novelist, wrote her first and most famous novel, "The First Violin," in 1874. Since that time she has written six or eight other romances that have given her a high rank among the feminine novelists of Great Britain.

Literary Factory Girls.

An aged clergyman, who can hardly be other than the venerable Dr. A.P. Peabody, sends to The Atlantic Monthly some reminiscences of one of the editors of the Lowell Offering—Miss Harriet Farley. The editorial connection of Miss Lucy Larcom with the same magazine—a magazine edited and largely written by girls—will be recollected by many readers. During the several years of Miss Farley's editorship she was the most copious writer for The Offering, and her article, always smilingly down the aisle so swiftly, so lightly and gracefully that, though she wasn't exactly a pretty woman, and had had both babies since she had bought a new bonnet, and she seems in her dress bodice weren't the right shape at all, any painter or post or man with an ounce of blood in his veins would have envied the fellow in the beautiful, who seemed a little bit ashamed.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Well Connected Women in the Treasury.

The daughters of Chief Justice Fuller were employed in the treasury until friends of their father raised a fund for their support. Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, married his wife from the treasury. A sister of General Robert Gould was a long time in the treasury. The poetess, "Florence Percy," held a place in the quartermaster general's office until she was married. Some of the most prominent women writers of Washington were once treasury clerks. The daughter of Pittigrew King, long a clerk in the postoffice department. The list could be made a very long one.—Washington Letter.

Mme. de Stael's Hair.

Mme. de Stael, the religious skeptic, scholar, wit and queen of the salons frequented by such men as Tallyrand, Schiller, Metternich, Voltaire, Rousseau, De Lafayette, Napoleon and Louis XVI, openly confessed that, although she might not wash her face once in a week, her front hair had to be brushed every day, and she wore a head dress of beaded crape with a frill of little spiral curls running across her forehead from ear to ear that kept in curl, but caught fluff, feathers and any dust that was flying.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Every mother should accept the fred fact that a sound and healthy child cries but rarely, unless it meets with an accident, is hungry, suffering or pleading for the gratification of some other desire; also that babies that are frequently peevish, fretful or crying must have some trouble about them which ought to be carefully and quickly looked to.

Macaroni should be used much more than it is. It is a very good substitute for potatoes when that vegetable is scarce and high. Many physicians object seriously to the use of old potatoes after they have begun to sprout, and on their own tables use macaroni instead. The simple ways of preparing this dish everybody knows.

Mrs. Martinot, the inventor, has taken out thirty-five patents, and five of these have been patented in seven countries. Among them are a steam washing machine, a gas stove, an ice cream freezer and a clothes dryer. The inventor makes all her own models and is very dexterous with tools.

Cleopatra wore her cow's tail red hair banged round her face and ears. Mother Eve is pictured with loose tresses playing about her brows and temples. Salome, the Carmencita of biblical days, wore a bang; so did Magdalen, the beautiful Queen Bess had the beaux and beauties that Van Dyke painted.

If the teapot becomes discolored inside put into it a teaspoonful of soda and fill two-thirds full of water; let this boil until the stain will wash off. Any vessel treated in this manner every two weeks will never get discolored, but keep as clean as when new.

Miss Jessie Fothergill, the novelist, wrote her first and most famous novel, "The First Violin," in 1874. Since that time she has written six or eight other romances that have given her a high rank among the feminine novelists of Great Britain.

SUMMER STYLES.

Skirts, Bodices and Sleeves—Newest Fancies in Fashionable Millinery.

The summer fashions are now quite decided. The skirts of dresses are very flat and close on the hips, a little fullness at the back, which gradually widens out, so as to make the skirt about 3½ yards wide around the foot. The bodices are much trimmed with gathers, plaitings or folds. Sleeves are full at the top, but not very high on the shoulders. Below the elbow is a deep cuff of guipure lace. Short mantles are still worn on chilly evenings and for driving.

THE TRIANON BONNET.

Large hats are mostly reserved for garden party and country wear, and a smaller kind is now in vogue not much larger than a sailor hat, but the brim is fluted and bent about the face. Flowers and ribbons are used to ornament this and also the wreaths to about an inch. Ruchings, torsades and upright loops of white satin ribbon adorn the top and outline the cockscomb lace trilling.

An Economical Grate.

A novel home stove is being used in England. The grate is swung on trunnions and can be reversed. After fresh coal has been added at the top the reversal is made, and the fire burns from the bottom to the bottom. The consequence is that the gases from the coal, passing upward through the red portion of the fire, are thoroughly consumed, and there is entirely consumed before reaching the chimney.—Washington Post.

—The number of drowning accidents this Summer is without a parallel, and many of them are either the result of foolhardiness or carelessness. The water is no respector of persons, and should not be trifled with. Let all who bathe, especially at the sea shore, keep in mind the Irishman who said he could swim best where he could get a foothold, and never go beyond their depth.

—Capt. Grant has not yet taken any action in the Miller case, for keeping an open bar room on Sunday, and the story current in the street that the Captain was restrained by threats from Councilman Smith the latter denies, in a card full of lying abuse of the pebitsher of THE NEWS, because this paper published the story. We do not consider any statement made by Smith worth a moment's notice. The fact still remains that the law is not enforced. Smith has but a few months more to hold the position which he acquired by his treachery, and disgraced as it never was disgraced before, and then he will sink to his level, which his card—even without his record in council—shows to be very low indeed, too low for the notice of any self-respecting citizen except to proceed against him legally, as well as the publishers.

An Old Man's Mishap.

Last Monday evening Mr. Henry Myers, and old and respected resident of Washington Valley, met with a bad accident by falling down stairs at 4 a. m., breaking one of his limbs. Owing to his age it will be some time before he will be able to be about. Dr. Ziglow of Mt. Bethel is in attendance.

PROLOGUE.

Calmest Summer evening,
Drifting in a boat,
Pretty fancies weaving,
As we gently float,
Sounds of music stealing
Sweetly soft, and low,
Paradise revealing,
As we idly row!

Lightly go the fingers
O'er the tuneful lyre,
Now the music lingers,
Can the music tire!
No! again it frees,
Here is welcome free,
Tune in all its guises,
Easier in and free!

July 30, 1891. Ernest Hancock.

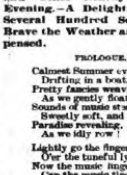
SUCH WEATHER as that of last evening, cold, gusty and damp, though it was did not deter a greater part of the guests, invited by that genial host, Mr. Frank E. Miller, to attend the concert and hop at Hote Netherwood, last evening. It was a pleasant combination: "music —dancing," and proved a good drawing card.



A large party of Plainfield's young people went up in stages. Elizabeth and other cities were also well represented.

The concert was exceptionally fine. The young leader, Mr. Greenop, and the gentlemen of the orchestra, received at the concert's conclusion, a hearty round of applause. Each number of the programme, which consisted of seven carefully selected pieces, was encored.

Then came the rythmic, tingling, joyous music of the waltz, and in an instant the parlor was filled with the gracefully gliding figures of the dancers.

The "order of dancing" was long—fourteen in number—but the music was so good that fatigue was not thought of.

The veranda proved too cold and draughty for promenading, but the spacious halls were not, and along these the couples walked, or in the lounging chairs "sat out" the brief lapses of time

YESTERDAY'S RAIN STORM.

The Damage Resulting Therefrom.—The Streets Flooded.

The heavy rain storm yesterday did considerable damage in this vicinity. For several days past men have been engaged tearing down the tower on the White and Stelle building at the corner of Park avenue and Front street. The roof had not yet been replaced when the storm struck the town and consequently the tenants of the building were treated to a drenching. The law library in the office of Mr. Nelson W. Runyon was more or less damaged and his office was flooded.

The storm caused the tank on the residence of Mr. L. Titsworth to overflow, thereby bursting one of the pipes, doing considerable damage.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company was also a sufferer from the heavy downfall of rain. A number of trenches which had been excavated for the purpose of laying the Company's mains, were filled with water and in several instances the banks caved in. At about four o'clock this morning one of the fire alarm wires on Crescent avenue was broken by the limb of a tree coming in contact with it, causing the whistle on the electric light station to sound an alarm. The department did not turn out, however, and the damage was repaired at daybreak.

The storm was one of the heaviest that has visited this vicinity for a number of years. The streets were flooded with water and presented the appearance of miniature rivers.

Bound Over to Support His Wife.

Edward Leland was arrested yesterday afternoon in Orange, where he is employed in a hat shop, and was brought to this city and lodged, where he resides, by Constable Coddington, and taken before Justice Crossley, to answer to the charge of non-support of his wife, who made the complaint. Leland's mother gave bonds that he would furnish his wife $5 per week for her support, whereupon he was released. Leland earns from $20 to $30 per week, but Plainfield saloons have managed to get it away from him and keep him drunk half the time, and unfit to work. His wife is a dressmaker, and they have one child. The wife has not only been compelled to support her child and herself, but also her husband. Last Saturday Leland was flourishing a roll of bill—his week's earnings—in one of our saloons while on a spree, and did not go home. He has been absent ever since. His wife heard of his doings, and lost heart in her efforts to reform him. She owns the house they dwelt in, the result of her own earnings, but she concluded to give up the unequal struggle, break-up house-keeping and go home to her mother, and invoke the aid of the law to compel her heartless husband to support her, which she did with the result as above. Meanwhile the saloon flourish as never before under the "combine" protection, and even the police are afraid to do their duty when the law is violated, as witness the Miller case, even when the captain of the police is an eye-witness and has a corroborative witness also.

Celebrated Her 71st Birthday.

About fifty of the relatives and intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Cregier, assembled at their home on Park avenue, Wednesday evening, the occasion being the 71st anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Cregier's mother, Mrs. Dehl. The gathering was a complete surprise to Mrs. Dehl, and the arrangements were carried out to perfection. During the evening a bountiful collation was served, and the South Plainfield band was present and enlivened the occasion by discoursing popular airs.

To Go to Norwich.

On Monday evening next the Crescent base ball team of this city will leave for Norwich and Bridgeport, Conn., where they will play a series of games with teams at that place. The team will be under the management of Mr. Thomas H. Keller. He informed a NEWS reporter that he would take the regular Crescent team, and that Keeler, the new acquisition, would play short stop.

NEGLIGENCE ALLEGED.

A Suit for $15,000 Damages Against the Central Railroad.

Yesterday a suit was begun in the supreme court by Daniel B. Ferguson administrator of Robert S. Ferguson, deceased, against the Central Railroad Company to recover $15,000 damages as compensation for the death of Robert S. Ferguson, who was killed on the railroad on June 30, 1890. The statement of claim sets out that Ferguson was in the employ of the defendant company as one of the crew of a passenger train, but was ordered to temporarily occupy the position of a brakeman on a freight train; that while engaged in performing his duties upon the freight train he was struck by an overhead bridge near Eatontown, and received injuries from which he died on the following day.

It is alleged that the accident was due to negligence of the defendant company, as Ferguson was unable to see the bridge on account of a curve in the railroad, and also a high bank on either side, while the railroad company did not warn him of his danger, as they should have done, by erecting a "telltale" near the the bridge, this "telltale" being a gallows shaped invention provided with short knotted ropes hanging from a crosbar these ropes warning the men on freight trains of their approach to an overhead bridge by striking against their body should any of the crew be standing on the top of the car.

Well, Well, Well!

Well, well, well! Who would have thought it? and after all the talk that Plainfield had made about their team? After all the bluster and bombast in which they have indulged, to be beaten, and beaten by the score of 10 to 2, on their own grounds. Oh! how have the mighty fallen! The "dull sickening thud" of the dismal novelist, is not expressive enough for this case, unless it were added that the thud was so dull, so very sickening, that a coroner's jury would have been in order, for the West Ends killed their opponents outright.

The good people of Plainfield treated the Somerville players to the same kind courtesy which they have shown them for the past five years, a liberal round of hisses from beginning to end. It does seem strange that John Harkins should get this treatment from any Plainfielder who pretends to be an admirer of base ball. One would naturally think that after Harkins had pitched in twelve of the fourteen games won from Plainfield, even the most rabid Crescent rooters would treat him with some show of respect. But they don't and that's the Plainfield of it. Its strange that a nice set of fellows such as the Crescent Club are off the field, should undergo the Jeckyll-Hyde process and emerge in the diamond a crowd of hoodlums, bereft of their senses, acting like idiots, yelling like Comanches and hissing like snakes—And lo!

Abou Ben Adame—so Charley Reed—led all the rest."—Somerset Unionist-Gazette.

Confederate Buttons Will Be Plenty.

The buttons adopted by the Confederate navy have been very highly prized in the south since the war as relics, and have, where they could be obtained, been used as vest and cuff buttons. Owing to their scarcity they have been in very active demand, but they now seem destined to become a drug on the market, as a resident of Norfolk, Va., has received a letter from the firm in London which made them during the war, stating that they still have the dies and can furnish the buttons in any number.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Three Miners Stealing Rides.

Yesterday afternoon Officer Eckert of Elizabeth received a telegram from this city to look out for some men who were stealing a ride on an east-bound coal train on the Central Railroad. When the train reached Elizabeth the officer arrested three men. They were Hungarians, and gave the names of August Philips, Geno Machier and John Leach. They were miners and came from Plymouth, Pa., and were trying to work their way to New York. They were told the law and discharged.

To Gettysburg and Return for $6.

The officers of the 150th, Regiment N. Y. L., have issued the following circular, which will interest many veterans in this city.

TO GETTYSBURG AND RETURN, $6.00

Comrades and Friends of the 150th Regiment:

One more rally! It has been proposed to have a re-union of the regiment and its friends at Gettysburg this year. The Poughkeepsie Bridge Railroad has made us an offer to take an excursion without change of cars of 200 at $6.65, and of 201 and over at $5.50 apiece for the round trip from Poughkeepsie.

The route is through the most delightful region of Pennsylvania, direct to Gettysburg by daylight. We propose to leave Poughkeepsie on Tuesday morning, August 18th, reaching Gettysburg that evening and return Friday morning, the 21st inst., reaching home that evening in time for Eastern train. Board can be obtained at the hotels at $2.00, and at boarding houses from $1.00 to $1.50 per day.

Fare from New York to Poughkeepsie by Transportation Company's steamers $1.00 for round trip including state room.

Mr. Zeigler at Gettysburg has agreed to furnish conveyances to carry the entire party over the whole battlefield with Mr. Minnich to explain, for $1.00 each.

Fare by Bridge Road from Boston Corner to Poughkeepsie and return $1.00. A corresponding reduction from points intermediate.

All will be welcome who desire to spend two days and three nights on the battlefield. A full moon will shine at that time.

It is expected that every one who intends to go will report as soon as possible to George H. Williams, secretary, as the price will depend somewhat on the number going, and hotels and boarding houses can be secured to better advantage. Each person to whom we can secure a lunch at the buffet car on the train. Pullman cars for accommodation of ladies can be secured at a charge of $1 extra each way.

The general passenger agent, Mr. Haacs, will send Mr. Neide, his deputy, with us to attend to our comfort, and Mr. Philadelphia and Reading road will send Mr. Hays Dickinson, Passenger Agent, for the same purpose.

There will be an excellent chance for our citizens, and comrades of other organizations, ladies and gentlemen, to see our own Dutchess County Monument completed and examine the most important battlefield of the centuries.

The rates have been secured at the lowest possible figure, and the newspapers of this county and vicinity are requested to give publicity to reach if possible all who would wish to go.

The route over the Bridge Road, the Lehigh and Hudson and Central Railroad of New Jersey to Allentown and Philadelphia & Reading to Gettysburg, though the Lebanon Valley, presents the most beautiful natural scenery and a birds-eye-view of the splendid industries of the Key Stone State.

The train will leave Poughkeepsie at 11 a. m., Tuesday, August 18th, reaching Easton about 4 p. m. A special train will bring it from Boston Corners without stop, the parties from the eastern towns, leaving there on the arrival of the Harlem train bound north at a little before 10 a. m., and reaching Poughkeepsie at 11 a. m., without stopping at intermediate stations.

Inquiry having been made as to parties of our old friends from Jersey, we answer, and their friends—all will be welcomed most heartily; and the following arrangements have been made:

Parties in New Jersey who wish to join us in the excursion should join us at Easton, Pa., reaching that point on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. And if the parties desiring to go will write to Mr. C. A. Haacs, General Passenger Agent of the Central New England and Western Railroad, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., giving name and address and the railroad station from which they propose to start on or before August 1st, Mr. Baldwin, the General Passenger Agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, will arrange and issue excursion tickets at about the some pro rata discount as the general excursion and communicate the necessary information to the parties desiring to go with us.

R. and L. Associations.

The N. Jersey Bureau of Statistics will soon issue that part of its annual report that gives the details of the operations of building and loan associations in New Jersey. It is the most complete document of the kind ever issued, and the information has been collected by Statistician Fisher at considerable cost. According to the report building and loan associations have grown rapidly during the past five years, and for the first time the majority in the building and loan association. There are now 264 associations in New Jersey. The increase has been rapid in the suburban counties, Bergen, Essex, Hudson and Passaic. The growth in these counties has been in five years. The oldest organization now in the State is the Mercer Mutual Loan Association, of Trenton, which was started in 1854. In 1890, 217, or 85 per cent. of the associations were "serial," being "perpetual" and "terminating." In 1880 there were 12 per cent. "terminating." In 1880 the last named class comprised thirteen, and in 1890 nearly 18 per cent. of the total associations. In only eight counties in the State is a feeling, two or two-thirds of the total belg in Middlesex and Jersey City. There are 227 associations the maturing or per value of whose shares is $200; in 9, in which the monthly dues are 50 cents, it is $100; in 4 $300; in 2, $500.

—The publisher of The News, during the Carey episode, had several interviews with Combine Smith—before his real character was more than suspected —to try and persuade him against doing such a great wrong as was done that most exemplary officer, and when Smith took the course he did, as we were informed by the publisher also sought him to know his reason, and asked him if he had pledged himself to the others of the combine to do such a wrong to us to secure the presidency of council, as we were sure he had. He pretended not, but we did not believe him. We thought at the time he was first made Councilman he was a man of character. Had we known what he really was in time, we do not think he would ever have been a Councilman in this city, in the first place. We were all deceived. And we hope Pla.' field will never again have as an official one whom we suppose, by his record, may be justly styled a cheat.

Insomnia.

A writer in the New York Press mentions some experiences through which he passed in endeavoring to sleep that will find an echo in the soul of many a literally wide awake American. Hundreds of remedies were suggested to the sufferer by sympathetic friends. He tried a thousand, more or less, but not one worked.

He tried all sorts of ways to woo the treacherous jade slumber. He was accustomed to feel sleepy before retiring, which he did either very early or very late, so as to capture sleep "unbeknownst," as it were. Undressing very gently, he lay down softly, so as not to disturb the sleepy fit.

In vain. The moment he touched his pillow his eyes flew open as wide as if a fire alarm had been suddenly rung in his ear. He counts sheep going over the fence, he counts the beating of his pulse, he counts just for the sake of counting and then extracts the square and cube root of high numbers he cons over. Nothing brings sleep. Like a flying machine, every remedy fails just when it is wanted to work.

Each morning, week after week, a programme like the following is performed when his friends meet him:

You are looking thin and pale; what's the matter with you?

Nothing in particular. I don't sleep very well.

Is that all? You can cure that easy enough. You can, can you? How, for instance?

And now come the suggestions.

You must take a glass of ale just before you get into bed.

Then follow prescriptions ad infinitum. Each listener has his or her remedy:

A hop pillow.
A glass of whisky just before bedtime.
Soak the feet in hot water.
Put bags of ice on the head.
Take lupelline.
Try bromide of potassia.
If one's anemous in a sury cure.
Take a hot bath in the evening.
Use a bath of nitro-muriatic acid.
Don't drink coffee.
Don't smoke.
Smoke a cigar just before you go to bed.
Don't eat a hearty meal after 3 o'clock.
Don't eat a meal just before retiring.

All are tried in turn; all are as worthless as a sureshot consumption cure.

The victim is subject to various hallucinations. Sometimes he falls into a doze and wakes with a feeling as if he had been shot out of a cannon. He has a glad, exultant consciousness that he has slept. Slowly now the evil spell of wakefulness is broken at last. He has been asleep certainly four hours. Now he will be strong and refreshed for the morrow. He looks at his watch and find he was unconscious just a minute.

So he lies and tosses through the wretched nights. His business does not trouble him; his sweetheart has not been faithless; he has nothing on his conscience more than have ordinarily. He simply cannot sleep, and that is the beginning and end of it. All the remedies in creation, all the devices for bringing slumber simmer down as follows:

My own experience teaches me that rolling over in bed becomes, after a while, monotonous. I have tried it now on one side, now on the other, again prone, and then on the back, accompanying the revolution with a liberal amount of kicking, is about as good a remedy as any other.

Another curative process which I resorted to at intervals was to lie for three or four hours, then get angry, rise, dress, kick over chairs, impressing at each stage of the process, then go out into the night, closing the front door with a bang that shook the house. It is a good thing for the victim to put in operation.

If it rains, thunders, and the lightnings sear the eyeballs with their steely incandescence; if a tempest howls through the streets; if it be with tropic heat, so much the better; for the war, the turmoil, the elemental strife, will harmonize with the feelings. Let him stamp on and it may be that at the end of three or four hours' tramping he will weary a little and succeed that nature will grant him a short reprieve of oblivion in the embrace of sleep.

A curious phase of the Parnell-O'Shea affair is that his party in England seems inclined to forgive Parnell and take him back into its good graces, now that he has done the only thing he could do to repair his wrongdoing and married Mrs. O'Shea. But the Irish home rule party appears to be more bitterly and hopelessly against him than ever. This is attributed partly to jealousy of him among rival Irish leaders, and partly to the influence of the Roman Catholic church, which does not countenance the marriage of divorced persons.

At the Paris exposition in 1889 the Argentine Republic made a magnificent display, and brought that country to the notice of all the world. The commissioner to those energy and ability in display was due was Mr. Carlos Lix Klett, and Mr. Carlos Lix Klett has been appointed by his government again as a world's fair special commissioner, this time to the Columbia exposition at Chicago. So the Argentine exhibit will again be a fine one.

It is to be sincerely regretted if the reports of unpleasantness and quarreling between Stanley and his wife, pretty Dorothy Tennant, are true. The blame is all put upon Stanley. Has he perhaps been attempting wild African methods with a high spirited English woman?

Pork is better than politics, and the removal of the embargo on American pork in France, largely through the efforts of the American minister, will be welcomed by all Americans.

FUN AT FISHER'S ISLAND

The Naval Militia Enjoy a Spirited Battle.

DEFENDERS MEET WITH DEFEAT.

Honors Paid to the Governor of Connecticut—Saluted with Seventeen Guns by the Chicago and the Flag of Connecticut Displayed.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 31.—The attack upon Fisher's island, which was in the possession of the imaginary enemy, by the marines of the white squadron took place Thursday afternoon. The defending force numbered about 300, under command of Captain Reid, while the attacking party had 450, commanded by Lieutenant Commanders Manny, Swinburn and Miller and Lieutenants Rodgers and Mason. The brigade commander was Captain Casey, of the Newark. The boats of the attacking force formed in line on the northern side of Fisher's island.

Met by a Brisk Fire.

On approaching the beach they were met by a brisk small arm fire, to which they replied spiritedly. The artillery opened fire and drove the marines beyond the first high ground near the beach. A battalion taking advantage of this engagement, rowed rapidly to the beach, landed and deployed as skirmishers. The remainder of the force soon landed and assumed position.

Driven from Their Position.

Then followed sharp firing on both sides, the defenders finally contesting the ground until they were compelled to fall back under the pressure of superior forces until they were driven from their last position and the "battle" was at an end.

Connecticut's Governor Saluted.

The governor of Connecticut was among the spectators. He arrived at noon and paid his respects to Admiral Walker, who had previously visited him on the Stonington. Upon leaving the governor was saluted with seventeen guns and the flag of Connecticut was displayed on the Chicago. A dress parade took place today, thus ending the drills of the naval militia.

YOUNG PEPPER WAS WILD.

His Father Tells Why He Cut Off the 12,000 Francs Income.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—Edward Pepper, Sr., has filed his answer to the allegations made against him by his son, Edward Pepper, Jr., M. D., in a bill of equity filed April 28. In his bill Dr. Pepper, Jr., alleged that ill health obliged him to give up his practice of medicine in Paris some time prior to January, 1884, and remove to Algiers. He admits that he released to his father all interest in his inheritance from his mother, and claims that his father agreed to pay him 12,000 francs a year, like copy of which agreement his father destroyed. The annuity was paid for a while, but for five years past no payments have been made. The answer denies that Pepper, Jr., was forced to leave Paris because of ill health, but says his departure was owing to his misconduct with women.

He agreed to pay his son 1,000 francs a month to avoid scandal, the payments to continue during good behavior, on condition that the money be used for the support of his wife and family. He learned, however, that his son had abandoned his family and gone off with a woman with whom he was living, and consequently ceased paying the allowance. The agreement was made solely for the support of young Pepper's family and not for the support of the son in a life of degradation.

No Alien Contract Labor.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Secretary Foster has sent a note to Mr. Neidringhaus, of St. Louis, which supercedes and obliterates the view of Mr. Owen, the superintendent of immigration, in his recent letter to Mr. Neidringhaus favorable to the employment of alien laborers in the tin plate industry. Secretary Foster simply intimates that the law must take its course the same in the tin plate industry as in all others.

NOT CAUSED BY PLATT.

Secretary Foster Says the Ex-Senator Did Not Interfere with Erhardt.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A Washington special to The Evening Post says: Secretary Foster, when asked whether it was true that Collector Erhardt had resigned six weeks ago, as reported, replied:

"His resignation was in the president's hands before I went out to Ohio. He had an idea that Mr. Platt was interfering with the subordinates in the customs house. I don't know fact what special ground he based this complaint on, as Mr. Platt has not interfered in anything of the sort since I became secretary of the treasury. I fancy the feeling between the two gentlemen was of long standing. The reason why the resignation was made final occurred, however, after the collector's letter had been in the president's hands for some time. I refer to the cutting down of the custom house force. We were obliged, on account of the refusal of congress to make adequate appropriations, to economize on all sides.

"The collectors generally to whom we applied signified their willingness to submit to reductions. Colonel Erhardt stood out, however, asserting that he could not get along with the force and left the impression of his office properly. We sent special agents to investigate the matter, and on the strength of their report we decided to make reductions in New York. Colonel Erhardt took this very much to heart, I believe."

"Is Mr. Fassett still Mr. Platt's choice for the office?"

"Mr. Fassett's appointment was decided upon by the president, to the best of my knowledge, without anybody's pushing him. The president appointed him because he regards him as the best man for the place."

A UNITED IRISH PARTY.

John Dillon Thinks There Will Be One Soon.

HE WILL LEAD M'CARTHY'S FACTION

The Irish Novelist Statesman Is Tired of the Fight and Will Retire—O'Brien Refuses to Meet Parnell in Conference.

Trouble Feared for Next Sunday.

LONDON, July 31.—For the first time in several months Irish affairs are the leading topic here. It is stated on high authority among the McCarthyites that Dillon will shortly be selected as leader of the party. McCarthy has only been waiting for Dillon's release to get rid of the burden of the chairmanship and devote himself entirely to his favorite occupation of literature. His finances have suffered considerably since he accepted the leadership. From all parts of Ireland appeals have come direct to Mr. McCarthy for assistance in the cause of cricket, theaters, and the national sympathies have led him to contribute really beyond his means.

They Will Duck Parnell.

In return for all this, he has been subjected to personal abuse, and his intimate friends say that while he too proud and patriotic to openly acknowledge his disappointment, he has been cured of his life long enthusiasm for the national cause. The latest talk of the anti-Parnellites is that they will duck Parnell in a honeypond if he dares to speak at Thurles next Sunday, according to his announced intention. Archbishop Croke has invited Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien to be his guests at Thurles. The horsepond programme may not be carried out, especially as it is declared to be contingent on the consent of Archbishop Croke, who is not likely to agree to such a disposition, even temporarily, of Parnell.

O'Brien Would Not See Parnell.

That there will be disorder at Thurles next Sunday there is little doubt. The people there are in a mood to mob almost the archbishop, and will probably resent any allusion of an unfavorable kind to the clergy.

DUBLIN, July 31.—Yesterday received a message from Parnell inviting him to a personal interview. To this O'Brien refused to consent fearing, it is said, that a distorted account of the conference might afterward be given to the public. It is stated that Dillon, while uttering his repudiation of Parnell's leadership, also spoke in strong condemnation of the foul allusions by one of the Irish members of parliament to Mrs. Parnell, and declared that such language was unworthy of any decent Irishman.

Dillon Hopes for Unity.

Addresses were presented to Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien at Athlone and Mullingar. Mr. Dillon, in responding, said he believed that in the near future there would again be a united Irish party.

At Dublin an immense crowd of Parnellites and McCarthyites cordially greeted the patriots, who drove to Dillon's residence amid cheers for Parnell.

Mr. Dillon, in conversation with representative McCarthyites, promised that in the event of any Parnell contest in byeelections he would intervene in support of the McCarthyite candidate. Mr. O'Brien has an open car window and struck a lady passenger on the foot, without, however, doing much damage. has no intention to take a period of rest for the completion of his historical novel.

World's Fair Men in France.

PARIS, July 31.—The American commissioners for the Chicago World's fair, now in Paris, had a long interview with the secretary of state, the minister of commerce, M. Roche being temporarily absent from the city. The Americans took particular pains to make it plain that the Paris fair could not hope for powerful co-operation in making the great exhibition an unqualified success.

She Lived Without Food Seventeen Years.

MADRID, July 31.—Dr. Vergara, of Villacienzo, has published the details of a strange case of sustentation of life with out food. A married woman, aged forty-eight years, residing near the doctor, has not taken nourishment of any kind for seventeen years, except a little water every three or four days.

IN THE POLITICAL WORLD.

Chairman Clarkson's Campaign of Education—Frank Brown for Governor.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—In an interview Colonel Clarkson outlined his plans as chairman of the Republican national committee:

"The work of the Republican national organization from now until November will almost solely consist in carrying along its quiet methods so as to deliver them safely into the hands of the national committee when it meets in November. In the meantime I propose to energize and prosecute the preparations for an educational campaign, which will be carried into every farm district in the Union in connection with the National League of Republican clubs.

"I share with all the other members of the executive committee a sincere regret for the retirement of Senator Quay, and a belief that his resignation of the chairmanship is an actual loss to the party. I am not yet ready to indicate whom I may appoint as treasurer of the committee to fill succeed Colonel Dudley. The matter of location will have almost as much to do with the selection of that officer as anything else."

The name of Thomas Dolan, of Philadelphia, has already been suggested as treasurer.

Frank Brown for Governor.

BALTIMORE, July 31.—At the Democratic state convention, Frank B. Brown was nominated for governor by acclamation. The other nominations were also made by acclamation: Attorney general, Isaac Lobe Baltimore, for attorney general; J. Frankford, of St. Mary's county, for clerk of court of appeals, and Marion De Kalb Smith, for comptroller of the treasury.

A resolution was adopted thanking the Hon. Arthur P. Gorman for his services as chosen leader of the Democratic senators in their successful fight against the federal elections bill, and nominating him for re-election to the senate.

The platform declares that the verdict of the people against the Republican national administration was registered in the congressional elections of November, 1890. That administration has disregarded its pledges as to civil service reform, has wasted the surplus and has shown a purpose to maintain and create an amount of public revenue greater than was ever before collected in time of peace. The platform charges that the Republican party created a working majority in congress by illegally depriving Democrats of seats by the agency of the speaker, and attempted to destroy autonomy of the states by the federal elections bill and to perpetuate its own power. The attempt will be renewed if the party is allowed to continue in control of the national government.

The platform declares that the people will not tolerate the continued subsidies to war taxes after twenty-five years of peace. These taxes are not continued to promote the general welfare, but to increase the profits of combinations. The existing tariff casts unnecessary burdens upon all engaged in agriculture, labor, the mechanic arts or commerce. The system is upheld by monopolies, who control the market of necessities and accumulate enormous wealth while oppressing by their combinations the labor which they employ, and maintaining their power by the corrupt use of money in federal elections.

The only method by which these abuses can be corrected is by the election of a president and congress pledged to a careful and thorough revision of the tariff system. The dollar in gold and the dollar in silver shall be of equal exchangeable value in all the markets of the United States. The hurrying into exile of so large a body of unoffending men, women and children from Russia is deplored and condemned. The platform also indorses the Australian ballot system.

Could Not Resign Under Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—In an interview Senator Quay said he first intended to resign from the senate on March 4, but two days after the presidential election of 1888, but was persuaded to remain. He again attempted to resign in March, 1890, but the time was then too short to secure a vote and could not resign under fire. Mr. Quay left for Beaver, Pa., today.

Before going he said: "There is just one statement I want to make. That is, that President Harrison has never suggested or intimated in the most remote manner that my resignation as national chairman would please him."

SECRETARY NOBLE OUT.

His Resignation in the President's Hands.

ILL HEALTH SAID TO BE THE CAUSE

It Is Believed That He Will Either Be Given a Mission Abroad or That He Will Become a Judge—The Best of Feeling Prevails.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The next important retirement from President Harrison's political family will be that of Secretary Noble. Four months ago Mr. Noble placed his resignation as secretary of the interior in the president's hands. One reason assigned for his withdrawal from public life was the condition of his health. Mr. Noble is troubled with an affection of the heart not unlike that from which the late Secretary Windom died. It was, in fact, the death of that gentleman which emphasized to Mr. Noble's mind the necessity of a more quiet and tranquil existence than is permitted to the possessor of the interior portfolio, and his resignation was not long in following. President Harrison, however, was not apparently alarmed by his secretary's physical condition and he pocketed the resignation without acting upon it.

To Take a Judgeship.

Secretary Noble has been absent from Washington for the better part of the last few months, and it is not improbable that the rest may prove beneficial. In that event he will remain in the cabinet until next winter, when, it is believed, he will be appointed by President Harrison to one of the new United States circuit judgeships created by the last congress.

An Official Statement.

In view of the fact that Mr. Noble resigned his portfolio four months ago it is not a little significant that he should have so repeatedly denied any intention of leaving the cabinet. Not only has he denied it, but he is reported on several occasions to have grown angry when questioned about it. There is, however, no doubt of the correctness of the statement.

With the Best of Feeling.

General Noble is not here to confirm this announcement—he is at Richfield Springs, N. Y.—but the information comes from such a source that its truth is accepted. It can be said that the secretary retires from the cabinet with the best of feeling between the president and himself. The step is taken after due consideration, and the resignation is accepted with regret by the president. It is possible that General Noble's mind is not yet made up as to what will suit him best. There is one story current that he will not return to Washington, but will go to Europe for three or four months' travel, returning here after the judicial appointments are made.

He Must Go Abroad.

There seems to be no doubt that General Noble can have a judicial appointment if he will take it. His personal inclinations are now said to be in favor of the bench. The ladies of his family, however, are said to look upon an official residence at one of European capitals as desirable. One thing which seems to point to the European appointment is the manner in which General Noble's effects have been packed. Strong cases have been made, such as are usually used for removal to the new home. In these has been placed the general's books and such belongings as would naturally be shipped if the family was going to Europe for an extended stay. As against the idea of the acceptance of a foreign mission is held out the fact that the bench appointment is for life, and that it ranks next to the supreme court.

Why He Retires.

General Noble retires, according to those who are in a position to speak, because he feels that there is nothing more in the secretaryship for him. He has administered the duties nearly two and a half years. He has worried as have few other men connected with the administration.

The secret has been well kept. It might have been preserved still longer but for the meeting of the executive committee of the Republican national committee in this city. In strict confidence the information was imparted to the members of the executive committee by one who had brought it from Cape May. Of course the members of the executive committee naturally turned to Colonel S. S. Clarkson as the source of authority. This, however, was stated to be premature.

The President Will Not Talk.

CAPE MAY, July 31.—Neither the president nor Secretary Halford will talk concerning the reported resignation of Secretary Noble.

Has Mr. Wanamaker Resigned, Too?

NEW YORK, July 31.—A special to The Times from Washington says that Postmaster General Wanamaker has offered to resign.

Secretary Proctor Visits the President.

CAPE MAY, July 31.—Secretary of War Redfield Proctor arrived here last night from New York and will be a guest of the president. He was met by Secretary Halford and driven to the cottage. He goes to Washington today.

Japan Ready to Protect Foreigners.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Chinese advices state that when telegrams reached Tokio announcing the widespread attacks against foreigners in China five Japanese men-of-war were ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed at a moment's notice to Shanghai. This fact suggests the great additional security to foreigners in China which may be derived from the proximity of Japan.

Brisan Again Goes Free.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—Josiah S. Brisan, the architect who was arrested several weeks ago on a charge of embezzlement of $33,600, brought by Manager John W. Post, of the Tubular Car company, of Bradford, Pa., was arraigned and discharged. Post failing to appear against him. There is a warrant out for Post for embezzling $17,500 from W. J. Gray.

Shot for Stepping on Albert's Foot.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., July 31.—Edward Rich, of Rutherford, who was shot in the head by John Albert, a colored man, cannot recover. Rich accidentally stepped upon Albert's foot. This so enraged the negro that he drew a revolver and fired three shots at Rich, one ball entering his forehead. Albert escaped.

The Davis Will Case.

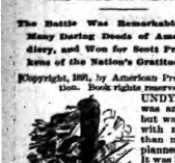
SCOTT AT LUNDY'S LANE.

HIS BOLD TACTICS AND GENERALSHIP AND BRILLIANT FIGHTING.

The Battle Was Remarkable for the Many Daring Deeds of American Soldiery, and Won for Scott Priceless Tokens of the Nation's Gratitude.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]



LUNDY'S LANE was an accident, but was attended with more glory than many a well planned battle. It was brought on without orders, was fought with unusual desperation, and though it yielded no substantial results to the victors, who were the aggressors as well, it stands well to the front in the list of bloody contests that reflect splendor upon the American arms. Besides, it gave to the nation a remarkable military hero, whose fame remained untarnished for half a century.

After the American forces had established themselves on Canadian soil in the summer of 1814, the commander, Gen. Jacob Brown, adopted the policy of threatening various important points on that side of the boundary, in order to prevent his opponent, Gen. Riall, from making a counter invasion across the Niagara river. On the 25th of July he received news of the movements of the British that led him to suppose that such an invasion was on foot, and yielding to the urgent solicitation of Gen. Scott, who commanded one of his brigades, ordered him to lead a movement along the Queenstown road to threaten Forts George and Niagara, and thus put the enemy on the defensive. The order was issued at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and Scott's brigade was in motion in twenty minutes. His force numbered 1,300 men, namely, four infantry battalions, one battery and two companies of mounted men. After a march of a couple of hours the column was met with rumors, spread by dispatches, that Riall was in the immediate vicinity with a force fully equal to Scott's, but in the flatness of contradictory information, credited as positive at Brown's headquarters, the impatient leader refused to believe the story and continued to "march rapidly on the forts," as he had been ordered. He took the precaution, however, to send a message back to his chief announcing what he had heard. The British who appeared on his front he believed to be only a remnant left by Riall to deceive the American generals, and these he promptly attacked.

"MAKE ROOM THERE, MEN."

Instead of a remnant he met an army and unintentionally opened the battle of Lundy's Lane, or Niagara, as it is also called. Riall was in the vicinity with a large force and, moreover, was in full readiness for battle. His troops numbered 4,500 and many of them were fresh. His position was on an eminence along which ran Lundy's lane, a highway between Niagara river and the head of Lake Ontario. So precipitate had been Scott's action that there was no safe way of backing out on the part of the Americans. He had advanced his brigade by his bold attack, and should he withdraw after a tentative stroke it would be a confession of weakness and invite pursuit. Pursuit under the circumstances would be as difficult to withstand as the onset of superior numbers in a free field would be.

The enemy opened with musketry and cannon and Scott accepted the challenge just as though the entire American army was at hand. The British artillery was stationed on an eminence, with infantry to the right and left of it. Between the British left left flank and the river there was a space left vacant, but at the moment of Scott's attack re-enforcements for Riall were marching up to occupy it. That terrace was Lundy's lane, a highway between Niagara river and the head of Lake Ontario. So precipitate had been Scott's action that there was no safe way of backing out on the part of the Americans. He had advanced his brigade by his bold attack, and should he withdraw after a tentative stroke it would be a confession of weakness and invite pursuit. Pursuit under the circumstances would be as difficult to withstand as the onset of superior numbers in a free field would be.

The enemy opened with musketry and cannon and Scott accepted the challenge just as though the entire American army was at hand. The British artillery was stationed on an eminence, with infantry to the right and left of it. Between the British left left flank and the river there was a space left vacant, but at the moment of Scott's attack re-enforcements for Riall were marching up to occupy it. That terrace was Queenstown road that supports were marching to Riall's assistance, and Jesup's movement caused them to halt and change their direction. Meanwhile Scott pressed the fighting against the British front. He did not hope to win the fight alone, but thought that he could hold on until relief should come from Gen. Brown, in response to his message that the enemy was reported in force on his front.

Jesup's movement was a brilliant success to every way. He kept off re-enforcements from Riall that might have turned the tide against Scott. He fought with a force of 1,000 to his own column out of those present under Riall, and he captured Riall and several of his staff before directions could be given in the British lines for the order of battle. The capture of the enemy's leader was a stroke of luck, perhaps, but it was effected by an inspiration of genius and daring such as wins in the heat of a conflict. Riall had been wounded, and with his staff was moving away from the fight in the direction of his reserves. An aid preceded him, and on meeting a party of Jesup's men mistook them in the dark for British and called out, "Make room there, men, for Gen. Riall." With an "Ay, ay, sir," the American ranks opened, the unsuspecting British moved between, and at a word American bayonets were lowered and the headquarters party were prisoners of war. Soon after Leader Gardiner of British deployed between Jesup's line and the river to cut him off, but he charged boldly through the hostile ranks and ranged his command once more with the main American force. Seeing their left turned, the enemy swung out their right in a furious assault, which Scott repulsed with heavy loss. Only their artillery in the center remained fire. The re-enforcements, however, that Jesup had cut off on the direct road had arrived on the field, and the issue was undecided with odds greatly against Scott. It was then 9 o'clock at night and the battle was fought under the light of the moon.

SCOTT'S JOURNEY THROUGH NEW YORK.

Scott's intuition had been correct. The fighting of the battle had penetrated to the American camp, and Gen. Brown had promptly sent a brigade under Gen. E. W. Ripley to move rapidly forward and support the advance, and hastened to the field in person. It took but a glance to determine that the enemy's cannon in the center, on the eminence around which the fighting had been waged, was the key to the British position. Ripley's brigade filed up along the main river (or Queenstown) road until it came to Lundy's lane, where the British battery was located. The American engineer of the field quickly informed Brown that the British cannon must be silenced. The leading battalion of Ripley's brigade was the Twenty-first, led by Col. James Miller, and when it reached the lane Brown said to the commander, pointing to the British stronghold, "Colonel, take your regiment, storm that work and take it." "I'll try, sir," responded Miller, and proceeded to the task. His men numbered about 300, and screening themselves by the fence of the lane and a growth of shrubbery beside it, approached to within two rods of the battery. The British gunners stood with lighted matches awaiting the word to fire. It was too dark for effective shots as long range, and they were in readiness to receive attack from any quarter. Miller's men carefully took aim and shot down every gunner, then with a shout mounted the fence and were upon the pieces before the British could resist. A line of British infantry lying near by as supports opened upon Miller's men with muskets and attempted to retake the cannon by a bayonet charge, but were kept in check by a rapid fire of musketry. Seven cannons, with the ammunition wagons and horses, fell into Miller's hands.

The British quickly rallied and attempted to drive Miller's men away. After two such assaults had been repulsed Gen. Ripley brought forward the remainder of his brigade and the brigade were held, even against a third assault—the most powerful of all—by 1,500 fresh troops. Scott's men were unable, had borne the brunt of the battle. One after another the regiments of this brigade exhausted their ammunition and retired for fresh supplies, until there was but one left in line—the Ninth—with the skeletons of three others around it. Two of Scott's regimental commanders were down with severe wounds, and the captains of the Eleventh were killed or wounded. Scott himself suffered from a severe wound that he had received while directing Maj. Jesup's gallant exploit against the enemy's left early in the fight. Notwithstanding all, however, the daring soldier would not allow the battle to lag on his line. While Miller was contending with the British battery, Scott ordered a charge on his own front, and his men were about to carry out the purpose when Miller's success was announced. Then the fight was over.

Bloody as well as desperate had been the battle of Lundy's Lane. It ended at 10 o'clock at night, and the darkness had compelled the combatants to get into very close quarters. Three American regimental commanders, two artillery captains and numerous staff and line officers were among the killed and wounded. Gen. Brown was wounded, as was also Scott. Ripley's loss in his brigade was 171 killed and 571 wounded—742 in all. The proportion of killed was large. The loss was sustained principally in the brigades of Scott and Ripley, and fell upon about 2,500 men. The British lost 84 killed and 559 wounded—643 in all. This loss fell upon about 4,500 men. Scott's wound was made by a rifle ball that penetrated the shoulder, and though he kept the saddle until near the close of the battle, his system was in the end exhausted by the loss of blood. He had two horses killed under him, and was a veritable hero everywhere on the field. After the battle he was borne by slow stages to Batavia, N. Y., where he remained until convalescent. When able to endure travel upon a litter he was carried upon the shoulders of admiring gentlemen from town to town as far as Geneva, N. Y. The fame of Lundy's Lane had preceded him, and he was everywhere greeted with demonstrations honoring him for the part he had played in the conflict along the Niagara. Three weeks before the battle of Lundy's Lane he had incited his men to charge the enemy and refuse the British order that Americans could "not stand cold iron." This was at Chippewa. At the opening of congress in 1814 Scott was honored by a vote of thanks and the award of a gold medal. It was this medal that was passed over by bank burglars while robbing the vaults where it was deposited because it belonged to a hero. Virginia and New York each presented him with a sword, and with a bound he sprang into prominence as a popular idol.

The battle of Lundy's Lane was not a valuable triumph for the nation. After Brown and Scott were taken wounded from the field the ground was abandoned, together with all captures, excepting one brass piece borne off as a trophy by Col. Miller's gallant men. The British returned and occupied it in strength during the night. But the brilliant action of Scott, who fairly outgeneraled his opponent, and the conduct of Miller, won for him the admiration of the British themselves, placed Lundy's Lane among the remarkable contests of the world.

From such a battle ground it was fitting that brilliant memories should be handed down. N. T. Sherman, responding to the toast, "The Old Army," in the last speech he delivered, cited Lundy's Lane and Scott and Col. Miller for instances of traditional American fidelity on the field of Mars.

SNAPPER GARRISON'S DISGRACE.

America's Greatest Jockey Set Down at Four Tracks.

Probably the best known jockey of the American turf is Snapper Garrison, and the news of his recent disgrace at the hands of the board of control created a big sensation in turf circles. His license was taken away, and although no specific cause was given for the act it is said that his alleged "pulling" of several horses (i. e., preventing them from winning) brought the sentence. Garrison now cannot ride at races of the Coney Island, Brooklyn and New York Jockey clubs and the Monmouth Park association.

SNAPPER GARRISON.

The great jockey's full name is Edward H. Garrison. Ten years ago he was a stable boy for Father Bill Daly at Brighton beach. His rise to fame and fortune was phenomenal, and it was not long before he was the greatest rival of James McLaughlin on the turf. His salary was $12,000 a year, and he was credited with an income of $25,000. A little later he vanquished McLaughlin and was acknowledged to be the greatest jockey in America. If any man could make a horse win in a desperate finish Garrison was the individual.

Sobriety, pluck, determination in keeping his weight down and thorough knowledge of his mounts have been the elements that brought him success, but his vanity and his alleged unscrupulousness have of late proved stumbling blocks in his way. He has at various times been credited with being wealthy, but as he has always been a daring plunger no one but himself could tell his financial status. He has been known to borrow $5, run it up to $20,000, lose his winnings and be penniless again all within a week. He is now twenty-five years old. His disgrace is a severe blow to him, but as good a jockey is not apt to long be kept off the turf.

A Warning for Amateur Actors.

A Brooklyn society of amateur actors produced William Gillette's copyrighted play, "Held by the Enemy," during the winter, without his permission and contrary to his expressed wish. He carried the case into the courts and a decision was recently given in his favor, and heavy damages will doubtless be awarded to him. This should be a warning to amateur dramatic clubs. A man's play is as much his personal property as his watch, and the courts will as surely punish any one who steals it, even for one performance, as they will the thief who picks his pocket.

Manager W. R. Harrington.

One of the well known baseball business men of the west is W. R. Harrington, who was born at Rhinebeck, N. Y., thirty-four years ago, but who is now a resident of the New World's fair city. Like most managers, Harrington is a graduate of the diamond. In 1883 he began his managerial career with the Peoria (Ill.) club. The following year Denver won the Western league champion-ship under his leadership. He next managed the Columbus and Lo Crosse teams. Then he took hold of the Lima, Canton and Evansville clubs successively, and the year he cared for its interests each club won the pennant of the Tristate league.

Ladies' Hose.

New designs of white English stripe for the country, for mountains and seaside alike, are very simply made, and are kept white throughout. Their trimming is white silk braid a third of an inch wide, tubular or basket, woven, put on in fronts in disks or bombes, as the French say, or else wider white Hercules braid is used in parallel rows of graduated length.

A good plan is to make white wool dresses with a coat bodice with jacket fronts that open on removable vests of crepe de chine, or of the deeper shades of Japanese crape, of which there should be three or four, one white, another yellow and a third pink or green, as best suits the wearer's complexion.

To give further variety to the summer wardrobe, the white serge skirt is worn in the morning with a shirt waist of gray blue or of pink wash silk striped with white, or of white twilled silk striped with blue or green. A pretty detail of these shirts is a narrow pleated frill of the silk set around the white collar and cuffs. The cravat bow is of the same silk with a deep hem on the ends neatly hemstitched, and is made of two pieces set under the fronts of the shirt instead of passing entirely around the neck in warm and clumsy fashion.

The tucked waist is again the favorite for summer dresses, especially with Parisiennes, who have rung all the changes possible on coats and begin to tire of them. The Recamier drapery of soft white dress makers has a seamless back and bias draped front, and is quite long waisted, with a fanciful sash wound twice about the waist and falling in long ends.

Chiffon gowns are ideal dresses for summer dances and dinner parties. Young ladies wear the entire dress of white, pink, yellow or blue chiffon, with low corsage, puffed sleeves and gathered skirt over satin linings. Young matrons wear chiffon or silk muslin gowns of pale gray or black striped throughout with very narrow satin ribbons—mauve ribbons on gray and pink on black.—Harper's Bazar.

In the Interest of Music and Decoration.

The fashion of turning a piano with its back to the room is both in the interest of musicians and also a decorative feature. When the case used the back is of ebony draped. The accompanying cut shows a pretty arrangement for this purpose. For the drapery plain Egyptian shading may be used, or silk mixture damask to match the other hangings of the room.

PIANO DRAPERY.

A dark blue ground with pale yellow and bronze intermixed is very attractive. It should be finished with a fringe and a soft silk cushion made to square of handsome embroidery is introduced in one corner. A draped piano looks well when placed across a corner of the room.
